Benefit

The Dixon community is planning a benefit for the Steve Schutte family on Wednesday, July 13 at the Dixon fire hall.

Schutte has been undergoing treatment for cancer the past year and is currently a patient at Marian Health Center in Sioux City.

The benefit will include a barbecued pork dinner, with the trimmings. Serving begins at 4:30 p.m. and will continue throughout the evening. There also will be drawings for prizes which have been donated.

Eunl Diediker is in charge of organizing volunteer crews. Anyone interested in assisting should contact her at 584-9309.

Persons unable to attend the benefit but still wishing to make a contribution can do so at the Security National Bank in Laurel.

A cultivating bee for Schutte was held July 5. He and his wife, Mary Jo, farm north of Dixon and are the parents of five children.

Hay bids

Sealed bids will be accepted for haying on approximately 40 acres of pasture on the NE 1/4 and the N 1/2 SE 1/4 of Section 6-24-2 in Stanton County and on approximately 37 acres of alfalfa and 53 acres of pasture land on the SE 1/4 25-25-1 in Wayne County.

Bids will be accepted until 4 p.m. on Thursday, July 14. Bids will be for a lump sum amount payable upon the signing of a haying agreement. The government reserves the right to reject any or all offers. There will not be a public bid opening but all bidders will be notified of whether or not their bid is accepted.

The haying agreement is offered without regard to race, creed, color, religion, sex, age, national origin or marital status.

For more information contact the Farmers Home Administration County Office in Wayne. Telephone number 375-2360 prior to submitting the bid to know exactly what land is being offered for haying.

Music camp

Approximately 80 high school students and recent graduates have already enrolled in the Wayne State College summer-music-camp scheduled for July 24-31.

The camp will offer three bands, three choirs, five jazz bands, six swing choirs and an orchestra, in addition to private instruction in voice and instruments, according to Dr. Jay O'Leary, professor of music at Wayne State.

Campers will be housed in college dormitories and will receive meals in the student center. Classes are offered in the Val Peterson Fine Arts Center, and concerts will be given in Ramsey Auditorium, the college concert hall.

Registration is still open. For more information, call (402) 375-2200, ext. 359.

Wakefield receives grant for housing rehab

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

Wakefield is one of 25 local Nebraska governments to have been awarded a Community Development Block Grant through the Department of Economic Development.

Wakefield's grant amount is $183,300 to be directed toward housing rehab. Announcement of the grant distribution was made on Thursday, June 30.

Wakefield City Administrator Lowell Johnson said Wednesday that the northeast part of Wakefield has been targeted as a high need area. That designation was the result of recommendations from community meetings conducted earlier this year.

Johnson said the appointed steering committee has not decided how the housing rehab program will operate. The targeted section eligible for the rehab program is mapped out on a display at the Wakefield City Clerk's office.

To be eligible to receive the grant funds — the applicants must live in the designated target area and must own their own home. Their household income must meet the federal guidelines for low and moderate income designations.

The grant money will be available for these low to moderate income individuals to fix up their homes. The steering committee has not yet set a maximum or minimum amount which the applicant can receive. Income guidelines can also be seen at the city clerk's office.

Johnson said he expects no applications will be taken for the funding until August of this year.

One alternative under discussion, he said, is to provide 50 percent of the applicants' request as a grant, while supplying the remaining portion of the request as a low interest loan with long term payback.

Wakefield was one of five communities that were granted funding through block grants in the area of

Class helps teachers understand language learning barriers

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

Chip, a fictional name in this story, was a high school student scoring average grades when it came to most of his school subjects.

However, his reading skills in high school were recorded only at the sixth grade level. It was eventually decided that Chip would not be a successful student, but he could get by.

Chip was indeed just getting by. But he found later that people would not pay attention to him. Some of the teachers, thinking Chip was a much brighter student, were quick to criticize his performances in high school.

Chip did put forth an honest effort, only to be accused that he wasn't trying hard enough. He eventually got tired and decided to give up. He decided to perform the role of the class clown to gain the attention he was missing.

BEING THE class clown was Chip's option. Others in Chip's situation could have decided to drop out of school, or become chemically dependent.

The above story is not far-fetched, but it is a nationwide problem which C. Wilson Anderson of Minneapolis, Minnesota and Joan C. Stoner of Lincoln would like to see controlled.

Anderson is a high school English teacher with a masters degree in Special Education from Augustana College in Sioux Falls. Stoner is director of the Teaching and Learning Center at Union College in Lincoln.

Together they taught a two week class at Wayne State College, from June 20 to July 1, helping 15 teachers and tutors learn alternative methods in working with students who have language learning disabilities.

"I became very interested in the subject when I noticed students in the social studies classes were very bright. Then the same students would be disastrous in English," said Anderson.

"I couldn't understand how they could be so bright, yet couldn't read, write or spell and do the kinds of work that most teachers consider necessary," he said.

Then Anderson came across the word "dyslexia". Currently, he is president-elect of the Nebraska Branch of the Orton Dyslexia Society and past treasurer and president of the Upper Midwest Branch of the Orton Dyslexia Society.

HE LEARNED alternative methods to work with these kids. "My goal for all the teachers [participating in the Wayne State class] is for them to become much better classroom teachers for all the students," Anderson said.

Another goal, he said, is to have the teachers recognize who the special needs children are and decide how they can meet their needs in a regular classroom. "We also want the teachers to be responsible for teaching the subject matter to the mainstreamed students," mentioned Anderson.

During the WSC classes, teachers practiced their skills on volunteer students from grades 1-12. A mother accompanied her child and a teacher to the class from Missouri. Another mother brought her son in from Wyoming. A child attended the class from Oklahoma. Two students came from Columbus. There were also local volunteer students involved.

"This [classroom method] is a way to try and help everyone develop a system that can work for their own individual needs. That's what you try and answer to, to try and help every person cope with what it takes for him or her to do the job," said Mary Lou George of Winslow, resource educator from the Wayne-Carroll School District who assisted in coordinating the classes.

There is no such thing as a cure rate for language learning disability, such as dyslexia, according to Anderson. "Anyone who peddles a cure — you better be wary. There are a lot of snake oil salesmen out there who would be more than willing to relieve the money from your back pocket," he said.

"The best thing available is good educational treatment," he added.

WHAT "counts" in taking steps to conquer language learning disabilities?

"The intelligence of the child, severity of the problem, more appropriate intervention [the earlier the intervention, the better], and most importantly, the perseverance of the child," answered Anderson.

Eighty-five percent of students do fine in high school no matter what is thrown at them, said Anderson. "We're talking about the other 15 percent — the kids who fall through the cracks — where only two percent can be designated as special education. What about the other 13 percent that needs help?" he asked.

