Science workshop at WSC

NEBRASKA SCIENCE teachers and students gathered on the Wayne State College campus Saturday to attend science workshops featuring regional experts promoting interest in science and serving as positive role models for students. Goals of the workshop were to promote a cooperation between business, community and schools in showing the variety of ways science impacts lives; to present opportunities for careers; and to emphasize the need for ethical use of science and technology for America's future. Above, an experiment takes place in the WSC Chemistry Division.

Planetarium offers tales, simulations of night sky By Pat Murphy

After you enter the Carhart Planetarium and find a seat, the lights go out and above you, on the hemispherical ceiling screen is a simulation of the night sky.
Suddenly you are caught in the middle of a meteor shower with nowhere to run. Then, the lights come back on and you realize you are safe in your chair.
The above is a brief, example of what you might see if you attended a planetarium show on the Wayne State College campus.
For the past 20 years, Carl Rump, director of the planetarium shows and associate professor in math and science, has been actively involved with the planetarium and its shows.

"I like it because we fat the planetarium can do a lot of differ-ium and its shows.

"I like it because we [at the planetarium] can do a lot-of-different things — it's not always the same thing. There's always something new happening in the sky and we can incorporate that into our shows, Rump says.

"It also gives me a chance to dig a little more deeply in the subject," Rump adds."

THE PLANETARIUM routinely gives public showings on each Sunday of the month. It also gives "you can take several general classes and decide later on what field you want to specialize in."

Els added that she is still undecided about what she will do when she returns to the Netherlands next summer. "That's another real choice to repeat a war in the son I chose to spend a year in the United States," she said.

ELS SAID she wasn't particular about which area of the United States she would visit as an ex-change student. "I don't think that's the purpose of being an ex-change student," she added.

Els does find residents of the midwest to be very friendly.

Sports Editor

Twenty-four area football play-ers have been selected to repre-sent the Annual Wayne Herald All Area Football Team. Wayne led Area Football Team. Wayne led the way with seven representatives while Wakefield and state qualifier Laurel had five each make the squad while Winside managed four and Allen rounded out the squad with three representatives with three representatives.

The decision on who would be named to the all area squad was made by the Wayne Herald sports staff based on nominations from the area coaches. The are coaches include: Lonnie Ehrhardt, Wayne; Dennis Wilbur, Wakefield; Tom Luxford, Laurel; Mike Busselmann, Allen, and Randy Ciric from Win. Allen, and Randy Geier from Win-

Eleven of the 24 members on the team are repeat selections led-by John Schutte, Max. Kant and Kent Chase who make the team for the third year. Schutte is from Laurel while Kant is from Winside and Chase, from Allen.

Willy Gross, Rusty Hamer and Kip Mau from Wayne made the squad for the second consecutive year while Chris Loofe from Wakeyear while Chris Loofe from Wake-field makes the team-for-the second straight year. Rusty Dickens and Kevin Crosgrove from Allen also make the team for the second consecutive year.

Following is a synopsis of what the Wayne Herald sports editor

Willy Gross, Sr

Willy Gross, Sr.
Wayne-Carroll
Willy is one of the finest wide receivers in a long time in this area.
He had the capability of breaking a game wide open with his uncanny ability and deceptive speed to make a move on a defensive back. Incidentally, this is Willy's second straight year on the team.

team.
Craig Dyer, Sr.
Wayne-Carroll
Talk about speed, Craig was one of the fastest players on the Blue Devil team this season. Craig was an excellent defensive back and an excellent defensive back and was also a starting quarterback along with teammate Cory Wieseler throughout the season. Craig had the ability to bust an option play for long yardage on offense while shutting down the opposition with his big hits on defense.

Rusty Hamer, Jr. Wayne-Carroll

One of the finest running backs in all of Northeast Nebraska is Wayne's Rusty Hamer. The hard nosed running back was also a great defensive player for Lonnie Ehrhardt's Blue Devils and good news is that he'll be donning the Rive Devil uniform one more year. Blue Devil uniform one more year. Hamer's speed and balance en-abled him to enjoy big days during the season including a couple 200 yard plus rushing days.

Matt Bruggeman, Jr.
Wayne-Carroll
One thing Wayne didn't have to worry about this season was size and Matt Bruggeman had something to do with that. Bruggeman had a phenomenal year at his defensive lineman position and often times be forced opposing teams to times he forced opposing teams to change game plans in order to run away from him. Bruggeman will also return to the Blue Devil squad next season.

Neil Carnes, Sr.

Nell Carnes, Sr. Wayne-Carroll
Neil did a fine job all year long on both sides of line. On offense he was an all-conference performer opening up holes for running backs such as Rusty Hamer and Chris Fredrickson. On defense—he—caused—havoc—for—opposing-quarterbacks always getting heat on them. Carnes was also yerv on them. Carnes was also very strong against the run.

Jeff Lutt, Sr. Wayne-Carroll

peff was one of the top players at his tight end position in all of Northeast Nebraska if not the top tight end. Often times it looked as though Lutt took matters into his own hands as he came up with huge offensive plays after catching a difficult pass and breaking tackle after tackle until he reached payKip Mau, Sr. Wayne-Carroll

Mayne-Carroll
Mau enjoys a return trip to the all area team for his defensive accomplishments again this season. Mau could virtually be found on nearly every tackle of the football game in one capacity or another. Mau played linebacker for the Blue Devils and led the team in tackles. He was also one of Wayne's biggest inspirational players. biggest inspirational players.

Jeff Gallop, Jr.

Winside Jeff Callop was one of the area's finest two-way, players from his wide out position on offense and defensive back. Gallop was a member of the Lewis & Clark All tonference team for his 126 tackles on the season and eight interceptions. He also managed one fumble recovery and on offense he caught 13 passes for 241 yards for an 18.5 yard per catch average.

Shane Frahm, Jr.

Shane made the first team of the Lewis & Clark All Conference Football Team from his defensive line position but don't be surprised if he returns to the all area team next season at the running back position. He had 45 tackles this position. He had 45 tackies this year and had four quarterback sacks and two fumble recoveries. On offense he had 354 yards on 60 carries and notched 11 touch-

Winside

Mark made the Lewis & Clark All Conference Football Team for All Conference Football Team for his ability to play the center position. According to his coach Randy Geier, Brugger is an excellent center who comes off the ball and holds his blocks real well. Brugger will return to the Winside squad for one more year of eligibility.

