Several area students have qualified to participate at the state level of the National Geography Bee. They include Mark Meyer, a student at District 57, and Aaron Schnier, a student at the Wayne-Carroll Middle School.

The National Geography Bee is sponsored by the National Geographic Society. The state contest will take place Friday, April 7 at the University of Nebraska-Omaha.

One winner from each state and territory will advance to the national competition, which will take place May 18-19 at the National Geographic Society headquarters in Washington, D.C.

The annual Easter Egg Hunt in Carroll will take place Saturday, March 25 at the Carroll Auditorium beginning at 2 p.m. for children preschool to fourth grade.

Those with children that would like to participate are asked to bring one dozen colored eggs and one dozen bars or cookies. The event is sponsored by the Carroll Community Club.

An outdoor Easter Egg Hunt is planned for the Win-side area children on Saturday, March 25, at 1:30 p.m. at the ball park. Children ages three to 10 may participate.

In case of bad weather, a party will take place at the Winside auditorium. Anyone who would like to donate colored hard-boiled eggs should contact one of the Winside Women's Club members, Lorraine Prince, Mary Lou George or Barb Leapley.

THIRTY OR MORE businesses are represented in the 1989 Wayne Expo Event at the Wayne City Auditorium. Preparations were underway Friday afternoon. Hours Friday were from 5-9 p.m.; Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; and Sunday, 1-5 p.m., with a free omelet feed, co-sponsored by Waldbaum's, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday.

Auditions for melodrama set

The Wayne Community Theatre has announced auditions for its spring production — the old fashioned melodrama by Brian J. Burton called "The Drunkard" or "Down With Demon Drink!"

Director Gil Haase stated that although this is the British version, it is not produced with British dialects and it is a musical version which will make it much more appealing to a wider group of people.

"This will give our audiences the opportunity," according to Haase, "to reminisce and relive the theatre of years past as they will be able to hiss and boo the villain and cheer and applaud the hero as they weave their way through the plot of the production."

The cast includes eight speaking parts for women and seven for men, and the ages can range from 15 for Julia up to the age of 60.

"All of the roles are excellent character studies, including both a male and female villain," stated Haase, "and don't let the music aspect scare you off as this in no way compares to the summer musicals produced by the theatre. This music adds to, but does not dominate."

Auditions will take place Monday and Tuesday, March 20 and 21 from 7-9 p.m. at the Wayne Care Centre. Rehearsals will start on March 27 and production dates in Ley Theatre are April 28 and 29 at 8 p.m. and April 30 at 2 p.m.

The production of "The Drunkard" is a moralistic comedy-drama in three acts with five scenes each and the setting will be in stark black and white.

Early leave plan approved

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing editor

Wayne-Carroll's Board of Education approved an incentive program allowing certified staff members to accelerate their retirement plans.

The major purpose of the program is to encourage eligible certificated employees, who are considering retirement, to accelerate their early leaving decisions.

Objectives include offering financial incentives which will assist long-term employees considering early retirement or early-leaving decisions; reducing costs to the school district by replacing maximum salary employees with lesser salary employees; reducing or eliminating the possibility of teacher layoffs; and providing a better balance of employee experience.

TUESDAY NIGHT the board of education approved the plan with some editorial changes, adopting the plan on a one year trial basis.

Applications for the early leaving must be submitted by April 1, 1989 in order to be approved for the 1989-90 school year, according to Superintendent Francis Haun.

Haun said most larger school districts have some sort of early leaving incentive plan. Parts of these other school district plans were adapted to what would be most workable for the Wayne Public Schools, Haun said.

To be eligible, the applicant applying for early leaving must have at least 18 full-time years of service in the school district and cannot return to employment in the school district at a later date.

Certificated employees receiving long-term disability benefits are not eligible to participate in this program; and certificated employees are not eligible to participate in the program if his or her employment is terminated by the school district, according to terms of the program.

IF AN EMPLOYEE elected to leave prior to age 65, they would receive benefits based on the following schedule: 58-59 at age of leaving, $700 per year of credited service; age 60, $650; age 61, $600; age 62, $550; age 63, $450; age 64, $350.