He estimates that 80 percent of the kids who are referred because of behavioral problems have unremedial problems in reading, expressions or spelling. "The universal need for all of them is to learn how to read, write and spell," he said.

THE PROBLEM is not limited to the high school corridors and classrooms. Adults with language learning disabilities (such as dyslexia) may find difficulty in coping.

"Most of the adults I worked with always thought they were stupid. But once they have the label of dyslexia or adult learning disabled — that gave them something to hang on to," said Anderson. "Then they found out what the label meant and how they applied to themselves. Once they

As Chicken Show approaches

Wayne becomes oversized coop

Wayne will become one gigantic hen house on Saturday, July 9 as the city celebrates its annual Wayne Chicken Show event, with most of the festivities taking place at Bressler Park.

This year's celebration is tied in with Wayne's Celebrate Nebraska '88 "Return to the Nest" celebration which began Sunday, July 3 and will continue until July 10.

Saturday's Chicken Show begins with a Fly-In at Wayne's Municipal Airport, as pilots from the region are invited to nest for the annual event. Coffee and rolls will be served until 9 a.m. A shuttle, between the airport and the park, will be provided for visitors to the Omelet Feed, which gets underway at 9 a.m. and is sponsored by numerous feeders and egg-ed on by poultry benefactors.

PEOPLE ATTENDING the Chicken Show should look to the air every hour on the hour, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., for skydivers. The River City Skydivers of Sioux City will time their first jump at 9 a.m. and land in the Masonic Lodge parking lot. The jumpers will also leap and land on Main Street prior to the start of the Chicken Show Parade at 10 a.m.

Three Wayne residents will ride piggyback with the skydivers during certain jumps.

The parade is just one of many familiar events that will take place at Saturday's Chicken Show. Others include the Fun Run, which starts at 7:30 a.m. at the Milton G. Waldbaum Company in Wakefield and ends at Bressler Park in Wayne and the rooster crowing contest — where the number of roosters' crows are recorded and the most crows wins — that starts at 8:30 a.m. Adults from throughout the area and Wayne County youths will have their prize exotic roosters and hens on display.

Chickens take to the air and are judged on distance in the International Chicken Flying Association's Chicken Flying Meet which begins at 9:30 a.m.

ONE OF THE most publicized events, which gained nationwide television recognition, is the National Cluck-Off. Last year's champion was from Crete, Nebraska. The Traveling National Cluck-Off Cup is provided to an individual who best imitates either a rooster crowing or hen clucking.

Other events to note include the Chicken Barbeque that takes place from 1-3 p.m. (see advertisement inside telling where tickets can be purchased) sponsored by the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce; and the Chicken Song Contest at 2 p.m., where contestants can peek out their own lyrics and cackle them to a tune, with the number of categories that will be determined by the number of entries.

More popular events include the egg drop/catch contest at 3 p.m., when participants try to catch a raw egg barehanded — dropped from the city of Wayne's cherry picker. Immediately following is the Chicken Olympecks, where youngsters ages of 7-8, 9-10, 11-12 and 13-14 work toward winning top honors in a variety of sporting events.

Surrounding the Chicken Show festivities are Chicken Art and Craft displays and contests which pick out the biggest Midwest chicken; best chicken hat; the biggest, lightest and oddest egg; and the best decorated egg.

TENTATIVELY planned to pass over Wayne, prior to the Chicken Show-parade, will be the Iowa Air

Publishers' Perspective

Positive Focus

Today's installment of Business Focus marks the first anniversary of this very popular readership item in The Wayne Herald.

Ellingson Motors was the first business to be featured mid-July 1987. Since then 51 other local merchants have followed the car dealer's lead...and there's a waiting list of other merchants who want to participate in weeks and months ahead.

Some of the merchants scheduled for future issues of Business Focus will be "first timers" while still others enjoyed their initial article and photos and have signed up for a second time.

Business Focus is a valuable public relations tool for ALL businesses. There are many "levels" of benefit for the participating merchant and a much larger scope benefit for the Wayne business community as a whole.

Not only does Business Focus provide merchants with an opportunity to publicize positive aspects of their business to customers but the feature (when considering broader implications) involves six merchants each rotation and sends a subtle message to readers in the entire trade area that the Wayne business community is: 1) alive and well; 2) has a lot to offer shoppers and; 3) is unified in an effort to publicly promote what is good about the business sector collectively and individually.

The fact Business Focus is entering its second year with a waiting list of enthusiastic participants speaks highly of the general mood of the Wayne business community.

GOOD TIMING

Maintaining an upbeat merchant attitude is crucial to the fiber of a community -- always and especially now.

To many merchants, last month was a real "downer".

Shock waves of uncertainty began to reverberate when Timpte announced hopes of selling its manufacturing plant...Farmers began struggling with the hottest, driest month in recent memory...Super Foods and Kuhn's Department Store announced plans to close their doors permanently.

It just wasn't a very upbeat period in Wayne's history and some merchants still are trying to come to psychological terms with what those negative events mean.

Should they retrench or take advantage of the situation by analyzing how their business could fill the void not filled by any local merchant or left empty by a merchant now out of business? What financial impact will the drought and two stores closing have on the local business sector?

Unfortunately answers to some of these questions require a patient wait-and-see attitude spread over several years. But fortunately a healthy vibrant business community -- or a progressive merchant -- never waits for the answer, they promote their remaining strengths and never look back (although they remember lessons learned from past successes and failures).

And let's consider some of the positive events currently evolving or which have already taken place over the past year.

Two NEW businesses are opening soon: 1) Nebraska Floral & Gifts in Dearborn Plaza and; 2) Discount Furniture's strictly used furniture outlet in its former south Main Street location...Work continues on an eastside car wash and several businesses have expanded in present or new locations (Taco Del Sol, Chiropractic Health Center, Complete Computers, Wayne Sporting Goods, Fredrickson Oil, Restful Knights)...Three others are approaching first anniversaries (Four In Hand, Wayne's True Value and Pac 'N' Save).

Adding to this excitement is the very serious behind-the-scenes activity which is working toward attracting further new business.

So all is not doom and gloom in Wayne, America. Just read each week's Business Focus for PROOF.

Timpte dismisses rumors of sale

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

Timpte, Inc. officials from Wayne have denied statements that the company has been sold to another trucking company.

James Remick, president of Timpte, Inc., emphatically stated that there has been no sale. "Not even close," he said.

A rumor that the company had been sold to the trucking firm of Great Dane was denied by Remick.

