Vision 20/20 plan promoted by Waymire

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing editor

Businessmen and concerned citizens of Wayne were given a "20/20" insight into future plans for highway transportation throughout Nebraska.

Charles Waymire, president of Transceiver Mid-America which is an Omaha communications firm, addressed the group about Vision 20/20 — a look ahead to what Nebraska's transportation needs will be in the year 2020. The informational meeting took place Monday at the Black Knight in Wayne.

According to Waymire, the Vision 20/20 plan will bring commerce and increased tourism through Nebraska because it addresses the need for tying Nebraska's road system to connecting points or major markets of Minneapolis, Kansas City, Denver and beyond from north to south, east to west.

Waymire said by 2020 Nebraska will have a minimum of 10 major locations where interstates and freeways will enter the state. Some of these include I-29 from Winnipeg, Canada; U.S. 20 across northern Iowa; U.S. 34 across southern Iowa; U.S. 36 across northern Missouri; U.S. 75 from Tulsa, Oklahoma and Topeka, Kansas; U.S. 26 connecting to I-25 at Casper, Wyoming and I-90 from Seattle, Washington.

"Of Nebraska's 10 largest cities, five are not served by interstates," Waymire told the group. "These are Norfolk, Hastings, Columbus, Fremont and Scottsbluff."

THREE OF the next 10 largest cities are also not served by interstate [Alliance, McCook and Beatrice] he added.

Few highways go across the entire state of Nebraska. "Much of the interstate traffic is bypassing Nebraska," mentioned Waymire.

In 1988, the Nebraska Legislature called for a highway "Needs Study" — a 20-year road plan proposed by the Nebraska Department of Roads. Basic plans are to widen existing roads that were established long ago through pioneer trails along the streams, according to Waymire.

The Needs Study will not address what transportation needs must be fulfilled for the future of Nebraska in drawing commerce and tourism to the state, he mentioned. "The pieces of the puzzle do not fit together in the overall state transportation system," Waymire said.

"Adding shoulders to the highways would not boost economic development in the state," he said.

Vision 20/20 addresses issues that will build the missing links in the state's ground transportation system along with marking the routes on signs and showing the routes on maps, creating highway construction zoning and allowing for building routes at the state borders.

MAJOR HIGHWAYS would be connected and traffic would run through Nebraska communities. For instance in this area a major corridor would connect Minneapolis to Denver by running through South Sioux City, Wakefield, Wayne, Norfolk, Columbus, Grand Island to Interstate 80.

"Vision 20/20 is not a massive interstate proposal. It is a master plan for highways," Waymire said. "It redesignated which highways should be designated as major highways in Nebraska to best serve the state for the next 30 years."

"Planning is important for smaller communities and smaller counties in this state. They will become the future population centers of Nebraska," he said.

Waymire said the Needs Study of the Nebraska Department of Roads indicates spending $0.8 billion for 500 miles of expressway.

Wayne kicks off sports season

Wayne High's lecture hall was the scene of this year's annual Sports Kick Off Tuesday night as parents and athletes in all sports attended as well as other community sports fans.

Ron Carnes gave the welcome and gave a few remarks on what he thought the high school athletes should aim for this year and among them was to try and at least match last season's success on the Omaha World Herald's all sports award.

The all sports award is a cumulative look at all sports in both boys and girls. Last season Wayne finished 14th out of the 64 Class B schools. Following Carnes address, Booster Club president Larry Carr said a few words on behalf of the Wayne Booster Club.

Lonnie Ehrhardt and John Murtough then gave the weight lifting awards for summer dedication to the weight room. There was two sets of awards, one for the All-State Award which consists of attending at least 90 percent of the time the weight room was open and the other was a Varsity Award for attending at least 70 percent of the time.

TO SCHOOL AND BACK: HOW TO MAKE EVERY TRIP A SAFE ONE

With the fast approaching "first day of school" in Wayne, some 800 children will travel to and from school. Almost every day, all those children make the trip safely.

To make that happen, your public schools have taken a number of steps to keep our children safe, on their way to and from school, as well as in school buildings and on school buses.

- * Children learn basic rules of safety from kindergarten on.
- * Playgrounds and buildings are monitored to prevent accidents and injuries.
- * School bus drivers are trained, and buses are carefully maintained to make school-provided transportation as safe as possible.

