Less bills

Senator Elroy Hefner has introduced a proposal for a rule change that would limit a senator to a maximum of 10 bills to be introduced in the 90-day legislative session, and five bills in the 60-day session.

Instead of eight bills, committees would be limited to just two bills in the 90-day sessions and one in the 60-day sessions. The public hearing took place on the bill on Thursday, April 6.

"I feel that this change would result in more quality legislation instead of quantity. I try to discipline myself by not introducing so many bills, but some of the senators do not," said Hefner.

CPR class

A CPR class will be offered at Providence Medical Center in Wayne for seniors and college students who are considering either a nanny position of employment, a swimming pool job or entrance to nurses training — RN or L.P.N. — this fall. All of these require current CPR certification.

This class will be held three evenings, Monday, April 17; Thursday, April 20; and Monday, April 24; from 7-10 p.m. for a total nine hours.

This will be the last basic life support class offered at Providence Medical Center until this fall.

Pre-register is preferred by calling Louise Jenness, director of nurses, at 375-3800.

Governor proclaims Wayne as 'Capital'

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing editor

"The best form of government is a government that is closest to the people."

Those were the words of Nebraska Governor Kay Orr as he brought state government to Wayne on Friday and participated in a multitude of "Capital for a Day" events.

Accompanying Gov. Orr from the state government offices in Lincoln were Roger Christianson, director of the Department of Economic Development; Roy Frederick, director of the Department of Agriculture; and Betsy Palmer, director of the Department of Aging. State Senator Jerry Conway of Wayne attended most of the events with Gov. Orr.

Things got underway early Friday with a breakfast at the city auditorium, where Gov. Orr was presented a key to the city by Wayne Mayor Wayne Marsh. "We hope your visit here will be an enjoyable and learning experience," said Marsh. "Approximately 120 to 150 people attended the breakfast that got underway around 7 a.m.

AT AROUND 8:20 a.m., Gov. Orr and Frederick met with several agricultural representatives at the Wayne Veterinary Clinic. There, Gov. Orr addressed issues dealing with state income tax and property tax relief.

A change in the state income tax system was necessary, she said. Prior to the change, the amount of revenue coming into the state was "so unpredictable."

The federal government made so many changes in the federal income tax structure and rates, which made Nebraska's income tax structure and rates also fluctuate. A change in the system was needed, Gov. Orr said, to make Nebraska's income tax system more independent and also to provide the state with more stability.

Some mistakes were made in the changeover of the income tax system, Gov. Orr mentioned. To compensate, a $10 million tax cut was put into place last year. "There will be an $18 million adjustment called for this year," mentioned Gov. Orr.

Gov. Orr spoke about shifting from the "reliance on property taxes" to another form of taxes. However, a shift would not necessarily lower the tax burden of the taxpayers, she said. Reduction in property taxes would have to be picked up through another form of tax.

GOVERNOR KAY Orr, in her visit to Wayne during "Capital for a Day", stopped at the Wayne Elementary School to meet with students, faculty and administration. Above, Orr and students from Carroll Elementary read from a book prepared by students from the Carroll school. Some students sang, some danced and some performed skits and narratives in honor of Nebraska and its governor.

"If we were to reduce our reliance on property taxes by 20 percent, we would have to raise $200 million. Our economy is not going to grow fast enough for us to raise that amount of tax shift," said Gov. Orr.

GOV. ORR said the state anticipates at least $50 million in additional revenue by the end of June which she proposes to return to the people in the state of Nebraska. The $50 million would result in a savings of 5 percent for each property taxpayer. Those that pay $1,000 in annual property taxes would generate a savings of about $50, mentioned Gov. Orr.

"It would also take away the $50 million of additional spending money from the state legislature and it won't be there to finance new programs that we can't afford in the near future," Gov. Orr said.

Her bill, LB 809, has advanced to the floor upon action by the legislature's Revenue Committee.

When asked about the possibility of taxing farming machinery, Gov. Orr said she does not see any movement by the legislature or state administration "to impose any additional taxes" at the present time. "We're in good economic times right now," she said. "There is talk that down the road there may be changes in the tax formula."

Students raise questions at elementary school

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing editor

Wayne Elementary, Carroll Elementary and St. Mary's School had many questions to ask Governor Kay Orr as she visited the Wayne Elementary School Friday morning.

The young children asked many questions concerning Gov. Orr's personal life. Here are some of those questions:

Do you have a limousine? What is it like to be a governor?
Gov. Orr responded by saying that it is fun and exciting to be a governor. She enjoys meeting people in the communities. "What I

Frederick responded to a question about the use of agriculture products in de-icing roads. Corn has been proposed for this purpose.

FREDERICK said the proposal of using corn for de-icing roads is more expensive right now than using salt and other ingredients on the highways. However, he said corn would be "easier on the highway and would do less damage to the automobiles."

