Wood carving — a hobby or a passion?

By LaVon Anderson
Assistant Editor

Wayne resident Bob Dolata calls his interest in woodworking a hobby. His wife Pat calls it a passion.

Since taking up woodworking nearly five years ago, Bob has developed his "hobby" to the point where he now conducts classes through the Northeast Nebraska Wood Carvers Club in Norfolk and takes his work to various shows throughout the midwest.

And although he has sold over 40 of his wood carvings throughout Nebraska and in various other states, including Illinois, Iowa and Washington, Bob still insists that the hours he spends in his basement shaping his wooden figures and ornaments are hours donated to his hobby.

"I just can't contribute the time it takes to call it a business," says Bob, 46, who has been employed as plant engineer at the Milton G. Waldbaum Co. in Wakefield for the past 10 years.

BOB WAS introduced to the art of wood carving just five years ago, in 1984, when he attended a woodworking class taught one Saturday by Wayne resident Mike Fluent.

"I was looking for an inexpensive hobby at that time," recalls Bob, adding that although wood carving is relatively inexpensive, it is time consuming.

By the end of that Saturday afternoon class, Bob had completed his first wood carving — a boot — which also took a blue ribbon that year at the Wayne County Fair.

Five years later, Bob says he still likes that boot, which has since been mounted by his wife Pat and is displayed proudly in the Dolata house.

"It was a good first carving," smiles Bob.

IN MAY 1984 Bob received a set of palm gouges (chisels used for wood carving) from Pat as a birthday present.

"That's when it really started," laughs Pat, adding that today Bob devotes anywhere from six to 36 hours each week to his hobby in a special area set aside in the basement of the couple's home at 1111 Lawndale Dr.

Often found working beside Bob is his son Michael, a second grader at St. Mary's School in Wayne who has picked up several wood carving tips from his dad during the past years.

The couple's daughter, Mary Pat, is a senior at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

IN 1984, BOB joined the Northeast Nebraska Wood Carvers Club after receiving and completing two patterns given to him by Mike Fluent, the man who had introduced him to the art of wood carving.

The patterns were relief carvings of a cowboy and an antique car (1931 Auburn). Bob describes relief carvings as projections of figures or forms of various depths from a flat background.

"The Wood Carvers Club is designed to offer wood carvers tips to improve their skill as well as introduce them to different wood carving techniques," explains Bob, adding that he was encouraged to continue with his hobby by members of the club after showing them his first relief carvings and being told he had excellent depth perception.

In addition to the Northeast Nebraska Wood Carvers Club, Bob is a member of the Mid-America and National Wood Carvers Associations.

TODAY, ALTHOUGH Bob still does relief carvings, he prefers to work with three dimensional figures in the round.

"They're much more intricate," explains Bob, displaying a small portion of his wood carving collection, including clowns, Santa Clauses, Indians, mountain men, dogs, bears and rabbits.

One of Bob's favorites, and of course the most popular this time of year, is the Old World Santa. "They just make me feel jolly," laughs Bob, adding that although it used to take him three nights just to carve Santa's eyes and nose, he can now do the same work in 20 minutes.

"Some people think Bob reveals his own facial features in his work," says Pat, adding that she too can see Bob in many of the pieces he has completed.

"I do feel that the Old World Santas project a feeling I have inside myself," says Bob.

Since beginning his Santa carvings, Bob and Pat have researched the history and customs of Santa Claus around the world. "Did you know," smiles Pat, "that it's good luck to have a Santa in your home all year long?"

Also during the holidays, Bob is busy carving various Christmas ornaments ranging in price from $5 to $15. "The smaller the piece you're working on the harder it is," says Bob, displaying a Christmas ornament which is a variation of the three wisemen and took him 12 hours to complete.

ANOTHER OF BOB'S more popular wood carvings, and one of the newest items, is a Welsh love spoon.