Max Kant, Sr.

Max Kant, Sr.
Winside
One of the finest athletes around is Winside's Max Kant. On both sides of the bail Kant was one of the most feared players for all Winside opponents. There were game plans designed just to stop Kant on offense but Kant was very seldom stopped.

The senior rushed for 1.170

seldom stopped.

The senior rushed for 1,170 yards this year and averaged 7.4 yards per carry and scored 24 touchdowns. He caught 11 passes for 138 yards for a 12.6 average and averaged 24.7 yards a kick off return and 16.9 yards on punt returns. Defensively he had 88 tackles which was second to Jeff Gallop on the team. He also had one interception and one fumble recovterception and one fumble recovery.

Rusty Dickens, Sr.

"Mohave" as he likes to be called enjoyed another fine year from his defensive end position. Dickens played out his role as being the aggressor to the fullest and offensively, he played full back and was instrumental in Allen's first win of the season at Winside.

Kent Chase, Sr.

Kent Chase, Sr.

Allen
Kent is a very talented running back who also emerged this season as one of the premiere area punters with an average of over 40 yards per boot. Chase really never got untracked from his running back position this season but he still managed to climb over the 700 yard rushing mark.

Kevin Crosgrove, So. Allen

Allen

Although Crosgrove only has one more year of eligibility left for the Eagles, he is one of the finest defensive players in the area. It was not unusual for Crosgrove to average over 10 tackles a game and his ability to hit an opposing running back always made an impression on opponents.

Matt Tappe, Sr. Wakefield

pression on opponents

Wakefield made a switch at quarterback after the first couple games this year and they brought in Matt Tappe who's precision passing and ability to find open receivers when there wasn't any earned him a spot on the all area team. Tappe was simply phenomenal during the second half of the season in leading Wakefield to a 4-1 record in the last five games.

Mark Johnson, Sr. Wakefield

Every team has a guy who is known as the inspirational leader and Wakefield's leader was Mark-Johnson Johnson missed some time this season with an injury but still managed to lead the team in tackles. He was always around the ball and involved in the tackle in one capacity or another.

Chris Loofe, Sr.

Chris Loofe, Sr.

Wakefield
Chris is one of those players who will do anything you ask of him on the football team. Loofe was Wakefield's starting quarterback last season when they went to state and was removed from that slot this was to play receiver and slot this year to play receiver and running back and what ever else coach Dennis Wilbur wanted. What ever-position Loofe was asked to play he did very well.

Andy McQuistan, Sr.

Andy is another one of those excellent athletes who performs at the highest level at all times. Mc. Quistan often found himself double teamed from his tight end position because opposition was afraid he would literally hurt them if he was in the open and caught a pass and indeed when he did catch a pass, he did just that. McQuistan was also a very talented defensive back as well for the Trojans.

Cory Blattert, Jr. Wakefield

Cory Blattert was an outstanding defensive lineman in this-his junior season at Wakefield. Blattert put continuous heat on passing quarterbacks and was very good on defense against the run. No doubt that if Blattert continues his ex-cellence on the defensive side of the ball, that he'll return to the all area team next season.

Chad VanCleave, Sr.

Laurel-Concord For the first time in Laurel school history, this year's Bears made the state play-offs and one of, the major reasons was offensive running back Chad VanCleave. VanCleave was very deceptive to the opposition with his hard nosed style and uncanny speed. Van-Cleave was shut down in the Ran-dolph game in the state play-offs which had an effect on the out come.

Troy Twohlg, Sr. Laurel-Concord Twohig is another one of those versatile athletes who does what very attacks to win. Twohig played very well on both sides of the ball this year-and-he-shined-at his-running back slot when other teams were focusing on the stoppage of VanCleave. Twohig was always a hard worker and gave 110 per-

Matt Jonas, Sr. Laurel-Concord One of the major reasons Laurel One of the major reasons Laurel was so successful this year is because they had a lot of players who could play effectively on both-sides of the ball. Matt Jonas was another one of those athletes. Jonas had great hands from his wide out position and often came up with big plays for the Bears.

Daren Martinson, Sr.

Daren Martinson, 3r.
Laurel-Concord
Daren Martinson has quietly been one of the giants on the Laurel defense for the past couple of seasons. He and teammate John Schutte are the only ones who make a return trip to the all area team from Laurel. Martinson is not that big in stature but he had the ability to shed blockers and put some big time hits on the oppo-

Among all the athletes from all the area schools athletes from all the area schools there are three athletes that the sports department feels are worthy to be called area football athletes of the year. Max Kant from Winside, John Schutte from Laurel and Jeff Lutt from Wayne made the biggest impression on their teams and thus should be honored for it with a little more ink.

Tom Luxford, Coach, Laurel Area Coach of the Year

This year's area coach of the year is Laurel coach Tom Luxford. Luxford did a magnificent job this season leading the Bears to their first ever state play-off appear-ance. Luxford has a vast knowledge of the game and should be commended for his efforts this

Wildcats lose in openers

The men's and women's bas-ketball teams at Wayne State ketball teams at Wayne State opened up their 1989-90 cam-paigns over the weekend at differ-paigns over the weekend at different sites. The women took part in the Hastings Classic in Hastings Ne, and participated in two contests.

In the opener on Friday night the Wildeats-were-defeated by the host team Hastings, 85-66. Wayne State, in its first ever game coached by Mike Barry; started off the game very competitively. "The game was virtually even after the first ten minutes," Barry said. "Then we hit a dry spell and Hastings just kept scoring and by half time we were behind 44-23."

Wayne State played well in the second half according to Barry, out scoring the host team 43-41, but losing the game. Mary Holmes led the Wildcats in scoring with 26 points while Amy Wattier led Wayne State on the boards with. 13 rebounds.

"It was our first game," Barry said, "and we spent a lot of time trying to come up with the right combinations: I can't fault-the girlsfor these first couple losses because they are still trying to get used to the system. The only thing we can fault right now is time since I've only been here three weeks. Wayne State suffered 20 turnovers in the contest while Hastings had 17. Wayne State's biggest trouble on the night was connecting on field goals as the Wildcats could only muster a 27 percent shooting percentage.