The idea of using corn is still being pursued, he said.

Gov. Orr also spoke to the group of agriculture representatives about the importance of research of agriculture products, and about diversification.

"We lost a lot of ground in the 1980's with the downturn of the economy. When agriculture suffers, the state suffers," she said.

"By diversifying our economy, we would not be detracting from agriculture, but we will be enhancing it," she added.

Gov. Orr said the state has to learn to cope with foreign investors. "Whether we have Japanese, French or German investors, we have to learn to cope with the changing world. We can't go into isolation," she said.

After her meeting with the agriculture representatives, Gov. Orr and department officials moved to the Wayne City Hall, where discussion with the audience centered around economic development.

"It gives me a good feeling to talk about what has happened in Wayne the last two years," said Gov. Orr. "Having good local leadership makes all the difference in the world."

ONE AREA which the state needs to recognize is that of "keeping our young people at home, and within our state."

Nebraska currently has a 3.1 percent unemployment rate. "More people are working in this state than ever before," Gov. Orr said. Having a diverse economy is also important, needed to weather the ups and downs of the agricultural economy.

Gov. Orr said she was uncomfortable with her 8.9 percent increase requested in the proposed budget for the first year of the biennium. "Nine percent increase is still pretty generous in meeting the demand of the state treasury," she said.

Mash: College healthy, vibrant

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing editor

Wayne State College President Dr. Donald Mash, inaugurated Friday afternoon as the college's ninth president, said in his inaugural address that he has a "personal preoccupation with the substance and destiny of this institution [Wayne State College] and what it can mean to this region."

The regional concept was among the goals and challenges that Dr. Mash addressed in his inaugural address during Friday's ceremony that took place at Ramsey Theatre on the Wayne State College campus.

Presiding at the inauguration was Dr. Donald Whisenhunt, who is provost and vice president for academic affairs at Wayne State. Among those offering salutations to Dr. Mash were Governor Kay Orr; Mayor of Wayne, Wayne Marsh; Dr. Christopher Bonds, faculty senate president; Amy Gross, president of the student senate; J. Alan Cramer, president of the Wayne State College Foundation; Robert Shively, C.I.D. for Northeast Nebraska; and Ruby V. Pedersen, Wayne State College alumni.

The investiture ceremony was conducted by Jean A. Lovell, chairperson of the Board of Trustees of the Nebraska State-Colleges.

IN HIS OPENING remarks, Dr. Mash said he accepted the president's post at Wayne State College with enthusiasm and confidence. "It wasn't until I had been on the job for several months that I fully understood the attraction of this small, public college in rural Nebraska. There is a heightened utility and relevance in the ways our work directly impacts lives and communities," Dr. Mash said. "I can see and feel the impact and see evidence that they belong in college. "It is that sense of self worth and potential that we are striving to develop in our students at Wayne State College. "We will measure our successes by emphasizing the qualities our students leave with, not the credentials they come with."

His job as president, he said, is to "create a vision for the future and provide the leadership to pursue it."

In August, Dr. Mash announced some personal goals. The goals included to work and create a more positive attitude about Wayne State while developing a sense of trust and pride in the way business is done; to generate growth and movement; to increase the college's visibility in northeast Nebraska "by sharpening our image and clarifying our role"; and to secure resources needed to move the place forward.

Months later, those goals are being accomplished. "Wayne State College is healthy, vibrant and on the move. We're transforming the college and I'm confident we can continue to make progress," Dr. Mash said.

HE SAID the challenge at Wayne State is two-fold.

One challenge, he said, is to attract and prepare students for the future.

Traditional students, those 18-22 years old, are largely rural Nebraska residents often coming from low income households. Seventy percent of them are first generation college students. A complicating factor is the fallout from the changing family structure, Dr. Mash mentioned. "Home environments are changing drastically," he said. "This means that many of today's students, and probably more in the future, will need 'family' from college," he added.

"These types of students require the support of a small personalized setting, where teachers focus their attention on teaching and helping."

The students, he said, must develop confidence in themselves and see evidence that they belong in college. "It is that sense of self worth and potential that we are striving to develop in our students at Wayne State College. "We will measure our successes by emphasizing the qualities our students leave with, not the credentials they come with."

He said the average student age nationally is 30 years old, and that non-traditional students make up to 40 percent of the Wayne State enrollment, up significantly in recent years. Offering extended campus courses at off-campus sites throughout the region will help those who have decided not to further their education because they are simply too far away, he said.

GRADUATE education in rural Nebraska was also addressed by Dr. Mash. "In northeast Nebraska, the most glaring example is the need for a masters degree in business, but there are needs in other fields as well," he said.

