PeopleService offers city use of its services

By Chuck Hackenmiller Managing editor

A new venture in contract ser-vice called PeopleService, repre-sented by Peoples Natural Gas, was proposed Tuesday evening to the Wayne City Council. Those making the presentation were representatives of PeopleService including Jim Markham, Peoples local manager in Wayne; Alan Meyer, director of Business Development for Col-orado, Kansas and Nebraska; and orado, Kansas and Nebraska; and Tom Jones, product director for water operations for Peoples five-state operating territory.

PeopleService representatives, in delivering their presentation to Wayne city officials said they could provide the city with a "menu of services" which would include me-ter reading, automated_billing, cash collection/management, water utility operations, wastewater utility operations and water and wastewater utility management.

CURRENTLY, Peoples employes take natural gas meter read-ings with a hand-held electronic unit. "We would continue using that same equipment, but we could also read water and electric meters as well," said Meyer. These types of meters will provide high/low check when a read-ing is entered and it can also note facility damage, dead meters, sus-pected thefts and other information. Meyer said the Peoples elec-tronic equipment can be used to eliminate duplication, since both the city of Wayne and Peoples have meter readers going to the same customer's premises.

Meyer said the meter reading system used by Peoples would im-prove accuracy and would have estimating capabilities.

HE SAID the service of auto-mated billing, provided if the city contracts with PeopleService, fea-tures one day billing delay so that "meters read today are billed to-morrow." "This helps the city with their

"This helps the city with their cash flow. And it also allows the consumer an opportunity to look at their meter and verify the amount," Meyer mentioned.

Also featured in the automated Also featured in the automated billing services are ease of payment through budget billing or auto-mated bank payments; a space in the billing where the city can communicate with the customers through a written message on the bill; and that the information is easily critevable easily retrievable.

"Consumers would be receiving fewer bills. And we can save postage between the two of us," Meyer said.

ACCORDING to the cash ACCORDING to the cash collection/management plan, people could pay their bills from the meter readings of the gas company and city by paying at the Wayne Peoples office, by paying by mail or by utilizing the auto-matic bank paying system. The cash is electronically trans-ferred to the city's bank account

"The cash is electronically trans-ferred to the city's bank account within 48 hours of receipt," Meyer said. The system automatically produces past due lists and discon-nects notices. "The system can also track customers if someone de-cides to leave with an unpaid bill," be remarked. he remarked.

PeopleService proposed also providing services in the areas of water utility operations, wastewa-ter treatment operations and utility management (budgeting, -plan-ning, loss control, regulatory com-pliance and assistance to consul-tant) tants). Services contracted by the city for water utility operations would include water treatment plant operations and maintenance, distribution system operations and maintenance, meter installation and repair or meter testing; and storage, according to information provided by Peoples.

THE SERVICES planned for wastewater treatment operations would include treatment plant op-erations and maintenance (process control, equipment operations and maintenance, sampling and analy-sis, effluent quality and sludge disposal), pumping stations (maintenance procedures, system reliability and odor control), and collection systems (// evaluations, cleaning and repair, inspection and emergency call response). Jones said the PeopleService is active in Ackley, Iowa and Lakefield, Minnesota. "We're in the process of negotiating with four other communities for the water and waste. In Missouri, Illinois and Kansas we have at least 10 larger scale operations," Jones said. PeopleService correspondatives PeopleService representatives, with city council authority and the cooperation of the city administra-tion, mentioned that they can prepare a formal proposal and bid for consideration at a future council meeting, including a scope of work to be provided and associated costs.

Cable company plans alert system

By Chuck Hackenmiller Managing editor

Jones Intercable representatives have a weather alert system of their own which the company has already ordered for installation on Wayne's cable system.

That is what Marshall Kurschner. Jones Intercable Northeast Ne-braska Cable Systems manager, told members of the Wayne City Council during a discussion about the HollyAnne Indoor Warning System — a system proposed to the city council on March 14.

The HollyAnne system is an in-door emergency warning unit that is a receiver for use within cable independent of the television set and can come on if the television is on or off. At the earlier meeting, it was discussed that other emer-gency messages could be con-veyed through the receivers, such as anhydrous ammonia spills, peak energy alerts or school closings caused because of bad weather.

