By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing editor

Ardyce Reeg of Wayne, after 29 years (going on 30) of baby-sitting for children in the Wayne area, will end what has become a career filled with some fond memories.

At the age of 69, her baby-sitting license expired on Saturday (June 10) and after lengthy consideration she had decided she would not renew the two year license. After years of baby-sitting children of working parents at her home, she will be able to spend more of her weekdays with her husband (Alvin) and other family members — one of the reasons she decided to retire from the job.

It was in 1960 when Reeg and her husband moved to town from a farm southwest of Wayne and she began her baby-sitting career. Prior to that, Reeg would occasionally baby-sit for parents who had to go into town or if one of the parents was hospitalized.

Since 1960, she has provided a baby-sitting (day care) service to 61 families and has, as most of the parents will agree, become a grandmother to at least 104 children.

"And I wouldn't want to part with any one of those years," Reeg said.

PRIOR TO when she and all other day care providers were required to have a license for providing day care, Reeg would baby-sit up to 15 children. Mothers who are nurses, teachers, barbers, office workers, bank employees or who are college students and others in various career fields have come to appreciate the services which Reeg provided over her 29 years of baby-sitting.

Dawn Malchow, age 29, is one who as a child spent daytime hours under the watchful, affectionate care of Reeg. Now Malchow of Laurel has a family of her own — and her daughter Danelle has been going to Reeg's home since she was four months old.

Malchow recalls how some of the children would go with Reeg to club meetings or with her to perform other types of errands. She recalls how Reeg worked hard at preparing the noon meals and how the children could watch and help Reeg canning the vegetables from her spacious garden. "We were fed so good there that there were times we could not eat when we got back home," Malchow recalled.

"You never had to worry when the kids were with Ardyce. If there was something wrong, she would always call," she mentioned. "She has been a good friend to the moms, always willing to listen to our problems."

WHEN LICENSING requirements came onto the scene, Reeg said she almost quit because of the restrictions and regulations. The children could no longer be served home-canned food. "We could baby-sit no more than eight children at one time. And we had to make sure that we would serve them balanced breakfasts, noon dinners and snacks," Reeg mentioned.

She almost quit, she said, because of the paperwork in keeping

System viewed important

The president of Wayne State College believes the roles of his college and the State College System must be viewed more importantly in the coming years regardless of whether or not Kearney State College joins the University of Nebraska System in 1991.

"I'm aware that some believe a three-college system of small colleges will make our institutions less important than we currently are with Kearney State College as part of the system," Dr. Donald Mash said.

"I think just the contrary is true. All three [Chadron, Peru and Wayne] are similar and have a clear mission. We are serving defined rural Nebraska regions — and we're critical players in the matter of rural revitalization of these regions."

Mash says Kearney State's geographic location and dramatic enrollment growth have transformed the central Nebraska institution into a college that has become more and more dissimilar when compared to its sister institutions.

HE EXPECTS the role and mission of the state colleges to be more clearly understood as a result of the coming study called for by LB 247. Nonetheless, he realized the small system could lose some of the "already modest political influence" it now has if Kearney is removed.

"If the legislature sees this issue as a political one rather than an educational one, rural Nebraska's future will be jeopardized," Mash said.

He says the colleges won't be able to carry the message alone. "Northeast Nebraska must understand the importance of Wayne State College to regional development and speak out," he said.

"Northeast Nebraska residents, its businesses and its senators will have to be more proactive in supporting and defending not only a stronger Wayne State College, but also a stronger Northeast Community College in Norfolk — because it's in Northeast Nebraska's best interest to do so.

"We're talking about the long-term viability of Northeast Nebraska — not Wayne State College. The same is true in Southeast and Western Nebraska with Peru and Chadron State Colleges.

"These colleges are regional centers for education as well as the arts and community and economic development. They are catalysts for development. If they are weakened rather than made stronger, Greater Nebraska will be hurt badly."

MASH POINTED out that Jerome Warner, the state senator who drafted the original bill to bring Kearney State into the University System, has said all along that he doesn't foresee Chadron, Peru and Wayne losing support if Kearney exits. "As a matter of fact, he said we could be better funded," Mash says.

The president says he believes all legislators realize the importance of state-wide development.

"I don't believe senators are prepared to write off rural Nebraska," he said. "If they back away from the support of the state colleges, it will be a major step in that direction."

"There is no question in my mind that a greater investment in higher education is the key to rural development. The challenge before us is to create a much better understanding about the cause-effect relationship that exists between higher education and community and economic development."