The estimated least amount, which the school district could save through the early retirement incentive plan, would be $41,843 over a five year period.

For a certificated employee at the top of the pay schedule who decides on early retirement, the school district savings could be up to $66,285 over a five year time frame.

These savings are estimated by arriving at a difference of what the retiree salary and replacement salary would be, and then subtracting what the school district would contribute to the early retirement plan.

Nominated for Grammy

Brandstetter makes his mark in opera world

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing editor

John Brandstetter, opera star, doesn't exaggerate when he expresses his feelings about how his upbringing in Wayne has helped him in his professional singing career.

Brandstetter, the son of Orval and Dorothy Brandstetter of Wayne, continues to rise among the ranks of top opera stars in the United States and internationally. The baritone singer was nominated with five others for a 1989 Grammy Award in the category of "Best Opera Recording of the Year."

He was in Wayne last Tuesday visiting, on his way back home to New York City. Prior to his return to Wayne, Brandstetter was performing the opera "Madame Butterfly" in Fort Worth, Texas and then conducting some master classes at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, where he received his bachelor and master degrees.

HE GRADUATED from Wayne High School in 1967, and after attending college, teaching part-time at the University of Minneapolis while also becoming involved with the Minneapolis Opera Company, and later doing some apprenticeships — his career took off. His debut was performed in Vienna with conductor and composer Leonard Bernstein. He has been featured in national magazines and appeared on national television with feature newsmen Charles Karault.

"I've sung with every major opera company, regionally and internationally, except the Metropolitan opera," said Brandstetter.

John Brandstetter

"I would like to sing there some day. I'd also like to do more singing in Europe," he added. "It will be all in a matter of time and what is right for me as a performer."

The accolades, he said, fade as quickly as they arrive. "Success can be fairly short-lived if you don't know who you are and where you are going."

Opera performers, he said, get to see a lot of places. "As a kid in high school, I never dreamed that I would ever get to see the places that I've already been," Brandstetter said.

This April he plans on going to Europe. Next fall, he anticipates performing in Russia. Last November he performed in Japan.

HOWEVER, THE MOST rewarding aspect of the career, he said, is "the people you meet or see and become friends with. This has meant a lot to me."

"And singing is very important to me," he said. Maintaining his quality voice requires constant care and attention. "If people [that are not singing performers] get a cold or sniffle, it may not mean very much to them. But if it happens to me, I can't earn any money because it is my career," he said.

He continues his regimen of exercising and eating the right things so that he can meet his demanding performance schedule. On the national level, he is one of the top baritone singers in the United States. "Internationally, I haven't had the exposure," Brandstetter said.

While attending high school, Brandstetter said he never even thought about performing in operas. "I had very little exposure to it back then," he said. "Matter of fact, I sang in a rock band and did some night club work. When I attended the University, I was exposed to the opera and decided to pursue it."

But he emphasized that the Wayne community has an environment that is rich in music tradition. "I was exposed to music here in Wayne a lot, being in the church choir and participating in musicals. The college [Wayne State] also provides exposure to music events," Brandstetter said.

HIS PARENTS, he said, also had much to do with expanding his musical talents.

"My father sings, and my parents never discouraged me from doing what I wanted to do," Brandstetter mentioned.

The lifestyle in New York City is fast and furious, which typifies some of the careers of opera singers. Brandstetter's early life in Wayne has helped him develop slowly at his own pace and in his own way.

Being an international opera singer requires knowledge of various languages. Brandstetter said he can speak in Italian, French and German. He is learning the Russian language for an upcoming tour. A coach in New York City is helping Brandstetter with the foreign languages and style used in the international operas.

Some people think that an opera star, once completing a performance, can relax until called upon for another production. That is not true, Brandstetter said. "During break times, we work almost every single day, looking at new music for new jobs. Off, for us, is usually not off," he said.

BRANDSTETTER has proven that the well tapped for opera talent is not just in New York City or the eastern United States. There are plenty of opera singers in the Great Plains states as well.

