Cancer clinic

The Wayne County Unit of the American Cancer Society is sponsoring a free oral cancer detection clinic on Sunday, Oct. 2 from 1:30 p.m. to 4 p.m. People wishing to be checked for oral cancer should first register at Gene's Steak House at 120 West 2nd in Wayne.

Persons then will be directed to the offices of Wessel, DeNaeyer and Bierbower at 115 West Third. Assistance for transportation will be provided for those needing it.

Several area dentists are participating in the event, including Dr. Wayne Wessel, Dr. Lee Dahl, Dr. Richard DeNaeyer, Dr. George Goblirsch, Dr. James Bierbower, Dr. Earl Augspurger and Dr. Gregory Sears.

The incidence of oral cancer has risen in the past few years, particularly in the adolescent male population; due to the recent popularity of chewing tobacco.

Drought cuts corn yields

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

Tuesday night's rainfall has put a halt to the harvesting of corn around the Wayne area and it appears that most yields will be well below last year's amounts.

In Nebraska, as of last Friday, corn harvest was 15 percent complete in comparison to 7 percent at this time last year. The average is 6 percent, according to figures from the Nebraska Agriculture Statistics Service.

A check with the Wayne County ASCS Office, where appraisals on drought-stricken corn have been completed detailing corn yields throughout the county, shows a wide difference in yield amounts. Producers have requested the appraisals to see if they qualify for the national drought assistance program.

ASCS official Ray Butts said Wednesday yields "are all the way from nothing on up to dryland yields in the upper 60 bushels per acre."

Butts said the ASCS office has taken appraisals out of 80 requests. "Most of corn yields that we have appraised have had an average of around 20 bushels per acre," he said.

However, he emphasized that appraisals are only done on those acres where producers feel drought relief is needed. There are acres in Wayne County producing more than what the ASCS has already appraised, he said.

AREAS IN the county which have been the hardest hit by the drought, he said, appear to be south and east of Wayne.

There is another pocket in the northwest part of Wayne County. "Highway 57 north of Carroll is like the dividing line. East of it they got good timely rains and west of it, they didn't," Butts said.

Area extension agent Rod Patent said he has measured corn yields on two plots located northwest and northeast of Wayne that have totaled from 150 to 152 bushels to the acre. The acres, he said, were on sub-irrigated bottom ground.

Patent said one person from the Carroll area has reported 22-25 bushels per acre of soybeans.

A concern among producers this year, besides the drought, has been the possible presence of aflatoxin—a mold that often develops in drought damaged corn which could have grave consequences on livestock or humans who consume it. Because of this year's dry conditions, the disease is getting a lot of publicity these days.

Butts said that he has heard of no "confirmed" samples of corn, although one elevator has sent in a sample to ag officials for further testing. One local elevator manager

Complaint aired on parties

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

Eight minutes is all it took for the Wayne City Council to reach adjournment of its regular city council meeting Tuesday night.

It began with council member Sheryl Lindau bringing up an unsigned letter she received that in summary, complained about college parties taking place near the letter writer's home. The complaints, as stated in the letter, focused primarily on the noise levels and those people who throw things in the letter writer's yard.

The letter writer said they had called the police department to complain about the parties, but obtained little or no results. Lindau asked whether the council should review the police actions being taken on complaints of this nature.

City Administrator Phil Kloster said that every call to the police department is written up, and how officers dispose of the problem is also reported. He said people should continue filing complaints with the police department when incidents, such as was described in the anonymous letter, do occur.

Councilman Larry Johnson said he also received a telephone call from a resident on the east edge of Wayne who complained about the odor coming from the waste water treatment plant.

Kloster informed the city council that efforts are being undertaken to do something about the problem. He added that the problem could be with the sledge pumping system in front of the plant.

Also during Tuesday's short meeting, the five of the eight council members present unanimously approved the Spangler Subdivision final plat. The property involved five acres and is where construction of the new Wayne County USDA offices is continuing.

Currently, the property is "business zoned." Dennis Spangler told The Wayne Herald he has no plans at this time in regard to the development of the remainder of the subdivision.

And prior to adjournment, Mayor Wayne Marsh appointed Vicki Pick to the city's recreation board.

Nation is in a 'crisis'

Jones says policy to blame for troubles

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

Democratic candidate for U.S. Congress, Corky Jones, feels people are getting the wrong message that the U.S. rural situation and the economy are in good shape.

"Right now we're in a crisis," Jones told a group of students in a political science class Tuesday at Wayne State College.

Jones said it was the "blessing of the Lord" which has helped ease the burdens of the farmers, not policy. In the last three years, crop yields have been favorable and during a spell, there were good prices for beef and hogs.

He looks ahead to the upcoming farm bill which will likely mandate that "we're going to produce for less in the future." He anticipates more program cuts in the future "I'll decoupling comes around."

"Don't be one to just digest what you have been told. Search out the facts," he told the audience. "We have a crisis in the United States of America. Not just in the rural areas," he said.

"Pillars of the community that we have looked up to in our lifetime, who helped make this country second to none, now face foreclosure because of bad policy," he said.

Jones said that when six or seven farmers go out of business, at least one other business goes out with them. The loss also affects schools and churches, he mentioned.

"The overall economy is where it's at today because of the policy makers. It's bad because the policy makers have made bad decisions," Jones said.

JONES SAID he isn't "out on a job hunt."

As a farmer, he enjoys producing food and fiber. But he won't have a future in farming under the present conditions, he said.

Jones criticized the nation's tax policy where the "very, very rich" — those in the annual income bracket of $171,300 — get a 5 percent tax break in what they pay.

When asked what he thought about Senator Dave Karnes statement about needing less farmers, mentioned in the U.S. Senate debate between Karnes and Bob Kerrey, he replied: "We've got too much production, not too many farmers."

"Land overproduces, not the farmers. Don't fall for that gimmick that there are too many resources. We need prices," he said.

Two years ago, USDA priced the break even on the production of yellow corn at $3.54. "We're way below that, even with deficiency payments, even with set-aside," he said.

JONES ALSO commented on defense spending. "I believe in a strong military department. But I do not believe in spending millions of dollars on 'star wars'. We need a strong conventional defense," he said.

He said that the U.S. still remains the "defense umbrella of the world."

"It's time that Japan and Europe pay their own fair share," he said.

