Names of all those who registered at participating businesses throughout the Holiday Magic season (at least five garbage bags full) were tossed into a Gerhold Concrete truck-mixer by Terry Luhr (on truck). The names slipped out of the mixer, one by one, into the hands of Linda Brown (pictured at left), executive vice-president of the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce, who read the winning names. The $300 winner was Lillian Granquist of Wayne. Winning $200 was Reba Westerhaus of Winside. The two $100 winners were Sue Denklau, 216 Fairground in Wayne and Mary Sturm, also of

Nelson contesting Conway's post

By Chuck Hackenmiller

Managing Editor
Tore Nelson of Emerson, who lost in his election bid for the District 17
state senate post to incumbent Gerald Conway of Wayne in the Gerald Conway of Wayne in the November general elections, is contesting the election.

Nelson first notified Conway of his intentions to contest the election by delivering the message to Conway's door at his Wayne home. Conway said he received a mailed letter from Nelson the following week — the same type of letter he obtained previously.

same type of letter he obtained previously. The basis for contesting falls upon whether Conway should be allowed to serve as a legislator while still employed as a faculty member at Wayne State College. That same issue was brought up several weeks ago by former state senator J.R. Murphy of South Sloux City, at the time the reelection of Conway was being certified by the Nebraska

State Board of Canvassers

One area of the Nebraska Constitu-tion which was cited in Nelson's let-ter was that "no person holding office under the authority of the United States, or any lucrative office under the authority of this state, shall be eligible to, or have a seat in the legislature."
"No person elected or appointed to the Legislature shall receive any civil appointment to a state office while holding membership in the Legislature or while the Legislature is in session, and all such appoint-ments shall be void."

OTHER AREAS of the constitution cited by Nelson involved the division of powers of the state government into three departments - legislative, al. Anyone executive and judicial. within these departments cannot ex-ercise any power belonging to the two other departments, he said.

Nelson, in his correspondence contesting the election, contended that Conway (being an employee of Wayne State College while also serv-ing as state legislator) had a conflict of interest which is in violation of the constitution.

Conway said he currently is seek

Conway said he currently is seek-ing legal advice on the issue "purely for the sense of defense."
He said the suggestion of con-testing the election is "confusing in itself" when it comes to the legal aspects of the situation. Elections are contected primarily on issues such as contested primarily on issues such as stuffing of ballot boxes or inap-propriate behavior at the polling places.

Contesting of his qualifications, he said, should have been done prior to the election.

Pierce downs Wayne

It was like reading a story out of Aesop's Fables, Tuesday night when Wayne's girls were defeated by Pierce, 56-52.

If you recall the story of "The Tor-toise and the Hare," it was a race where the hare broke out to a big lead and relaxed and slept and did not wake up until the tortoise was cross-wake up until the forfoise was crossing the finish line.

The Wayne Blue Devils jumped out to a comforable 19-12 lead after one quarter of play against Pierce. In the second quarter the lead stretched to as much as 10 points at 32-22, but those who believe in magic in Pierce, precived a good sign when Susia received a good sign when Susie Prince hit a 22-foot shot at the buzzer for a 3-pointer to cut the lead to seven at half, 32-25.

Wayne came out in the second half completely flat. Their shots would not fall and on defense they allowed Pierce to set up in their half court of fense where they seemed to feel right at home, outscoring Wayne 14-6, to take a one point lead into the final The lead see-sawed back and forth for a while in the fourth quarter before Pierce got up by seven at 52-45 with 1:37-remaining in the contest. Wayne had their chances but two costly turnovers spelled doom as the two-time fournament-champs fell.

Wayne coach Marlene Uhing was not pleased with her team's performance. "We had better start having people who want to be a force take mance. "We had better start having people who want to be a force take charge," Uhing said. "Once again we were tentative on offense and not overly aggressive on defense."

Uhing noted that with the experience her team has, that there is no excuse for standing around. "Pierce beat us up and down the court." Uhing said. "Thats' supposed to be our strength."