If the state college system is not allowed to offer the graduate programs other than those in the education fields, although the state college is prepared to teach them and can deliver them cost effectively, then they must be offered in northeast Nebraska collaboratively with the University, said Dr. Mash.

"But they must be offered. The need and interest are growing. We should applaud the interest and respond to it," he said.

Dr. Mash addressed the area of service in the region of northeast Nebraska. "Wayne State is striving to be a center, a focal point, a catalyst in northeast Nebraska, not only for education but for the arts, cultural activities and community

Parents as referees
As much as parents might wish to avoid becoming embroiled in their children's arguments, it is sometimes inevitable. Although most experts maintain that physical violence must not be tolerated, they also agree that a certain amount of bickering, name calling, whining and so on can't be avoided.

When you find yourself in the ring, consider the following do's and don'ts:

—Do keep in mind that an overcharged situation may sometimes be defused with relatively simple techniques. Make a joke. Suggest a different activity. Read to them.

—Do remember that the more their fighting bugs you, the more attention your children will get from you, and the more they will continue to fight.

—Don't try to get to the bottom of every single struggle, but try to identify the reason for any pattern for fighting you see repeated.

—Do try to avoid situations that, by their very nature, are going to cause trouble.

—Do use the concept of rules. Many young children, especially preschoolers, tend to be absolutely snowed if you tell them you want them to do something because "it's the rule."

—Do help older kids learn to control their anger. Teach them that if they ignore a sibling's misbehavior, the offender may be less apt to repeat it. Remind children of the saying, "Sticks and stones can break my bones, but words will never hurt me." (It may not be true, but it helps).

—Do encourage siblings, unless they are vastly ill-matched, to work out their own solutions to problems.

—Do take advantage of the extremely useful device called "time out," in which the offending child is sent to his room or placed in a "time-out" area and told that he cannot come out till the timer rings.

—Don't allow your children to draw you into a pattern of spending vast amounts of time and energy discussing and trying to straighten out their disagreements.

—Don't compare your children to each other, at least not in their presence. Don't hold up one as an example to another ("Why can't you mind me the way your sister does?").

—Do try to make sure that each child in the family has activities separate from those of his siblings. The busier each child is with his or her own projects, the more harmonious your household will be.

—Do try to take a long-range view of things. Remember that sibling relationships in most families get better as time goes by.

THIS LIST OF do's and don'ts can help you when your children or grandchildren face off to do battle. Preventing some sibling fights can be done by helping a child learn self-control. Parents who discipline effectively teach children the self-discipline necessary to develop successful relationships with others.

Saddened at the first kill

Daisy was the most beautiful I ever laid eyes on. Before my wife reads this and locks me out of house and garage, let me clarify — Daisy was a birthday present given to me by my parents.

Wait a minute. I'm getting myself into more trouble here. Further clarification: Daisy was what I called my Daisy BB Gun.

The Wayne Gun Show, sponsored recently by the Logan Valley Gun Club, brought back some memories.

Every kid in school seemed to have a BB gun. They would talk about going into the junk piles on their farm and shooting up tin cans and glass bottles. Naturally I was green with envy.

AS THEY TALKED about shooting some rabbits or birds, my interest was even more captivated.

Then, my cousins from the city got a BB gun. That made me even more jealous. Especially when they visited our farm and displayed their marksmanship. We would grab quart jars out of the junk pile and string bean cans, set them on corner posts and shoot away for most of the afternoon.

One afternoon we got bored with the tin cans and decided for bigger game — the car windows from an old vehicle sitting on wooden blocks in the chicken yard. Boy did we have fun shooting out those car windows, just like what we had seen in the "Bonnie and Clyde" movie. Television, then, was most influential way back then [and I'm talking about 20 or more years ago].

Anyway, my dad certainly didn't think it was such a "fun" idea. He boxed my ears all the way to the barn. I never did hear what my aunt and uncle did to my bb gun-shooting cousins.

AFTER THAT episode, I was certain that never again would I be able to get a BB gun. Still, with all the warnings about "You'll shoot your eyes out", my wish came true in a pretty package. I was given a Daisy. And I read the cover of the package over and over again to make sure it really was a Daisy.

We filled the gun barrel with the little silver BB's and I went on an excursion to the junk pile. I pulled out an old 45 rpm record that had a big crack that was thrown away by my rock-and-roll music-loving sisters and shot it into thousands of pieces. Then I pulled out a Gerber's baby food jar and took aim at the smaller target.

'Hacken' Away

By Chuck Hackenmiller

Off I went into the grove of firs, hoping by chance that I would perhaps see a rabbit or a squirrel dart from behind the tree trunks. No such luck.

Days following, I would virtually follow the same routine — the junk pile and then off to see if I could wing some game.