When asked if the communication was still open for a debate with his opponent, incumbent U.S. Congressman Doug Bereuter, he said attempts were made but Bereuter was unable to attend. "We're still struggling to schedule a debate. We'll even go to Washington to debate if he [Bereuter] is so busy there," Jones said.

Asked about the latest newspaper poll showing him trailing Bereuter, he said the distance between the two doesn't bother him. He said there are still many people undecided. "The real poll will be Nov. 8 on election day," he mentioned.

"I still am saying that you're looking at the next congressman from the state of Nebraska," he told the audience.

Jones said the minimum wage law should be changed to a higher figure. "Today's minimum wage doesn't put food or fiber into one person," he said.

Jones said he would like to see the minimum wage increased at least 50 cents more.

Another issue, the placement of a north-south four-lane highway through Nebraska, was also discussed. Jones said that for the best interest of the country, the highway should be constructed in the center of the state which would tie in with other states.

But he would also like to see a north-south expressway built for the northeast Nebraska residents as well.

Jones, in his talk to the students, was critical of increasing foreign aid, especially to the Contra rebels, when domestic programs face budget cuts.

Candy sale date set by Lions Club

The annual Lions Club Halloween Candy Sales will take place Oct. 2 (Sunday afternoon and evening) and Oct. 3 (Monday evening).

Wayne Lions Club members will call on residents during the late afternoon and early evening hours selling Halloween candy. This candy, which has been purchased in bulk, has been packaged by club members and their wives. Each package contains a variety of individually wrapped hard candies, candy bars, caramels and sugared jellies.

All candy items are from M&M-Mars or Brach's. The price is $2 per bag or three bags for $5.

This year the proceeds of the candy sale will be designated to support the "Quest Program" which is being instituted in the Wayne Middle School this school year.

The Quest Program, which is underwritten by Lions Clubs International, is a program for youth which helps them develop a positive self-image and helps youth address problems they encounter as they mature.

Wayne's Lions Club is funding the training of three faculty members and is purchasing materials for the Quest Program.

Other projects funded by the Wayne Lions Club include sight and hearing conservation activities and community improvement activities.

In Ducks Unlimited

Wildlife has a friend

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

One doesn't have to be a true duck hunter to enjoy being a member of Ducks Unlimited.

Randy Pedersen of Wayne said he hasn't hunted duck for at least 25 years.

But that hasn't stopped him from becoming a member of the Ducks Unlimited organization, which celebrated its 50th anniversary last year.

"The basic purpose of the organization is to preserve the nests and habitat for ducks and other animals as well," said Pedersen.

The organization helps restore and rehabilitate prime waterfowl breeding grounds in Canada, where over 70 percent of North America's waterfowl are hatched.

Since the inception of Ducks Unlimited 51 years ago, there have been more than 2,630 wetland restoration projects completed which have benefited man and created a stabilized water supply for agriculture, industry and municipalities.

THE GREATEST percentage of every dollar contributed to the organization goes directly into project construction.

At least 40 species of mammals, 19 species of fish and 300 species of birds (including the bald eagle, whooping crane and other endangered species) benefit from Ducks Unlimited's conservation work.

The annual Ducks Unlimited Banquet in Wayne has been slated for Monday, Oct. 3 at the National Guard Armory, with festivities to begin at around 6 p.m. Cost is a $20 membership to the organization and another $10 for the banquet.

Pedersen, who was delegated to help spread the word about the benefits of Ducks Unlimited, said that besides the banquet, there will be individuals exhibiting wildlife wood carvings or displays by taxidermists in the area.

As 'latch-key' specialist

Army enlists Wayne native's help

By LaVon Anderson
Assistant Editor

Wayne native Lee Sherry is concerned. She's concerned for the welfare of our children — especially those children which society has dubbed "latch-key."

Lee doesn't like the term latch-key. "It makes it sound like these children are abandoned," says Lee. "They're not abandoned, they simply must learn to care for themselves a few hours each day, before and/or after school, while mom or dad is at work."

"They're children in self care," explains Lee.

LEE'S EXPERTISE in teaching children how to look after themselves while they are alone in the home hasn't gone unnoticed.

Not only has she written a series of newspaper articles on children in self care, she has published three manuals on the subject, has conducted several professional programs, both locally and nationally, and has spoke to various organizations.

Last week, Lee spent time in Wayne with her parents, Orville and Hallie Sherry, before leaving Friday morning for Frankfort, Germany.

'The Army is looking to provide a solution to not only meet their needs, but family needs as well.'

Lee has been hired by the U.S. Army as the first and only "latch-key" specialist in Frankfort, where approximately 37,000 Army personnel are stationed.

Lee's job for the next year will include setting up a "latch-key" program for enlisted personnel in Frankfort and teaching people how to administer the program after she is gone.

"The Army is looking to provide a solution to not only meet their needs, but family needs as well," says Lee.

FOLLOWING HER year-long assignment in Germany, Lee will return to Utah State University where she is employed as a county extension agent in 4-H.

Lee has traveled extensively since her graduation from Wayne-Carroll High School in 1967.

After earning an undergraduate degree from the University of South Dakota, Lee opted to serve two years with the Peace Corps in Venezuela. "That was a very positive and exciting experience," she smiles.

Lee returned to the United States and to Wayne State College where she picked up a vocational home economics endorsement. Then it was off to Spain for one summer to study Spanish.

Following her summer in Spain, Lee taught home economics and served as basketball coach for two years on the Northern Cheyenne Indian Reservation in Busby, Mont.

From Montana, Lee moved to Fort Lupton, Colo., where she taught middle school home economics and coached basketball and track.

While in Colorado, Lee took a year's leave of absence during which she received a master's degree in 1980 from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

She returned to teach a third year in Colorado.

IT WAS WHILE Lee was in Colorado that she decided there must be something more than teaching.

She took a position as executive director of the Central Nebraska Family Planning and WIC (Women, Infant and Children) program based in Grand Island. Lee directed a seven-county region with a staff of 25 employees.

While attending a national convention, Lee met Dr. Marilyn Noyes who offered her a position at Utah State University as a county extension agent in 4-H.

Lee's position at Utah State, along with one other full-time 4-H agent, involved working with 10,000 4-H members in Davis County.