If the Kearney State bill gets past a possible challenge by the state attorney general who believes the legislature's approval of LB 247 is unconstitutional, Wayne State College would become the largest college in the system in 1991 with an enrollment of nearly 3,000 students.

Mash says Wayne State's larger enrollment is not a basis for grandstanding as the flagship institution. "We're similar to one another in role and mission — and that's the key," he said.

THE PRESIDENT says, however, Wayne State will begin making a stronger pitch for more state funding.

"Many people have forgotten that a recent study determined that Wayne State is the most poorly funded of the state colleges behind Kearney State," he says in reference to findings by the National Center for Higher Education Management Systems.

"That has been lost in the shuffle with the focus on Kearney's status."

Mash, who has been president of Wayne State College exactly one year, has been stressing the important role the college has played in the educational, economic and cultural development of Northeast Nebraska.

He has visited many communities in the College's Northeast Nebraska service region and has spoken to their leadership about Wayne State college's role in regional development.

Clinic to operate in Wakefield hospital

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing editor

The Wakefield Health Care Center officials, at its annual meeting Thursday evening, announced that Benthack Clinic of Wayne will be establishing a satellite clinic in Wakefield.

Jeanne Gardner, chairman of the Wakefield Health Care Center, said Friday morning that the clinic will be located in the present hospital building in Wakefield.

"We're extremely pleased with the decision," said Gardner.

She said Benthack Clinic plans to be in Wakefield at the satellite clinic on or before July 5.

"There is some work to be done in the hospital building to meet their needs," Gardner said.

Gardner said Drs. Robert Benthack, Benjamin Martin and Physician's Assistant Gary West will be alternating days, working at the Wakefield satellite clinic. The clinic will be staffed at least three to four half days a week to begin with, she said.

THE FINISHED feasibility study recently conducted by Grandview Health Resources was reviewed at the annual meeting. Gardner said the study showed that "it was just not viable to operate the present hospital as an intensive care unit."

But the study did indicate, she said, that it would be most viable to have a satellite clinic established in the hospital facility. "This will allow us to make use of a large part of the building and equipment which otherwise would have remained unused," she added.

"The Benthack Clinic satellite office will also offer the availability of a physician for the residents of the present nursing home facility. This means a great deal to us," Gardner said.

GARDNER said the Wakefield Health Care Center Board will "not continue the search for a physician as they have been doing in past weeks."

A recruited physician, she said, would have to work in with the satellite clinic crew. "It will be up to them [Benthack Clinic] to further search for physicians if they decide that they need another," she said.

How much in an emergency fund?

Have you ever wondered where to find money to buy new tires for the car or how to pay the insurance deductible when someone has an accident? It may be time to consider an important key to successful money management. That's the emergency fund.

An emergency fund is just what it says — a fund of money for those emergency and other unexpected expenses that seem to pop up when you least expect them and when you least can afford them.

To determine how much money you need in an emergency fund, think about the emergencies you've had in the past year. Go over old records and bills to refresh your memory. Then make a list of the kinds of emergencies you need to have a pot of money to cover.

In addition to car repairs and maintenance and insurance deductibles, consider emergency trips, household repair and replacement of household equipment. You might also want to add irregular expenses such as insurance premiums, pledges, dues and subscriptions.

One you have a list of things for the emergency fund to cover, put a dollar figure on each one if it were to happen. Then think about the probability of that particular expense occurring within a year. If you think you'll have to replace those car tires once every five years, your probability is one in five while insurance premiums will be paid every year so the probability is one in one.

Once you have the probability, figure out how much money you need to set aside each year to cover such expense. For those car tires, divide the cost of the tires by five.

By adding up these annual figures of money to set aside, you'll come up with an annual total. Divide that figure by 12 to get what you need to set aside each month for emergencies.

Your emergency fund will be a revolving fund with money coming in and going out all the time. Also, decide how large you want to let the fund grow. When it reaches that point, consider putting some of your emergency savings into an emergency fund cushion which might be certificates of deposit or Treasury bills which will earn more interest.

By sticking to your emergency fund plan eventually you'll have that pot of money to help you meet unexpected expenses. You will also have peace of mind knowing that the money is there when needed.

Cholesterol screening set at Senior Center at minimal cost

Cholesterol screening is scheduled at the Wayne Multi-Purpose Senior Center Wednesday from 9-11 a.m. With rising concern about cholesterol levels, many people have expressed an interest in having their blood cholesterol level checked.