ON SATURDAY the Wildcats played Doane College from Crete, Ne,"and things didn't go well from the onset as Wayne State was belted, 100-45. "Basically the story line was Doane played very well and we played poorly," Barry said. "We only shot 23 percent from the floor which was worse than the night before."

Wayne State suffered 20 turnovers in that contest as well while Doane had just 12. Lori Rath led the Wildcats in scoring with 14 ON SATURDAY the Wildcats the Wildcats in scoring with 14 points while Kae Burke led the team in rebounding with nine. "The biggest factor in the gamewas that Doane had 21 assists and we only had two," Barry said.

'Regis was a good pressure team and we just got down early and it forced us to play catch up for the rest of the game.' Aggers also noted that the Wildcats missed some easy-shotsearly in the contest which led to the early deficit. 'Usually early in the year your defense is farther along than your offense is,' Aggers said. 'Regis played very good defense and we played good pressure defense as well, but we were fighting from behind.'

FLEE THE FLU! We all iove having youngsters around, especially as the holiday season begins. But if you haven't had a flu shot, be sure to avoid being close to any children — and that includes your grandchildren — who may be carrying the flu.

Ms. Arrington faced the same decision-and-made the-same Arringon faced the same decision-and-made the-same choice to allow her husband to die with dignity. She also makes the point that if a loved one faces being put on life support systems and the decision is yours, you deserve to have all your questions answered fully and truthfully by the doctors in charge. She stresses the importance of talking over these possible eventualities with family members and signing a "living will," as her husband had done earlier. "I would have made the same decision," she said, "but (because of the 'living will') as it was, my husband helped me make (it)." MONEY WATCH: If you're a retired married couple with a comfortable income, you're among those who are being solicited to pick up a promised prize just for driving out to a development and listening to a spiel about buying property, or houses, or even into a time sharing plan. While not illegal, per se, the practice has resulted increasing numbers of complaints from people who say they felt pressured to make these commitments.

Never mind how old and honorable a product name ay be, it can still cost, you more than you expected to have to spend to pick up, say, cookware; or whatever, being dangled as the prize for your presence. The Farmer's Wife By Pat Meierhenry

We went from a record for cold on-Saturday-to-a-record-for warm on Sunday. This was one time I was just as glad not to have tickets to Nebraska's game — Memorial Sta-dium must have been cold.

I missed not being able to see the game on television. Mike had Notre Dame-Penn State on the tube and NU-OU on the radio and managed to go to sleep! I think I'm just as glad that Colorado will have to take on the Irish on New Year's Day. I fear the Huskers will have their hands full with Florida State.

I've watched Gerri Gdowski since his high school days, when he burned up the track and am per-sonally very pleased to see him so successful. The player who really gets my vote, though, is Kevin Walker, the deaf defensive player. He certainly compensates for his Speaking of which, we caught a show this evening called Life Goes On, featuring an actor with Down's. What a heart-warmer.

GETTING BACK to football, good old Nebraska Wesleyan played Chadron in NAIA play-offs. And my friend Lee, the kicker, hit a 56 yarder to set a school record and win the game in double overtime. Looks like another pan of time. Looks like another pair or brownies coming up. -- Remember my plan to recruit farmers to nursing? The dean of the school of nursing at NU Med

Center has been making a real ef-fort for this. And it's already paying Omaha. I've already told you how impressive these copter nurses are — they know everything! Well, on Wednesday, there were three; all male! Two had grown up on farms. I didn't have to lift. They understood all the mechanical devices. It was wonderful. And I was so excited to see my dream working. dream working.

It's time to thaw the turkey and bake the pies. Thursday marks the beginning of the 1989 holidays. This week is also national Family Week. We're celebrating in special way by acquiring a new member of the family. One thing I know for sure, it it is much easier to be the mother of the groom. Guess I'll enjoy it while I can.

My neighbor Jan was just here with my dress. The Big Farmer will be wearing a tux. The kids voted for pizza for the prenuptial, which is easy — just call Val's. Mostly, we're praying for good weather.

As the decade draws to a close, I'm thankful for: friends and family: a church, and the freedom to worship in it; health; crops in spite of drought; love and laughter; and the fact that I am still a farmer's wife: there was one awful year when we thought we might be changing occupations. changing occupations.

The Library Card

This column will be written two times monthly to inform the Wayne area as to what types of reading material and other items are available at the Wayne Public Library.

"Webster's 9th Collegiate Dictionary" defines almanac as 1. a publication containing astronomical and meteorological data arranged according to the days, weeks and months of a given year and often including a miscellany of other information; 2. a useful annual publication containing statistical, tabular and general in-

While most of us here in the Midwest have little need for tidal charts and star charts to navigate by, some of us still look to "The Old Farmer's Almanac" for weather forecasts or for the proper time to plant crops according to the phases of the moon. "The Old Farmer's Almanac" also has marvelous little articles, recipes, bits of history, anecdotes and pleasantries among other information. The Old Farmer's can be found in the periodical rack in the library, but can be used only in the library.

"The World Almanac and Book of Facts 1989" is probably the best known general almanac in the library, with a wealth of history, statistics, chronology, information about famous people, entertainers and government figures. The list of facts covers many areas.

If you need a fact or statistic about anything, this is a good place to start. You will find the latest copy on the Reference shelf, to be used in the library only. Older copies may be

The 'Dow Jones-Irwin Business and Investment Almanac 1989' is a new almanac, just received. It is full of surveys, general business and economic indicators, historical data, tax information, bonds and stocks, real estate investments and a business information directory by state. This almanac is also found in the Reference section and may be used only in the library.

"The 1988-89 Nebraska Statistical Book" is a collection of data on demographic, social, physical and economic aspects of the State. It contains information on agriculture, manufacturing, min-ing and business, finance and insurance, education, transportation and more. This is found in the Nebraska Reference section and may be used only in the library.

Board members meet

By LaVon Anderson Assistant Editor

Members of the Educational Service Unit 1 board of directors met less than an hour last Tuesday night at ESU 1. headquarters in Wakefield and took action on three items of business.

Board members voted to participate in a Fax grant which will link together all Educational Service Units in Nebraska and the State Department of Education.

Administrator Rod Garwood said cost of the Fax program will be shared equally by the service units and State Department of Education.