ONE DAY I noticed a bird, similar in size to a crow, perched on a branch high on the fir tree. Discouraged that there were no other game around, I playfully took aim at the bird, deep down knowing that there was no way the BB would even come close to harming the bird.

But I was wrong. The bird came tumbling down and landed about 10 feet from where I was standing. Not moving at all. Instead of rejoicing, I panicked. How could I have done such a horrible thing!

I didn't say a word as I came back into the yard; or even during meal time. After dinner that evening, I returned to the scene of the crime; hoping that perhaps the bird was only stunned and flew away immediately after I left the scene.

It still was there, lifeless like I left it. My heart hurt. Somehow, the first kill wasn't what I expected it to be.

The thrill of the BB gun was gone. Perhaps that's why my skills with the use of a shotgun or rifle are nil or nothing to brag about.

The incident knocked the hunting instinct out of me. I guess I feel more comfortable hunting game with a camera and a telephoto lens.

When I shoot them with my camera, it doesn't feel so bad.

Publishers' Perspective

By Gary and Peggy Wright

Store hours

IF shopping hours were to be changed in downtown Wayne, there's almost as many suggestions on HOW to change them as the number of respondents in The Wayne Herald reader survey recently completed.

For the most part, it appears the respondents were fairly satisfied with the current Thursday evening extended hours. Only a handful of respondents expressed a definite dislike of the present system.

But when asked if they wanted MORE shopping hours to be available many of those satisfied did offer recommendations. Responses were split almost equally between Monday evening, Friday evening, Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon.

Of those periods, Saturday evening was first on the list followed by Sunday afternoon, Monday evening and finally Friday evening.

Several respondents suggested downtown merchants be better unified WHATEVER hours are chosen so customers aren't confused over who's open and who's not.

Other comments about store hours from the survey respondents: *Hours should be until 9:30 p.m. in the spring and summer when there's more daylight and farmers are in the field longer.

*Monday evening hours would be "the biggest mistake Wayne merchants will ever make".

*Open until 7 p.m. Monday "sounds great".

*Evening shopping hours two nights per week would be nice.

*If stores wouldn't open as early in the morning they could stay open later in the evening.

*Stores should be open earlier.

*More evening shopping hours should be available so homemakers can shop after their husbands come home from work.

*Downtown hours should be modeled after those of Bill's GW, Pac 'N' Save and Pamida.

Although respondents freely offered ideas on store hours, they seemed more interested in commenting on other survey questions dealing with pricing at local stores and out-of-town shopping.

In future weeks, we'll print some of the GENERAL comments while avoiding specific complaints about a specific business. The newspaper survey was not intended to gain embarrassing information about any business.

However, we've had several requests from merchants who WANT to know if anything "bad" -- or "good" -- is written about them. For these merchants, we'll sort the survey comments which pertain to them and discuss the relevant issues in private.

Comments written on this survey were written anonymously but came from many segments of the community: young, old, male, female. It is impossible to gauge how "representative" these 50 people are. Whatever analysis is made, though, should consider the comments as pertinent "food for thought".

As a professional statistician noted, most surveys of this nature encourage those with complaints to respond. Therefore only a small number of people satisfied with current conditions probably made the effort to respond.

That perspective should be kept in mind before merchants overreact to negative feedback.

and economic development," he remarked.

"We want the communities throughout the region to refer to Wayne State College as 'their' college and we're prepared to work to make this happen," he added.

TO REACH OUT to the communities in the region, Dr. Mash announced that the college will cooperate with Northeast Community College, the University, the Department of Economic Development and other agencies on behalf of northeast Nebraska.

A Bureau for Community and Economic Development is being developed and will coordinate much of the outreach activity, according to Dr. Mash.

"It's two pronged — student development and regional development. I'm confident that we can do both," he said.

Dr. Mash said there must be adequate support for "our important work."

The support for public higher education will fall on the shoulders of individual states and on the private sector, he said. Public funding should be regarded as an investment, he added.

"We're fortunate to have a governor who is keenly aware of the relationship between higher education and community and economic development, and who is attempting to direct funding to these priorities," Dr. Mash said.

He said Wayne State is also fortunate to have an established organization, The Wayne State Foundation, in place and with leadership equal to the challenge.

"Together, we can take Wayne State College to greatness, and in turn help to ensure a bright future for northeast Nebraska," he said.

Rev. Beverly Nitschke of the Wayne Ecumenical Campus Ministry provided the invocation during the inauguration ceremony, and music was provided by Antony Garlic, M.M. at the organ; Keith Krueger, trumpet; and the Wayne State College Concert Choir under the direction of Cornell Runestad.

'Bed and breakfast' bill viewed

Last week the Legislature gave first round approval to the "bed and breakfast" bill, which I introduced. LB 548 would exempt bed and breakfast establishments from the Nebraska Pure Food Act. The Act requires establishments selling food to the public to be licensed and meet very specific standards regarding kitchen facilities and food handling.