There have been a couple of interested customers who have come through the manufacturing plant, he said. "But we're far from closing," Remick said.

Announcement that the Timpte owners intended to seek bidders for its Wayne refrigerated trailer business came in late May, with a time frame of 90 days to try and consummate the sale. At that time, Remick said the Wayne refrigerated trailer operation "is not closing" and that the company officers were committed to "business as usual."

He said that the company will continue the testing of products, the testing of next year's models and will continue to work towards value analysis and cost reduction. He said the owners' intent to sell is "strictly for personal reasons" -- not because the company is under duress or not making money.

"This is not a hardship sale," he said.

National Guard out of Sioux City. Planned for possible display at the airport will be the Marian Lifeline Helicopter; a new type of airplane called the Angel Flight; and a jet.

A Chicken Show Softball Tournament will also take place at the Jaycee's Softball Complex on Saturday and Sunday. A cocktail party for all Wayne student alumni, is scheduled from 4-7 p.m. at the El Toro Lounge.

Also on Saturday there will be an Ice Cream Social sponsored by the Wayne County Historical Society, scheduled from 2-5 p.m. at the Wayne museum.

There are other events surrounding the Chicken Show which make up Wayne's "Return to the Nest" celebration.

Announcement of the Chicken A La King and Queen will be made at 2nd and Main Street Thursday, July 7 at 8 p.m. Prizes for the royalty include $25 in cash; a comb; a beaker; a spur; a drumstick; a 5' coarse dinner; a can of Chicken of the Sea; Wishbone dressing; and chicken soup. Deadline for nominations was Tuesday.

A "Return to the Nest" photography show is slated for July 6-7 at the Wayne City Auditorium. Exhibits are on display for public viewing on Wednesday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Thursday from 1-9 p.m.

A WAYNE Industries Business Emphasis Day, featuring a Vendor Golf Tournament will take place Thursday. Prior to the nine-hole scramble there will be a video shown promoting the city of Wayne. After the outing, a steak dinner will be served.

Dances are slated for Friday evening, July 8 -- with a teen dance taking place at the Wayne City Auditorium, sponsored by the Wayne Girl Scouts; and a "Return to the Nest" dance sponsored by the Wayne Ambassadors at the Wayne Armory. The final "Return to the Nest" activities include an antique and out of the field tractor pull at the Wayne County Fairgrounds and 1/10 scale remote control car races west of Pac 'N' Save, both events on Sunday.

The tractor pull is scheduled to begin at 1 p.m. and will feature a variety of classifications. Chuck Higbee, who is organizer of the remote control car event, said the race classes will include plastic frame, two-wheel drive modified, four-wheel drive modified and monster trucks if available. Registration fee is $3.50. That amount would be discounted if there is early registration by calling Higbee at 375-3617 or Rick Giroulet at 375-4002.

understood that, then things were workable," he said.

As an adult, the only thing necessary is tutoring. But that can become costly, $30 an hour, and most of the adults are underemployed or unemployed, according to Anderson.

"It may as well be $200 an hour, because they just don't have the resources," he said.

He remarked that most community literacy services make the assumption that these are adults who have never had any schooling, and treat them as if they didn't have that opportunity.

"The reality is that almost all of them have graduated from high school and a good share of them have had two years of college, he said. "Society, even though it feels it is cranked up to help them, is just going to treat the adults as regular kids who haven't had an education opportunity. That's a mistake."

WHAT THE ADULTS who face language learning disabilities would prefer is "for people to give them back their self-esteem."

There have been success stories. Those who have faced a language learning disability have gone on and accomplished worthy achievements in college or careers.

George said there is a difference between people who have language learning disability and those who are identified as legally encountering the problems.

"There may have been some who have not been tested who have the same kind of problems and found ways to compensate for the problem

-- either through extra help at home or someone took an interest in them at a certain stage and helped them learn a coping mechanism," George said.

"There are more of us who have these problems than people realize," she said.

How can more awareness be created in the areas of language learning disability?

"What was going on here was started in 1925 in Iowa. It's just taken that long to move out of the medical and private school sector into the public school sector," mentioned Anderson.

TEACHERS SHOULD experience an inservice concerning language learning disability and funding should be made available if that is to happen.

"The critical thing to look at is the perceived discrepancy between what people think a child's intelligence is and the actual kid's ability in terms of reading, writing, spelling and style," said Anderson.

Sandra Dostal, a fifth-sixth grade instructor at St. Joseph's School at Atkinson, has gained much from the class at Wayne State and working with the volunteer kids who have a language learning disability.

She has learned that working one on one with the student can help bring that child back to the classroom where he or she belongs.

Parents, of all people, should not give up on their child. They should fight for their child upon realization that a language learning disability exists.

"After all, who should know the child better?" asked Anderson.

U.S. Senate candidate Bob Kerrey met recently with members of the Wayne County delegation to the State Democratic Convention to discuss his goals and positions in the upcoming Senate campaign.

Kerrey told the delegates during his speech "I am owned by no one, and the greatest anger I feel is for those who try to control the strings of government for their own personal benefit against the best interests of the majority."

Kerrey also told the delegates that he intended to work hard to secure a spot on the Agriculture Committee so that he plays an important role in building "an agricultural policy which will not permit the devastation of the 1980's to repeat."

Joining Kerrey at the State Convention were Ron and Debbie Whitl and Sayre and Bonnie Andersen of Wayne.

Letters

Job well done

To Kenneth Dahl: We'd like to take the opportunity to publicly congratulate you on the appearance of the grounds and the wonderful condition of our golf course. For twenty-three years we've called this our home course and it has never been more beautiful. Hard work and dedication to detail has brought this about.

Whether you a golfer or not, everyone in Wayne should be proud of the "drawing card" we have north of our town.

Thank you very much Kenny and thanks to your crew.

'The Wayne Herald' a lot more than a newspaper

Over the past few months a new promotional slogan has been circulating in northeast Nebraska. It reads simply: "The Wayne Herald — a twice-a-week newspaper...and a lot more!"

Yes, the 109 year old Wayne Herald is a NEWSpaper first, last and always. In addition to being a newspaper, however, a lot more goes on inside the Newspaper Building at 114 Main than many people realize. Here's a look at the many components which make up the diversified business known as The Wayne Herald.

NEWSPAPER
Readership of the Herald remains high and the newspaper continues to prosper as one of only two dozen newspapers in Nebraska published more than once a week. Each year the Herald is recognized many times as a winner for professional excellence during award ceremonies held at the state newspaper convention. This year notoriety was earned in photography, feature writing and use of color printing in news.