BOARD MEMBERS Tuesday night also approved a request by Administrator Garwood to apply to the state for accredited status even though three staff members are not properly endorsed at the present time.

Carwood said two of the three staff members will hopefully re- to ceive their proper eneprsements by Jan. 1. He added that ESU 1 is allowed one deviation.

In other business, board members voted to accept the 1988-89 audit of ESU 1.

Remembering early military technology

New-fangled military technology abounded at the turn of this century. Airplanes, dirigibles, armored motorized vehicles and submarines were just a few of the advances which amazed, and in some cases, confused the civilian public. The Florence Nebraska Tattler reported this amusing series of misunderstandings in 1915.

"W.B. Vreeland went forth to fish in the river north of town, Fri-day. Somebody or something 'rocked the boat,' as President Wilson and Secretary W.J. Bryan would say. The boat upset and deposited Vreeland in the tawny flood.

"He managed to mount the up-turned boat and sit astraddle of it. Thus he rode in comparative comfort in the direction of New Orleans like a veritable 'horse marine.

The strange craft soon arrived opposite Florence. An inhabitant discovered it. He told another and these two told two more until a great crowd was gathered on the bank.

Vreeland and the boat were so far out that no one recognized him. The man who first discovered the sight felt that he had a sort of title to it. He accordingly explained to his fellow citizens thus:

"Feller I'm Fort Omaha tryin' out a new submarine." The news spread quickly.

REBATES MAY VARY DEPENDING ON EXTENT OF INSTALLATION

Dispose of Patches Carefully

A few suitable medicines are becoming available as pathces that are applied to the skin. A small amount of medicine is slowly and reliably released through the skin into the bloodstream. Nitroglycerin (for angina), scopolamine (for motion sickness), estrogen (for a variety of purposes), and clonidine (for blood pressure and other purposes), are available as patches Such patches should be discarded carefully when removed from the skin.

A two-year-old girl experienced a toxic reaction after eating clonidine from a patch. She apparently removed the patch from a wastepaper basket and chewed it. The medicine had been prescribed for her mother as an aid in smoking cessation. Parents and grandparents should store all patches out of the reach of children and should dispose of patches where children cannot obtain them.

The Little Things

The father called all to the table and said: "Let us bow our heads. We will not partake of this meal until all proper thanks are said."

He began the prayer, saying what he was grateful for — the good harvest, good health allowing him to farm one year more.

Mother was overjoyed, she said, that the family could gather together. She prayed that the spirit of the day would continue on forever.

Sister was glad about the blue ribbon she earned at the county fair. She said: "Thank you, too, most of all for parents that really care."

And brother said he was thankful that he passed his Algebra test; for friends who lent a helping hand when things weren't going the best.

And little one, barely five years old, summed it up best of all: "I never won a thing. I have no money I can't do much 'cause I'm small.

"But one thing for sure I have. Something you can't really see. I feel it all the time. It's the love you give to me."

Thanksgiving is very special. Still, it carries more meaning yet if one counts among the many blessings those 'little things' so easy to forget.

States like California, Arizona Texas and Florida, which have attracted large numbers of foreign nationals, are fikely to gain increased representation in the House, based at least in part on a non-citizen population. This innon-citizen population. This in-creases—the likelihood that states that have lost population or are not growing will lose House seats. Predictions are that Illinois, lowa, Kansas, Michigan, New York, Chio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia will lose House seats. Several other states may also lose seats.

I am cosponsoring a resolution that opposes the inclusion of illegal aliens in the 1990 census for purposes of Congressional reapportionment, and I will be alert to any other measures that address this problem.

Legislature gives recognition to Siouxland area

During the recent Special Session, the Nebraska Legislature joined others in recognizing the Tri-state Siouxland area for their responsiveness to the Flight 232 crash this summer.

The recognition came via a resolution sponsored by Senator Jerry Conway and co-sponsor by Senator Elroy Hefner. The resolution was unanimously passed by the Uni-

During his presentation to the Legislative body; Conway described the communities actions as "phenomenal" and felt that it was fitting to 'communicate to Nebraskans and our friends in Iowa and South Dakota how proud and appreciative we are." Slouxland has been honored and recognized nationally for their reaction to the disaster with the most recent award being the Midland Commu-nity Spirit Award presented by President Bush at the White House, "We proved that when disaster strikes, we are capable of re-sponding immediately with the necessary emergency medical support. That in itself was impres-sive, but the nation then saw what Midwest people are really made of when they unselfishly denated time, money, clothing, shelter, professional services and emotional support to the survivors and fami-lies during the days that followed," Conway told his fellow lawmakers.

Conway told his reflow lawlinkers.

Conway concluded by saying, the spirit of compassion, generosity, and support shown by this community should be applauded.
It is an example of the goodness and compassion that makes me proud of my home community.

Rump tells of experiences in West Germany

The following article was submitted by Martin Rump, who is a Congress Bundestag Scholarship winner and is spending this year as a foreign exchange student in West Germany.

It can probably be said without much fear of doubt that, upon arriving in Germany, the most striking observation is its obvious connection to the past. As soon as a visitor steps off the airplane and glances at a city skyline, his eyes are immediately drawn toward the tall spires of ancient cathedrals or the carvings framing

His thoughts speed centuries back in time.
In practically every town, there is something of historical significance, whether it is a simple grave for a 14-century farmer or a baron's castle. It is this connection to the past that makes Cermany so intriguing for tourists. Travel brochures rarely leave out the imposing walls and turrets of a castle or the intricate gold work within a baroque church.
To stop here, however, would be telling only half of the story. Cermany is a country with as many connections to the future as to the past. Alongside those gothic cathefals are towering sky-scrapers, high-rise apartment buildings and television towers. Industries of all kinds can be found in any major city. Scientific and industrial research are being undertaken on a vast scale. Cermany is working in every area to remain one of the world's most successful nations.

Whether one looks at Germany as a fascinating museum or as a thriving democratic society, one thing always remains constant — its people. It may be surprising to discover that the citizens of Germany (60 million of them) are pretty much like Americans. The amusing tourist view of the typical beer-drinking, bolsterous German clad in "Lederhosen" and wearing a felt hat is not only false, but can also be offensive. In fact, many German young people have a slight reverse prejudice of Americans — they Lhink all Americans believe that all Germans personify the "felthat" stereotype.