"Never be discouraged and believe in yourself. Most Midwesterners have no confidence in themselves. I saw that in myself and with other people from the Midwest. We are more than good enough," Brandstetter said.

"There is an old saying about 'luck being in the right place'. You have to work for your luck, keep working and working till luck eventually takes over," he mentioned.

While he is in demand now and earning a nice living, Brandstetter said he is never happy at where he's at. "I want more. There are other things that I want to do. It's like golf, always trying to improve your score."

Brandstetter married Kathleen Fogarty of Boston, Massachusetts. She, too, is an opera singer and is currently performing in Anchorage, Alaska. Only once in their four years of marriage have the couple performed an opera together.

"It's nice to be married to someone who understands the business," mentioned Brandstetter.

Deficiency payment amounts reviewed

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation this month will make about $125 million in deficiency and 0/92 provision payments in commodity certificates to eligible producers of 1988 crop corn and sorghum.

Sorghum producers will receive about $25 million in deficiency payments. Sorghum producers who requested advance deficiency payments during the 1988 feed grain program sign-up have already received payments of about $218 million, said Milton Hertz, CCC executive vice president.

Most corn producers requested advance deficiency payments and were paid about $2.6 billion at sign-up. "Corn producers who did not request advance payments will receive approximately $1 million in deficiency payments in March," Hertz said.

Deficiency payments are required under the 1988 corn and sorghum programs because the national weighted average market price received by producers during the first five months of the marketing year (September through January) were below the established "target" price levels.

DEFICIENCY payment rates are the difference between the target price for the commodity and the higher of the five-month average market price or the basic price support loan rate for the commodity.

The following table shows payments corn and sorghum producers will receive:

Corn ($/bu): target price, 2.93; basic loan level, 2.21; five-month market price, 2.57; five-month final deficiency payment rate (A minus C), 0.36; advance payment rate, 0.44. Sorghum ($/bu): target price, 2.78; basic loan level, 2.19; five-month market price, 2.30; five-month final deficiency payment rate (A minus C), 0.48; advance payment rate, 0.43Z.

Producers who did not request advance deficiency payments will receive $0.36 per bushel in corn payments and $0.48 per bushel in sorghum payments. Sorghum producers who received advance deficiency payments will receive $0.048 per bushel while corn producers who received advance deficiency payments will be required to refund $0.08 per bushel.

IN ACCORDANCE with the Disaster Assistance Act of 1988, any refunds of advance deficiency payments that were made to corn producers during the 1988 program sign-up are not due until after July 31.

Under the 0/92 provision feed grain program participants had the option of underplanting program crop acreage while still earning program payments. Eligible producers in the 0/92 program are assured of receiving payments which are equal to at least the minimum deficiency payment rates of $1.10 per bushel for corn and $1.08 per bushel for sorghum. At this time, eligible producers will receive 0/92 payments of $0.72 per bushel for corn and $0.68 per bushel for sorghum, less any advance payments. The total amount of these payments is about $100 million, $85 million to corn producers and $15 million to sorghum producers.

The balance of the 0/92 payments will be made later.

An upbeat outlook

*And now the 1989 forecasts As in 1988, they're generally upbeat, at least that's true for the forecasts coming from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Annual Outlook Conference in Washington during late November and early December.

Here's a summary of the outlook for U.S. agriculture, according to reports released during the conference.

Production-U.S. production of wheat, corn and soybeans is expected to rebound in 1989 in response to higher prices from drought reduced harvests. For some crops, the government also has eased its land idling requirements for subsidy programs. In general, global grain and soybean stocks were down about one third in 1988, with reserves good for about two months of use for grains and 1 1/2 months for soybeans.

Exports-U.S. export values should rise by about $1 billion to $36.5 billion in fiscal year 1989, while volumes are forecast to decline by 8 percent to 136 million metric tonnes. The U.S. share of world grain trade is expected to slip to 46 percent from 50 percent in 1988.