Working to provide as much "localized" news and photos as possible are three full-time staff members working out of the Wayne office as well as a host of creative social correspondents, columnists and other contributors throughout the area. Altogether 12 of these "stringers" are on the payroll.

Chuck Hackenmiller serves as managing editor while LaVon Anderson is assistant editor. Kevin Peterson keeps very busy reporting sports happenings of Wayne State College and the area high schools of Wayne-Carroll, Winside, Laurel-Concord, Wakefield and Allen.

Advertising is an important revenue source for any newspaper. At The Wayne Herald Jane Fluent coordinates both the newspaper's regular advertising and special promotions department.

A valuable marketing aid offered weekly by the Herald to all advertisers-promoters is The Marketer — a free ads-only publication delivered to all Herald non-subscribers in a far-reaching area. The dynamic combination of the Herald-Marketer circulation provides users with guaranteed SATURATION coverage of the entire Greater Wayne trade area which includes six counties.

The Herald also offers affordable advertising space in the Northeast Nebraska Rocket for promoters desiring even greater coverage. Designed and printed at the Herald, the Rocket is a twice-a-month advertising tabloid inserted in 14 area publications. Rocket insertion orders for all kinds of advertising can be taken care of in The Wayne Herald office for all 14 member publications.

WEB PRINTING
In addition to printing the Rocket, the Herald is a central printing facility for more than 30 other publications who print on the 1,000 pound rolls of newsprint. These large scale customers come from 18 various communities throughout northeast Nebraska — and beyond.

Supervising the Herald's web press division is Al Pippitt with help from darkroom technician Jeff Sperry and several other staff members who assist when not performing their regular tasks. Former press foreman Ray Murray, who retired in March after 40 years of dedicated service to the Herald, is available in an advisory capacity.

Newsprint, inks, negatives, aluminum plates and other materials annually needed to produce the MILLIONS of pages for all these publications is a mind-boggling figure.

COMMERCIAL PRINTING
One of the Herald's busiest departments is the commercial printing division which has been expanded recently in order to keep up with an ever-increasing base of approximately 300 separate customers who need the smaller-sized printing items such as letterheads, envelopes, brochures, booklets, statements, multiple copy forms, 2,3,4-color work...you name it.

Recently The Herald added a toll-free printing hotline for the convenience of customers living outside the Wayne phone exchange area (1-800-672-3418).

Along with the actual printing work, the Herald sells "over-the-counter" a wide range of paper colors and sizes. Because the Herald buys all this paper in large quantities, these volume discount savings can be passed on to customers.

Dave Diediker is commercial printing manager with assistance from Rick Kerkman. Former printer Mike Bebee remains on-call when the workload becomes unwieldy. Typesetters and design personnel who work in both the newspaper and printing departments are Susan Callahan, Marilyn Gehner, Suzanne Gansbom and Bob Solberg. Their department heads are Alyce Henschke and Judi Topp.

MAILING & MISCELLANEOUS
Working "behind-the-scenes" in the all-important distribution department are mailroom manager Jeff Anderson along with Glenda Schluns, Maxine Schwanke and Betty Ulrich. In addition to stacking, tying, inserting and sorting bundles, Ulrich also makes regular printing deliveries in The Wayne Herald van — not only around town and the immediate area but also to locations in Lincoln, Omaha, Grand Island and myriad points in between.

Vital to local distribution of The Wayne Herald and Marketer are the company's 22 youth carriers and three adult supervisors in several communities.

Keeping the interior of the Herald building "picked up and polished" is maintenance staffer Russ Ronspies.

FRONT OFFICE
Before, during — or at least AFTER — all the other workers have completed their duties when bookkeeper Linda Granfield and receptionist Jill-of-all-trades Jackie Nolan begin to pull together all the record-keeping "loose ends" associated with the business. Assisting in this gigantic organizational task are Publishers Gary and Peggy Wright.

So now you know some of the reasons why The Wayne Herald is "a twice-a-week newspaper...and a LOT more!"

If you're going out of town for your advertising, printing, layout-design or office supplies purchases, we'd like you to consider coming to The Wayne Herald for those same services.

"Where Caring Makes The Difference"

WHAT ARE THESE TEETH SAYING???

Perhaps only a dentist would know that they are proclaiming "GOOD NEWS!"

- 1. Good news for the adult: "you can keep your teeth for a lifetime." If you practice good homecare, receive good dental treatment, and dental supervision, you can keep your teeth for a lifetime.
- 2. Good news for the child: "with the use of fluorides, good homecare, early supervision by the dentist, and sealants, you will have less than half the cavities your parents had."
- 3. Good news for the City of Wayne: "we are having a fine young family moving to Wayne, Dr. James Bierbower, his wife Barbara, their daughter Anne, and their son James Robert." We will be having more news on the Bierbowers in a later article.
- 4. Good news for Dr.'s Wessel and DeNaeyer: "Dr. Jim Bierbower is a dentist and will be joining the staff of Dr.'s Wessel and DeNaeyer." Dr. Jim graduated from UNL College of Dentistry in 1987. He has been working and studying in a general practice residency in Minneapolis, Minn. this past year. He will be starting his practice in Wayne on July 5, 1988.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Bill Kaup and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Nissen, all of Wayne.

Decorations for the 2 o'clock, double ring rites included Swedish steel candelabras and pink candles. A floral design of white Japette orchids and mauve roses caught up with large pink bows decorated the altar.

Cascades of mauve pink roses and baby's breath, accented with two solid pearl hearts, highlighted the aisle.

GUESTS ATTENDING the ceremony were registered by Paula McCright of Lincoln and Shelly Wieseler of Denver. Color-pinning flowers were Tammy Nissen of Wayne and Carol Kaup of Osmond.

Ushering guests into the church were Mike Kaup of Wayne, Doug Kreikemeier of Norfolk, Scott Nissen of El Campo, Texas and Stuart Nissen of South Sioux City.

Wedding music included "Through the Eyes of Love," "With This Ring," "Wedding Song" and "On Eagles Wings," sung by Denise Kreikemeier of West Point and Nic Sieler of Wayne.

MATRON OF HONOR was Holly Waits of Omaha, and bridesmaids were Kim Onken of Phoenix, Ariz., Brenda Rees of Wayne and Janine Baier of Lincoln.

Best man was Tom Fredrickson of St. Louis, Mo., and groomsmen were Brian Fleming of St. Paul, Minn., Al Nissen of Wayne and Aaron Nissen of Delta, Utah.

Flower girls were Crystal Kaup of Wayne and Linsey Nissen of El Campo, Texas.