At the city council's Nov. 14 public hearing on the liquor license request, one bar owner protested against the liquor license request, saying that there are already 16 businesses in the Wayne vicinity that offer liquor and beer and that there are 13 places where people can get alcohol on Sunday.

The bar owner (Ken Jorgensen of the 4th Jug), said he believed it was time for the city council to consider controlling the granting of the liquor license. "People will be able to buy beer or liquor door to door to door along Main Street" if the requests are not controlled, Jorgensen said.

THE CITY council took into consideration the following criteria in making their decision on approving or denying a liquor permit:

WSC considered critical to future

By Chuck Hackenmiller Managing editor

Wayne State College is critical to the future of northeast Nebraska. And raising the level of higher education and the quality of life will make the region attractive for economic development.

Those words were echoed by Dr. Donald Mash, president of Wayne State College, during an "appreciation breakfast" Tuesday morning at the college - provided property.

The breakfast kicked off the The Dreakfast kicked off the Foundation's annual community business drive. "If it was not for your contributions and private donations, we would have a very different operation outlook at Wayne State College," said Mash. "The business community has been very helpful."

Quality instructors and student support services are very strong features at Wayne State right now. However, Mash said public service plays an integral part in what the college is doing. "We are northeast Nebraska's state college," he said.

MASH ANNOUNCED that filled for director of the college's Bureau for Community and Eco-nomic Development. The bureau is being created to provide informa-tion and assistance concerning community and economic devel opment to northeast Nebraska communities. Daughter-in-law, granddaughter featured in Good Housekeeping

The December issue of Good Housekeeping magazine features the daughter-in-law and grand-daughter of Wayne residents John and Marcella Hochstein.

Hochstein.
Linda Hochstein and her 17-year-old daughter Amy of Midlothian, Va. received a motherdaughter professional make-over and photo session with Good Housekeeping and appear in the December issue as the "make-over of the month."
Linda and Amy are the wife and daughter of John and Marcella's son Ron, owner and chartered financial consultant for Comprehensive Financial Planning Corporation of Richmond, Va.
Ron was graduated from Wayne High School in 1965 and 'attended Wayne State College. He served in the U. S. Army in Vietnam and Germany and worked for Ozark Airlines before opening_his own company.

IN A RECENT story about Linda and Amy which appeared in their local newspaper, Linda said she originally wrote to Good Housekeeping and sent photos of her daughter in hopes that the magazine would feature Amy as a surprise for her 17th

"Amy is a really super kid," said Mrs. Hochstein in the newspaper article. "She's always been kind and thoughtful. I wanted to do something really spe-

Linda added that she has read Good Houseken ing ever since she got married. "I figured since Amy was special, her birthday surprise should be special. So I wrote the magazine."

Linda sent a letter and pictures of Amy last January. In early April, she received a call from the magazine's assistant beauty editor asking if Linda would send pictures of herself as well. Since Linda and Amy have such a special relationship, Good Housekeeping asked them to make it a mother-daughter affair.

LINDA AND AMY left for New York on Aug. 7. Following a day in New York, including dinner with the Good Housekeeping beauty editors, Linda and Amy started their 6 1/2 hour make-over session at 9 a.m. the following morning.

Mrs. Hochstein's long hair was cut to just above the shoulders. Her hairstyle is featured in the magazine's how-to pictures, while the photographs of Amy show make-up techniques.

The beauty-editor-picked their-wardrobe from a rack of available designer clothes. Amy selected their accessories.

SELF CARE FOR SENIORS - HOW SAFE? We sometimes forget that in spite of a medical delivery system that is becoming more technological all the time, there are people who continue to rely on self-care measures. Many of these folks tend to live in more rural areas where the tradition of self-reliance remains strong. However, tradition aside, there are concerns about seniors who — either because they can't afford proper medical care, or who don't like going to doctors for any reason — may have serious problems that can get worse without medical attention and, very-likely, won't improve with their self-care methods. Cancer, cardiovascular conditions, eye problems, diabetes, mental deterioration are some of the conditions that should not be left either untreated or to self-treatment. It's important for those of us who know such folks to persuade them to go to the doctor. However, tradition aside, there are concerns about

MEDICAID MEDICO CHEAT SHUT DOWN: New York State struck off a doctor from its Medicaid rolls for being, as one official said, "the Dwight Gooden of Medicaid prescriptions; he had an arm that wouldn't quit."

The doctor practiced in-low-economic areas, but his poor patients made him a very rich man, He prescribed unnecessary medications, ordered unnecessary tests, and pocketed the large Medicaid reimbursements.

Putting aside his larcenous acts, giving people medicines they not only didn't need, but which could hurt them—and subjecting them to the stress of unneeded tests is the greater crime for which the punishment should be determined accordingly. determined accordingly.

Self-Care with OTC Medicines

The sale of OTC (over-thecounter) medicines con-tinues to increase along with the public's interest in self-care. Much of the emphasis on self-care seems to come from the increased cost to go to the hospital or to see a health professional. Many conditions can be treated less expensively through selfcare. In addition, many people like to take care of their own health problems. Much information is available to help in the care of the less serious health problems.

The U.S. Food And Drug Administration (FDA) is promoting self-care by switching a number of prescription-only medicines to OTC status. These are medicines that the FDA has deemed to be safe enough to be used routinely without the supervision of a physician. Former prescription-only medicines which are now available to consumers as OTCs include antihistamines for colds and hay fever symptoms; low-dose steroid creams and ointments for skin irritations; two antihistamine sleep-aids; a topical medicine for athlete's foot; and an effective anti-diarrhea medicine. At least 12 prescription-only medicine ingredients are being mentioned as potential OTC

Three members of the Dog Creek 4-H Club went on a project tour Nov. 19 to the Desoto Na-tional Wildlife Refuge. Attending were Jeremiah and Jesse Rethwisch and Ryan Dunklau, who are enrolled in the bird be-havior 4-H project. They saw a bald eagle and between 200,00 and 250,000 birds, many of them

Canadian geese. Club members met Nov. 5 in the Jon Rethwisch home following the Wayne County 4-H Achieve-ment-Program. Ryan Alleman called the meeting to order, and members answered roll call with their middle name. Ryan Dunklau reported on possibilities for the club Christmas party. The club voted to go bowl-ing on Dec. 1 at 6:45 p.m. at Melodee Lanes in Wayne.