Wayne was led by Dana Nelson's 27 points. Nelson had 17 in the first half. She finished with four 3-pointers and

Wayne surges past Wakefield

Strange things can happen when a D-I school plays a bonafied Class B School in any sport. It's usually unlikely that such games would even take place, but in "The Great Nor-theast. Nebraska Shoot Out," Wakefield was pitted against Wayne in first round action.

Wakefield had tried to get into the Wayne State Holiday Tournament for the past several seasons but the stop-ping point was the Wakefield School Board, which said that the holidays were for time with families.

This season however, some of the Inis season however, some of the Wakefield players took if upon themselves to change the policies. After a review by the Board, if was decided that the Trojans would be able to compete in this year's annual tournament

The unfortunate thing for Wakefield was that they entered late and all that was available to enter incowas the Class B area with Wayne, South Sloux and Pierce. Wakefield incidently, takes the place of last year's Elkhorn Mount Michael team.

At any rate, coming into the game which packed nearly 1000 people into Rice Auditorium, Wakefield coach Paul Eaton knew that his team had their hands full.

"We felt that no matter how we did in the Holiday Tournament that we would come out of there a better basketball team," Eaton said. "This is just a great opportunity to play some schools that we never get to play normally, and to revive the old Wayne-Wakefield rivalry from days

The game started out with The game started out with Wakefield's Mark Johnson nailing a 3-pointer which set Trojan fever at hysterical pitch which remained throughout the game. Wayne actually struggled in the first half as the over aggressive Trojans denied passes and quickly got Wayne out of its game plan.

Wayne takes control

Wayne came out in the second half and to put it mildly, they dominated!

The Blue Devils doubled the score on Wakefield 42-21 in the second half to

The legal interpretation from the law firm, Conway said, indicated that he could remain in office because as a faculty member, he was an employee and not an office holder.

"I asked for a legal opinion and I reacted by the way I was advised," he said in an earlier story.

Conway said he would continue serving as representative of the district if it came down to a choice between serving as a faculty member or legislator.

A Legislature Credential Committee seats the senators at the start of the legislative session. A majority vote by the entire legislative body, to not allow the seating of the state senator, could take place.

Because Conway is a candidate for the chairmanship of the legislature's Banking Committee, the contested election could be taken up immediately by the legislature.

"I've served four years and it has never been challenged by anyone — at least until after this election. This has turned into a legal question more than anything," Conway

The problem at FLSIC is growing in magnitude each day, and the longer the delay the more painful and expensive will be the solution. There pensive will be the solution. The simply are no easy answers. Congress, especially the members of the Banking Committees in the House and the Senate, are painfully aware

A merger of the FSLIC fund with the FDIC insurance for commercial banks has generally already been rejected by members of Congress. The FDIC fund is sound. Many-in Congress and the banking industry are relatifully accounted. rightfully concerned that a merger of the insolvent FSLIC fund with the solent FDIC fund will only jeopardize

A second approach to resolving the problem at FSLIC would be a direct Federal infusion of cash from the Treasury: The problem with this approach is that it would require at least $30 billion to close the ninety most troubled thriff institutions, and billions more for a total reform of FSLIC. At this time, the money to do so is not available in the Federal budget for 1989.

A third approach to resolving the crisis would follow guidelines modeled after the Farm Credit System bailout. One proposal under consideration would put a presidential board in charge to provide closer coordination among the various coordination among the various home loan bank boards. In addition, home loan bank boards. In addition, the savings and loan industry would be required to utilize the industry's capital first before receiving public assistance. And, the regulation of savings and loans would be tightened to make the regulators more effec-

In Nebraska

Rural bridges become priority

by Cheryl Stubbendieck.

by Cheryl Stubbendieck, vice president/information Nationwide, more than 400,000 rural bridges will need to be replaced during the next five years. Currently, in Nebraska, 7,515 such bridges are structurally deficient and another 840 are functionally obsolete. As govern-ment authorities and the engineers and architects they employ make plans for replacement, they should consider using modern day timber technology, rather than the standard technology, rather than the standard steel, and concrete approach. Most people, bridge-building professionals included, think of timber bridges as the old, grooved, clapboard style that cause the motorist to breathe a prayer of thanks when the bridge is safely past. However, today's timber bridge technology is creatly improved, and, for rural contents.