With the cooperation of the Northern Nebraska Emergency Medical Services Council, Northeast Nebraska Area Agency on Aging is now able to offer blood cholesterol screening at the senior centers at a minimal cost.

Northern Nebraska Emergency Medical Services Council provides the machine to do the testing and NENAAA's Project Independence nurses perform the cholesterol screening.

With a simple prick of a finger and a few minutes, a blood cholesterol level can be checked. If a blood cholesterol level is above normal limits, the nurse/dietician will refer you to a physician and give you helpful hints on how to reduce your blood cholesterol level. Since this is a test for "total cholesterol" value, no fasting is required prior to the test.

Cost to each person is $4. This covers the expenses of medical supplies used for each test and for the use of the machine.

Legion wins over Creighton

After a shaky first two innings, the Wayne Legion team came around to rattle Creighton, 13-4 in a game played at Overin Field in Wayne Thursday evening.

Creighton's Ulrich held the Wayne bats in check for the first two innings, striking out five of the first six Wayne batters. The Creighton team led 2-0 after the second inning.

Wayne went ahead in the bottom of the third, 4-2, scoring four runs when Jason Mrsny beat out a single and later scored, as did the singling Kevin Hausmann, Greg Schmidt who reached on a fielder's choice and Jeff Lutt who stroked an RBI-producing single. Creighton, in the top half of the fourth, scored two runs to knot the game at 4-4. Wayne responded with two runs scored by Hausmann and Mrsny in the fourth inning to go ahead, 6-4.

They broke the game open in the bottom of the sixth inning to score seven runs. Getting the big hit in the inning was Jess Zeiss, who blasted a homerun that scored three runs. Others with hits in the big inning were Matt Peterson, Hausmann, Schmidt and Chad Metzler.

Wayne pounded out nine hits in the game, two by Hausmann and Metzler. Getting one hit each were Schmidt, Lutt, Zeiss, Jason Mrsny and Peterson.

Picking up the win was Lutt, who allowed just three hits in the contest.

Next action for the Wayne Juniors is Monday, July 12 at Pender and Tuesday, July 13 at Dodge. They will return home to play West Point on Thursday, June 15, with all games starting at around 8 p.m.

Also, the game between Wakefield and Wayne on Friday, June 27 was postponed to Sunday, June 25, with the Midgets to begin play at 2 p.m. and the Juniors to begin their game at around 4 p.m.

JIM MURPHY POKES a single in the win Thursday against Creighton.

Midgets continue winning

The Wayne Midgets extended their winning streak to eight games this season by shutting out Bancroft Tuesday evening, 7-0, and then beating Creighton 9-0 Thursday night.

Against Bancroft, Brian Lentz pitched the shut-out, allowing three hits while striking out seven.

Wayne got their scoring machine untracked in the first inning after Jeff Griesch and Reggie Carnes each singled and then Brent Gamble came through with a two-out two-RBI base hit.

They made the score 4-0 by scoring two more runs in the third inning. After Rusty Hamer reached base on a fielder's choice and Lentz got on via base on balls, they eventually scored as they stole their way around the base paths.

In the fifth inning, Hamer again drew a walk and later scored on a double by Griesch to make the score 5-0.

The final two Wayne Midget runs were scored in the top of the seventh inning after Hamer doubled, Lentz walked and Griesch singled. Hamer and Lentz scored that inning as Bancroft pitching gave up four walks.

Of Wayne's six hits, Griesch smacked three of them. Others with hits were Hamer, Carnes and Brent Gamble.

Against Creighton Thursday evening, Griesch tossed a five-hitter in the shortened game.

Chris Fredrickson opened Wayne's four-run first inning by drawing a walk. After Jim Hoffman got on base, Hamer laced a two-RBI triple. A single by Lentz scored Hamer. Lentz and Griesch later scored after walks were issued to Wehrer, Dave Hewitt and Brent Gamble.

They added another run in the second inning and one in the third inning when Wehrer and Gamble both stroked singles.

Then in the fourth inning, the local Midgets got four runs on consecutive singles hit by Lentz, Griesch, Jason Ehrhardt and Jim Murphy.

Wayne collected a total of nine hits in the game, one each by Hoffman, Hamer, Griesch, Ehrhardt and Murphy. Those with two hits were Lentz and Wehrer.

Next games for the Wayne Midgets are Monday, June 12 against Pender there and Tuesday, June 13 away against Dodge. Their next home game will be Thursday, June 15 against West Point.

With one hit each for Winside were Chad Carlson, Jason Krueger, Tad Behmer and Matt Brogren.

