Ballot results

According to unofficial ballot results, the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resource District will have five incumbent directors returning to four year terms. They include Dale Lingenfelter of Plainview; Dennis Newland of Norfolk; Alvin Wagner of Hoskins; Howard Hansen of Stanton; and Clinton Von Segern of Scribner.

From the present ballot results, it also appears that the LENRD will have three new directors: John Hansen of Tilden; Emil Sobota of Schuyler; and Barbara Greve of Wakefield.

Program

A public program entitled "The Enduring World of Maximilian and Karl Bodmer" will be presented Thursday, Nov. 17 at 7 p.m. at the Wayne Public Library.

The program, which is free and open to the public, is sponsored by the library and the Nebraska Committee for the Humanities. Presenting the program will be Joseph Porter, curator of American History and Ethnology at the Joslyn Art Museum.

This presentation tells the story of the 1832-34 expedition of Prince Maximilian of Wied and Swiss artist Karl Bodmer to the western American frontier region. Bodmer's exquisitely detailed watercolors and Maximilian's diaries capture the adventure of their journey.

Joseph Porter has traveled portions of the Maximilian/Bodmer route and compares his slides of contemporary scenes with Bodmer's landscapes.

The library will be closed for regular services during the program.

Wall Drug

One of America's most popular entrepreneurial families will be represented at Wayne State College Friday, Nov. 18 at 1 p.m. in the Nebraska Room of the Student Center.

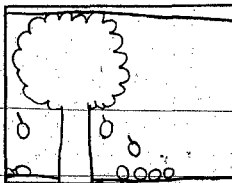

Bill Husted, president of Wall Drug, Wall, S.D., will speak to Wayne State business students and the public. He will share with them the success story of the drug store his father, Ted Husted, made famous beginning in the 1930's.

Wall Drug was comparable to other small-town drug stores until Ted's wife, Dorothy, decided to offer free ice water to passing motorists who were traveling to and from the Black Hills in 1936.

The rest is history. Today, as many as 20,000 visitors stop at Wall Drug on a busy summer day. The 1.5 million people each year spend $5 million on food, western boots, hats, pottery, Badlands rocks, jewelry, and a variety of other products in the drug store that boasts 33 departments and four dining rooms.

Husted, a former South Dakota state senator, is president and chief executive officer of Wall Drug.

He is presently commissioner of transportation, member of the railroad board for the State of South Dakota, chairman of Wall City Council, and member of the advisory council to the Federal Reserve Bank, 9th district.

Variety of entertainment planned

Cultural outreach program set

The first-ever performance of Wayne State College's newly established Center for Cultural Outreach is scheduled for Tuesday, Nov. 15 at 8 p.m. in Ramsey Theatre.

The initial program, entitled "A Musical Portrait of Francis Poulenc," will feature a mixture of the contemporary French composer's finest works.

Dr. Beverly Soll, director of the center, is organizing the event and will perform on the piano. She will be joined by several Wayne State musicians. They include her husband, Andrew Soll, pianist, Dr. Christopher Bonds, violinist, and Dr. Jay O'Leary, clarinetist. Northwestern College faculty member, Ann Dorr, soprano, will also perform. Maestro Antony Garlick, professor of music at Wayne State, will supply charming insights into the character of Poulenc.

One notable program feature is "The Story of Babar, the Little Elephant," which will be performed by utilizing the unusual combination of music, narration, and theatre.

A 13-member sixth-grade language arts class from Wayne Middle School, under the direction of Wayne State drama student Erin Callaghan, will mime this musical story. Betsy Whisenhunt, a teacher at Walthill High School and Wayne resident, will be narrator.

Also included in the program will be Poulenc's "Sonata for Piano, "Four Hands," his Movements Perpetuels," arranged for violin and piano, his "Sonata for Clarinet and Piano," and his delightfully light-hearted song cycle "Airs Chantes."

Future concerts by the Center for Cultural Outreach are planned, and public admission is free. For more information, call 402 375-2200 ext. 492.