A goal was set for every member to give a speech or demon-stration during a meeting."

Dog Creek 4-H Club members also met during October in the Ron Magnuson home. New officers were elected and include Ryan Alleman, president; Jeremiah Rethwisch, vice president; Tony Hansen, secretary; John Magnuson, reasurer; Ryan Dunklau, news re-porter; and Jesse Rethwisch, flags. Home Health Care Week celebrated National Home Health Care Week Is Nov. 26 to Dec. 2. The following article was written by Pat Melerhenry, a local Home Health Care nurse.

The local Home Health Care office is located at Providence Medical Center. The Wayne Home Health Care nurses in-clude Terri Munter, Kay Burrell, Kathy Geler and Ann Witkowski.

In September, the Big Farmer and I were married 29 years. As in every marriage, I have considered divorce and murder too. But this year, on my anniversary, my patients reminded me again of what marriage actually means.

I am a home health nurse and I've taken lessons regarding marriage from my patients before. The traditional vows say, "For better or worse, in sickness and in health, till death do us part." My patients model this for me every day.

My day started at a home where the husband has had a cancer. He's had lots of pain and now has a morphine pump that needs a refill. For nine months he has slept on a couch in the living room and his wife has been nearby on the other couch. She has given him his medications, tried to cook to tempt a very poor appetite and worried about elimination problems.

"You know," she muses, "we take so much for granted when we are well, like sleeping together and having breakfast together. He used to make breakfast while I got ready for work."

Before I leave, I administer hugs which are just as important as

The next patient needs assistance just to get out of bed, thanks to a spinal cord injury over 20 years ago. Her husband has managed the details of her care until a few months ago when illness forced him to ask for help.
"It's important for both of us to keep our life as normal as possible," she tells me. The house is spotless, the kitchen adapted to a wheelchair and the attitude is totally positive.

"I was so afraid I would have to go to a nursing home," she confides, "thanks to you people, I can stay right here."

I think I was supposed to have the lessons about marriage to-tally reinforced that day. My third patient was a lady with Parkinson's disease. In this home, again, the husband is the caregiver. He bathes, catheterizes, cooks, feeds, cleans, launders and now cares for an area of skin that is broken down from pressure. Something they have enjoyed for years is a visit to Daylight Do-nuts. He simply picks her up, puts her into the car and then helps her eat the doughnut.

As long as I continue nursing, I never take good health for granted. But it has been in home health care that I am reminded about marriage, "For better and worse, in sickness or in health, till death do us part."

Keeping families together as long as possible and as comfortably as possible is a very healthy thing to do.

The GOLDEN YEARS By Sel Hause

There-wasn't-much interest byemployers in 1976 when a seminar on hiring older workers was offered in Westchester County, just north of New York City.
Twelve years later, representatives of 100 businesses turned out for a similar seminar scheduled by the county's Office for workers—has—increased—because fewer young people are entering the work force, and employers have learned to appreciate what older workers bring to their jobs. "Employers who have hired older workers see them as stable, reliable, and careful, with high morale and a strong commitment to the and a strong commitment to the organization," an Office of the Aging official says.

care about the success of Wayne State College. But some still need to be reminded, he said.

Mash talked about the "resource problem" in meeting the operating budget needs. Wayne State, as a public institution, receives public support. "We are poorly funded in the scheme of things," Mash said.

CHADRON State College, he said, receives $1,500 per full-time equivalency (FTE) student more than Wayne State. Peru State College receives about $800 per FTE student more. He said Wayne

State College spends approxi-mately $4,500 per FTE student. A study was recently completed to indicate—where Wayne—State College stood in comparison to 13 other schools that were similar in role in mission, geographic setting, graduate programs and other areas. "Of the 13 schools in our peer group, Wayne State College sits

Liquor-

Taxpayers, he said, should be proud of what they are getting for their tax dollars from the state

Yet Wayne State has received only about 7 percent of total capital construction monies that have heen given to state college. that have been given to state col-leges during the past 15 years. "That has got to be changed,"

Mash said.

He said Wayne State College badly needs a new business building. Connell Hall needs to be renovated. An architect firm has been contacted, Mash said, to draw up a Physical Master Plan for Wayne State.

"The Foundation is looking at a major fund raising project. We need to do that to generate resources," Mash mentioned.

"WE NEED to move with our strengths into the next five to 10 years, or into the next century. We need to address our needs now.

Day finds Black & Gold as worthwhile, rewarding

Whenever a big-name performance happens on the Wayne State College campus, it is a safe bet that James-Day played an important role in bringing it to Wayne.

For the past 10 years Day has directed the Black & Gold Series, a Wayne State College organization that has been bringing quality performances to Wayne for the past 30 years

In the last 19 years, over 100 programs have been brought to Wayne State featuring internationally-known speakers, theatre performances, solo musicians, dance groups and specialty acts — such as Phyllis Diller and the one.

According to Day, the goal of the Black & Gold Series is a simple

"We offer the college commu-nity and the area a chance to see choice fine arts programs of all dif-ferent types and classifications. In other words, we are providing a type of public service by giving the community a chance to see things they might not get the chance to see otherwise," Day said.

THE NEXT Black & Gold Series event is the Tulsa Ballet Theatre's performance of The Nutcracker, which is scheduled for Nov. 30 at 8 p.m. in Rice Auditorium on the Wayne State College campus. After booking the Tulsa Ballet Theatre to perform, Day found out the theatre group was selected as one of the four best dance groups in the United States and had ap eared on the nationally televised how "Sunday Morning."

Day's relationship with the individual performers once they arrive at-Wayne-State College is that of a go-between. It is his job to make sure things run smoothly and that the performers get everything they need for a fine performance

Day was quick to point out that many different departments assist him when performers appear at Wayne State. He cited the upcoming ballet as an example.

ACCORDING to Day, contributing Wayne State departments-include theatre, which-will prepare the stage for the performance; art, which has provided the banners hanging in the windows of the Val Peterson Fine Arts Building; and physical education, music and a number of other departments. All of these departments contribute to a successful perfor-

A lot of work goes into each performance_that_appears_at Wayne State, and sometimes this can cause problems for Day.