"Welsh tradition says that when a man fancied a particular woman he would carve her a love spoon," explains Bob, adding that the more intricately carved the spoon the deeper the love. "If the woman accepted the spoon it indicated that they would indeed be betrothed."

Bob has carved several love spoons for area residents as wedding or anniversary gifts.

"It's certainly something out of the ordinary that you can't buy in a store."

IN ADDITION TO his Old World Santas, Bob says his favorite carvings include an Indian woman, mountain man and Old World Russian.

"I'm especially attached to the Indian woman," says Bob. "When you can say 'I really like that,' then you know you're on the right track."

Bob feels that human faces, especially women, are most challenging to carve because of the muscle structure and facial proportions. "Masculine figures are easy," says Bob, "but women are very difficult to carve because of their fine facial features."

Bob adds that birds and ducks also are more difficult because of the intricacy of the feathers. As he speaks, Bob holds up a beautifully carved duck relief which took him nearly two years to complete.

Exchange student likes small-town atmosphere

By LaVon Anderson
Assistant Editor

Sixteen-year-old Helle Asmussen of Denmark can't believe she's already completed nearly one-quarter of her year-long stay in the United States as a foreign exchange student.

Helle (pronounced Hayley) arrived in the United States last August and is spending the year with the Lynda and Tom Turney family of Wakefield while attending classes as a senior at Wakefield High School.

"I wanted to go out in the world and see something new," says Helle, adding that she first wanted to visit Australia but changed her mind when told she would have to leave during the middle of her school year in Denmark.

"So I chose the United States instead," smiles Helle, adding that she isn't at all disappointed with her second choice and especially likes the small-town atmosphere of Wakefield.

"I REALLY LIKE Wakefield be-

cause people know each other and know they can trust one another."

Helle said she was pleasantly surprised by the openness of American teens. "Here," says Helle, "the boys can give girls hugs just to show they like them — even if they're not boyfriend and girlfriend. In Denmark, people would think something was wrong if they saw a boy hug a girl."

Helle doesn't like the Americans' fast-paced lifestyle. "Americans are always on the run," smiles Hayley, adding that during volleyball practice she never arrived home before 6 p.m. "That was just too long a day."

Although Helle did participate in tennis and gymnastics in Denmark, she said practices are only held once or twice each week and are not at all connected with the school.

HELLE COMES to Wakefield from Nordborg, a community in southern Denmark with a population of about 10,000 persons.

Her mother Anna is a housewife and her father Karl works as an apartment janitor. She has two brothers, 13-year-old Mikael, a student, and 20-year-old Ole, a carpenter.

While attending Wakefield High School, Helle is taking food and nutrition, English, family living, American history and typing classes.

Helle said school days in the United States are longer than Denmark with fewer breaks between classes.

"In Denmark, our school day runs from 8:10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Each class runs for 45 minutes, with 10 to 15-minute breaks between classes."

Helle also finds that having the same schedule each day different than in Denmark where classes are switched around.

IN DENMARK, students are required to attend nine years of school before entering gymnasium school for three years if they choose to do so.

"If a student wishes to attend gymnasium but doesn't feel he is prepared," explains Helle, "he can opt to attend 10th grade first."

Helle added that completion of gymnasium-school is required before a student can enroll in the university.

News in window fashions — blinds

Vertical blinds are a window treatment that is seen in a variety of settings. They offer a variety of looks from a sleek, contemporary look of aluminum or polyvinyl chloride blinds — to the softer, more traditional appeal of fabric.

Colors and new materials are available to create almost any look. To soften the look, a top treatment, such as balloons, pouf or a valance, is added in a fabric that matches or coordinates with the vertical blind. Other factors to consider when shopping include cost and durability, how well the blinds control light and provide privacy, and how they operate or draw.

POLYVINYL CHLORIDE is the least expensive material used to make the vanes. Aluminum is moderately priced. Because both of these durable materials are opaque, they provide privacy when the blinds are closed.