All of Winside's total runs were scored in the second inning. After Behmer singled and Jason Magwire reached on a fielder's choice, Brogren uncorked a double to drive in both Winside runs.

On Tuesday night, Winside Midgets faced Laurel and came away with a 8-6 win, which brought their record to 2-3 on the season.

and striking out 19 Laurel batters. He gave up just two hits but walked 13.

Winside scattered eight hits against Laurel pitching. Winside scored their first two runs (by Frahm and Cory Jensen) in the first inning, capitalizing on four Laurel errors. They added four more marks in the third inning after Jensen and Gallop both singled, Jason Krueger walked and Jason Magwire got a two-RBI single.

The go-ahead runs by Winside were scored in the top of the seventh inning. After Gallop singled and Krueger was hit by a pitch, Magwire got another hit to drive in two more runs. Gallop then struck out three of the four Laurel batters in the bottom of the seventh inning to preserve the win.

On Friday, Winside was to play Tilden at home and then on Tuesday, June 13, they travel to Pender for a 7 p.m. contest.

track of all-meal costs and what was served and the exact hours each child spent at the Reeg residence. "We also had a big garden and I did a lot of canning. So I didn't like not being able to serve home-canned food," she said.

"Now, I can see how it became an advantage for me," Reeg said. She became involved in the food commodities program for day care providers. "That has helped out a lot."

Reeg looked upon the baby-sitting task as a "big responsibility."

"But I just took it in hand and didn't worry about it. I took the children with the understanding among the parents that I would love them but that they would have to mind me. If they didn't want me to discipline their children, then I wouldn't have taken them," she said.

She said the children "had to mind their manners."

THEY ALL turned out pretty well mannered, she said.

"And there has been no problem with any one of the parents. I've had lots of cooperation and help from the parents," Reeg added. Parents have invited her and Alvin (who have two children and six grandchildren of their own) to pre-school graduations, high school graduations, Confirmations and other joyous occasions — just like she was one of the family.

"It will seem kind of funny this fall when no children come here," Reeg said.

What kind of baby-sitter, or day care provider, would she recommend to working parents?

"They have to show a lot of kindness and love. Just by talking to the people you can tell whether they are interested in only the money part of it," she answered. "They better have a lot of patience and love or they better not try it."

She admitted that it was difficult to say no to parents wondering if her services were available. "There was always enough room for one more at the table, so it never made a difference," she said.

Her "children" have been treated to trips to nearby city parks, to Christmas parties with Santa Claus visits and to delicious food and sweet treats.

"I have a great love for children. I hope that they will all come back and see me some day," she said.

In the 1960's, Reeg charged 30 cents an hour (per child) for her baby-sitting services. That rate, since being a licensed day care provider, has gone up to at least $1 an hour.

Still, the amount of attention and dedication has stayed at the same level throughout the 29 years. "Without my husband and the help of God, I couldn't have done it."

THE IMPACT that Reeg has made on the lives of parents and their children is one reason that those who have benefited from her services have scheduled a private retirement party for her. That is scheduled for Sunday, June 25 from 2 to 4 p.m. at Grace Lutheran Church.

"I've enjoyed every year of it," she said.

"I guess having children around has kept me feeling young," she concluded.

Time to Reflect Back

Do you remember when coke was a soda pop and the word "party" was a noun, not a verb, and gas was 20 cents a gallon? If you answered yes, you graduated from your high school quite a few years ago. (Believe me, I speak from experience.) You also may be going to your high school class reunion this summer to talk about grandkids, your health, and oh yes, your foreseeable retirement. If your thoughts lately are toward a gold watch, a hand shake, and the amount of your social security check, you may also need to start doing some serious financial planning for your retirement income needs.

Let's think about retirement for a minute. Where would you like to spend those golden years...in a motor home, travelling at your leisure, or maybe a spot in southern Texas where the winters are more agreeable? In any case, you will need to plan. What will your expenses be? Will your Social Security check be enough? It probably will not be enough all by itself. It's not too late to start an investment program so that when your golden years do arrive, you won't be disappointed by the lack of green backs to enjoy your selected life style.

So this year, while you are renewing old acquaintances, consider your retirement income goals, then stop by my office at 416 Main Street in Wayne and let's plan a comfortable retirement income for your future.

A happy foster story

Foster children is not for the weak-hearted.

That was the headline in a Lewisville, Texas newspaper tied in with a May 28 feature about Joan and Doug Bartels. Doug is a 1968 graduate of Wakefield High School and he is a 1972 graduate of Wayne State College. His wife, Joan, is originally from Omaha.