"We've had a lot of close calls and problems we've had to solve at the last minute. Weather scares us to death and even picking the dates for the program is a headache because we don't want to conflict with other college ac-tivities," he said.

ALONG with the headaches come the rewards and for Day — one thing makes all the hard work worthwhile.

*Seeing the curtain go up and hearing the reaction of a satisfied audience after the performance," Day said, is all he needs to know his work and that of others has been appreciated.

appreciated. In the years to come Day hopes the Black & Gold-Series can be assuccessful as it has been in the past, and that more and more people take advantage of the opportunities to see what programs are brought in.

"I think most people have arrived at the stage where they are tired of being couch potatoes, and there is nothing that takes the place of going to anything live." There is excitement and electricity there that you can't get any other way," Day said.

The remaining Black & Gold Series events after the performance of The Nutcracker include an encore performance by the Tulsa Ballet Theatre entitled "How to Look at the Ballet," which will be an educational program about ballet; a performance by the Jazz duo of Mitchell and Ruff in February (a return performance by the oldest jazz duo still together and touring the United-States); and a performance by I Solisti Italiani, a chamber orchestra, in March.

Snow Ballet

Each year about this time when the weather turns to cold many wait with anticipation for the snow ballet to unfold.

Winds from the north create the chilling, howling sound, moving along the autumn leaves that gracefully whirl around.

And the bare tree branches appear like arms swaying to and fro. The tone is set for the entrance of the prima ballerina of the show.

Lightly the snow leaps onto the stage; each step is hardly heard. The action captivates the audience as a mix of mystic and magic is stirred.

The snow twists and turns floating like feathers from the sky. Soon the place is brightly decorated with a white blanket piled high.

Once the orchestra music has faded and the snow's peaceful presence is felt, what's left is just a lasting impression a memory that will never melt.

the twelve member states.

"I am very pleased to be involved in this way," Conway said.

"The Council is a catalyst for excellence in all facets of state government. I look forward to being in a leadership position as the Midwestern States confront the difficult issues facing us."

Representative Jane Barnes, Chicago, will serve as chairman for the current year and will be succeeded by Conway as chairman the following year. Conway has been involved with the Council of State Governments since taking office in 1985. He has previously served on the Intergovernmental Affairs Committee; chaired the Economic Development Task Force; and has served on their Executive Committee. The Council provides information and assistance to state officials in addressing regional problems.

"Representing a district that borders two other states has taught me to better understand the value in States working to-gether for the betterment of the region," Conway added. Senator Conway represents Nebraska's 17th Legislative District which includes Dakota, Dixon, and Wayne Counties. He is serving in his -second four-year term in the Nebraska Unicameral.

NAMES SOUGHT

During the week of Nov. 12-18, the Allen Education Association gave reports of the roots and future of the Allen school system, using the theme. "Learning and Liberty-Our Roots, Our Future."

The committee compiled many interesting statistics, which were used in a variety of ways to make the public aware of the importance of education in the community.

Research is underway to compile Research is underway to compile a list of three and four generations who have attended the Allen school Lists of families compiled to date are posted in the Cash Store, Security State Bank and Allen Senior Citizens Center, and persons with additional names to add to the list are asked to contact Joy Bock.

The oldest known living graduate of the Allen school is Zabie Krause Metzler, a resident of Hillcrest Care Center in Laurel. Zabie was born Nov. 15, 1899 and was graduated from the 11th grade in 1916. She taught at several rural schools, received her certificate of teaching from Wayne Normal School, and taught three different times for a total of 12 years in the Allen school system. Her total teaching career lasted 38 years. Her niece, Doris Troth-Furness, also taught at Allen for 12 years and her great nephew, Gary Troth just completed his 12th year of teaching at Allen.

The second oldest graduate is Marie Gaughram Bellows, who was accommodated.

Postal service celebrating anniversary of postmaster

Some things never change. This fall, the Postal Service celebrates a unique bicentennial-the 200th anniversary, of the appointment of the first Postmaster General under the Constitution of the United States.

On Sept. 26, 1789, George Washington selected Samuel Osgood of Massachusetts for the job. Osgood, though hardly a household name now, managed to out-politic the sons-in-law of Benjamin Franklin and Samuel Adams in the context for the in the contest appointment. for Bus, before that, the very existence of a national postal system was the subject of debate in the was the subject of debate in the newly established Congress. Then, as now, there were advocates for allowing private enterprise to de-liver the nation's mail, and private firms ready to take the parts of the job that attracted them.

Fortunately for Osgood, and for our nation, the members of Congress had experienced 20 years of orderly mail delivery under the colonial postal system, which was planned and organized by Benjamin Franklin. They also had personal experience with the rapid deterioration of mail service when the Crown, suspecting Franklin of sedition, fixed blim. sedition, fired him.

When the debate ended, Congress voted to establish the Post-office and Washington charged Osgood with the task of maintaining a conveyance system for correspondence that would never be broken

Today, in Washington "think-tanks" there are those who peri-odically raise the issue of privatizing the mail. They benefit from delib-eration on a question that has sur-faced repeatedly over the past two centuries-in Congress and in the Supreme Court.

Over the past two centuries, each time the privatization issue has been raised and received serious study, the answer has always remained the same: This country's best interests are served by a strong national postal system.

The question has its value, however, in forcing all postal em-ployees to consider the alterna-tives and impels us to find ways to do our jobs better on a daily basis.

This year the Postal Service cel-This year the Postal Service celebrates both postal bicentennial and the 200th anniversary of the Constitution. Both the Postal Service and the Constitution have changed in the past two centuries, yet endured as testament to the wisdom of our founding fathers.

Today's Postal Service is non-political and operates on its own revenues, not taxes. It now used state-of-the-art technology to accomplish its mission. But the mission remains the same--to bind the nation together in a chain that will never be broken.

Farm Bureau seeks local donations for Hurricane Hugo victims

Nebraska Farm Bureau is urging ebraska farmers and ranchers to Nebraska farmers and ranchers to donate used fencing and building materials to victims of Hurricane Hugo and has arranged transportation for the donations to South Carolina, Although public attention to the

Although public attention to the hurricane victims has waned, the need for materials for rebuilding continues to be critical, particularly in South Carolina, Nebraska Farm Bureau Vice President/Field Services Larry Zimmerman said Tüesday (Nov. 21).