City water project nearing completion

By Chuck Hackenmiller

Managing Editor

The city of Wayne's water project, calling for the piping of water into the city from a well approximately six miles north of Wayne, is nearing completion.

John Franklin, representing the engineering firm of Howard R. Green Company of Spirit Lake, Iowa, told the Wayne City Council Tuesday evening that the project is approximately 93 percent complete.

"All the piping has been installed and they are doing pressure testing," said Franklin.

Five of the eight miles along the water pipeline have been pressure checked, and five leaks have been located and repaired, he said.

"This is totally at the contractor's expense. And if other leaks happen to surface, there is a two-year warranty on the project," he said.

"Franklin said the well house near the north well is 90 percent finished. The control and telemetry equipment for the site had not been delivered, but is expected to arrive about the beginning of December, he said.

"Things should be in operation and ready to go by the first of the year," Franklin told the city council.

During ESU 1 meeting

Behaviorally impaired program challenged

By LaVon Anderson

Assistant Editor

Is the Wayne-Carroll School District legally responsible for the education of behaviorally impaired students who are wards of the state and who have been placed within the boundaries of the district?

Or does the financial responsibility of educating the youngsters rest with the Department of Social Services which exercises legal guardianship and decides where the children will be placed?

That question was the cause of lengthy debate during last Tuesday night's Educational Service Unit One (ESU 1) board of directors meeting in Wakefield.

APPEARING BEFORE the ESU 1 board were Dr. Francis Haun, superintendent of the Wayne-Carroll School District, Gale Johnston, superintendent of Winnebago Public School, and Joan Albin, district administrator of the Department of Social Services.

Speaking first, Dr. Haun told ESU 1 board members of a situation which has arisen within the Wayne school district whereby a behaviorally impaired 12-year-old boy from Norfolk was placed with Region IV in Wayne by the Department of Social Services, his legal guardian, and was being educated in the Wayne school system.

"We have 80 students in our special education program," said Haun, "five of whom are behaviorally impaired."

"We have a track record of serving students regardless of their handicap," added Haun, "and our board is very supportive."

HAUN WENT ON to explain to the ESU 1 board that the 12-year-old youngster placed in Wayne by Social Services has displayed violent behavior on several occasions, including threatening his teacher and destroying property, including a school computer.

"We have tried our best to serve this youngster in a mainstream setting," said Haun, "but we have come into a situation we cannot cope with. The teacher can no longer handle this visible violent behavior."

Haun said the Wayne-Carroll School District also contracted with the Norfolk school system for education of the youngster until he was expelled recently from the Norfolk program. He has received no education since that time.

"WE DON'T KNOW what the answer is," added Haun. "I'm here tonight to ask for ESU 1 staff suggestions. Perhaps ESU 1 could assist schools with problems we cannot solve."

Haun went on to say that he has visited about the problem with Region IV and ESU 1 staff members, along with State Senator Gerald Conway.

ALSO SPEAKING Tuesday night was Joan Albin of Norfolk, district administrator of the Department of Social Services.

Albin told the board that in addition to the youngster from Norfolk, the Department of Social Services is in the process of placing a behaviorally impaired 12-year-old Winnebago youth in Wayne.

"Both of these boys are wards of the Department of Social Services," said Albin, "and I am their legal guardian."

"The boys are being placed in Wayne to be near their families," added Albin. "Being close to their families and being able to meet their needs are our primary goals."

Albin added that although she has not met the boys personally, she has received reports and realizes that they are very "high need" children.

"However," added Albin, "the Norfolk youngster placed in Wayne is receiving no education at this time, and the Winnebago youth is only receiving two to three hours of education per day in the Bryan program in South Sioux City.

"I do not think this is legal," explained Albin, "and I would like to see a speedy resolution to this problem."

FOLLOWING ALBIN'S presentation, ESU 1 Administrator Rod Garwood informed those present that ESU 1 functions at the desire and need of schools it serves.

"We (ESU 1) could establish a special program for these youngsters," said Garwood, "however it would be an extremely expensive program. It could cost $80,000 to start a program of this type."