It was during this time that Lee became aware of the intense need for programs focusing on children in self care.

"ONE OF MY responsibilities as a 4-H agent was to provide school programs, including one on babysitting."

"I knew there were a lot of kids in the class who were never going to babysit," says Lee. "They told me they were there because their mothers made them attend to learn safety and first aid."

It was at this point that Lee decided to design a class to meet the needs of children who were often left to care for themselves.

She adopted a program from the Texas Extension Service called "On Your Own." She also wrote three programs and published three manuals for use in the State of Utah.

"A lot of the manuals were picked up by mothers and grandmothers," says Lee.

Lee Sherry

LEE ALSO PUBLISHED a series of newspaper articles dealing with children in self care.

In the newspaper articles, Lee told how to determine if a child is ready for a self care situation and the fact that it should be discussed as a family.

'Not all children are meant for self care.'

She also talked about teen-agers in self care and told of ways in which communities can get involved in setting up programs for children who are left alone while their parents are at work.

"The articles also brought out the fact that not all children are meant for self care," explains Lee.

LEE SAYS THAT while she was in Utah she worked with approximately 1,300 youths and parents in "latch-key" programs.

"We deal first with personal safety," explains Lee. "We usually have a visit from a fireman, as well as a registered nurse and emergency medical technician."

"Basically, kids need to realize when they are in need of adult help."

During the program, Lee also talks about answering the telephone and door, and what to do in the event of an emergency, such as when the lights go out or the toilet overflows.

"These are things many adults don't think about," says Lee, "but they are extremely frightening to a child who is alone."

'There are many things adults don't think about, but they are extremely frightening to a child who is alone.'

LEE ALSO DISCUSSES with the children what to do when they get scared. "Children should ask themselves if there is really a need for them to be frightened," explains Lee.

Children in the program also are taught how to talk to their parents, brothers and sisters, and how to solve arguments without calling mom every five minutes.

There also is a lesson on activities youngsters can do when they are alone and bored.

"There are 40 suggestions listed in the book on what children can do when they are bored," says Lee, "and they are all inexpensive."

LEE SAID CHILDREN in self care must have a contact person — someone they can call for help. "That contact," explains Lee, "shouldn't be grandma if she lives 20 miles away."

Lee adds that children also must know how to reach mom and dad. "There must be a message center in the house," says Lee, "and children must know where it is located."

Lee says parents should also tell their youngsters what appliances they can use when they are alone and then explain how they are operated.

"And find ways for your child to socialize," suggests Lee. "Don't isolate them five days a week."

"THERE ARE SO many things adults just take for granted," says Lee.

"They may know where the fuse box is located, but does their child? What should their child do when he or she loses their keys? Who has the right to enter your house when your child is alone?"

'Basically, kids need to realize when they are in need of adult help.'

"Parents should also remember not to make rules they can't enforce. If it's no today, it should be no tomorrow."

"Basically," says Lee, "our program fills in what mother or father has forgotten or what they are not aware of."

THE WAYNE NATIVE says there is a definite need for more programs for children in self care and their parents.

"The problem is going to get worse before it gets better," stresses Lee.

Lee says communities, churches, businesses and employees can help. "There could be a community center where children could go," says Lee, "or businesses could allow their employees flex time. There are a lot of options."

In one town, Lee said the parks and recreation department picked up the program and charged 38 cents per hour.

"Each community needs to look at its own situation. How much money can be generated? How many volunteers are needed?"

"Our children — they are our priority."

"I WAS A 'latch-key' child but I didn't know it," says Lee.

"My mom gave me the opportunity to be home alone, and it was a privilege. Now, kids look at it as a punishment."

"The thing that scares me the most is that parents don't prepare their children or themselves."

"And let's face it," says Lee, "children who are left unattended and unprepared tend to get into trouble."

Wayne suffers poor showing

The Wayne Blue Devil volleyball team did not fare so well in their first ever hosted volleyball tournament this past Saturday. The four team pool play consisted of Pierce, Madison and Wisner-Pilger.

Wayne faced off against Pierce in a rematch of an earlier match held this season, in the first match of the day. The Blue Devils looked impressive in beating Pierce in straight sets, 15-12, 15-9.

"We decided that we wanted to go out and play hard against Pierce," head coach Marlene Uhing said. "We played very well. It's not like we played that bad the first time we played Pierce but we didn't get many opportunities to set up our offense."

Uhing noted that the coaches were pleased with the morale of girls after the Pierce match. "The attitudes were very high," Uhing said. "We (the coaches) thought that we might have turned the corner."

Wayne only suffered two passing errors during the match against Pierce. Dana Nelson and Robin Lutt led the team in passing with Nelson recording a .916 passing percentage and Lutt, a .750 percentage.

Deanna Schluns and Dana Nelson led the servers with Schluns receiving nine points and two aces and Nelson eight points on two aces.

Karmyn Koenig, Dana Nelson, Teresa Ellis and Robin Lutt all led a balanced spiking attack for Uhings' Devils, while Kristy Hansen and Teresa Ellis led the setting chores. Both setters had a pair of assists while Hansen connected on 33 of 34 sets and Ellis was a perfect 20-20.

Ellis and Karmyn Koenig each recorded four blocks.

The elation however, was short-lived. In Wayne's next match against Madison, the Blue Devils basically suffered a breakdown. "It looked like we were set up in the bermuda triangle defense," Uhing said. "That's where the opponent serves into the middle of our defense and the ball never comes out again."

Uhing was unable to explain why the style of play displayed by her squad was completely opposite of the first match's style of play.

Madison defeated Wayne in straight sets, 15-9, 15-8. Dana Nelson and Rachel Haase led the passing attack of Wayne with Nelson successful on .800 of her passes and Haase good on .700 of her passes.

Kristy Hansen led the Blue Devils in a disappointing spiking category with three kills and kill spike percentage of .125. Teresa Ellis led the team in serving with nine points. Wayne, as a team missed five serves.

Things didn't get much brighter for the Blue Devils in their final match of the day against Wisner-Pilger. Although the match went three sets, Wayne came up short, 15-4, 13-15, 3-15.

This time Wayne suffered a poor passing attack as the team percentage was .666. "We gave up 11 aces to Wisners' servers," Uhing said.