Prices-World prices for wheat, corn and soybeans are expected to be at their highest point since 1985. Food prices are forecast to climb 3 percent to 5 percent, which compares with a 4 percent rise this year that included the effects of the drought.

Income-Net farm income, which includes rising values of inventories of commodities, will increase by about 20 percent to between 44 billion and $48 billion in 1989. Cash farm income is expected to fall about 1 percent to $48 billion to $52 billion. Higher production costs and lower direct government payments will draw down cash gains from rising farm prices.

Weather-Forecasters are assuming there will be a rebound from the drought in 1988. If not, all bets are off. Statistics do favor a return to more normal production, but climatologists are concerned about possible global warming trends.

Now for some details:

The global agricultural outlook for 1989 will be highlighted by smaller crops and higher prices for near-record meat supplies, a USDA official said at the opening of the annual Agricultural Outlook Conference. James Donald, chairman of the World Agricultural Outlook Board, said demand for both crop and animal products will be firm next year and crop prices will be strong. Expanded crop production likely by the second half of the year

Supplies of animal products will continue to be large, dampening livestock price increases, he said.

Honoring America's Providers

National Agriculture Day - Honoring America's Providers

National Agriculture Day is an annual observance which focuses national attention on the important contribution the food and fiber industry makes to the American economy. The official observance for 1989 Ag Day is March 20th.

All across the country people celebrate agriculture on this day, and during the week of March 19-25, to help increase the awareness of agriculture's accomplishments and the challenges it faces in continuing to meet the world's food and fiber needs.

How many people know American agriculture a production miracle? Well, it is! Consider these facts.

*Fewer than 2.5% of the nation's population, using only 60% of production capacity, can provide 250 million Americans food of the highest quality and purity at less cost as a percentage of income than any other country in the world.

*The food and fiber industry alone generates approximately 20% of the nation's Gross National Product and 20% of the national employment.

Farmers are consumers as well as producers

Like everyone else, the U.S. farmer is a consumer and a taxpayer, as well as a producer.

Farmers pay about $3.7 billion in farm real estate taxes annually, and $474 million in personal property taxes.

In 1986, farm operators spent about $122 billion for goods and services to produce crops and livestock. They had available $37.5 billion in personal income from production activities and government payment and $44.7 billion from nonfarm sources to spend for personal taxes, debt reduction, investments, and some of the same things that city people buy.

Farmers' 1986 purchases included the following:

- $6.4 billion for farm tractors and other motor vehicles, machinery, and equipment;
- $9.5 billion for fuel, lubricants, and maintenance for machinery and motor vehicles used in the farm business;
- $19 billion for feed and seed;
- $5.8 billion for fertilizer and lime.

Small-scale agriculture

Small-scale agriculture implies people utilizing alternative systems to attain gainful employment. Small-scale agriculture, sometimes referred to as "small farms," constitutes a significant number of the Nation's 2.2 million farms, as noted in the 1988 Fact Book of Agriculture introduction.

When farms grossing less than $40,000 annually are defined as "small," then more than 7 out of 10 U.S. farms are classified as small.

Awareness is growing that small-scale farmers make a significant contribution to economic development of both agribusiness and consumer industries of rural communities throughout the United States. Some say such people are the "mortar" providing rural communities with social and economic strengths.

USDA's Office for Small-Scale Agriculture was created as part of the Cooperative State Research Service to increase and improve the flow of information about small-scale farming to agricultural producers and consumers. It is a focal point for distribution of USDA resources on this subject.

The office functions as a liaison to other USDA agencies such as the Extension Service and the Agricultural Research Service in identifying and directing research and educational programs to improve usefulness of information received by all small-scale farmers and others wishing to join their ranks.

Ongoing and planned activities of the office include:

- A bimonthly newsletter on small-scale agriculture;
- Factsheets on small-scale agriculture;
- A national directory of small-scale agriculture contacts;

- An assessment of all ongoing USDA research and educational efforts that target on small-scale agriculture;
- Continual monitoring and/or implementing of conferences on small-scale agriculture.