"Bed and breakfast" establishments are typically private homes where travelers or hunters spend the night and are provided with breakfast. Oftentimes, these are historic or unique homes that rent one or more rooms only occasionally. The modern traveler is attracted to bed and breakfast because of the lack of commercialization and the home atmosphere.

My bill is designed to exempt only smaller bed and breakfast establishments not operating as a hotel. Under the bill, an establishment would not be required to be licensed if they are private homes renting to ten or fewer people at a time and serving only breakfast. If the Department of Agriculture regulations are applied many of these types of establishments would no longer participate. The cost of compliance with separate kitchens and the like would far outweigh what the occasional traveler pays.

LB 262, a bill increasing the total taxes on Douglas County hotel and motel rooms by 2 percent also advanced. The increased revenue would be dedicated to capital improvements at museums, theaters, zoos and other existing tourist attractions.

As originally introduced the bill increased the lodging tax across the state. The bill was limited to Douglas County upon the adoption of my amendment. The bill was drafted with the needs of Douglas County in mind and therefore is appropriately limited to that county. The bill was not designed to particularly benefit smaller communities. In addition to the state lodging tax, our smaller community hotels and motels voluntarily contribute to a fund that promotes local attractions. This system is working well and the need to for increasing taxes is not there.

THE ANNUAL debate over educational funding is starting to heat up. Two recent Attorney General opinions have added another aspect to the debate. The opinions indicate Nebraska's current requirement, that the Nebraska Board of Educational Lands and Funds pay nearly $6 million out to various school districts in the state, may be unconstitutional.

Governor

There has been a major increase proposed for state college and university budgets. "However, we still were not able to meet their total budget requests," Gov. Orr said. Keeping the state colleges and universities on a level that is equal to outside higher education institutions is difficult.

"It's easy to lose ground, but it's much harder to make it up," Gov. Orr said.

OVER THE past two years, 1,900 new jobs have been created in the northeastern part of the state, Orr told the audience.

After the economic development meeting, Gov. Orr met with grade school children and faculty from Wayne Elementary, Carroll Elementary and St. Mary's School, where a variety of songs, dances and skits were performed for the Governor.

Then it was on to the Wayne Senior Citizen Center, where more music was performed and Gov. Orr was greeted by the many members of the senior delegation and staff members.

Gov. Orr was also the keynote speaker at the Inaugural Luncheon at the North Dining Room of the Student Union on the Wayne State College campus.

Later in the afternoon, Dr. Donald Mash, president of Wayne State College, was inaugurated as the college's ninth president. Gov. Orr also spoke briefly at the inauguration ceremony.

In her keynote address at the inauguration luncheon, Gov. Orr said Nebraska is blessed with good community leadership. She said Nebraska commitment to education ties in to the rural renaissance and revitalization of the region.

Rural renaissance must be accompanied by an actively cooperating public and private college sector. "Wayne State can help out with this," Gov. Orr said.

New industry, she said, is looking for livability characteristics in communities. "And that is something that we can offer in Nebraska," she said.

SHE NOTED that manufacturing earnings in Nebraska are rising. In 1987-88, manufacturing earnings were 40 percent over the national average, she said.

"Our economy is expanding. Nebraska is responding well to the changes and to the challenges. Taxable sales are also up in Nebraska, as is employment.

Once again, she said leadership can take the state forward to progress. "All who live in this region can be ambassadors to Nebraska."

After the inauguration luncheon, Gov. Orr and Dr. Donald Mash conducted a press conference.

Wayne is the state's 14th proclaimed "Capital for the Day" since the program began under Gov. Orr in 1987. Dr. Mash had extended an invitation to Gov. Orr to attend the Wayne State College inauguration ceremony, which is one of the reasons cited as to why Wayne was selected as the "Capital for the Day."

"I've been impressed with the city of Wayne. Their dedicated and knowledgeable leaders really make a difference. They have reached out and found whatever state resources would be available to them," Gov. Orr said.

Gov. Orr, after attending the inauguration ceremony, planned to meet with retail merchants and then tour Restful Knights in Wayne before returning to Lincoln.

Questions

like best about Nebraska is the very special people that live in Nebraska," Gov. Orr said.

"Do you have any friends?" one child asked.

"I have a lot of nice friends. That's one nice thing about being a Governor," replied Gov. Orr.

"Do you have to know everybody in Nebraska?" another asked.

She replied: "Sometimes I feel that I've met everybody in Nebraska."

"Do you have a husband — still?" asked a young student.

Gov. Orr smiled and said yes, then told the young grade school children that her husband has written a cookbook. "He is called the 'First Gentleman' of Nebraska," Gov. Orr said.

More questions followed. "Is it hard running for governor?" one asked.

