Retirement myths

Are you a person who believes that Social Security, pension and savings will be enough to let you live comfortably after retirement? If so, you are "buying into" one of the great myths about retirement.

By being passive about retirement income, people are avoiding the responsibility of being actively involved in determining their own financial future. They are saying they are willing to let chance determine what their retirement will be like.

The National Council of Aging says about 75 percent of retirees depend upon friends, relatives or Social Security as their only source of income. The average Social Security check today is between $500 and $700 per month.

Would you be willing to live on that monthly amount? And do you believe Social Security will continue to be able to pay similar benefits for future retirees?

THE NATIONAL Council of Aging also reports that just two of every 100 people are financially independent upon reaching retirement age. If two are financially independent and 75 rely on friends, relatives and Social Security, that leaves 23 percent of retirees who use a mix of Social Security and other sources of income such as investments and employment retirement.

Starting in the year 2,000, the age at which full Social Security benefits are payable will be increased in gradual steps until age 67. This change will affect people born in 1938 and later. Reduced benefits will still be payable at age 62, but the reduction will be larger than is now.

The following chart gives the Social Security normal retirement age for full benefits by year of birth:

YEAR OF BIRTH:	NORMAL RETIREMENT AGE
1937 or earlier	65
1938	65 and 2 months
1939	65 and 4 months
1940	65 and 6 months
1941	65 and 8 months
1942	65 and 10 months
1943-1954	66
1955	66 and 2 months
1956	66 and 4 months
1957	66 and 6 months
1958	66 and 8 months
1959	66 and 10 months
1960 and later	67

When a person reaches 65, total liquid assets average $4,000, notes the National Council of Aging. Is that sufficient? Probably not. But what is sufficient is a figure only the individual can determine.

Lose to Midland in play-offs

Wildcats end season

Wayne State ran into a stubborn Midland Lutheran team in the first round of the District 11 tournament Thursday night in Fremont. Midland turned back the Wildcats by an 86-76 count, after Wayne State maintained a 43-39 halftime advantage.

The Wildcats first half burst was aided by hitting four of their five three point field goal attempts. "We played well in the first half and the first couple of minutes in the second half," head coach

Steve Aggers said. "We just haven't been playing complete games lately."

The Wildcats came out in the second half and increased their four point lead to seven before Midland began its run. With five minutes left in the contest the host team maintained a slim 70-69 lead. Wayne State had possession and missed on their shot attempt. Midland came down the court and fired a 3-pointer to increase its lead to four. From there, Wayne

State was unable to tie let alone go ahead again.

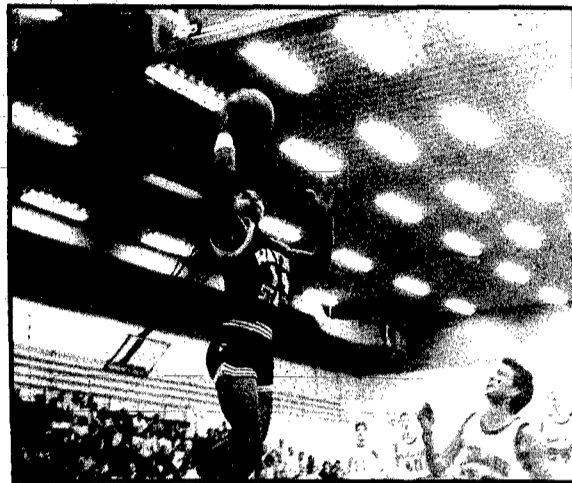

"The home court advantage really helped them," Aggers said. "They played very well at home. They hit their free throws down the stretch and they played with confidence."

In fact, Lonnie Graver connected on all eight of his free throw attempts in the second half which enabled Midland to stay ahead of the Wildcats. "This is the first time since I've been at Wayne

State that we've had a slump during the last couple weeks of the season," Aggers said. "This is the time of year you want to peak."

Marques Wilson and Steve Dunbar, the most consistent Wildcats throughout the season, finished with 24 and 20 points respectively. Wilson hauled down a team high 18 rebounds as well.

Mike McNamara followed with eight points while Doug Kuszak poured in seven.

Wayne States' Steve Dunbar and Mike McNamara earned honorable mention on the all-district team. Wilson joins: Derrick Helms, Bellevue; Scott Deboer, Mark Lamb, Hastings; Albert Maxey, Jr., Todd Johnson, Kearney State; Jim Mather, Doane; Mark Williams, Midland; Brent Cumber, Concordia and Jerrod Lawrence, Dana.