Fabrics used for blinds range from nonwovens to macrame knits. Fabric vanes can be free-hanging or inserted into a groove. Free-hanging vanes usually are coated with acrylic which prevents cuffing at the bottom. These are weighted so they do not flap. Woven and non-woven fabrics are more likely to wear along the edges than knits, which usually have a finished edge.

Consider how the window or door opens when selecting the type of closure or draw needed. And don't forget the view. The type of draw and the width of the vanes also will affect the extent of the view when the blinds are open.

Light control is another consideration. Polyvinyl chloride and aluminum vanes, as well as fabric vanes that are inserted into a groove, block out light when they are closed. In addition, some free-hanging fabric vertical blinds are made from fabric that is naturally opaque.

SOME HARDWARE gives better draw and closing capabilities. If you really want privacy, the vanes should be evenly spaced and overlap when the vertical blinds are closed.

Consider the care required when selecting blinds. Most require dusting routinely with a clean soft cloth or the brush attachment of a vacuum. For heavier soils blinds may be spot cleaned with a detergent solution.

Check the manufacturer's recommendations for maintenance before you buy.

Dolata

"I did complete it in 1988," smiles Bob, "but I do not have a passion for ducks."

FOR THE PAST three years, Bob has participated in a wood carving class held each summer at Doane College in Crete. There, nearly 300 wood carvers from across the country meet with top instructors from throughout the United States for a week-long seminar sponsored by the Mid-America Wood Carvers Association.

Since attending the week-long event, Bob says instructors have encouraged him to begin developing his own style of carving and to become "aggressive" with the wood.

"We all see things a certain way and we perceive them a certain way," says Bob, "but carvers often have trouble transferring that perception into the wood. When you get to a point where the wood says 'ouch,' then you're into it."

Bob says he is becoming more and more comfortable with developing his own style of carving and chuckles as wife Pat displays some of his earlier works.

"I can see the difference," smiles Bob, "and I can feel the difference."

WHEN BOB BEGAN wood carving five years ago he used "rough-outs" — blocks of roughly formed wood to be completed in detail by the carver.

Today, Bob designs many of his own pieces from polyform molding clay and makes his own roughs with specially designed machinery. "I'm really starting to move away from the patterned rough-outs."

And although some of Bob's carvings have been done from harder woods such as walnut, he says he prefers softer woods including butternut, catalpa and basswood.

PERSONS VIEWING Bob's works may be taken aback by the many beautifully painted carvings which Bob has completed, including the Old World Santas.

"People who are good carvers can destroy their product in the finishing process of painting or staining," says Bob, adding that he once fell into that category. "Many of my early carvings were literally destroyed in the painting process."

It wasn't until 1988, while attending classes at Doane, that Bob said everything fell into place and he began to feel comfortable with the painting process.

"Sometimes," adds Bob, "pieces such as the Old World Santas take longer to paint than to carve. Trying to get the correct skin tone is very difficult."

BOB FEELS THAT wood carving is becoming more and more popular after fading out for a while following the industrial revolution.

"Many people today want items that bear a personal touch," says Bob, adding that wood carving is unfortunately considered more of a craft than an art.

"Lobbying is underway to get the terminology turned around," says Bob. "I think the word craft originated because of the early whittlers. But when you see some of the pieces that are being produced today — it's definitely an art."

IN ADDITION TO carving for his own personal enjoyment, Bob has produced several pieces as gifts for family members and friends and has been commissioned for still more pieces, including the ever popular Old World Santa.

Many of Bob's carvings will be displayed at upcoming wood carving shows, including a show sponsored by the Northeast Nebraska

Wood Carvers Club on Nov. 18-19 at the Sunset Plaza in Norfolk. There, Bob will display wood carvings ranging in value from $25 to $275.

Bob says he enjoys taking part in the shows because he too can view the work of wood carvers from across the country.

"If you visit the east coast you'll see a lot of sea captains carved in wood," says Bob, "while carvings of cowboys and Indians are more popular in the midwest. And on the west coast," chuckles Bob, "well let's just say they're very imaginative."