"You spend a lot of hours traveling around this big state. It's fun, too, because you get to see so many things that are in Nebraska."

"Do you like your job?" asked another child.

"Most of the days are really good days. I love to visit schools," she replied.

Gov. Orr was asked if she had a hobby.

"I like to be with my family and I like to go for nature walks and be outside. I also enjoy water skiing and swimming," she said.

Another asked Gov. Orr if she thought about running for President of the United States. "No, just being governor is a big job. I like to live in Nebraska. If I did anything else like that, I would have to move."

And that is how the press conference went at the Wayne Elementary School.

Yield harvest results in Win in the bin with no-till

Newspapers, magazines and other media reported problems with no-till crops early in the 1988 cropping season, according to Extension Soils Specialist Charles Shapiro. Many problems were associated with lack of soil moisture, although no-till planting into previously compacted soil, planting too shallow in dry soil, and improper no-till equipment adjustment could have also been causes of problems.

"The soil moisture problems were associated with legumes and cover crops that were not controlled early in the season. Without additional moisture, lower yields resulted. This would be true regardless of tillage system," Shapiro said. While early season stunting is dramatic, what counts is yield harvested. How did no-till corn actually turn out when compared to tilled ground?

"Research at the Northeast Research Center showed the value of no-till and reduced tillage in a drought year. Corn grain no-till following either corn or soybeans increased yield 17 bushels compared to spring plowed corn and 14 bushels compared to disked corn. The no-till corn was not cultivated," Shapiro said.

IN ANOTHER experiment where no-till corn with cultivation was compared to double disked corn, no-till corn yielded seven bushels per acre more than the disked ground.

During 1988, the University of Nebraska Northeast Research Center at Concord, Neb., received 18.8 inches of rainfall, compared to a long-term average of rainfall of 24.8 inches.

"In previous years of the two experiments, no yield difference due to tillage was found. This was because rainfall at the Northeast Research Center was at or above average," Shapiro said.

Anyone interested in learning more about the no-till cropping system may contact Shapiro at the University of Nebraska Northeast Research and Extension Center in Concord, Neb.

Wayne State tracksters to host Invite WAYNE-The Wayne State men's and women's track teams will host the Wayne State Invitational on Tuesday, April 11, at Memorial Stadium. Field events get underway at 1 p.m.

Teams competing in both the men's and women's competition are Westmar, Kearney State, Dakota Wesleyan, Northwestern, Dordt, Tarkio College, Concordia College and Morningside.

Golfers manage a tie with Oakland-Craig

The Wayne-Carroll golf team hosted a dual with the defending class C state champions of the past several years, Oakland-Craig, Wednesday afternoon amidst cool windy conditions.

The dual marked the second time in the young season that the two teams had faced off with the visitors winning the first dual by one stroke. Obviously you can't have a closer match than one stroke unless you tied. Guess what? The two tied with 160's.

Oakland-Craig's Jason Peterson captured medalist honors with a two under par, 34. Peterson birdied the first hole to get off on the right foot. Elliot Salmon and Rob Reeg finished with 37's each for the Blue Devils while Jed Reeg and Eric Runestad came in with a 42 and 44 each. Chad Jones also finished with a 44 on the varsity.

In reserve action, the Blue Devils upped their record to 3-0 with a decisive 176-187 victory. Mike Nicholson carded a 41 to take medalist honors. Brian Moore followed with a 43 while Greg Schmidt and Jason Claussen fired 46's. Craig Sharpe finished with a 47 as the fifth member of the junior varsity team.

Tax Deferral

The term tax deferral is used frequently in financial planning, but do you really understand how important tax deferral can be in money management? As an example of the power of tax deferral, consider an initial investment of $10,000, earning 9% compound interest for ten years. Using tax deferral, the $10,000 would grow to $23,674 in just ten years...26.4% more than if you paid Federal Income taxes on the interest. This amounts to $4,928 saved in Income taxes in ten years.

IRAs, Profit Sharing Plans, and TSAs are retirement plans that not only defer the interest earned, but also defer the principle. With tax deferral on the interest and principle, the savings to you are enormous. During this time of year, when you are already thinking about your finances and tax savings opportunities, wouldn't it be a good time for you to set some financial goals and begin to chart your course toward a secure financial future? Jacobsen to play in All-Star Game WINSIDE-The 1989 Nebraska Coaches Association All-Star Boys Basketball teams and coaches have been announced for the summer's All-Star Game. The games will be held in conjunction with the NCA's Annual Multi-Sports Clinic held in Lincoln during the first week in August.

There will be a girls All-Star volleyball game held Thursday, August 3, at Lincoln East High School. On the following Friday, the girls and boys All-Star games will be played at the Bob Devaney Sports Complex beginning with the girls game at 6:00 p.m., followed by the boys game, approximately 8:00 p.m.