ON HER WEDDING day, the bride appeared at her father's side in a white gown of summer satin and imported schiffli lace.

The sweetheart neckline and front bodice were highlighted with floral schiffli lace, pearls and sequins. The balloon sleeves were caught above the elbows with deep cuffs of lace and sequins.

Several rows of satin champagne ruffles flowed down the cathedral-length train.

The bride wore a wreath made of pearl sprays with a pouf, scattered with sequins and pearls.

She carried an arm bouquet of mauve pink roses and pink lupine accented with pink cymbidium orchids, with pearl sprays tucked in tulle tufts.

THE BRIDE'S attendants wore petal pink, matte taffeta gowns. The sweetheart necklines had a slight center shirring.

The balloon sleeves were shirred in the center and caught up with a bow, and the full skirts flowed to the floor. A back skirt "bubble" and large waist bow completed the dresses.

Each carried an arm bouquet in a French country design with mauve pink roses caught up with pearl loops, with lily of the valley and baby's breath.

The bridegroom was attired in a black tailcoat, and his attendants wore black tuxedos with pink ties and cummerbunds.

The bride's mother wore an ivory satin and lace dress, and the bridegroom's mother chose a tan satin and lace dress.

HERMAN AND BARB Kaup of Osmond and Jim and Marci Thomas of Wayne greeted guests who attended a reception dinner and dance at the National Guard Armory.

Bell donated to Wakefield school

School District 6 alumni gather

Alumni of Wayne County Rural School District 6, better known as the Bell School, held a reunion July 2.

Approximately 125 former students and teachers of the school met for a noon luncheon and fellowship at the Wakefield Senior Citizens Center.

A DEDICATION ceremony was held at 2 p.m. on the east lawn of the Wakefield Elementary School for School District 6's old bell which was donated to Wakefield School District 60R by Aiden Johnson as a memorial to rural schools.

A brick stand has been constructed to hold the bell.

Among those taking part in the dedication ceremony was Warner Erlanson, who attended School District 6 in the early 1900's and is the oldest living alumnus.

Also taking part were Alice Johnson, the last teacher at School District 6, and Kenneth Johnson of Omaha, who was in kindergarten the last year classes were held, 1961, and is the youngest alumnus of the school.

Others present for the ceremony were Wakefield School board members, along with persons who served on the last school board for School District 6.

Superintendent Derwin Hartman accepted the bell on behalf of School District 60R.

THE CONSTRUCTION project for the bell is being funded by donations from alumni and friends of the Bell School District.

Anyone wishing to contribute may do so by contacting Mrs. William (Rhonda) Blecke of Wakefield, treasurer of the Bell alumni, or by taking their donation at the Wakefield Republican office.

SCHOOL DISTRICT 6 was formed in 1872 and comprised the north parts of Hunter and Strahan precincts, as well as all of Wilbur precinct.

The first school house was erected in 1873 on the Henry Ruback farm at a cost of approximately $1,000.

District 6 was the only school building in Wayne County to have a bell and belfry, so it became known as the Bell School.

One of the first expenses included the plowing of a fire break to protect the building from prairie fires.

Teacher salaries ranged from $25 to $45 per month for the first 25 years.

THE NUMBER of students at Bell School had increased to 41 by 1877 and caused crowding in the small, one-room school.

During this time, the school year was divided into three terms — fall, winter and spring — with some students attending only during the winter term.

As the county became more heavily populated, more schools were needed and a county redistricting plan was proposed.

The plan proposed to have one school building for each four sections of land. A proposal to move the school house to its present site could not be resolved by voting.

The redistricting plan was completed in 1889 when four patrons hitched their teams to the school house and moved it during the night to its present location.

It required a fifth team to get the school over the last hill, and the group finished their task by dawn the next morning.

IN 1929, Walter Johnson tore down the old school building and built a new structure, incorporating the old lumber as well as some new material, at a cost of approximately $1,000.

The original plan did not call for a bell, however a belfry was included at an added expense.

Many changes took place in rural communities during later years, and the school was closed and merged with Wakefield District 60R in 1961.

BELL SCHOOL operated a total of 88 years — from 1873 to 1961.

There were 64 teachers during that period, with records showing over 300 pupils enrolled from 1895 to 1961.

The school was sold in 1963 to Jack and Gladys Park, who converted it into a home. The site and building were later sold to Cole Haglund who presently resides there.

"USER FRIENDLY" COMPUTER TERMS AND DEFINITIONS

This week's definition is, what is a printer, and what different types are available. A printer is a device for putting computer output on paper. Several of the common printers are: Daisywheel, Dot Matrix, and Laser. A Daisywheel printer uses a rotating plastic wheel as a type element, thus they move relatively slow. However, the quality of print is comparable to that of a typewriter. A Dot Matrix printer forms characters as a pattern of dots. Dot Matrix printers are faster than Daisywheel, but their output is normally not of letter quality. The Laser printer has the better print quality, and is considerably faster than the Daisywheel. As the name implies, the Laser printer uses a laser beam to generate an image, then transfers it to paper electrostatically.

There are many types of printers available, in many price ranges. The important thing is to get the one that will serve your needs. Consult with your local dealer for more information and demonstrations.

Be watching for more terms and definitions.

Chamber Insights

by Linda M. Brown E.V.P.
Executive Vice President — Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce and Wayne Industries, Inc.

Some form of organization apparently is beneficial to all living things. Seeds dropped together can germinate and push through to the surface when a single embryonic plant would be hopelessly imprisoned. Wild animals live together in packs or herds, knowing that in this way they can better defend themselves. It remains for man, however, with his ability to reason and to benefit from the experience of past generations, to make the greatest use of organization.

Many reasons prompt people to band together to secure the benefits of organized effort. It may be to defend themselves against a common enemy, to enjoy the comforting presence of fellow creatures, for religious reasons, or to make possible a higher standard of living. Historically, the individual has found that it is frequently to their advantage to lose identity within a group in order to secure the benefits which may be enjoyed only through a combination of individuals working together for a common purpose. Therefore, it is not surprising that early in the history of business endeavors, it was found expedient to organize those engaged in the trades for their mutual protection and benefit.

The modern Chamber of Commerce is an organization of the early efforts of business to organize and it undoubtedly had its beginning in the fairs and guilds of medieval Europe. The early associations were closely affiliated with the government. The Chamber of Commerce founded in 1768 at New York City was the first in America to be organized and conducted independently of the government. Since that time, Chambers of Commerce have become more important and numerous in business affairs throughout the world. Changes that had taken place in the social and economic order caused Chambers of Commerce to feel some major reorientation in their functions about the beginning of the 20th century.