They talked about their experiences of raising foster children, calling the first time they were foster parents to two boys as "real scary."

These boys came only with the clothes they were wearing and no shoes. They stayed just one week, but gave the Bartels an indication of what they were getting it to.

"You do it because you love the kids," said Joan. "You hear about the bad foster experiences. Foster parenting has a bad reputation. People think you're raking in the bucks. But you don't even break even."

She talked about how children are covered by Medicaid and that it is difficult to find some doctors who will treat the Medicaid cases of foster children. Being a foster parent requires being a real advocate for the kids, she said. It is not for the faint-hearted. "Until you sign the final papers you live in fear that you might lose that child," she said.

The couple consider the experience of foster parenting as one of the most rewarding things they've ever done. We're not going to save the world, but we are making a positive difference in a child's life," Joan said.

Joan said a lot of people wonder how you can give the children back. She said: "You don't love them any differently than if they were your own child. They need somebody and you make as big a positive impact on their lives as you can and hope they can carry that with them."

The Bartels have adopted one child who was a foster child in their home, and now they are looking to adopt another boy. They had been married five years, were both working and had no children when they decided to be foster parents.

"It's rewarding when the kids go back home. Foster homes can be a good experience for the kids...some normalcy and acceptance. And it is wonderful for us," said Joan.

It was a pleasant story to read and it makes one appreciate the work and dedication of foster parents and how they make an impact on the children who join their families.

We thank Martha Bartels (Doug is her son) for submitting the article to us.

Nondegradable six-pack rings will be abolished by Jan. 1, 1991. Also prohibited will be the sale of nondegradable grocery bags and trash bags, Jan. 1, 1992 and the sale of nondegradable disposable diapers by Oct. 1, 1993.

Corn will be used instead to make degradable plastics. Three hundred million bushels of corn could be used to make the plastics. That's great for the ag.

Someone in Wayne contributed a small article concerning the use of corn in another item — window wash.

Putting in some corn starch in a bucket of water is supposed to work pretty slick on windows or glass, according to the article.

Try it and see what happens.

For Your Information

Question: A. What is the approximate student enrollment goal for Wayne State College? B. Does Wayne State College have an informal timetable for accomplishing that enrollment goal?

Answer:

A. Wayne State College doesn't have an enrollment goal. The college is service-oriented. Service means that students who want an opportunity at a college education will get that opportunity.

If demand rises, the College will have to accommodate that demand and enrollment will rise. There are many traditional and non-traditional students who could succeed at Wayne State College and who will need to pursue higher education to prepare for the jobs of the future.

Wayne State College will grow to whatever size necessary to adequately serve the higher education needs of Northeast Nebraska.

The College's current enrollment is approximately 2,900 head count. That includes every student taking at least one course. The comparable full-time equivalent number (FTE) is approximately 2,250.

The FTE enrollment results from factoring in part-time students and their course loads and then converting the College's credit hour production into an FTE enrollment.

It is the full-time equivalent number that drives appropriations and funding levels.

By State Veterinarian Larry Williams

Livestock producers cautioned

Livestock movement regulations will continue to be strictly enforced even with increased activity due to the drought, according to State Veterinarian Larry Williams.

Dr. Williams said the number of livestock owners applying for permits to move cattle out of state has increased by 25 percent this year because of the difficulty producers have in locating feed. However, he said Nebraska producers need to be cautioned that the old rules still apply.

"The Department of Agriculture will cooperate as much as possible with livestock owners who are moving their herds," Dr. Williams said. "But keeping those herds disease free is still our number one priority."

DR. WILLIAMS cited the following guidelines for interstate transporters of breeding stock or foundation herds:

1. Know the testing requirements for the state of destination;
2. Know the requirements for returning livestock to Nebraska;
3. Be familiar with any unique disease conditions in the area where the herd is being moved, whether in state or out-of-state; and
4. Realize the concerns involved with moving breeding cattle in and out of feedlots.

Different levels of brucellosis in other states cause varying test requirements, Dr. Williams said. For example, moving livestock to and from South Dakota may require only one test, while a movement to and from Oklahoma may require three tests.

Dr. Williams urged every livestock producer moving herds to contact both his own veterinarian and a vet in the area where the herd is being moved. Any further questions can be answered by the Bureau of Animal Industry, which can be reached by calling the Nebraska Department of Agriculture Drought Hotline, 1-800-446-9903, or (402) 471-2351.