"I don't think our board will suffer the liability without a guarantee that we will be paid for our commitment. If these children were suddenly moved, the cost would still be ours."

"I don't think we'll take the liability for this small, specialized program."

"MY FIRST interest is the boys," said Albin. "The school district should be the contracting entity for

Geography Week creates awareness

By Chuck Hackenmiller

Managing Editor

A statistic: A significant number of American students could not find the United States on a world map; could not identify Alaska and Texas as the Nation's largest States; and could not name the New England States.

Finding out about people, and their environments and resources — that is what geography is all about. Apparently, most of the young Americans are missing out on geography education.

A celebration of "Geography Awareness Week" has been designated for Sunday (Nov. 13) through Nov. 19.

So important is the issue on the absence of geography in the classroom that the Senate and House of Representatives have assembled a resolution in honor of the subject.

Senator Bill Bradley of New Jersey initiated legislation drawing attention to geography awareness.

GOALS OF the special week are:

— To focus national attention on geographic illiteracy in the United States and to highlight the strategies being offered to combat it.

— To involve schools, campuses and communities in events that will dramatize the importance and fun of studying geography.

— And to advance the place of geography in the curriculum.

The highlighted week in 1988 marks the second year of promoting geography awareness nationally.

The "joint resolution" passed through legislation states the following:

— Geography has been offered to fewer than one in 10 United States secondary school students as part of the curriculum.

— Departments of geography are being eliminated from American institutes of higher learning, endangering the discipline of geography in the United States.

— Geography has virtually disappeared from the curricula of American schools while still being taught as a basic subject in other countries, including the United Kingdom, Canada, Japan and the Soviet Union.

— Ignorance of geography, foreign languages and cultures places the United States at a disadvantage with other countries in matters of business, politics and the environment.

THE NATIONAL Geographic Society is the thrust in establishing geography awareness, according to Robert Foote, associate professor of social studies at Wayne State College.

He teaches all phases of geography at Wayne State. "The intent of the special week is to bring an awareness of what geography is. Americans tend to be woefully ignorant of geography and don't see why it is so important," said Foote.

Students in his college classes, at the start, are about the same as the national average when it comes to knowledge of geography.

"We give the same test as the national test and we get the same type of results. I'd say from 10 to 25 percent of the students can't tell the location of the Atlantic Ocean from the Pacific Ocean," said Foote.

Some students can't even find the United States right at the start, he said.

Students can talk about a particular event, but cannot pinpoint where the happenings of the event took place. "More students have their own opinions about what is happening in Nicaragua than actually knowing where the country is," said Foote.

Foote said that at one time, geography was a part of the required curriculum of all high school, elementary and middle schools.

"Then in the United States, they began adding to it. Geography was changed to Social Studies. Eventually it became a mixture of sociology and psychology," said Foote.

Schools are required only to offer geography-related courses in Nebraska, he said.

WHAT MUST happen, he said, is that the state legislature must enact regulations requiring that geography become a required course somewhere through the curriculum scheduling.

"A national statistic shows that out of those who graduate from high school, about one-quarter were not exposed to a geography course at any of their grade levels," Foote mentioned.

"This is what we are trying to overcome," he said.

Foote said there is a shortage of trained geography instructors. There are instructors who have never had geography instructor training that are now teaching segments of the course today across the nation, he commented.

Presently, general courses offered to the college students require at

News and Notes

Celebrate the family during Thanksgiving

This Thanksgiving as people gather to give thanks for the bountiful harvest, many also will be celebrating one of the nation's most cherished yet most beleaguered social institutions — their family.

Through the past decade, the family has been challenged and buffeted as never before in history.

The stress on the family has never been so great. Both internally, as expressed by abuse and the divorce rate, and externally, as affected by the economical crunch in rural Nebraska, the demands of work, of government and other social institutions.

Celebrating the family is especially pertinent this week since President Reagan proclaimed Nov. 20-27 as National Family Week — a time to "recognize the importance of family solidarity."