greatly improved, and for rural bridge specificiations, it's cheaper. The same methods used to con-struct rural railroad trestles are used in timber bridges. Timbers up to 40 feet long are pre-drilled, then treated to withstand weather conditions. Supto withstand weather conditions. Support beams are steel-reinforced. At the bridge site, steel rods are run through the holes to connect the timbers. No holes are drilled on-site, so water can't seep into the treated wood. Except for scale, it's not a lot different than building with toy

THE INITIAL COST of a timber bridge is less than for steel-and concrete. Local labor and locall-available machinery can be used to assemble the timbers, rather than bringing in specialized cranes and crews. The useful life of today's timber bridges is 35 years, compared with about 28 years for similar concrete-and-steel bridges. The cost of a timber bridge, amortized over its useful life, is 65 to 85 percent that of construct via today's conventional echnology, the savings are worth go ing after.

Wooden bridges are generally more esthetically pleasing in rural areas, too. For one thing, they don't rust. For another, they just seem to fit in better with the countryside. In fact in Pennsylvania, a state regula-fact in Pennsylvania, a state regula-tion requires that all bridges under 40 feet constructed or replaced in rural areas will be timber bridges. Currently timber technology does limit the length of wooden bridges to 40 feet - but 95 percent of the rural bridges needing replacing are 40 feet or less. If there's a disadvantage to or less. If there's a disadvantage to wooden bridges, it's more perception than anything: a wooden bridge does give a feeling of "bounce" as vehicles pass over it, but this is not an indication of structural weakness. Instead, it shows the characteristic flexibility of wood. In contrast, concrete has no flexibility at all.

Probably the biggest reason wood isn't used more in rural bridges is that engineers and architects aren't up on the latest in this technology. Professional schools tend to focus on the materials popular at the time, and right now it's steel and concrete.

and right now it's steel and concrete. To help solve this problem, USDA's transportation department is developing a timber bridge technology guide.

Replacing 400,000 bridges represents a liability to rural taxpayers of nearly $24 billion. Using wood technology could save taxpayers nearly $10 billion of that. And considering that using wood would allow more of the money that must be spent for bridge replacement to remain in the community through use of local laboms and resources, it of local labors and resources, it behooves local governments, county

Lowell Johnson and Donald H.
Kuhl, members of the Wakefield Volunteer Fire and Rescue Department, have been appointed to the Northern Nebraska Critical Incident
Stress Debriefing Team (CISD).
A CISD is a group interaction where a team of trained people allow

emergency services personnel

(firefighters, police or rescue squad personnel) to talk about their ex-perience to a stressful event. The two main goals of the CISD are to lessen the impact of distressing critical incidents and accelerate recovery from those events before harmful stress reactions have a chance to damage the performance, careers, health and families of emergency services personnel.

Johnson and Kuhl attended a two-Jonnson and Kuni arrended a liwo-day training program for CISD sup-port personnel held Dec. 1 and 2 at Lincoln. The northern team members will be attending continu-ing education programs during the coming year

NEW BOOKS New books at the Graves Public Library are: "Sebastian and the Santa Claus Caper", "And and The Tire", "Soups Uncle" by Robert Newton Peck, "The Singing Ringing Tree" by Louise Bierley and Selina Hastings, or the Berenstein Bears in "Ghost of the Forest" and "Ready, Cet Set Gil" Get Set Go!".

There are also some new Hardy Boys and Nancy Drew mysteries "Double Exposure" and "Serpents Tooth" are the adventures of the Hardy Boys and "Misty Canyon" and 'Death by Design'' are Nancy's latest mysteries. FOOD SERVICE

SANITATION TRAINING
Larry D. Murfin, from Uncle
Smurf's in Wakefield, was among 20
area food handlers to attend a Food

Service Sanitation Training Program sponsored by the Nebraska Depart-ment of Agriculture in Wayne recent-