Teresa Ellis led the Blue Devils in spiking with four kills while Dana Nelson scored seven points and had one ace in leading the servers. Kristy Hansen led the setters with six assists while Teresa Ellis had four.

"We're not an overpowering team," Uhing said. "We rely on our defense because we are not a tall team that can rely on our net play."

Duck hunting blinds eliminated for 1988

Changes in regulations for the 1988 waterfowl hunting season have eliminated the use of seasonal or temporary duck hunting blinds on all but ten wildlife management areas across the state.

Hunters may no longer build permanent or temporary blinds on state recreation area or wildlife management area waters anywhere in the state, with the exception that seasonal blinds may be installed and used in designated wildlife management areas at the following reservoirs: Lake McConaughy, Enders Reservoir, Swanson Reservoir, Sherman Reservoir, Merritt Reservoir, Calamus Reservoir, and Lewis & Clark Reservoir.

Those seasonal blinds must display the name and address of the blind owner on the door of the blind and the door to the blind must be constructed so that it can be opened from the outside at all times when not in use.

Blinds may not be constructed prior to Sept. 1 each year, and the persons who install the blinds are responsible for removing the blind and the materials used to build it, before May 1 following the close of waterfowl hunting season.

The person who constructs a seasonal blind is not guaranteed use to it whenever he wants to hunt. The first hunters into a seasonal blind each day have the right to use that blind for the day, regardless of who erected the blind.

Only portable blinds may be used on all other state recreation areas and wildlife management areas, except those posted against such activity. The blinds must be removed each day when the hunter leaves the area.

Golfers struggle at home

The Lady Blue Devil Linksters hosted an eight team invitational this past Saturday at the Wayne Country Club. Wayne, which had yet to finish below second place in any invitational to date, suffered a lack-luster team performance finishing fifth.

Blair captured the invite with a team score of 412, three strokes better than runner up Omaha Duchesne. Norfolk's junior varsity team finished third at 418 while also finishing ahead of Wayne was Columbus Lakeview with a 427. Wayne finished fifth with a 428.

The invite also ended Holly Paige's effort to keep a winning streak alive. Paige had yet to be defeated in any invite or dual this season. Jill Schreffler of Blair, and Jany Garden of Norfolk tied for top honors with Schreffler getting first.

Paige finished third with a 95. Right behind her came teammate Ann Perry, carding a 98.

Wayne downs Lakeview On Monday afternoon Wayne traveled to Columbus to challenge Lakeview in dual competition. The Elks Country Club of Columbus was the site of the dual, which is incidently, also the site of this years district competition which takes place on Thursday, October 6.

The locals got back on the winning track as they downed Lakeview by nine strokes, 225-234. Holly Paige and Ann Perry finished first and second respectively with scores of 50 and 51.

Jill Jordan and Cher Reeg also made up the composite of Wayne's team score which propelled them to victory. Jordan carded a 57 while Reeg fired a 67.

Wayne will now host a triangular with Columbus Lakeview and Stanton on Monday beginning at 4:30 p.m.

Allen defeated

Allen traveled to Newcastle Monday night to take part in the Newcastle volleyball tournament. The opening round may have been the best match as the draw ironically put two of the best teams in the tournament against each other in Wynot and Allen.

The match consisted of some top notch volleyball and some very close volleyball. "This may have been the best volleyball match of the year," coach Gary Troth said.

Allen battled hard and took the first set 16-14. In the second set Troth turned to his bench to get some support from the younger players. "Our only mistake of the night might have been leaving the younger girls in too long," Troth said.

At any rate, Wynot battled back to knot the sets at one piece with a 17-15 victory in the second set. The third set was much of the same good volleyball as the first two. However, Wynot claimed the victory with another identical set of 17-15.

"This was just tremendous volleyball by both squads," Troth said. "Each team had over 100 serves and the match consisted of some long rallies."

Troth noted that in both of the sets his team lost, they had built leads of up to five points, but Wynot battled back in both. "It's better to lose to a team that you know is very good and has played very good than losing to a team that didn't play well to beat you," Troth told his squad following the disappointing loss.

With the tournament game, Allen saw the emergence of previously injured Amy Noe. "Noe hobbled around a bit and was a little rusty, which was understandable," Troth said. "It will take a little time for her to get sharp."

Cindy Chase led the Eagle serving attack with her 20-22 performance and nine aces. Annetta Noe followed with a 17-19 outing and four aces while Candace Jones mustered 17-20 with six aces. Missy Martinson was around that mark also with a 15-18 showing and a pair of aces.

Candace Jones had the most opportunities in spiking as she attempted 32 spikes and connected on 26 and had a pair of kills and four ace blocks. Missy Martinson had a good outing with 20-23 spikes and seven kills.

Toni Boyle followed with a 17-20 effort with four kills and Pam Kennelly finished 10-13 with one kill.

Troth used three setters in the match with Annetta Noe, Amy Noe and Carla Stapleton. Annetta finished with eight assists on 30-32 sets, while Stapleton had five assists on 26-29 sets. Amy Noe was 25-26 in setting with four assists.

Missy Martinson also had four blocks to go along with teammate Candace Jones' four blocks.

Locals win contest

Richard Wurdinger headed a list of four participants who missed only three football games on the Wayne Herald football contest this past weekend.

Wurdinger, a Wayne resident edged another Wayne resident Jo Herian for the top prize. Herian too missed only three games but Wurdinger was only six off of the tiebreaker whereas Herian was seven off.

Also we want to mention the other two who missed only three games but the tiebreakers were farther off. Christopher Roy Polt of Wayne and Ken Addink of Wakefield deserve recognition for a job well done, but just a little far on the tiebreaker.

Wurdinger's missed games included the tie between Missouri and Indiana, LSU's loss to Ohio State and Wayne high's loss to West Point.

Herian's missed games were Missouri's tie with Indiana, Wayne high's loss to West Point, and Bancroft-Rosalie's loss to Wakefield.

Polt's three losses include the tie between Indiana and Missouri, Wayne high's loss to West Point and Virginia's loss to Duke.

Finally, Addink's three losses came with the tie between Missouri and Indiana, Oklahoma's loss to USC, and LSU's loss to Ohio State.

Good luck to everyone on this week's contest!