The Chamber of Commerce considers the interest of the community while still being concerned with the exchange of goods and the laws and regulations affecting that exchange. They came to be, not only agencies of trade promotion, but general community development to promote the growth of the entire community along commercial, industrial and civic lines. The Chamber of Commerce revamped to meet the challenge of their broader functions.

From this background of change and growth, the modern Chamber of Commerce is a community organization with definite objectives. With this in mind, each year your Chamber of Commerce forms a program of work whereby each separate function of the Chamber is recognized and definitely assigned. The foundation of the Chamber is the membership. Functions are assigned to the board of directors, councils and staff to delegate these objectives so goals can be reached.

No matter how perfect the objectives in the program of work, nor how complete the system, it accomplishes nothing until it begins to operate — until that directing force — the members — put it into motion and keep it moving. With your input, your assistance in the projects, and your attendance at the activities, your Chamber of Commerce will accomplish those objectives — and will continue to strive toward a stronger, well-rounded community and area.

Laurel honors native hero

By Kevin Peterson
Sports Editor

Battling 156 professional golfers each week is how Mark Calcavecchia has chosen to spend his life. With the PGA season spanning into far more months than it does not, people like Calcavecchia find little time for home life, let alone life as it was when he was a boy.

Calcavecchia however, turned the tables on the sands of time this past weekend as he took a walk down that familiar corridor called yesterday.

"It's a great feeling to be back here in Laurel," Calcavecchia lamented. "Everything is just how I remembered it 15 years ago when I left for Florida."

For a man who spends his time playing golf everywhere from the shores of Pebble Beach to the lush green country side of England in the British Open, Calcavecchia spent most of the fourth of July grinning from ear to ear like a kid who just got his first set of clubs.

The town of Laurel honored their native golf hero, who some feel could be the next Jack Nicklaus. Both Mark and his late father John Calcavecchia were the focus of the fourth of July celebration which will be remembered for a life time for the hundreds of people who came to watch and make up the gallery.

Calcavecchia answered hundreds of questions throughout the day by media and fans and it's this writers estimate that over 1000 pictures were taken throughout the afternoon of the young professional golfer, now in his fifth year on tour.

Nine foursomes gathered to play in an 18-hole tournament in which Calcavecchia would play two holes of golf with each. He calmly carded a 34 on the first nine and rebounded with a 32.

The obvious highlight came on the 457-yard par 5, hole number six when Calcavecchia eagled. The extreme windy conditions and bright sun had no apparent effect on Calcavecchia's play.

It seemed as though Calcavecchia picked certain times to get real serious and other times he seemed to just let it happen. An example was on that same hole number six. Doug Lute who had forked over the $50 entry fee waited anxiously for Calcavecchia to golf with their foursome.

When the time came Lute hit a thunderous drive down the center of the fairway. The drive drew ovation from the many onlookers who were awaiting Calcavecchia's next drive.

Lute bet Calcavecchia $1 that his drive would be lying better. Calcavecchia stepped and swung his club with a twinge of strength that thundered down the fairway about 20 yards farther than Lute's.

Without checking, Lute reached into his pocket and forked over a dollar bill.

Calcavecchia strolled through the 18 holes and answered every question asked, in a professional manner. Among the top five golf courses in which Calcavecchia enjoys playing the most are Pebble Beach, Spy Glass Hill, Cypress Point, Butler National, (where he played this past weekend before coming to Laurel), and Augustus National, (home of the Masters).

Like all sports, athletes go through a warming up period. Calcavecchia on the other hand, does not like spending much time on the course before he plays. "I take about 10 minutes to swing a few different clubs," Calcavecchia said.

Calcavecchia remarked that he likes to play fast and that today's PGA Tours are much too slow. "I really feel that something should be done about the slow play of the Tour," Calcavecchia said. "This past weekend in the Beatrice Western Open, they put us in two-somes on Sunday, and that produced a much quicker round of golf."

Calcavecchia will play in 31 tournaments all total this season. Last year he played in 26.

Following his 18 holes of golf, Calcavecchia was presented with two photographs which will hang in Cedar View Country Club. One is a picture of him putting at the Masters, and the other is a picture of his late father, who designed the course at Cedar View.

Without knowing it, Stanton's Jon Ericson quite possibly could have had the most impact on Calcavecchia. Ericson was granted the $50 entry fee via a birthday present—his 13th birthday present. Ironically, that was the age of Calcavecchia when he left Laurel for the sunny beaches and year-round greens of Florida.

SHOWING HIS FORM which has helped put him 13th on the prize money list so far in 1988, Calcavecchia drives with his one-iron on number six.

THE CALCAVECCHIA family was presented portraits of Mark putting at the Masters and one of Mark's late father John. Also accepting the portraits which will be hung in Cedar View Country Club are brother Nick, mother Marjorie, wife Sheryl and former club president and family friend Bill Norvell.

Senior softballers capture second place

The Wayne senior girls softball team wrapped up second place in their conference Tuesday night with a home town win over Pilger, 21-11.

Pilger was out to spoil Wayne's attempt at wrapping up the bid for second place by jumping out to a 5-1 lead after two innings of play.

Head coach Darrell Bailey was a little concerned after the first two innings of play considering he had the bases loaded in each inning and no outs, and came away with only one run.

Bailey gave his team a quick pep talk about aggressiveness at the plate and the response was enlightening for Bailey. Wayne's first three batters in the line-up are Dana Nelson, Traci Gamble and Suzi Lutt.

The three combined for a 12-14 performance during the game.

Suzi Lutt went 4-5, but more importantly drove in six runs, while Gamble also went 4-5 and drove in five runs. Nelson was never put out in four attempts at the plate. She scored five runs while knocking in three.

The next two batters in the line up, Robin Lutt and Tonya Erxleben had two and three hits respectively, with Erxleben getting a double. Robin Lutt incidentally, was the winning pitcher for Bailey's club.

Wayne's bats rapped Pilger pitchers for 21 hits. "Out of our 21 hits, we only had two extra base hits," Bailey said. "That just goes to show how we run the bases."

Incidentally, Wayne-base runners were aggravating to the Pilger defense. Four times Pilger had a Wayne girl in the hot box, and four times they were unable to get her out.

Kristy Hansen and Leslie Keating each recorded a single for Wayne while Shelly Gilliland rapped a pair of singles. The win moved the locals record to 11-7 with four games remaining before state tournament in Grand Island, July 22-24.

Shannon Schroeder took the win from the pitcher's mound for Wayne. Although the final score read 22-21, Wayne only received 10 hits, but were aided by 25 walks.