THE 'TRADITIONAL' American family of the working father and stay-at-home mother with one or more children, now accounts for less than 10 percent of the nation's families.

More than half of the nation's mothers work, and almost half of the married women with children under six years work outside the home. Twenty-five percent of today's families are headed by one parent.

Most of these families can offer an opportunity for individual and family growth if family members are willing to work on their relationship.

All families have strengths and Thanksgiving is an attempt to focus on and build on those strengths. Let's give thanks for each other and make the time together really quality time.

Like anything else in life that has meaning, a satisfying marriage and family life won't come unless you are willing to put time and effort into it.

THE GATHERING OF families at Thanksgiving provides an excellent opportunity to promote and strengthen family units, provided all recognize the need to be patient and considerate with each other. Consider these suggestions for using the holiday to build family strengths:

— Spend more time together and less time traveling. Driving long distances can be very wearing on parents and children and can disrupt feeding and sleeping schedules.

— Spend more time communicating and less time complaining. Use the language of acceptance and be positive when listening to others. Take time to listen to the feelings and meanings behind their words.

— Spend more time beside the fire and less time feuding. Accept the differences between family members. Being different is not necessarily wrong. Accepting and sharing these differences can enrich the family.

— Don't try to duplicate past joyous family experiences. Relax and enjoy the present. Be helpful, kind and most of all, forgiving of past hurtful memories.

— Develop meaningful rituals involving all family members which can be passed down from one generation to another.

Elections were being held in two Winside locations on Tuesday, Nov. 8.

While registered voters were casting their ballots in the village auditorium throughout the day, Winside Elementary School students in grades one through six were appearing at the voting booths in the sixth grade classroom.

"We started learning about and working on the elections around the first part of October," said Mrs. Shirley Fleer, sixth grade teacher.

"The class used the Weekley Reader publication, 'Electing the President 1988' by Dan Rather as their text."

THE CLASS WAS divided into groups of 11 Democrats and 11 Republicans, with each group voting for presidential and vice presidential candidates, and selecting campaign managers, assistant campaign managers, speech writers, assistant speech writers and announcers.

Margaret Brugger was chosen as Democratic Candidate Michael Dukakis, and Jason Wylie as his running mate Lloyd Bentsen.

Jayne Shelton was voted in as Republican Candidate George Bush, and Stacy Bowers as Vice Presidential Candidate Dan Quayle.

Other Democratic selections were

Tammy Thies, campaign manager; Sarah Rademacher, assistant manager; Shawna Holtgrew and Belinda Appel, speech writer and assistant; and Scott Jacobsen, Belinda Appel, Tammy Thies and Beth Bloomfield, announcers.

Republican party campaign manager was Matthew Jensen, and assistant manager was Benji Wittler. Speech writer and assistant were Kent Damme and Alethea Fale, and announcers were Kate Schwedhelm and Colby Jensen.

THE STUDENTS held electoral votes this year. Each class (grades one through six) was given a state name for electoral votes based on the same number of votes per students in class.

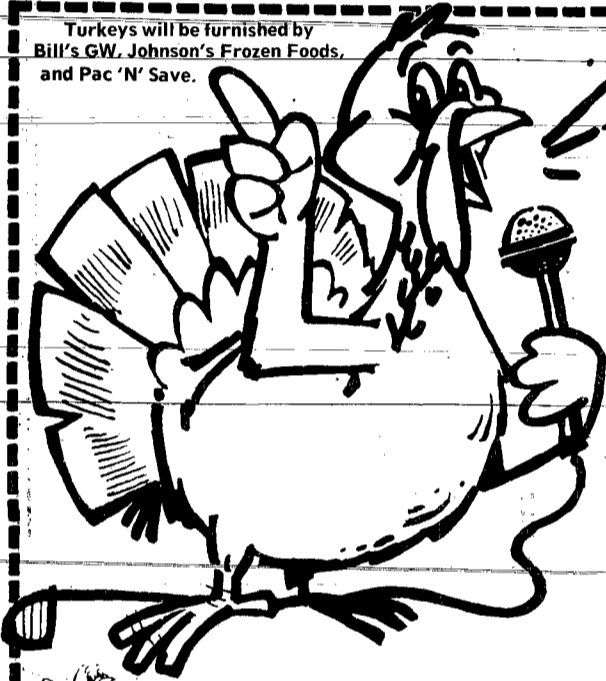

First grade was Texas, second grade was Pennsylvania, third grade was Illinois, fourth grade was Michigan, fifth grade was New Jersey, and sixth grade was Florida.