BOB'S GOALS as a woodcarver include completing a full size human bust along with a complete nativity set.

"There's also a 15-week course in Denver which Bob would one day like to attend and another course in Switzerland where wood carvers work with the masters.

"Those," laughs Bob, "are long-term goals."

You get more for your money when you buy at home...

It is simple logic. Home area businesses give you the same or equivalent goods at the same or better prices with far less traveling time, cost and highway hazards.

And part of their profit on every deal with you is used to help you pay local taxes and to support all other good and useful community activities.

Sports Briefs

Reeder earns honor

WAYNE-Freshman Cory Reeder of Columbus has been named the NIAA District 11 Defensive Player-of-the-Week for his performance in Wayne State's 21-16 win over Benedictine last Saturday. Reeder, a 6-0, 200 lb. linebacker, recorded 15 solo tackles, eight assisted tackles and a quarterback sack for -14 yards. Reeder also picked-up a blocked-punt and ran 34 yards for Wayne State's third touchdown. This is the fifth time a Wayne State player has earned a player-of-the-week honor this season. It is the first award for Reeder.

Lueders earns All-District

WAYNE-Shelly Lueders of Wayne has been named to the NIAA District 11 Volleyball team. Lueders joins 11 other players on the first team. She was the only Wildcat named on the first team. Lueders, a sophomore middle blocker from Wayne, led the Wildcats in kills with 3.1 per game and blocks at 1.2 per game. Teammate Tanya Gappa earned honorable mention in the district balloting. Lueders earlier had earned all-independent honors in the district and was named to the second team in the CSIC.

All-Area teams

WAYNE-The annual Wayne Herald All-Area football and volleyball teams will be announced later this month. The selections for this year's teams are very difficult to choose because there was so many performances worthy of all-area performance but only 22 make the football first team and only 12 make up the first team of the volleyball all-area team. In Thursday's edition of the Wayne Herald there will be pictures of those who made all NAC from Wayne and the Lewis & Clark all conference selections. Late this month the preview of the winter sports season will come out with a look at all five area high schools basketball and wrestling teams.

Cats end year

The Wayne State volleyball team lost to Doane in the first round of the District 11 tournament to end the 1989 season with a 13-25 record.

The Wildcats had not had a losing season since 1985 when they finished 22-27. The last time Wayne State finished the season with less than 20 wins was in 1982 under the direction of Ernie Kovar when they ended with a 14-23-3 record.

The district playoff game against Doane marked the fourth straight year that the Wildcats have qualified for the district tournament. Wayne State will be without three seniors next season. Tanya Gappa, Stacy Zehr and Phyllis Boehmer were all starters on this year's squad. Gappa and Boehmer each earned four letters at Wayne State while Zehr was a three-year letterwinner.

The Wildcats best finish in a tournament this season came early in the year. They earned a second place finish in Wayne State's Early Bird Tournament, losing only to Hastings. Wayne State also finished second in the Graceland Invitational in Lamoni, Iowa.

New rec program

WAYNE-There will be a new city recreational basketball program in Wayne this year and it's called the "D" League. It is for players over 40 only. The league will be set up as a 3-on-3 league and will be played in half court contests on Wednesday nights.

Practice for this new league will begin on Wednesday, December 6 from 6:30-7:30 and a second practice session will be following at 7:30-8:30 p.m. There will be a total of four practice sessions before league play begins and teams will be picked after the last practice session.

The starting date for the league is January 3. There will be a donation fee of $20 for all players involved in city league basketball this season.

The Wayne Herald will release practice schedules and the new age requirements for all three other leagues next week.

Exchange—

Helle graduated from ninth grade before coming to the United States and will enroll in gymnasium when she returns to Denmark next July.

She would like to work in an area involving languages — possibly journalism.

HELLE HAS found it difficult adjusting from Denmark's metric unit of measure and says she sometimes gets tired of eating the same foods every day.