Honorable mention players include: Jim Egan, Kip Shanks, James Bedford of Bellevue; Todd Brosius, Chadron State; Jason Sealer, Ryan Young, Doane; Scott Schierman, Hastings; Tray Zimmerman, Kearney State; Cedric Townsend, Brett Richards, Peru State; Steve Dunbar, Mike McNamara, Wayne State.

Lady Wildcats lose to Hastings, 78-63

The Wayne State Lady Wildcats ended their 1988-89 basketball campaign Monday night in Hastings as they were defeated by a 78-63 count. Hastings jumped out to a 39-30 lead at intermission and never looked back in the second half as they advance to the semi-finals of the District 11 tournament.

Linda Schnitzler and Mary Beth Ehrhorn did their best to keep Wayne State in the ball game as they combined for 39 of the 63 team points. Schnitzler officially played in her last game as a Wildcat and scored 20 points.

Ehrhorn finished with 19 and Kae Burke poured in 12. Lori Rath netted eight points and rounding out the Wayne State attack was Jodene Finck with four points.

Wayne State was out-rebounded by a 51-46 count. Amy Wattier led Wayne State with 13 caroms. Linda Schnitzler hauled down 10 rebounds and Kae Burke recorded nine. Jodene Finck came away with eight caroms in her final game as a Wildcat.

Schnitzler also led the team in steals with three. Hastings was led by the two-some of Monica Kosenski and Jennifer Duensing. Kosenski poured in 17 and Duensing added 15. Both were the leaders on the boards as well, coming away with 16 and 15 rebounds respectively. Rochelle Wiese and Angie Life were also in double figures with 12 and 11 points.

Wayne State finishes the season with an 8-20 record.

Aggers Coach of the Year

Wayne State head men's basketball coach Steve Aggers has been named NAIA District 11 Coach of the Year as mentioned in the last issue of the Wayne Herald.

Aggers was selected for the honor by his colleagues among Nebraska's NAIA colleges. It is the first time he has been selected Coach of the Year in his four years at Wayne State.

Aggers, 40, led the Wildcats to a 17-11 regular season mark, the first time since 1978 Wayne State has had a winning record. The Wildcats also qualified for the district play-offs for the fifth straight year and have been in the district finals in two of the three previous play-offs under Aggers.

The District 11 award is the second for Aggers' in his 19 years as a collegiate head coach. He earned District 12 Coach of the Year honors during his six-year tenure at the College of Great Falls in Great Falls, Mont.

WAYNE CARROLL HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

ROB SWEETLAND

Sweetland finished his brief career at Wayne-Carroll by scoring 20 points against Pierce in the B-5 district tournament at Norfolk. Sweetland's long range shooting made him one of the most feared players in the area.

Keeping Wayne in the name

The Nebraska Legislature dealt with changing the names of the four Nebraska State Colleges. Had LB 760 been approved, Wayne State College would have become Northeast Nebraska State University and the other three state colleges would have been changed to Western Nebraska State University (Chadron), Central Nebraska State University (Kearney), and Southeast Nebraska State University (Peru).

That bill was killed in the Legislature's Education Committee last Tuesday. LB 160, however, which would recast Kearney State College into the Nebraska university system, still is in committee.

Some people argued that losing "Wayne" from the title of the college will result in an identity loss. Already there is a higher education facility in Norfolk that uses Northeast [Community College] in its title.

But what about using "Northeast Nebraska State University" — Wayne — as the official name change. This would have followed the pattern used by the University of Nebraska system (University of Nebraska-Lincoln or University of Nebraska-Omaha).

By doing this, the identity of the Wayne community would have remained and the regional emphasis for the name change still would be intact.

We won't have to worry about it now. It appears Wayne State College will remain as Wayne State College.

LB 760 was unanimously endorsed by the Board of Trustees of the Nebraska State Colleges. The name change would have enhanced the prestige of Nebraska's four state colleges, making it easier to recruit and retain students and faculty. Board members felt that regional designation for each of the four state colleges would more accurately reflect the instruction, research and service currently provided by each institution.

The Board of Trustees, by the way, have not endorsed LB 160 because there were too many questions that needed to be answered before the measure could be supported.

However, people should be reminded that no matter how perfect the title, the name means little if there is not adequate funding to support the school's role and mission. This is the real issue that should be addressed by the legislature.

The Board of Trustees has asked for a 30 percent increase in general funds for Wayne State College, along with a 49 percent increase for Kearney, 16 percent for Chadron and 28 percent for Peru. These budget requests are based on needs that will not put the colleges at the top of their group, but at least somewhere near the average of institutions of comparable size.

Adequate funding is necessary to allow Wayne State to continue serving traditional and non-traditional students at current or even greater levels.

Funding should not get lost in the arguments about what label should be placed on the state colleges.