The receivers would be sold to the cable customers at a rate of $2.95 a month and there would be no cost to the municipality to use the system

KURSCHNER, however, said on Tuesday that Jones Intercable had ordered equipment for a weather alert system of their own that has been proven effective in this area weather alerts]," said Kurschner. "The system will be connected to Wayne's Channel 2, which is the weather channel," he said.

The alert can come on the air at least six seconds after the Na tional Weather Service Office is notified of the weather emer-gency. A beeping noise follows and the television screen flashes red and then scrolls the warning.

However, the television has to However, the television has to be turned on to receive the warn-ing, according to Kurschner. And the Jones Intercable system, like the HollyAnne system, will not be operating if there is a power outage

City accepts painting bid on standpipe

By Chuck Hackenmiller Managing editor

A resolution, calling for the ac-ceptance of a bid from an Omaha firm for the painting of the city's standpipe on the west edge of Wayne, was approved Tuesday evening by the Wayne City Coun-cit.

The city council received three bids on the painting of the stand-pipes. They were from W.S. Bunch Company of Omaha, Baburek Metal Company of Plattsmouth and Winters & Merchants, Inc. of South Sloux City.

of the H Green Company, engineer's of the project, had estimated the cost for painting the standpipe to be $52,000. The low bid was submit-

THIS WOULD cover the cost for painting the interior and exterior of the 750,000 gallon standpipe and to sterilize the standpipe. Should the interior of the standpipe not need painting, then W.S. Bunch would deduct $16,000 from their bid.

The lettering "WAYNE" will ap-pear on the standpipe. An alter-nate in the bid specifications called for the printing of "WAYNE AMER-ICA" on the standpipe, which would have cost the city council an additional $750. The two other companies both submitted total bids that were over the engineer's estimates ---- $64,210 and $62,000. Wayne city council members unanimously accepted the bid of W.S. Bunch, with only the lettering "WAYNE" written on the standpipe. In other action, the city council approved, administratively, a reso-lution making a recommendation for approval of a Class C Liquor Li-

SPORTS Thursday, March 30, 1989 Wayne Herald honors second team all area

In the last edition of The Wayne Herald, the all area teams were announced. Although the first team players were all pictured, the second team members were not. Since basketball is a team sport, we feel it necessary to honor those who helped support the first teamers and who themselves, with a break or two, would also be on that first team.

First, the girls second teamers. From Wayne we honor Teresa Ellis, Kristy Hansen—and Holly Paige. Wayne had one of the most balanced teams in the area with each girl fulfilling her role to the best of her ability to aid Wayne to a successful season.

Teresa Ellis did a fine job of off-setting Dana Nelson at the guard spot. Ellis has a nice shot and may be Wayne's most prolific scorer next season. Ellis will team with Heidi Reeg, (a first teamer), to provide the Blue Devils with leadership next season.

Kristy Hansen and Holly Paige end their careers as Blue Devil bas-ketball players and both of these individuals deserve a lot of credit Individuals deserve a lot of credit for what they've accomplished. Hansen may have been one of the most inspirational players around. It always seemed like when Wayne needed to get a run going that Hansen was always in the middle of it, whether she came up with a big rebound or many times, diving on the floor to get a loose ball. get a loose ball.

Paige also had a nice touch on her shooting ability. But Paiges' success and reputation as a player was built on her total court hustle vas built of the total court nustle on defense and offense. Although Paige doesn't measure up stature wise to many of her opponents, her jumping ability and rebounding capabilities baffled the opposition, Paige also saw the court well and Paige also saw the court well and many times came up with some key assists, a total team player. Candace Jones and Missy Mar-tinson join the second team all area from Allen. The end of the Jones-Martinson era is upon us as both are seniors. However, what these two have accomplished have not gone unnoticed. The rebounding power and scoring po-tential of these two often sent op-posing defenses into time-outs to come up with ways to stop each of them. Both had the ability to get into stretches where they scored six to eight points in a row. The sixth member of the all area second team is Amy Adkins. Clark ends his career as a trojan and except for a brief stint toward the end of the season with a bro-ken bone in his ankle Clark went out in style. His presence on the court was always a factor for coach Paul Eaton. Clark's ability to hit the soft jumper as well as being a force on the boards was a key to Wake-fields' success. However, Clark's ability to hit nearly 70 percent of his free throws was especially special. Randy Prince and Steve Heine-mann from Winside also join the