But the schools can't do it alone. We all share in the responsibility for keeping our children safe. Here are some ways you can do your part:

As a driver:

- * Be alert for children at all times, but especially during the hours when they are likely to be traveling to and from school -- that is, between 8:00 a.m. and 4:15 p.m.
- * Obey school speed zones.
- * Stop when you approach, from either direction, a school bus that has stopped to take on or drop off passengers. It is illegal to pass a stopped school bus that has its red lights flashing and/or its stop arm extended. The reason this is so important is that most children who are injured or killed in school bus-related accidents are struck within an area extending for about ten feet on all sides of the bus. In this area, sometimes called the "death zone," children cannot be seen by the bus driver, and they are often hidden from approaching drivers as well. Never take a chance on passing a stopped school bus.
- * Even after a bus has started moving, be cautious -- children might linger in the area.
- * Naturally, you obey all traffic laws -- speed limits, warning signs, stoplights -- but don't assume children will. Expect the unexpected -- a child running out into the street from between parked cars, for example, or dashing across an intersection in a misguided attempt to beat a red light.

AS A PARENT or guardian, make sure children in your care understand basic rules of safety. Although they learn these rules in school, the learning needs to be reinforced at home. Emphasize such rules as:

- * Never cross the street without looking both ways. The old rule, look right, then left, then right again, is worth repeating. And never go into the street except at a marked intersection.
  - * If children must walk where there are no sidewalks, teach them to stay well off the road and always walk facing traffic, so they will see and be seen by oncoming vehicles.
  - * Be sure children know the basic rules of school bus safety, especially those for getting on and off the bus safely. One of the most important is to walk "ten giant steps" in front of the bus before crossing in front of it. This keeps the child in sight of the driver, who can signal when it is safe to cross.
  - * Teach children to answer with a firm NO if a stranger offers to give them a ride (and never ask anyone to pick up your children who is not well known to them).
  - * Have rules about when children will get home from school. If they have permission to go to a friend's house, or some other place after school, you may want to have them call you when they get there and when they leave.
  - * Be sure children who ride bicycles know the traffic laws and safety rules for safe riding, and that bikes are properly equipped with lights and other safety features.
- To help you work with your child on learning the rules of safety, the Wayne Public Schools is offering two free brochures: "To school and back: Have a safe trip," which gives safety rules for walking or riding bicycles to school; and "To school and back: Have a safe ride," which gives safety rules for school bus riders. Brochures may be obtained at the elementary, middle school and high school principal's offices.

They also qualified to go to the DCA National Competition which will take place in December at Kansas City. In front from left are Angela Schnier, Tera VandeVelde and Lisa Ewing, all sophomores. In the back are Stacy Woehler (co-captain), Heidi Hansen and Deanna Nichols (co-captains), both seniors. Other cheerleaders are Hollie Trube and Beth French.

Data on homeless needed

The federal definitions of homelessness are being studied by staff members of Goldenrod Hills Community Action Agency and the Nebraska Department of Social Services. This is in preparation for the second annual Nebraska Census of Homeless Children and Youth, scheduled for Oct. 18.

The design of the count calls for the data gathering in the 12 counties of Antelope, Burt, Cedar, Cuming, Dakota, Dixon, Knox, Madison, Pierce, Stanton, Thurston, and Wayne to be coordinated by Pam Bergmann, Administrative Asstant for Goldenrod Hills Community Action Agency whose headquarters is in Wisner.

Also participating in the census will be the local school districts, county superintendents of schools, and the local offices of the Nebraska Department of Social Services. Workers will do a case-by-case evaluation to make a professional judgement as to whether a particular child or youth fits the federal definition of homelessness. The definitions are included in the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Act of 1987 (Public Law 100-77).

The federal law, which is intended to assure that homeless youngsters are not denied the privilege of attending public school, sets up several categories in which children and youth may be considered homeless. For example, children who have run away or have been sent away from their family homes may be considered homeless, depending upon the circumstances.

Agricultural migrants, under some conditions, may be classified as homeless. Children in foster homes, however, are not. And, whether living with or without their families, school-age youngsters will be counted as homeless if they are staying in temporary or inadequate facilities.