Bree Bebee was among the leading hitters with a 2-2 performance at the plate including a triple. Devone Jensen rapped three hits in her four attempts at the plate, while Karl Lutt, Danielle Nelson, and Tina Schindler, all recorded singles.

Juniors squeeze out victory In the game preceding the senior game, Wayne's junior girls got by Pilger, 22-21, after trailing 19-13 going into the bottom half of the sixth inning.

Jennifer Hammer and Angela Schrier each slapped doubles to aid the winners. The win moved the junior record to 14-6.

Tournament lures Wayne

The Midget and Junior Legion baseball teams were in action Tuesday with games in Wakefield. In the opener, Wayne rode a five run cushion in the first inning to an 11-8 final, bringing their season record to 7-2.

The locals belted Wakefield pitchers for 14 hits while pitcher Jeff Lutt scattered six hits in grabbing the win.

Rusty Hamer went 3-5 from the plate including a double and a home run. Matt Bruggeman enjoyed a 2-4 performance slicing two doubles. Jeff Griesch, Matt Peterson and Brian Moore all recorded two hits apiece while Cory Wieseler and Jeff Lutt rapped a single and triple respectively.

In the nightcap, Wayne evened their record at 4-4 on the season with a payback 14-4 victory. Last month in Wayne, Wakefield defeated the Legion 19-14.

Scott Hammer was the pitching ace for the Legion scattering six hits. Wayne trailed 4-0 heading into the top half of the third inning when they scored two runs.

The score remained 4-2 until

Wayne came to bat in the fifth inning. They then unleashed an arsenal of hits enroute to eight runs in the inning, which was all they would need for victory. Jess Zeiss and Cory Wieseler were the only two Wayne Legion batters with more than one hit to their credit as both launched a pair of singles.

Scott Hammer and Brian Sherman had the only two extra base hits Wayne would receive as each belted a double. Meanwhile, Greg Schmidt, Jason Mrsny, Adam Mrsny and Jarrod Wood all had singles.

Round Robin tourney ahead Both the Midget and Legion teams will travel to O'Neill this Saturday and Sunday for a round robin tournament with Lexington, Omaha South, Wakefield and O'Neill. Omaha South will field a Legion team but not a Midget team, whereas Wakefield will field a Midget team but not a Legion team.

The Midget team will play O'Neill in their first game at 9:30 a.m. Saturday. The Legion will play its first game at 11:30 a.m. Saturday.

Little League downs Pender

Wayne's Little League team traveled to Wakefield Tuesday night for a first round game in the Wakefield Tournament. The Little League team was pitted against Pender, a team who totally demolished them in a game in Wayne a couple of weeks earlier.

Wayne responded to the challenge, however, and came away with an 8-3 victory to advance in the tournament. Pitcher Pat Christensen struck out seven Pender batters while scattering five hits.

Town team defeats Sloan

Wayne's Interstate Town Team traveled to Sloan, Iowa, last Wednesday in a make up game. Wayne came away from the road trip with a 7-3 victory, upping their season record to 6-2, with four straight victories.

Joel Ankeny was the winning pitcher for Wayne, allowing only six hits while striking out 13 Sloan batters.

Wayne scattered 10 hits, but it was lead off batter Rob Gamble and Steve Overin, who provided 60 percent of the offense for Wayne.

Offensively, Wayne laced 11 hits including Ryan Pick's and Randy

Kaup's 3-3 performances. Kaup had a pair of singles and a triple while Pick rapped three singles.

Troy Bruns, Casey Korth and Jeremy Sturm all recorded singles which aided Wayne's victory. The Little League team will now play this Saturday night at 8 p.m.

Overin doubled in Gamble in the top half of the first inning for the quick lead. Wayne took the lead for good in the third inning when Overin scored on Mike Meyer's single.

In the eighth inning it was Overin once more, this time adding three insurance runs with a lowering home run. Overin and Gamble each went 3-4 from the plate with Gamble collecting a pair of RBI's and Overin notching four runs batted in.

Ted Lueders and Jeff Dion each smacked singles while Randy Lau sliced a double.

Early morning fire destroys rural Wayne home

A fire destroyed the mobile trailer home of Steve and Annette Rasmussen early Saturday morning. Wayne's Volunteer Fire Department was called to the fire two miles west and one mile north of Wayne. Upon their arrival, they found the west side of the trailer already engulfed in flames.

The Rasmussens and their two-year-old son were not home at the time the fire broke out. A passerby notified the Wayne firemen about the blaze at around 4:30 a.m. Saturday. They remained on the scene until approximately 10 a.m.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation, according to Wayne Fire Chief Dale Preston.

A clothing drive, to assist the Rasmussens who lost much of their personal belongings in the fire, has been started. Those that wish to donate clothing can contact Mrs. Dave (Joyce) Sievers at 375-2238 or drop off the donations at Redemer Lutheran Church (mark on the box for the Rasmussen collection).

Pac 'N' Save and Bill's GW, both in Wayne, have established a grocery box for the Rasmussens at their respective stores. People can contribute groceries for the boxes as long as the donation boxes remain available.

THE RASMUSSEN home was destroyed by fire Saturday morning. Cause of the blaze is still undetermined.

Einung gains military honor

Almost 70 years later, France decides to honor American World War I veterans.

John Einung of Wayne recently received a special plaque, printed in French, direct from the French Republic. Translated, it states:

— In tribute for services rendered to France during the War of 1914-1918. I salute you, citizens of America, who entered into the history of Europe through the great arch on the front of which are inscribed the names of Washington, Jefferson and other noblemen who fought for the rights of humanity.

Einung is one of the few World War I soldiers left in the area to receive this award. He served in France in the 91st Infantry "Cowboy" Division, the 362 Regiment.

He served in France from July 1, 1918 until the Armistice was signed, coming home in April of 1919.

Einung served in the Ypres-Lys, St. Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne defensive sectors of France — going over the top at Argard.

He was a Wayne successful businessman for over 50 years, having a sand, gravel and concrete business in several different communities. Einung was involved in the highway improvement business from its inception, starting with old hard-rubber tires, bottom dump trucks with gravel being hauled into Wayne by rail car, and having to use the back streets to haul it out of town. In the later years, he was pumping his own material and having the most modern of equipment.

Einung is a life member of the Wayne V.F.W. Post 5291.

Since he sailed for France on July 1, 1918, he was presented the plaque on the same day by Veterans Service Office Wayne Denklau and Wayne Mayor Wayne Marsh.

by Pat Meierhenry

"The Drouth" is getting a lot of press. One man told me it's because Congress is not in session and we already know who the presidential candidates will be.