Remembering past delivery service

Modern shipping companies pride themselves on prompt, reliable delivery service, whatever the weather. But few of them could match the phenomenal performance of this 1882 Christmas delivery to Fort Robinson:

Corporal Martin Weber, a driver, and a six-mule team were dispatched to Fort Sidney, the nearest railroad point, to get Christmas goods for Ft. Rob. Weber wrote: "We loaded our wagon at once and pulled out for Ft. Robinson, 125 miles to the north. The weather had turned cold and frost began to fly through the air, indicating a storm. We made good time the first afternoon, camping just before dark. (December 18).

"The next morning the storm broke in all its fury, a regular blizzard raging. We had to face the storm. We made Camp Clark where the Sidney-Black Hills trail crossed the Platte River. A toll bridge, general store, and post office was kept at this point. Here we obtained shelter for ourselves, mules and horse. The lady had a hot breakfast and coffee ready for us by daybreak. The storm had increased during the night.

"The bridge tender and his wife advised us to stay until the storm passed as they did not think we could travel in such a blizzard. As much as we disliked to leave the snug quarters and hot meals (we were to enjoy for the next three days only a ration of frozen bread and bacon), we bid them goodbye and headed into the storm. Without shelter or fire for three days and two nights, when we thought each day would be our last, we traveled over an open country for about fifty miles and had to break trail all the way, it being 30 or 40 degrees below zero.

"The mules were going home was the only reason we were able to make them face the blizzard. We had plenty of corn and oats for the mules and horse and at night we tied them so the wagon would act as a windbreak and covered them with blanket-lined covers. We would spread our tent on the snow, roll out our bed and pull part of the tent over us and let the storm howl.

"We got to the stage station on the Runningwater (Niobrara River) after dark the night of the 23rd. Here we had hay for the animals and a good fire and warm place to cook our supper. How good that hot coffee tasted! The stage for the Black Hills and Deadwood arrived about 3:00 a.m., the first in three days. The stock tender awakened us at 4:00 and had the coffee hot. It gave us new life for the last twenty miles of our journey. The stage had broke trail to the top of Breakneck Hill, the storm had passed. The sky cleared and the sun shown bright. The Fort was only five miles away.

"We got safely down the Breakneck, crossed the creek and broke the trail across the valley, arriving at Ft. Robinson about 2 p.m. on the 24th. I rode ahead to report. When I passed the Officers quarters the kiddies were all out, running up and down the walks for the first time in five days. When they saw me they began to shout, 'The Christmas wagon has come.' The officers and men hearing them came out and asked me if it was true. They could hardly believe it until the teamster drove his six weary mules up and we began to unload the goods.

"So old Santa arrived and there was a Merry Christmas, after all had given up hope of seeing the Christmas wagon or Santa."

Haase named nominee to Rotary district post

Gil Haase, Wayne Care Centre administrator, has recently been elected District Governor Nominee of the 42-club Rotary District 565, effective July 1, 1991 through June 30, 1992.

"It seems like a long time in advance," according to Haase, "but it is necessary due to the many seminars and conferences required to attend prior to officially taking office. Dr. Larry Trussell of Omaha assumes the District Governor's office July 1, 1989 and Gary Berke of Beatrice follows him on July 1, 1990."

"Since I will be retiring from the Care Centre in August of 1991, I will be able to devote full time to the job for the balance of my Rotary year," he said.

One of the many requirements will be to attend the International Assembly in Phoenix, Arizona in April, 1991, where he will meet with the other 163 worldwide, incoming governors and their spouses, as a final training seminar. Haase was in training with five other men from the district and was the unanimous selection of the nominating committee.

"With over 20 years of Rotary service and all with perfect, weekly attendance behind me, I'm looking forward to representing the Wayne club," he continued. "I consider it an exceptional honor bestowed upon me and dedicate my year's service to my club, my district and Rotary International."

Gil Haase

It was also pointed out that the Wayne club could be one of the newest clubs to ever have a District Governor selected. Wayne Rotary was chartered on June 24, 1987.

Survey conducted on feelings of sampling

A survey conducted by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Northeast Research Center determined how farmers in Holt and Antelope counties felt about deep soil sampling for residual nitrates.

Extension Soils Specialist, Charles A. Shapiro, and Extension Irrigation Specialist, Bill Kranz, conducted the survey in an effort to determine whether farmers understood the deep soil sampling process and why it is not a widely used process.

According to the survey, 83 percent of area farmers are familiar with deep soil sampling. They listed knowing how much fertilizer to apply to the soil as the major benefit of the practice. Farmers cited protecting groundwater, reducing leaching loss and increased net return as additional benefits.