All students in grades one through six voted, and electoral votes were determined by a class majority vote of either Republican or Democrat.

SIXTH GRADERS made posters for their candidates and campaigned throughout the school. They also gave speeches for their respective candidates.

Sixth graders also received a visit from Gregg Parks of Norfolk, a member of the Kerrey campaign,

Physical education researched in Wayne

A research team from the Center for Fitness and Healthful Living Education at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln (UNL) will visit Wayne-Carroll High School on Wednesday, Nov. 16 to test students for physical fitness.

The tests are part of a statewide research project to determine the physical fitness of Nebraska students from the elementary through high school levels.

Faculty and undergraduate students in the UNL School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation are conducting the research with the cooperation of the State Department of Education.

The tests will take approximately two class periods to complete and include tests of cardiovascular fitness, muscular strength, endurance, hamstring and lower back flexibility and skinfold measures to determine body fat.

Participating students will also fill out a questionnaire concerning their participation in health and fitness activities.

Results of the statewide tests will be used to develop a scorecard that can be used in schools throughout Nebraska as part of a standardize fitness test.

The standardized test will allow schools across the state to compare their students with other students throughout the state and enable them to identify areas needing improvement.

About 1,600 students have been tested since the research began last spring. The data will be analyzed at the end of this year and the state averages will be established.

Wildcats establish record season

The Wayne State Lady Wildcat volleyball team ended the 1988 season with a loss to Kearney State in the semi-finals of the District 11 tournament.

The loss left the Lady Wildcats with a 32-25 season mark, setting a school record for most victories in a season. The old mark was 29 wins, set in 1984 and 1986. The 57 matches played is also a Wayne State mark, breaking the old record of 51 set in 1986. The .561 winning percentage gives Wayne State its third straight winning season and the fifth winning season in the last six years. The loss in the semi-finals marked the first time the Lady Wildcats had advanced beyond the first round in district playoffs, despite qualifying three years in a row. The Lady Wildcats upset Nebraska Wesleyan in the opening round in five games. First-year head coach Doug Feagan is naturally pleased with his team's efforts this year. "Our finish exceeded my expectations since this was my first year heading the program and we got a late start together. But I think it's a tribute to how hard the players worked and came together," Feagan said. Feagan loses three seniors to graduation, all starters, in middle hitter Meg Hurley, outside hitter Kristi Bateman and setter Bev Moeller. All three are four-year let-winners for Wayne State. "It will be hard to replace all three, but we've got a good start in our new program and a lot of younger players ready to step in," Feagan added. Wayne State won two tournaments this season, the Dordt Invitational and the Briar Cliff Invitational. The Lady Wildcats finished second in two others, their own Early Bird Invitational and the Nebraska Wesleyan Invitational.

CASEY GATES (42) skies for the rebound over Sherman Petite (32), during Wayne State's scrimmage Wednesday night in Rice Auditorium.

Athletes of the Month named

Mark Linder and Meg Hurley have been named male and female athletes of the month for October, according to Natalie Highman, president of the Wayne State lettermen's club.

Linder, a sophomore offensive lineman from Omaha, was selected for his leadership on the Wayne State football team. In their nomination of Linder, Wayne State coaches stressed his positive attitude and work ethics during practice.

Linder is a two-year starter for the Wildcats. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Linder of Omaha and is a 1987 graduate of Millard North High School.

The Lady Wildcat volleyball team, twice earned player-of-the-week honors during October. She was named the CSIC and District 11 Player of the Week on Oct. 26.