Senior student athletes are nominated by their respective coaches with over 90 players nominated for each team this year. Players are then evaluated by every coach in the state and evaluations are screened by the All-Star selection committee made up of coaches throughout the state.

The only restrictions placed on the selection committee is that the NCA limits the number of players selected from each school to one player per team. Aside from the Shrine Football Game, the NCA All-Star Basketball and Volleyball Teams are the only teams representing the entire State of Nebraska.

Among the roster of 12 representing the boys north squad is Winside's Tim Jacobsen. Jacobsen will join the following players: Marty Dubas, Ord; John Engel, Schuyler; Aaron Griess, Lincoln Northeast; Dale Harrison, Omaha Benson; Bruce Chubick II, Atkinson West Holt; James Maloney, Omaha Central; Steve Scheidegger, Columbus; Darin Sherrod, Omaha North; Jamie Tomlin, Alliance; Tim Townsend, North Platte, and Jeff Wolgram, Madison.

Fred Letheby of Madison is the North Head Coach while Gary Chvala of Spencer-Naper, is the assistant. Jacobsen incidently, is one of two D-1 players from across the state selected to play in the All-Star game and the only basketball player from the Wayne Herald coverage area ever to be selected to the team.

WSC splits with UNO

The Lady Wildcats split a pair of softball contests with visiting UNO Wednesday afternoon, winning the first game 5-4, and losing the nightcap, 7-0.

In the opener Wayne State rallied for four runs in the sixth inning to erase a 2-1 deficit and then had to hold off UNO's rally in the top half of the seventh inning to ensure a victory.

UNO had the bases loaded with no outs and a 5-4 score when the defensive minded Wildcats went to work. Shell Schumann caught a foul ball down the third base line for the first out and Tonya Gappa caught a fly ball in right field on the next batter and as the third base runner tagged up to go home, Gappa's perfect throw to catcher Kris Pestal gunned down the runner's attempt to tie the game.

Wayne State dished out five hits in the contest including two from Schumann with a double, and a triple to Eva Koons. Roni Johnson took the win from the mound.

In the second game UNO jumped all over Wayne State pitcher Ronda Peck, whose season mark fell to 2-5. UNO went on to win the game 7-0.

Wayne State only managed three hits in the contest, a single each by Shell Schumann and Lisa Jacobsen, and Kris Pestal's triple.

RONI JOHNSON pitches WSC to victory in game one.

The Wayne State Wildcats opened spring football April 3 under the direction of first-year coach Dennis Wagner. In all 52 players reported for the first day of football, including 26 letterwinners. The Wildcats will spend three days a week on the practice field with the remaining two days in the weight room.

LET'S ALL SUPPORT AN INDUSTRY THAT HARVESTS $8 BILLION ANNUALLY.

Enthusiasm for agriculture is growing again in Nebraska. After all, the success of our state's economy is strongly tied to the strength of our ag industry. Almost one-third of our economic activity is related to the production of ag commodities or ag services.

Nebraska has always been a leading crop production state and now ranks among the top five in cash receipts for ag commodities nationally—third in corn production, third in sorghum, ninth in wheat, eighth in soybeans, and fifth in rye and beans.

Recently, Nebraska produced a record 954 million bushels of corn (11 percent of the U.S. total) with total cash crop marketing of $3.3 billion and $4.6 billion in livestock marketing. In fact, cattle and calf production in Nebraska amounts to 12 percent of the U.S. total, placing Nebraska second only to Texas.

So, if you think Nebraska ranks nationally only in football, maybe it's time to remember why we're called the Cornhuskers.

LET'S GET INTO A POSITIVE STATE.

Newsletter serves Northeast Nebraska

The Northeast Nebraska IPM (Integrated Pest Management) Newsletter will be serving Northeast Nebraska area farmers for its 10th year in 1989.

The newsletter began in 1979 as an aid to 22 Pierce County farmers participating in an insect scouting project. Information in the newsletter at that time was limited to insect problems in field crops. Since then, information in the newsletter has grown to include information on insects, weeds, fertility, and irrigation scheduling. The newsletter is geared to alert area farmers and agribusiness people to potential field crop problems, and to provide information on how to detect and solve the problems as they appear.

The IPM newsletter is written specifically for the Northeast Nebraska region by personnel at the University of Nebraska Northeast Research and Extension Center in Concord. They include: Keith Jarvi, Editor, IPM Entomology; John Witkowski, Extension Entomology; Russ Moomaw and Jerry Echtenkamp, Agronomy-Weed Science; Charles Shapiro, Agronomy-Soil Science; and Bill Kranz, Extension Engineer-Irrigation.