"The results of this survey show farmers are aware of the need to protect the groundwater and that they know of the relationship between over-fertilization and potential environmental contamination," Shapiro said.

Of the farmers not using deep soil sampling, most said the reason was that no one was available to take the samples properly. However, 60 percent of the respondents said they would be willing to use the service if it were made available and would pay approximately 73 cents per acre to have the tests done.

"FARMERS ARE ahead of agribusiness on this issue. For the most part, there are very few businesses that offer deep sampling for residual nitrates," Shapiro said.

Most farmers said they rely heavily on past experience and soil testing to determine their fertilizer rates. A problem here, however, is that 73 percent don't make adjustments for nitrogen in their irrigation water. This could lead to excess use of nitrogen fertilizer.

"Using the nitrogen in irrigation water is cost effective since taking a water sample is inexpensive. The low number of producers taking water samples shows we have work to do in this area," Kranz said.

Farmers reported dryland corn yields averaging 76 bushels per acre with maximum yields reported at 111 bushels per acre. To achieve these yields, an average of 103 lbs. of nitrogen per acre was used. In irrigated corn fields, an average of 180 lbs. of nitrogen per acre was used to obtain an average of 137 bushels per acre. The maximum yields reported for irrigated corn was 175 bushels per acre.

SOYBEAN growers using irrigation yielded an average of 39 bushels per acre, while dryland farmers averaged 30 bushels per acre during the 1988 crop year.

Farmers interested in how to take deep soil samples for residual nitrogen in the soil or how to take a water sample from an irrigation well are encouraged to contact Shapiro or Kranz at the University of Nebraska Northeast Research and Extension Center at Concord, NE.

'Hacken' Away

Good nutrition lesson given

This week's column deals with a quiz on good nutrition. Some people may wonder why a guy like me — who sometimes eats only a candy bar and a diet drink for dinner — can be such an authority on good nutrition. Believe me, I'm far from being an expert.

A wonderful meal, to me, is a greasy cheeseburger with french fries loaded with salt and an order of breaded mushrooms to go. That kind of food can do wonders for the appetite, but can be rather harsh on the body.

So here is a quiz from the American Dietetic Association. See how many you can get right. The answers will appear below the 15 questions.

- Which has more fat? A. an ounce of turkey pastrami B. an ounce of turkey breast C. an ounce of flank steak D. That handle around your waist.
- Which has more cholesterol? A. 3 ounces beef (lean) B. sponge cake (1/12 of a 10" cake C. lemon meringue pie (1/8 of a 9" pan) D. just looking at an omelet.
- Which is the lowest in fat? A. two strips of bacon B. 1 slice Canadian bacon C. turkey sausage D. Twiggy.
- Which contains cholesterol? A. peanut butter B. fish C. vegetable oil D. almost everything you are hungry for.
- Which contains the most fat? A. chicken nuggets B. plain baked potato C. small plain hamburger D. Some people tell me it's my brain.
- Again, which is the lowest in fat? A. olives B. mushrooms C. avocados D. Certainly not the U.S. budget.
- Which has the least amount of saturated fat? A. tub margarine B. stick margarine C. nothing.
- Which has more calories? A. a teaspoon of sugar B. A teaspoon of margarine C. a teaspoon of jam D. Everything, no matter what diet tried.
- "Light" on a food label means A. less fat B. low calories C. less salt D. any of the above E. You go hungry.
- Which is the lowest in fat and calories? A. Nondairy creamer (liquid or powder) B. Evaporated skim milk.

Answers to above: 1. turkey pastrami, depending on the brand 2. Sponge cake has the highest amount of cholesterol. Lemon meringue is next 3. Canadian bacon 4. Only animal products (including fish) contain cholesterol. Plant products such as peanut butter or vegetable oils do not 5. Chicken nuggets. Potatoes are fat-free if plain baked 6. Mushrooms are fat free. Olives are very fattening 7. tub margarine 8. margarine, followed by sugar and then jam 9. It can mean anything 10. evaporated skim milk.

If you scored seven of 10 right, you will be fit for the rest of your life. Missing four to six answers means trouble. And anything beyond those numbers means that it's time to change.

That is, as soon as the freezer is cleaned out of frozen pizzas.

Wayne, America resident Lyle George will be on the National Public Radio Show Car Talk. The show will air locally this Saturday March 4 at 6 p.m. on KWIT FM90 in Sioux City.

Car Talk is a humor oriented call in talk show about cars and car problems. The hosts are supposedly two mechanics in Boston who give out advice and abuse over the air.

"They taped the show this last Sunday during a live broadcast in Boston." George said, "I suppose there is a chance that they might edit my segment out. They were at the end of the show when they did my interview. I think they are going to use my stuff as a kicker."