Wayne State to host tourney

Coach Doug Feagan's Wayne State volleyball Cats have played nine matches in the past eight days and have run their record to 15-9. The latest match, a home game with Peru State was held Tuesday night. Wayne State lost the match in straight sets on some good volleyball playing from Peru State, 11-15, 9-15, 5-15.

This past Saturday the Wildcats were involved in the Midland Invitational in Fremont. Wayne opened up play against Northwest Missouri State. Wayne State won the match in straight sets, 17-15, 15-12, 15-8. "We played well during the first match," Feagan said. "We battled the flu on our team all week." In fact, Shelly Pick was out with bronchitis and Bev Moeller and Kristi Bateman were subdued by back injuries.

At any rate, Wayne State had a grueling five setter with Dordt during the second match with Dordt coming out on top. Dordt won the first set 15-10 then got drilled by the Wildcats, 3-15. Wayne State actually took a 2-1 lead as they won the third set, 15-13.

Dordt however, won the final two sets, 15-4, 17-15, to advance to the finals. Wayne State meanwhile, had to play the host team Midland in its third and final match losing in straight sets, 11-15, 5-15, 9-15.

Last Wednesday and Friday, Wayne State had home matches with Dana and Briar Cliff. The Wildcats got by both visitors but both matches took some time.

Against Dana, the match went the whole five sets with the Wildcats finally coming out on top, 15-7, 10-15, 15-4, 3-15, 15-7. On Friday Wayne State got past Briar Cliff in four sets, despite losing the first set 7-15. Wayne State took the next three sets by scores of 15-7, 15-11, 15-6.

"I was really pleased with the performance of the squad against Briar Cliff," Feagan said. "We played very well and Kristi Bateman was really on."

Bateman had a kill spike average of .428 for the match which is extremely high. The Wildcats will be hosting the Central States Intercollegiate Conference volleyball tournament this weekend.

In fact, for all volleyball fans, action begins at 10 a.m. on Friday and continues through around 6 p.m. Saturday.

The CSIC tournament is an eight team round robin tournament where everybody plays everybody. The CSIC does this twice a year which gives everyone their two matches against each other in just four days total.

The next CSIC tournament is slated for October 21-22 in Pittsburg Kansas.

Wayne State will open up play against Washburn on Friday morning at 10. They will then play Pittsburg State at 1 p.m., Missouri Western at 4 p.m., Missouri Southern at 7 p.m. which rounds out the first day of competition.

Saturday the Wildcats come back to play Kearney State at 10 a.m., Fort Hays State at 1 p.m., and they finish off the round robin tournament with Emporia State at 4 p.m.

BEV MOELLER and Meg Hurley double up against a spike attempt from Peru State on Tuesday. The Wildcats lost in straight sets.

Junior Varsity downs Cedar by four

The junior varsity football team traveled to Hartington amidst the sweltering autumn heat Monday afternoon to take on Hartington Cedar Catholic in their second contest of the season.

Wayne scored on a five yard run by Chris Fredrickson in the first quarter and that proved to be enough as Wayne did a tremendous job defensively, hanging on to win 6-2, to go 2-0 on the year.

"It was a definite defensive showing," coach Ron Carnes said. "The game just went back and forth after we scored in the first quarter with both teams unable to punch the ball into the endzone."

Things got a little tight however, in the fourth quarter. Hartington mounted a drive that went deep into Wayne territory with time becoming a factor.

Wayne's defense, which was outstanding all night, had put Hartington Cedar in a fourth down and goal situation from the one foot line. Following a timeout, the Blue Devils held on fourth down and took over on the one foot line.

Wayne, unable to get a first down and not wanting to jeopardize getting a punt blocked on fourth down, took the safety with about a minute and a half remaining.

The defense held after Wayne had to free kick the ball to Cedar, to cling to the 6-2 win. "It was a very warm day to play," Carnes said. Cedar Catholic had 32 boys on the roster while we had only 15, which made substitution difficult."

Defensively, Rusty Hamer led the charge of the Blue Devil's attack on Cedar with 13 tackles. Chris Fredrickson followed with 12 while Dan Wiseman and Matt Bruggeman followed with nine and eight respectively. Jess Thompson was also a major contributor with seven tackles.

"The kids showed a lot of character," Carnes said. Mike Hillier led the four man rushing crew with approximately 50 yards.

Wayne loses three set match

The Blue Devil volleyball team was hoping to get back on the winning track Tuesday night at West Point. The two teams were similar in size and coach Marlene Uhing felt her team had the better serving and passing game, but in the end it was West Point snuffing out Wayne's bid for victory in three sets, 15-10, 7-15, 12-15.

"We came out ready to play in the first set," Uhing said. "West Point's net play is comparable to ours and we thought we could out serve and out pass them."

"We had a lot of unforced errors in the second and third sets," Uhing said. "As a team we really felt we should have won."

Dana Nelson led the team in serve receive with a 850 percentage including 17 passes to the setter in 20 attempts. Nelson also led the team in spiking with Robin Luff as each garnered six kill spikes.

Robin Luff led the team in serving with nine points. Nelson followed with eight points and two aces while Kristy Hansen scored six points on two aces.

Kristy Hansen also led the Blue Devils in setting with five assists while the other setter Teresa Ellis managed three assists. Ellis however, recorded four blocks to lead Wayne in that category.

The junior varsity team was also defeated in three sets with scores of 15-10, 12-15, 3-15. Jennifer Hammer had nine points as did Amy Tiedtke.

West Point made a clean sweep of the Blue Devils by downing Wayne's freshman team. The Blue Devils lost the first set, 3-15, but bounced back in a 15-1 rout to even things up. West Point captured the match though with a 15-11 third set score.

Stephanie Kloster led the "C" team with 10 points while Kim Liska managed nine.

Wayne will now play in the Tilden volleyball tournament this Saturday. Wayne has owned this tournament by winning it the past two years. Incidentally, the winning team gets a trophy and a traveling trophy.

The tournament has shrunk to six teams this year with Wayne and Madison receiving first round byes. Madison will play the winner of Newman Grove-Elkhorn Valley, while Wayne plays the winner of Humphrey-Norfolk JV's.

The championship game is tentatively slated for 8:30 p.m. The match for third place is scheduled for 7:15 p.m.

Wayne, Winside to garner wins

The Crystal Ball wasn't that crystal last week as I dropped a three of five high school games, but I bounced back in college and pro to go a total of 6-4. For the two weeks combined then, the Crystal Ball sees me at 9-6.