The general public can be helpful in bringing homeless children and youth to the attention of Goldenrod Hills Community Action Agency and the Department of Social Services during the 1989 homeless youngsters census on Wednesday, Oct. 18.

“BANK”
IT'S A TITLE
THAT MUST BE
NOT BORROWED.

We consider "bank" more than a word. We value it as a title that has to be earned...just like we earned the right to call ourselves "banks" in the first place. It's earned by becoming an important part of the communities we serve.

That means insuring your money to $100,000 through the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. It means providing every financial service you, your family, and your business need (and providing it with greater experience than anyone else).

It also means offering a large share of our resources to help the area we serve through loans of all kinds...to hometown businesses, to farmers and ranchers, and to families.

We could go on, but we think you see why we consider the name "bank" so special.

Savings and loans, "financial service centers," industrial loan and investment companies, and credit unions are not commercial banks. But you can't blame them for wanting to borrow the title.

Milkweed production favorable

by Charlotte Murphy
UNL Dept of Ag Communications

It was a bad year for crambe, but it could be a good year for milkweed. While yields from these alternative crops are not likely to be discussed in rural coffee shops, they are compared in agronomy staff rooms at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

UNL researchers and extension specialists plant crambe, milkweed, amaranth and mung beans statewide to study which varieties grow best in Nebraska and the cultural practices necessary to obtain a high yield.

The crambe and milkweed crops are in their second year of study. Last year's milkweed harvest was poor, but the outlook for August's harvest on the 200 test acres looks good, said Lenis Nelson, a crop variety and seed production specialist in the UNL Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Crambe performed just the opposite, with 1988 being the high-yielding year. Winterkill and low precipitation hurt the crambe fields this year, Nelson said. He said the 1988 crambe harvest was enough to provide for the foundation seed supply. There would be crambe seed available if the market increases and farmers want to plant crambe, he said.

These alternative crops may sound exotic, but they all have their potential markets.

Crambe's high erucic acid oil is used in industry because it can perform at extremely high temperatures. It also is used as a slipping agent in plastics -- it keeps plastic bags from sticking together. The high erucic acid is imported from eastern Europe. Milkweed is harvested for its flow and is just starting to find a market as a clothing insulator.

Unlike crambe, milkweed already has a Nebraska processor, Natural Fibers in Ogallala. Natural Fibers is developing a prototype product mixing goose-down with milkweed floss and has contact with commercial buyers. A team of UNL scientists are working on milkweed to study its qualities as a clothing insulator, the diseases that plague the plant, and the planting dates suitable across Nebraska.

Antihistamines: POPULAR ALLERGY MEDICINES

Although antihistamines seldom make newspaper headlines, these versatile agents are helping many persons cope with symptoms that occur with allergic reactions.

The first effective antihistamines were developed in France in 1945. A year later, diphenhydramine and tripeleennamine were introduced as the first antihistamines approved for use in the United States. Both are still in use today.

Antihistamines block the action of naturally occurring histamine. During an allergic reaction, histamine is released and causes swelling and redness of the eyes, nose, and in other tissues. According to many allergy experts, antihistamines work best when taken before allergic symptoms are fully established. Most antihistamines, including those available without prescription, tend to cause drowsiness.

The GOLDEN YEARS

By George Burns

Call them "crow's feet" or "laugh lines," wrinkles are often the first sign of aging. The extent and timing of wrinkles are determined by many factors. Heredity plays a part, but sun exposure is the most important determinant, the National Institute on Aging says. That's one reason why dermatologists recommend that everyone consistently wear high-protection sunscreens. Most sun damage that shows up in later years occurs before age 20. The ability of skin cells to repair themselves decreases as one gets older. In cases of severe sun damage, some patients have success with a prescription cream called Retin-A, the NIA says.

George Burns scheduled a "working celebration" of his 100th birthday, in 1996, in London. When booking a two-week show at the Palladium, he quipped: "If they pay me, I'll be there."

Remember When? 1931 -- Pitcher Laffy Grove of the Philadelphia Athletics was named the American League's most valuable player, and second baseman Frankie Frisch of the St. Louis Cardinals won the award in the National League.