Cigarette revenue proposals debated

As the Legislature adjourned for Easter weekend, it marked the 52nd day of this 90 day session. All committee hearings on proposed legislation are now completed and the balance of the session will be spent debating the various propos-als that the committees have sent to the floor. Starting with what the Senators or the standing commit-tees have designated as their pri-orities and then other issues if time orities and then other issues if time remains before adjournment. Bills that have not either been killed by the committee or sent to the floor will carry over into next years business ness. There is a provision to bring a bill to the floor without committee consent if a majority of the sena-tors in the body so choose. It is not an often used technique but did happen this past week when the Legislature pulled a bill from the Appropriations Committee without committee approval. The bill, LB 683, is a proposal that dedicates a portion of the current cigarette tax revenue for use by Nebraska cities and villages. The proposal was originally co-

The proposal was originally co-sponsored by 34 senators, includ-ing myself, and then sent to the Appropriations Committee for a

Since the hearing the Commit-tee has not acted on the bill and stated that they were going to hold it along with other measures until later in the session.

AS WRITTEN, the bill designates $4.5 million in cigarette tax revenue each year for the next 20 years to cities and villages to upgrade streets, utilities and a host of other capital improvements. The proposal creates the "Municipal Infrastructure Development Fund Act" (known as M.I.R.F.). Currently, there is a 27 cents per pack state tax on cigarettes. This tax gener-ates over $41 million annually. Six-teen cents of the 27 cents is credited to the state's general fund re-sulting in over $24 million.

The remaining 11 cents which generates almost $17 million is dis-tributed in priority order. The pri-ority results in this money going first to the Nebraska Outdoor Recreation Development Fund, then to Carcer Research and then then to Cancer Research, and then to a list of various secondary educational projects. The proposal does not increase the cigarette tax. Instead the bill would remove $4.5 million annually from the general fund portion and dedicate it expressly to the M.I.R.F. The monies dedicated to the M.I.R.F. would be directed to the municipalities on a per capita basis. The cities and villages must basis. The cities and vinages must use this money exclusively for in-frastructure needs. Such needs would include on-going needs or to service bonded indebtedness. Examples would include debt service for landfill compliance, municipal building renovation, sewer line reconstruction and water treatment activities

The bill is an effort to funnel funds directly to communities. In the past many communities have complained that the State was not distributing revenue to them in amounts that would keep pace with their obligations. During the early to mid 1980's when federal revenue sharing was being reduced and state funds were very limited, and state funds were very limited, towns and villages were forced to limit their activities and ignore many very serious needs. Now with a projected state sur-plus and some needs reaching crisis proportion communities are taking issue with the extent revenue is di-verted and used for state concerns. Research has made it very clear that for a community to have a chance at growth, people, must continue to invest in their basic in-frastructures. LB 683 may provide assistance to many of our Nebraska communities without increasing local taxes.

Resolve on April Fool's: It's never too late

Three months of 1989 are almost gone. If you're like most people, you've already given up on those new Year's resolutions made

Jan. 1 You're still not exercising regularly and, instead of shedding five pounds, you've gained at least that much. The budget that looked so perfect in January now no longer fits so you trashed it several weeks ago. Or you still haven't kicked that bad habit you vowed to break.

All is not lost, said Kathy Prochaska-Cue, University of Ne-braska-Lincoln extension family economics and management spe-clalist. Instead of blaming yourself for failing, start now with some new April Fool's resolutions. Make good ones by following these guidelines.