"Here," smiles Helle, "it seems like Americans eat hamburgers and pizza every day. In Denmark, we don't eat so many fast foods or so many fatty foods."

HELLE WILL remain in the United States until next July. Before returning to Denmark, she plans to tour the east coast with other students visiting here through the Youth for Understanding foreign exchange program.

Helle also plans to take trips with Wakefield students, including senior sneak day.

Although she was homesick when first arriving in Wakefield, Helle says it's better now. "I write a lot of letters home."

The Wakefield exchange student said she also would like to return to the United States one day. "If I have money I will," she laughs.

Scholarship fund established

LYNN TREVETT, MANAGER OF PIZZA HUT IN WAYNE, presents Linda O'Donnell, Goldenrod Hills representative, with a $300 check. The money will be used to fund a scholarship that will be given away as part of a high school contest promoting the Toys for Tots program. Goldenrod Hills is making plans to promote the high school contest (most toys donated among the 57 schools in the 12-county Goldenrod Hills service area). Great Dane of Wayne also has contributed to the scholarship fund and more businesses will be contacted by O'Donnell starting Nov. 10.

'The Nutcracker'

Ballet at WSC

Northeast Nebraska residents will have the opportunity to view the Tulsa Ballet Theatre's performance of the Christmas classic, "The Nutcracker", on Thursday, Nov. 30 at 8 p.m. in Rice Auditorium at Wayne State College.

"The Nutcracker is this year's featured presentation in Wayne State's 1989-90 Black & Gold Series, according to James Day, director of the Series.

"This is probably the world's most beloved ballet, and is in the repertoire of every major ballet company," says Day. "It has become an enduring classic."

"The Nutcracker" is a fairy tale ballet about happiness and about Christmas. To generations of ballet audiences, Christmas would not be Christmas without "The Nutcracker."

Today, dance critics and dance publications say that the Tulsa Ballet Theatre's performance of "The Nutcracker" is one of the most notable productions in the world.

In a separate performance, the Tulsa Ballet Theatre will present an educational program entitled, "How to Look at the Ballet", on Friday, Dec. 1 at 10 a.m. in Rice Auditorium.

This one-hour program will consist of lectures and demonstrations relating to the different aspects of ballet. Members of the Tulsa Ballet Theatre will give various solo performances, and the remainder of the program will feature excerpts from "The Nutcracker" ballet performed the night before.

A separate ticket will be required for each performance.

Tickets for the public, which are $5 for adults and $3 for high school age or younger, may be obtained by calling 375-2200 extension 517, or may be picked up at the Business Office located on the first floor of the Hahn Administration Building at Wayne State.

Insurance company places dollar-value on crop residue

An insurance company recently placed an $18 per acre price tag on crop residue, establishing it as an important farm asset, said a University of Nebraska agricultural engineer.

An Indiana farmer lost 12 acres of no-till cornstalks to an accidental fire and showed that this burned area yielded about three bushels of soybeans per acre less than his other acres, said Elbert Dickey. The insurance company agreed that he suffered a loss and paid him $224.

Dickey said the farmers used the market price of soybeans and receipts of the loss to determine the value.

This landmark case supports the findings of Dickey and other Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resource scientists. Dickey said research at the UN Rogers Memorial Farm-east-of-Lincoln shows that no-till can increase yields. The yield increases are because of moisture conservation, he added.

In 1989, 113 bushels of milo per acre were produced with no-till practices on the Roger farm, compared to 99 bushels with a traditional tillage system. No-till soybeans produced 49 bushels per acre compared to 38 bushels on tilled soil.

"Our research shows that residue is a commodity to be managed, not gotten rid of," Dickey said. "Residue is valuable."

Correction

A story and picture which appeared in the Thursday, Nov. 9 edition of The Wayne Herald, regarding new members inducted into the Wayne High School chapter of National Honor Society, incorrectly identified the parents of Glenn Johnson.

Glenn is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Johnson of Wayne, not Alan Johnson.