On the season Hurley averaged 2.1 kills per game and 1.1 blocks. She has an 88.9 percent serving ratio and a 90.7 receiving percentage.

Hurley is a four-year letterwinner and starter at Wayne State. She is the daughter of Bernie and Dorothy Hurley of Omaha and is a 1985 graduate of Omaha Westside High School.

The athlete of the month awards are selected by the Wayne State W-Club board from nominations by the Wayne State coaching staffs. This is the first award for Hurley.

HUD home equity program underway

by Congressman
Doug Bereuter

The home equity conversion demonstration project which the Department of Housing and Urban Development announced recently is based on a proposal that I introduced early in the 100th Congress. Representative George Wortley of New York and I introduced a bill in early 1987 that would allow older people to obtain additional disposable income while living in their homes. The provisions of that bill subsequently were added to the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987.

The program is intended to make it possible for the elderly to continue living in their own homes and neighborhoods in situations where they might now have to sell because of cash flow difficulties, according to Bereuter. The program establishes a limited HUD demonstration project for home equity conversions, or reverse mortgages, designed to benefit elderly homeowners. HUD is to provide guarantees for private sector home equity conversions.

This is a relatively new field, and a demonstration program will provide needed incentive and valuable information on whether the goals of the program are achievable.

Almost 70 percent of the nearly 17 million Americans over the age of 65 own their homes, and many of them could be classified as house-rich but cash-poor. What they need is a mechanism with adequate consumer safeguards that will give them the option of converting their home equity into cash while they continue to live in the home. Home equity conversion is not for everyone, but it represents a valuable option for some elderly homeowners.

Drug Bill Reauthorizes Indian Youth Substance Abuse Prevention Act

The Omnibus Drug Initiative Act of 1988, which was the last piece of major legislation to clear the 100th Congress before it adjourned in the early morning hours of Oct. 22, reauthorizes my Indian Youth Substance Abuse Prevention Act.

The Indian Youth Substance Abuse Prevention legislation established programs for the prevention, and treatment of substance abuse among Indian youths both on and off reservations, and in schools and communities. The program was first authorized in the 1986 anti-drug abuse bill, and the actions of this Congress assure that it will continue.

I am pleased to have been able to make this positive contribution to the critical national campaign against substance abuse. Illegal drug use and its terrible social consequences are a major concern to all of us.

This is a strong bill which should send a clear message to traffickers as well as users that the Federal government intends to commit substantial resources to the fight against drugs. The only way to pound home the message that illegal drug use will not be tolerated is to make the repercussions so severe that drug users and traffickers will think twice about their actions.

The bill contains stiff new penalties directed at drug dealers and users. It also contains provisions allowing courts to deny Federal benefits to drug-distribution and drug-possession offenders. Student loans and agricultural payments would be subject to the new law. First-time possession offenders may be denied all benefits for one year, or until they have completed a drug-treatment program. Second and third-time offenders face additional restrictions.

The bill directs more funds toward international narcotics programs. It allows the Department of Defense to provide arms and ammunition to antinarcotics police overseas and extends the requirement that certain countries receiving foreign aid must be certified that they are fighting narcotics production and trafficking.

their education — not the Department of Social Services.

"Since the boys will be in the Wayne school district, the Wayne school district should contract for their education."

Albin added that the Department of Social Services would reimburse the Wayne school district for the contract with ESU 1 for education of the youngsters.

"WE DON'T KNOW the answer," said Superintendent Haun. "Our board of education knows that we can't expect our students and teachers to be threatened or property destroyed."

"We will reimburse the district for all of the educational costs for these children," said Albin.

"Would you still pay if these boys were moved from Wayne?" questioned Garwood. "These schools still have the contracts and we still have incurred costs."

"You and the schools are going to have to work out some sort of contract and then come back to us," said Ken Lahrs, ESU 1 board chairman.

ALSO SPEAKING Tuesday night was Becky Keidel, president of the Wayne-Carroll board of education.