That will change this week as the Crystal Ball sees many opportunities to improve my percentage.

Wayne 16, David City 8 — Wayne has too much talent in the lineup to not score points for three weeks in a row. The defense has been holding its own and will continue its strong showing.

Winside 48, Wausa 16 — Head coach Randy Geier has a 2-2 record with the Wildcats this season, but both losses have come to number one rated teams at the time in Walthill and Coleridge.

Wakefield 46, Allen 14 — Allen has suffered some key injuries over the past couple of games and Wakefield is getting stronger with each outing.

Pierce 32, Laurel 12 — Laurel's young team will have trouble with Pierce's experience.

Nebraska 77, UNLV 3 — The Huskers have no business playing UNLV except to pad their stats which is unimpressive to real football fans. Never-the-less, the Huskers looked impressive in their win over Arizona State. I could be way off on this score, UNLV probably won't score.

Oklahoma State 38, Tulsa 10 — Coach Pat Jones has cowboy fans in Stillwater excited about their teams chances in the Big Eight this season.

UCLA 31, Washington 14 — Huskie fans looking for the upset this week would be better off to wait until next year.

Colorado 27, Colorado State, 17 — Although Colorado has three times as much talent as the Rams of Colorado State, these two teams always baffle it out for bragging rights of the Rocky Mountain State.

Washington Redskins 20, New York Giants 16 — Look for the Giants to lose their second straight game and fall 2-3 on the year.

Chicago 24, Buffalo 13 — Say goodbye to one of the three unbeaten teams this weekend in pro football. Also say goodbye to Cincinnati's unbeaten string as the Raiders break it on Sunday.

Decision time

Nebraskans face one of the most important decisions they will ever make in the upcoming November election. It will affect the economy and job-creating ability in the state for years to come. It will affect the ability of agriculture and industry in the state to remain economically viable. Initiative 402, or the so-called "Right to Vote," question that will appear on the November ballot, would withdraw Nebraska from the Central Interstate Low-Level Radioactive Waste Compact. After lengthy discussion, public hearings and debate, five State Legislatures approved the Compact. Five State Governors signed the legislation of each state. The United States Congress ratified the Compact thus formed.

Nebraskans must become well-informed on this important issue. Citizens should visit with their respective senators, informed public officials, educators, read and listen to the facts of the issue, then cast an educated vote on Initiative 402. The economic future of Nebraska rests on the ability of its citizens to become well-informed on this issue, then to vote responsibly Nov. 8.

Wildlife

spread an awareness about Wayne's Ducks Unlimited organization. "Anyone who just is interested in watching ducks and geese fly over would appreciate being a member of this organization," Pedersen said.

THOSE WHO become members will get six issues of the national Ducks Unlimited magazine. Inside are informative articles which feature duck and other wildlife habitat statistics. For instance, a September/October 1988 article stipulates that wildlife enthusiasts can expect a record low production year for ducks within provinces of Canada because of the drought, and can anticipate a very poor fall flight.

Wayne Ducks Unlimited knows that a "well-managed wetland" is a valuable resource. Wetlands purify water and help control flooding and pollution.

And they also protect wildlife through preserving natural habitat.

That's the message Ducks Unlimited is trying to get across — not only in Wayne but across North America and beyond.

Waiver is 'good news'

The Department of Transportation notified Representative Doug Bereuter that new regulations implementing the Commercial Motor Vehicle Safety Act will provide for a waiver for farmers and fire fighters.

Requirements contained in the Commercial Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1986 were designed to ensure uniform testing and licensing procedures for commercial vehicle operators and to ensure that commercial drivers could not hold licenses from multiple states. Farmers, fire fighters and other persons not generally considered commercial drivers were made subject to the new requirements under earlier regulations proposed by the Department of Transportation.

Bereuter has cosponsored legislation that would amend that law to correct the problems. In addition, he wrote to the Secretary of Transportation to recommend that exemptions be defined for farmers and fire fighters.

As originally defined, the regulations would have affected every member of a farm family who helps out during harvest or other peak seasons. Everyone who drives a truck with a gross vehicle weight rating of over 26,000 pounds would have been required to obtain a commercial drivers' license.

Under the new policy, states will be allowed to decide to adopt the waivers or to continue to require drivers to be tested and licensed under the existing commercial drivers' license requirements.

"This is good news," Bereuter said. "A waiver procedure for farmers and fire fighters makes good sense. The original regulations were excessive and detrimental to the orderly transportation of farm commodities and to the essential services provided to rural residents by our volunteer fire departments."

Don't sweat the small stuff

Perhaps the primary goal of parenthood is to help children become more independent, to help them learn to stand on their own two feet.

Herb Lingren, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension family life specialist, said the question of how to accomplish this goal is not easily answered.

How long do you let a child struggle? When do you step in to solve problems? How old should children be before making their own decisions?

Children start making bids for independence around their first birthday. One of the first signs is the continual response "No!" to a parental request. Children begin to learn, from their parents reaction, how much and in what situations they have power. The next stage is the "do it myself" stage. Your 2-year-old may launch into a full-scale tantrum because you didn't let her put on her own socks.

"There are several issues here," Lingren said. "One is the time factor. You know that your 2-year-old can put on her socks, it just takes her 20 minutes to do it and you have to be out of the house in 10 minutes. Another issue is that children at this age do not restrict their demands to tasks they can accomplish. They may want to get a cake out of the oven, run the snow blower or even drive the car. You have met your goal, to be out of the house at a certain time, and you have allowed your child to practice a self-help skill."

In the case of a children's wish to perform a task that is beyond their capabilities, try to find another, safer activity. Instead of dealing with the oven, a child could get the cooling racks out of the cupboard. A child could be given a small shovel to assist in snow removal, rather than using the snow blower on their own.

It is important to recognize developmental changes in children and to relax direct control. Children are more likely to obey household rules if they feel the rules are reasonable and if they have had a say in the establishment of the rules.

There is nothing magical about age limits on activities and privileges. Children in the same family can vary widely in terms of skill and maturity. Your oldest child may be conscientious and responsible and able to go on unchaperoned camping trips at the age of 16. This does not mean that all of your children will be able to take on that responsibility at the same age.