A subscription to the Northeast Nebraska IPM Newsletter is only $8.00 and will include at least 20 issues, most of them provided weekly during the growing season. WAYNE STATE COLLEGE
Northeast Nebraska Update

On April 20th when the curtains close on the 10th performance of Wayne State College Theatre Department's production of THE WIZARD OF OZ, over 4,000 Northeast Nebraska school children will have watched the journey of Dorothy and her friends as they searched for a way home, courage, a heart, and a brain. For thirty-one years children from such cities as Randolph and Wakefield, South Sioux City and Neligh have made the trip to Wayne each spring to see the children's shows. Northeast Nebraska teachers bring school children in groups ranging from 18 to 250 to Ramsey Theatre because, in the words of Janie Remmered of Elkhorn Valley School, they want the "kids to be able to see live theatre rather than going to the movies all the time." Remmered adds, "This year all 250 members of grades one through six at Elkhorn Valley School will attend."

And, according to Andre Sedriks, director of the Wayne State College Theatre, the performers will be ready for the children. He explains that the show was cast in early February and rehearsals began March 6. The students making up the cast and crew rehearse three hours a day five days a week. Heather Hasenkamp, a chemistry and biology major who plays Dorothy, says, "rehearsing for the play is a lot of work but a lot of fun." Jeff Jensen, a social science endorsement student who plays the cowardly Lion, concurs, saying, "there's a lot of kidding around during rehearsals, but we get a lot done in one night; we usually go over two scenes at least three times during each rehearsal. Hasenkamp and Jensen say they know the children will enjoy the play. Jensen says he thinks the most exciting part for the children will be "getting to meet the characters in the play." Paul DiBlasi, a theatre major who plays the wizard says the most exciting part for the children will be "when they see the wizard for the first time because of the special effects achieved by the use of music, smoke, and flash pots."

4,000 NE NEBRASKANS WILL ATTEND 'WIZARD OF OZ'

According to Norma Brockmoeller of the Winside School, students from Winside have attended the Wayne State College children's show for "years and years." Brockmoeller says, "I've worked here twenty-four years and I know we have brought children for all of those years. They always look forward to it." They won't be disappointed.

'Wizard of Oz' Schedule:

Ramsey Theatre, Peterson Fine Arts Building - Thursday, April 13, 10 a.m. & 1 p.m.; Friday, April 14, 1 p.m.; Sunday, April 16, 2 p.m.; Monday, April 17, 1 p.m.; Tuesday, April 18, 10 a.m. & 1 p.m.; Wednesday, April 19, 1 p.m. & 8 p.m.; Thursday, April 20, 10 a.m.

Irrigation wells should be tested for nitrogen

Farmers testing for residual nitrates in their irrigation well water should wait until the first irrigation event has nearly been completed before taking water samples, according to Extension Irrigation Specialist Bill Kranz.

A survey conducted by Kranz and Extension Soils Specialist Charles Shapiro revealed that only 27 percent of irrigators have had their irrigation wells tested for residual nitrates. Since the nitrogen contained in the irrigation water is available for plant use, some irrigators are applying more nitrogen than is needed by the crop.

Nitrogen that is found in well water has moved through the soil profile and into the groundwater, or aquifer. Once the nitrogen reaches the aquifer, it slowly diffuses into the lower portions of the aquifer. Consequently, nitrogen concentration is highest at the top of the aquifer.

WHEN THE irrigation pump is first started, most of the water comes directly off the top of the aquifer. As the pump runs longer, it mixes water from the different levels in the well. Therefore, the longer the pump runs, the more thorough the water mixes.

Although water samples can be taken after the pump has run a minimum of six to eight hours, to obtain the most accurate sample a longer wait is recommended, according to Kranz.

"We've found substantial variation in nitrogen concentration samples taken immediately after the pump was started, so it is best to wait until the first irrigation event has been nearly completed before taking samples," he said.

Samples taken too early in the irrigation process are likely to appear higher than the aquifer really is.

Because one irrigation event should be completed before water testing is done, it may be impossible for farmers applying nitrogen fertilizer as a sidedress application to use information from water tests taken this year to make fertilizer adjustments. In those cases, it is best to sample water one year and use the results in planning the next year's fertilizer program. The water nitrate level fluctuates only slightly over time, so a test taken every three to five years in each well is sufficient.

FARMERS fertilizing with nitrogen through their irrigation system can adjust the nitrogen application amount according to the amount of nitrogen found in the water. Kranz estimates that some irrigation systems provide over 80 pounds of nitrogen to the plant with irrigation water.

To ensure the most accurate test results possible, a water sample bottle with sampling instructions should be obtained from the Department of Health, UNL Soils Laboratory or from other water testing laboratories. The sample should be sent directly to the lab within 24 hours of the time it is taken and should arrive between Monday and Thursday to prevent it from arriving at the lab over a weekend, which could affect test results.