"We all want to do what is in the best interest of the children within the law," said Keidel.

"However," added Keidel, "placement of these boys in the Wayne district at this time is not in their best interests. We don't have a program and we don't know how we can formulate a program."

"This has been a constant source of disruption for our students and staff."

Keidel added that the Wayne district has not closed its eyes to special education.

"We are very proud of our record," said Keidel, "but I don't think that placement in Wayne is in the best interest of these children."

ESU 1 BOARD member John Post questioned whether or not ESU 1 could provide a program that would meet the needs of the children.

"I think we can with the right staff," answered Duane Tappe, ESU 1 special education director.

"What if we would contract with the Wayne school system for this specialized program for 230 days and the children are moved after 100 days?" Post asked Albin.

"You pay Wayne for 100 days, but the Wayne school system owes ESU 1 for 230 days. That's our problem," Post said.

"We are prepared to make guarantees," answered Albin.

POST MOVED that the ESU 1 administration proceed with putting together a program, with services and costs, so that the Wayne school district would be aware of the cost involved.

"We are responsible to the clientele of our district," said Superintendent Haun, "and I don't think that we are without some legal rights. We will be discussing this issue with our attorneys in Lincoln."

Following Haun's remarks, ESU 1 Special Education Director Duane Tappe questioned Albin as to why the Wayne school district, and not the Department of Social Services, should be responsible for contracting for the program.

Albin then said that the Department of Social Services would be interested in contracting directly with ESU 1 for the program.

Post withdrew his first motion and made a second motion stating that the ESU 1 administration put a program together and present a contract to the Department of Social Services for education of the youngsters with the support and council of ESU 1's attorney.

The motion passed by unanimous vote of the board.

ALBIN INDICATED that although the Department of Social Services would contract directly with ESU 1, she would be visiting with the department's attorneys as to whether or not the Wayne school system is still legally responsible for education of the children.

Following Tuesday night's meeting, Superintendent Haun told The Wayne Herald that the school's legal staff also will be looking into what responsibility, if any, the Wayne school district might be liable for. "We're not admitting any legal responsibility," stressed Haun.

"We would much prefer that ESU 1 furnish this educational setting and that the Wayne school district remain uninvolved."

IN OTHER BUSINESS Tuesday night, ESU 1 board members:

—Voted to purchase one Heap-Vac at a cost of approximately $1,457 for removal of asbestos fibers. The unit will be available for use by schools served by ESU 1, with cost of useage charged to schools;

—Voted unanimously to contract with Snyder Engineering to test suspected asbestos at ESU 1 headquarters in Wakefield;

—Heard a report by Garwood concerning the CAD (Computer Assisted Drafting) program which was approved by the ESU 1 board last summer to introduce technology into vocational education;

—Voted unanimously to sell a 1984 Ford LTD Wagon owned by ESU 1 to the Bryan program in South Sioux City at a cost of $2,000;

—Voted unanimously to purchase a Pontiac Station Wagon through the state procuring office at a cost of $12,131 for use by ESU 1 staff members.

Geography

least three hours of Geography or other subjects that include Government, Economics or Anthropology.

Students also have a requirement class of either Earth Science or Chemistry, Biology, Physical Science.

An combination of Geography and Earth Science would be ideal, according to Foote.

Dr. Don Zeiss, principal at Wayne-Carroll, said that Wayne-Carroll High School requires graduates to have at least 30 hours of social studies. High school juniors are required to take American History and seniors must take American Government.

FRESHMEN and sophomores, and those in the upper grades, are offered courses in areas such as World Studies (a combination of geography and world history); Introduction to Social Studies; and something new this year called Global Studies.

"We feel satisfied and comfortable with the way it is now," he said. Wayne students have averaged scores well above the national ACT scores in the areas of social studies and natural sciences.

There has been some speculation that the number of social study requirements could be increased to 40 hours. Zeiss said this proposal will likely eliminate some of the elective course choices now being offered to the high school students.

The greater the requirements, the less opportunity there will be for students to take electives, he said.