"There was a group of mothers who were discussing when and over what it was okay to lose arguments with their children. One mother said that her motto was 'Don't sweat the small stuff.' Small stuff included hair styles, makeup, clothing and jewelry (her son's earring). She explained that, for her, 'small stuff' was short-lived. Hair grew, hair coloring washed out, clothing and jewelry styles changed. She had decided to try to limit arguments to those things she felt strongly about, such as positive treatment of family and friends, religious commitment and participation in community organizations," Lingren said.

Every family has slightly different values, so the definition of "small stuff" will vary. The basic principle holds: children need some areas in their lives where they can make decisions. Some of these decisions may seem like mistakes to adults, but they provide a learning experience, a basis from which other decisions will be made.

said they would reject grain that contains aflatoxin, as they are told to do so by the USDA.

When it comes to economic impacts of the drought, Nebraska producers and agribusinessmen "may be in the best of a bad situation," Mike Turner, extension agribusiness specialist, said. Nebraska will likely raise the best crop in the Corn Belt and prices are good, he said. But some complications could result.

GRAIN ELEVATORS that depended on income from government storage contracts in 1986 and 1987 have experienced a bonanza that is ending, he said. Those grain companies will now have to depend on their merchandising skills of buying and selling gain as a "substitute source of income to replace the government-stored grain, Turner said.

"Not all elevators will fare equally well in the merchandising game," Turner said.

Some elevators are large enough to negotiate contract rates with railroads, which will be preferred rates, he said. They also have the ability of shipping trainloads of commodities so those elevators have an advantage when bidding prices to farmers.

Elevators without railroads depend on a truck market. They can scramble and do a good job but they are at a disadvantage, he said.

Agribusiness firms should not see the credit problems of 1984-85 this year because, in Nebraska, farmers have a crop to sell and prices are good. The problem of accounts receivable that are uncollectable won't really show up among Nebraska Agribusiness firms, Turner said.

Olympic mania

Summer is winding down. So are the Olympics. What happened in Seoul, Korea these past days echoes the skill and technique of all participants in the big games.

But the biggest disappointment to me has to be the television coverage provided by NBC. Why?

They break away from Olympic coverage to speak with swimmer Janet Evans, multiple gold medal winner, at a block party near her home in the USA. The girl obviously doesn't want to be treated any different than her friends or be put on a pedestal, but the announcer continues to harp on her "celebrity status."

When Edwin Moses lost in the hurdles, immediately he was the focus of the very first interview after the race. Isn't the winner the one that deserves the recognition?

Coverage focused for the longest time on a protesting Korean boxer sitting or standing in the ring after he lost his match — reasonably officiated by a referee who was attacked by coaches and security guard. (The highlight was when he left the ring).

Those are just a few things that turned me off to the Olympics.

We are all Olympians, in some way or another. It may not follow the guidelines of the sport and our times may not be as fast, but the effort is there. How, you daringly ask, can northeast Nebraskans practice their skills to compare with those in Seoul? You want examples?

Diving with a 2 1/2 twist into a tuck position: People do this all the time trying to fit themselves into the winter clothes they had in closet storage.

Greco-Roman Wrestling: This is a practice used to bring children in for their evening bath.

100 meter sprint: People would be surprised at how fast they can run when it is pouring rain (like Tuesday evening) and they remember that their car window is wide open.

Marathon run: People do this all the time to get away from campaigning politicians.

Rowing: In most situations, people find ourselves up the creek without a paddle anyway. Farmers are going to need their rowing skills following Tuesday's rains, just to see how their crops are doing.

Tennis: People in this area should have plenty of talent swinging a tennis racquet, particularly with all the bats swooping down these days in their homes (or courthouses).

Boxing: Newspaper editors and writers have to roll with the punches. By the way, the month of September has been designated as "Be Kind to Editors and Writers Month." Really!

Weightlifting: Men in this area have been known to heave anvils and piles of feed bags at once. They also show great skill in carrying a large combo pizza, a 12-pack of beverage and the rest of the groceries so they only have to make one trip to the car. Women tone up their muscles by helping with farm chores and picking up sofas to clean under them while their husbands are napping on it.

Basketball: You only get one shot at hitting the laundry basket. From 20 feet out is three-point range.

Gymnastics (Tumbling): That's what happens constantly when someone leaves a roller skate on the sidewalk. Technique needs a little work to preserve the body, though.

Backstroke Swimming: Only if you have an Olympic-size bathtub.

Soccer: Chasing that little soccer ball is like running after a hog that broke loose from its pen. Goals here are rare because they get hurt after the hog runs right over them.

Equestrian: Our horse riders face the hazards of the course every day. Namely automobiles.

Heptathlon: That's what mothers and fathers feel that they have been through after a week-long vacation with the kids.

These are just some of the events where we in this area could gain medals. I'd say that we should start putting in our bid as the host site for the 2000 Summer Olympics — don't you?

Some Medicines Can Cause Drowsiness

Drowsiness is a side effect of a great many different medicines. A loss of mental alertness or drowsiness can occur with medicines as simple as the nonprescription antihistamines which are found in many cold and allergy products. Some of the antihistamines appear to cause more drowsiness than do other antihistamines.

Drowsiness also may occur with prescription medicines such as the anti-anxiety agents (tranquilizers), the skeletal muscle relaxants, medicines for the relief of depression, and a number of pain relievers.

People do not always react the same way to medicines. At one extreme, individuals might fall asleep after taking one or two doses of prescribed cough medicine. Others might be unaffected after taking a larger dose of the same medicine. Because of this variation, it is important to exercise caution when first taking medicines.

Drowsiness may be more inclined to occur if (1) medicines are being used that have caused drowsiness in the past, (2) medicines are taken which have the potential to cause drowsiness, or (3) alcohol is being consumed with certain medicines.

The Farmer's Wife

by Pat McHenry

Since Blue Cross of Iowa has a contract with the Health Care Financing Authority to review claims for Home Health Care agencies in the Midwest, beginning October 1, we were "invited" to a seminar in Grand Island. It was strongly suggested that we be there. Two days on what Medicare will pay for, and how to fill out the forms so that the "computer" doesn't kick them out.

I hate days like this, and I made up my mind to make them as pleasant as possible.