I've also heard that if you want to know the weather report, simply check the futures on commodities. Business is brisk there.

There have been some interesting rain-making schemes. I saw one car wash with a sign saying, "Wash your car — we need the rain." I heard of another one offering free washes.

I took advantage of a $2 special on Tuesday and sure-enough, the Buick is dirty again.

An Omaha disc jockey crawled up on top of something or other on Wednesday, the 22nd, and vowed to stay there until it rained. Omaha had 2 1/2 inches a week later.

One Iowa farmer has paid the air fare for 16 Hopi Indians to come and do a rain dance!

I listened to a prayer service in Iowa on public radio and burst into tears. Then I attended the one in Winside on Thursday and was reminded that "God is aware of our sufferings." Ex. 3:7.

One old fellow reports that his Daddy used to say that when the handle on the Big Dipper is higher, it's fixin' to rain. And the handle's getting high, he says.

Anyway, I was grateful for the cool days and the .70" we did get. And I'm glad I'm not a pig and can still sweat!

YOU KNOW, the tale about car trouble on the interstate was only half the story because we had trouble on the way home, too.

We were going up a very steep hill in western California on I-15. There were signs that said, "turn off your air conditioner." We weren't using ours anyway.

When we got almost to the summit, we pulled into Halloran Springs. There was a cafe and a service station and all kinds of tow trucks sitting around.

A big sign on the side of the station said "Do not park cars with hot radiators here "and" do not remove radiator caps here."

We parked beside the cafe and lifted the hood. Coolant was bubbling, everything felt warm. We decided to have lunch and let it rest.

Inside were T-shirts that announced, "I sprang a leak at Halloran Springs!" It was not very encouraging.

BUT WE MADE it across the line and drove across desert to Vegas without incident. In fact, it was the next morning at Rawlins, Wyo., that we saw antifreeze leaking.

We stopped at a Texaco station where labor was only $18 an hour. But the radiator fan was not turning at all. Were the belts all on? Yep, the problem was the fan clutch!

Sue shrieked that she had just had one put on in Phoenix a week ago. The little mechanic insisted it was our problem and removed it. "Sometimes they're defective," he informed us.

He smoked a cigarette and entertained us with stories of college football, Korea and three wives while a couple of young men replaced our fan clutch.

Then they billed us $89 for it. The one in Phoenix had been $40. An auto parts had quoted her $20. And we think the mark up in hospitals is bad!

Anyway, it solved our temperature problems and we finished the trip in air-conditioned comfort!

As we prepare to mow the hay on the CRP acres, I am reminded of a quote from Newsweek: "God must be a Democrat. He's teaching Reagan and Bush that the perfect farm plan was the Garden of Eden."

Again, I remind you, He is aware of our sufferings, on the interstate and on the farm!

By Dianne Jaeger Winside Correspondent

"We love the American people and food, especially hamburgers and potato chips," says 23-year-old Maria Elena Diaz Lammoglia of Orizaba, Veracruz, Mexico.

"We have hamburgers and chips at home, but ours are much too greasy," Maria and her brother Carlos, 18, along with a family friend, 17-year-old Susana Gonzalez Mendizabal, have been house guests the past two weeks of the Dave Warnemunde family in Winside.

Maria was a foreign exchange student six years ago in the Warnemunde home, graduating from Winside High School in May 1982.

"EVERYTHING SEEMS about the same here," says Maria. "It's nice and peaceful."

Maria's home town of Orizaba has a population of approximately 350,000 — compared to Winside's 400 residents.

"We've been doing a lot of resting here as well as shopping, golfing, playing tennis and going to the horse races," says Maria, adding that the Warnemundes also treated them to a trip to Kansas City's Worlds of Fun and a Royal's ballgame.

Carlos hasn't been home to Mexico since last year. He spent his senior year as an exchange student in Alva, Okla. He plans to attend college next fall in Mexico and obtain a degree in architecture.

SINCE MARIA was last in Winside, she has graduated from college at the Institute of Technology Studies Superior with a four-year professional degree in biochemistry engineering.

She has been teaching high school and college prep math, chemistry and biology in Fortin, Veracruz, Mexico.

"I'm also in partnership with a fellow college graduate making yogurt. We have a small shop where we make and sell it as well as in some local grocery stores. We plan to expand into making cheese soon."

Maria says she doesn't plan to teach forever. "I would like to go to school in Spain next year to get a degree in wine and meat processing. I make about one million pasos ($500 American dollars) a month teaching. Even with a six or seven-year college degree, I could only make about $1,000 a month."

BOTH MARIA AND Carlos speak fluent English, although friend Susana speaks only a few words.

"Before we came to the U.S. as exchange students," says Maria, "we could only read and write in English. We learned to speak the language after we were here."

"I love my country very much," says Carlos, "but I like America also. I hope to return someday, maybe as an architect. I could make more money here."

The threesome left Winside on July 2 for their return to Mexico.

Unproven Remedies

Millions of dollars are wasted each year on worthless drugs and devices. According to a recent Congressional hearing, an estimated one billion dollars was spent in 1987 on unproven and fraudulent AIDS therapies. Products are promoted that promise to help us grow hair, lose weight, or look younger. Many of the product claims are falsely made. Research indicates that individuals who use unproven therapies for cancer possess a combination of hopelessness, ignorance, fear, and belief in media hype that makes them especially susceptible to the promises of miracle cures.

Some of the unproven AIDS treatments include "pond scum," hydrogen peroxide injections, herbal extracts, chlorine bleach baths, and pills from mice that have been given the AIDS virus. Just a few of the many items that have been promoted to cure cancer include liver juice, urine therapy, "ixnaging," and laetrile.

Be wary of advertising phrases like "breakthrough," "miracle," or "secret formula." Read what you can about treatments in authoritative books and magazines. And finally, get the collective opinions of your physician, pharmacist, and trusted friend.

The GOLDEN YEARS

The Golden Years by Gil Häase

Enzo Ferrari went to work as usual on February 18, 1988, at the Maranello, Italy, factory that builds the famous sports cars that bear his name, and then sat down with his workers at lunchtime to celebrate his 90th birthday. Ferrari had sent each of his 1,742 employees an invitation that said: "I expect you for lunch Thursday at the factory." Everyone showed up.

"Contrary to popular misconception, our teeth were meant to last a lifetime," said Dr. Steven Jaksha, a San Diego dentist. "If people get serious in their fifties about visiting the dentist regularly to clean their teeth, and if they adopt an effective home-maintenance program, in many cases they can avoid needing dentures." As one grows older, he pointed out, teeth play an increasingly important part in breaking down food for digestion.