Be realistic. Begin with a goal not a wish. A good goal has a starting point, a plan of action and a deadline or ending point. Be sure your plan of action lists specific steps for reaching your goal. Instead of focusing on the negative, such as not smoking or not eating, be positive. Put down on paper what you will do instead of what you will not do. Say "I will eat red meat twice per week less" in-stead-of-saying-"I-won't eat red meat." Think small steps instead of great expectations. For example, start your exercise program by walking just 15 minutes per day. Remember change takes time. Proceeding by small steps instead of giant leaps will make change easion easier.

Spend some time daydreaming. Experts call it visualization. Think about what it will be like to achieve about what it will be like to achieve your goal. For example, if your goal is to lose weight, think about what it will be like to be eating, exercising, dressing, thinking and living as a thinner person. Focus on the long-term. By looking ahead three to five years, you can see how your present ressolution fits into accomplishing something long-term. Doing this may give you more motivation to-stick to your resolution.

Above all, keep resolutions flexible. Realize that resolutions may need to be changed. Review progress frequently and make ad-justments so resolutions become a tool for success not an instrument of failure, she said.

Vitamin C May Be Linked with Insomnia

When is the best time of day to take vitamin C? Is it better to take the vitamin all at one time or to spread out vitamin-taking over the day?

Persons who elect to take large doses of this vitamin should, in our opinion, take divided doses - spread out over the day. Taking this and other nutritional supplements with meals usually is ideal. Evening doses should be avoided if one has difficulty falling asleep. According to some individuals, taking large doses of vitamin C may be linked with insomnia. More common causes of sleeping difficulties including drinking caffeinated or alcoholic beverages obtaining too many naps during the daytime, and not getting sufficient physical exercis

Although fewer than 100 mg of vitamin C are required to prevent deficiencies, many persons take much larger doses each day. Volumes have been written or the potential benefits that may occur from taking "megadoses" of this and other vitamins. Yet, many authorities consider taking more than a few milligrams of vitamin C daily wasteful. Others believe taking large doses of vitamin C may even be dangerous. The potential benefits and optimum doses of vitamin C remain controversial issues.

ability to move around and function normally until they reach their 80s, according to a major study sponsored by the National Institute on Aging. That includes walking half a mile, climbing stairs and doing heavy work in the home. Data on 10,000 peo-ple over 65 living in their own homes has been published in the first of several volumes dealing with the study.

PART TIME

The Farmer's Wife By Pat Meierhenry

The Big Farmer and half our children have informed me that they do like hard-boiled eggs! So I picked up a dozen of Walbaum's colored ones yesterday, but I have a feeling it's the coloring they en-joy. The fact that Sue came with a package of egg dye was my first :lue.

She also came with sweet rolls that were very good, and Monte-made two pies with crusts "the way his mother makes them." I made a chocolate cake, since Sue gave up chocolate for Lent.

They hauled all this to Grandma Stacher's for Easter dinner. I was on call, so I stayed home. It was kind of a lonesome feeling.

I don't mind working holidays, but when you work at the hospital, everyone else there is in the same boat. When you are home alone, it's too cuiet it's too quiet.

There were no new calves this morning, so Mike made it to sunrise. services. Our friend Cyril was up since 3:30, pulling baby pigs, and barely made it in time to sing with the choir.

SUE AND Monte have been having baby lambs, much to the enjoyment of Ed Krajicek, who has tried all these years to make sheepherders of all of us. The fellow who owns the acreage they live on bought some bred ewes. Ann and Kathy have a new puppy, as yet unnamed. I just hope he doesn't christen the new carpet. I've been remembering Easters past: '83 and '84, when we walked up the muddy driveway to get to church; '86, when Kay and Ann were in the hospital with bumped headsmand '87 when there was a fun basketball game in front of the garage after the Easter dinner.

This morning, after the pancake breakfast, I drove to Norfolk to see patients. One, only two years old, was having a birthday today. He honored me with a kiss before I left.

Another, my age, has been try-ing to go to Heaven for weeks. I marvelled again at the way families day, I heard a small boy ask, "Is Grandpa going to die?" And his Grandmother answered, "If God decides to take him home." I can still hear the wind. It's been warm and dry. Another Spring is here; another Winter is in the history book. I've witnessed new lives, and old ones, and the end of lives.