Registration was at 8:30 on Monday morning. That meant leaving at 5:00 a.m., so I went on Sunday evening to avoid the early departure. It was blowing and raining by the time I got there; I got turned around in directions and had a heck of a time finding the I-80 Holiday Inn. A motel never looked so good.

We were out at 3:30 on Monday, and I looked for the Stuhr Museum. My grandmother's name was Stuhr, but we'd never been able to find a connection with this family. Still, I was curious about it.

IT WAS cold and windy. The tourist season was obviously over.

The main building is surrounded by a pond, and there were many ducks enjoying themselves.

There is quite a collection of pioneer tools, furniture, crafts, and literature here. I enjoyed the gift shop, which features cards with reproductions of paintings by Nebraska artists, and shelves of books by Nebraska authors. In fact, I bought Spring Came on Forever, by Bess Streeter Aldrich, which I don't remember reading before.

I wandered over to Railroad Town because I heard a steam engine. The conductor told me they had had many school children that day, but I was the only passenger on the 4:30 run.

We went about and around the 600 acres, past Immanuel Lutheran Church, from Hampton; past Taylor's store, and past the Pawnee Indian home and several lazy buffalo.

Then I investigated some of the buildings in Railroad Town. There was a very complete tivery stable and jail.

The veterinarian's office is really something. It is complete with tables, instruments, and animal organs in formaldehyde.

The state fire fighters are putting together an exhibit, too.

I especially enjoyed Henry Fonda's home. It's full of things like a dough mixer, rug beater, toys, and furniture from the period.

The museum closed at 6:00. I ate Mexican food with friends, relaxed in a very warm pool, and fell asleep watching the news.

When we finished on Tuesday, I took 281 to Bartlett, into Elgin and Neligh, and north on 14 to Winnetoon. Here I picked up the trunks I'd left last spring and toured the "Mini-Mall."

Gayle Prochaska has a natural foods store, full of great-smelling spices; and three rooms of collectibles. There are high chairs, cupboards and desks, rugs, quilts, trunks, and pictures.

It's worth the drive, believe me. I hated to leave, but had to get to work in the morning! One can have fun even when dealing with Medicare.

Ballot question

Nebraskans for the Right to Vote are working to return decision-making control in dealing responsible with "low-level" radioactive waste disposal to Nebraska voters. To accomplish this, we sponsored an initiative petition drive, the subject of which has been recently named "Initiative 402."

A vote for 402 would require voter approval before a nuclear dump could be built in Nebraska. A vote for 402 would also withdraw Nebraska from a multi-state compact that plans to dump five states' nuclear waste in Nebraska.

Now that the nuclear waste initiative will be on the ballot in November, it is important to examine the choices available to Nebraskans as we decide how to vote.

Unfortunately, Nebraskans are being misled about the choices we have. Voters are being told that a waste dump in Nebraska is inevitable. This misinformation comes from state government officials, US Ecology officials, compact officials, and people funded by out-of-state nuclear power industry money.

It only makes sense to check the federal law to discover what Nebraska's mandate actually is. It does not say a state must build a waste dump and it does not say a state must be a member of a com-compact. The federal act simply says each state must take responsibility for its own waste.

Several options exist which allow a state to carry out its responsibility.

1. A state can forego membership in a compact without actually building a disposal site. A state can meet its responsibility by contracting with another disposal site to take the waste. Rhode Island and the District of Columbia have such a contract.

2. Another option is to store waste near the nuclear reactors (including medical and research waste) until final disposal when the plants are decommissioned.

3. Another choice is to build a Nebraska-only facility and legally keep out waste from other states. New York, Texas, and Massachusetts already have chosen this option.

If Nebraska voters decide we want to build a dump for that waste generated within Nebraska, we are not necessarily faced with the $40 million price tag which the public power districts at times estimate to be the cost for a Nebraska-only facility. The districts' projection that a Nebraska-only facility would cost the same as a compact facility is not supported by independent analysis. It also does not make sense that a smaller, Nebraska-only dump would cost the same as a compact dump.

An independent economic analysis is needed in order to answer many of the questions Nebraskans are asking about the cost of staying in or getting out of the compact.

The good news is that many, many Nebraskans are committed to responsible management of "low-level" radioactive waste long term. Because Nebraska's constitution (Article III, Sec.2) provides for the initiative and referendum, and because Initiative 402 will be on the November ballot, Nebraska voters can decide if we are willing to have a greater say in dealing with "low-level" radioactive waste.

Lynn Moorer, Lancaster County Co-Chair, Nebraskans for the Right to Vote

The GOLDEN YEARS

By Eve Haase

It's time to retire—a myth about retirement, according to David Eckerdt, Ph.D., of Boston University's School of Public Health. There is no real evidence to support the myth that retirement shortens life, said Dr. Eckerdt. His research on the subject appeared in the journal The Gerontologist. Some people wrongly assume that retirement triggers ill health because they knew someone who died soon after retiring. But "it has not been established that such cases are more than rare events," Dr. Eckerdt said. His research indicates that deteriorating health "is likely to be a continuation of pre-retirement illness."

MONEY MATTERS

George Phelps, CFP
Certified Financial Planner
IDS Financial Services

Setting Financial Goals

What are your financial goals for you and your family? What do you hope to accomplish in the next five years? Ten years? Thirty years? Perhaps a first (or second) home is paramount in your financial plan. Maybe its college for your children. Almost assuredly you want to reduce taxes and provide yourself a comfortable retirement.

The important point is that each of us has a unique set of financial goals. A financial planner therefore helps you choose the investment strategy that works best for your needs. The public is always asking, "What is the best investment buy today?" From a financial planning perspective the answer is different for each person.

A simple illustration proves this point. Let's assume my primary financial goal is providing a college education for my 17 year old daughter. Even if I felt absolutely sure that the stock market is headed up this year, I wouldn't put my money there. Why? Because there are no short-term guarantees in the stock market and I need that money for my daughter's education in a few years. Conversely, let's assume that I'm saving for my 3-year old son's education. Even if I felt sure that the stock market was headed down in the near future, I would probably put at least part of my money there. Over the long term, we know that the stock market has a history of outperforming other investments and I won't need that money right away. In financial planning, the goals determine the investment portfolio, so you invest where you need to, not in what you were talked into. For more information on financial planning contact George Phelps, CFP, at 416 Main St., Wayne, or phone 375-1848.