"FARMERS in South Carolina suffered $300 million in crop and building losses and an additional $1 billion loss to the Timer Crop. "Al-billion loss to the timer crop. Al-though substantial cash donations have been received, fencing and building materials are in short supply. South Carolina farmers will appreciate anything we can send them."

The project is being coordinated for Nebraska Farm Bureau by Shawn Kai of North Bend, district director of field services. Fencing materials are the greatest need, Kai said. "In priority order, this is what's needed: barbed wire; steel or wood fenceposts; roofing materials, such as good tin or corrugated roofing: and lumber, plyrugated roofing; and lumber, ply-wood especially, but also 2 x 4's for "Good used quality is fine--good enough to justify the cost of trucking it to South Carolina," Kaisaid. South Carolina Farm Bureau will supply trucks and pay transportation costs to Columbia, S.C., and will distribute it to farmers in need, he said, whether or not they are members of Farm Bureau.

'Many farmers have fencing from a livestock enterprise they no longer conduct or serviceable ma-terials left over when farm buildings were replaced. These would be much appreciated by the farmer victims of Hurricane Hugo," Kai, said.

FARM BUREAU will coordinate its Hugo relief effort with similar programs of other organizations, such as the Nebraska Department of Agriculture, Zimmerman said.

Individuals who have materials Individuals who have materials to donate are asked to call Zimmerman at 402/421-4406 so that arrangements can be made for pick-up, "We'd appreciate hearing from folks by Dec." $5 so that we can send our first shipment around the first of the year," he said.

"We oppose the tax. We don't like it," said Don Johnson, who chairs the Nebraska Fertilizer and Ag-Chemical Institute's agronomy committee, which is studying the

However, several adjoining states already have enacted taxes, checkoffs or assessments on fertilizer and/or pesticides, Johnson said, and Nebraska could be next. Fertilizer and ag chemical interests were on the defensive and couldn't control how revenues were used,

In some other states, fertilizer and/or pesticide assessment funds are used primarily for groundwater protection programs. In lowafunds also support sustainable agriculture research

Johnson said he would like to see money from a fertilizer and pesticide tax used only to fund applied research in conventional agriculture, "not for sampling water or building super cleanup funds."

NEBRASKA Fertilizer and Aq-Chemical Institute members want their group to take the lead re-garding such a tax, said Johnson, who is senior agronomist for Arcadian Corp. in Omaha.

Johnson and Darrell Nelson, ean and director of the University f Nebraska's Agricultural Experiment. Station, spoke to more than 70 people at the 1989 Agronomy Research and Resource Symposium. The session was sponsored by the Nebraska Fertilizer and Ag-Chemical Institute and the University of Nebraska Institute of Agri-culture and Natural Resources' Department of Agronomy.

"It is our opinion that if that legislation is introduced by envi-ronmental groups, we would have a very difficult time defeating it,' lohnson said.

If a tax is inevitable, it makes sense to use it to help farmers and to find ways to use fertilizer and pesticides more effectively, he

Funds are shrinking for applied agricultural research, Johnson and Nelson agreed. Economics also have forced the fertilizer industry out of applied research, Johnson

"We have very limited resources available to conduct applied work in soil fertility" and pest control, Nelson said. "There is a tremen-dous need."

IANR OFFICIALS envision using funds from such a tax for applied research in areas such as soil fertil-ity, plant nutrition and the effec-tiveness of various agricultural practices. Improved pesticides and more efficient pesticide applica-tions also would be studied. Such applied research ultimately would benefit—Nebraskans by increasing profitability for farmers and protecting the environment, Nelson said assure you that the payoff on investment would be very great, indeed." Nelson said.

Johnson said the tax would pro-vide continuity in applied research by assuring that a certain amount of money would be available year after year. Revenue from a fertilizer and pesticide assessment probably would not be limited to research at NU, Johnson said, and could include research by private consultants and colleges in the state.

Informing farmers, the industry and others about applied research findings is important, Nelson and Johnson said.

The University of Nebraska Co-operative Extension would play a major role in delivering information and education, Nelson said.

and education, Nelson said.
Johnson said he expects his group will draft legislation, review it with members and present it during the upcoming Unicameral session. Many details, such as the amount of a tax, remain, he said.
The example of a tax levy used in discussions around the state was 1.250 aes 1.000 in corest sales of

$2.50 per $1,000 in gross sales of plant nutrients with a similar amount for pesticides. That would amount to about 7 cents an acre for an average Nebraska corn farmer, according to Johnson.

One-Act wins contest

Wayne-Carroll High School drama team members won the Northern Activities Conference One-Act Play Contest Monday (Nov. 20) with the play "Adaption."

The play, written by Elaine May, is a satire on the confusion of life in the 60's and is presented by comparing life to a television game show.

Cast members include Kara Weander, Stacy Woehler, Ben Wison, Darin Flatmoe, Jason Polt — and Sam Wilson who was named as the best actor in the conference

How to begin. How to describe the emotions, the sound, the sights. To a mother, the marriage of a child is a kaleidoscope of each.

We arrived promptly at the church at 5:00, so the photographers could do their thing. Jon and Brian were posing in front of a big brian were posing in front of a big black drop. Tears came instantly. When did they get so tall, so broad, so handsome? (In a mother's eyes, they are hand-some.) Probably has something to do with the black tuxedos, I told myself as I dabbed my eyes.

Here was the bride, seated on a small stool with her train spread out behind her. No leans or sweatshirts or tennies, just yards of satin and lace. And her hair was all curled, her makeup was perfect, and she was holding a bouquet of white roses.

Here are our two youngest, white lace and black; their hair is all curled, too. And our married daughter suddenly looks so mature; her husband patiently seats the guests.

Wonder of wonders, the limo appears, the driver still with grease on his hands, and the newlyweds pile in with both best men and maid and matron of honor.

At the reception, there are buckets of potato salad and beans, mounds of turkey, ham, and beef and lots of punch and cake. They throw the bouquet and the garter, the band plays, and we all marvel that there has been no blizzard and that Note Dame not beat and that Notre Dame got beat.

The next day, we have break-fast with cousin Paul, dash to church, and pack our clothes be-cause Grandma is leaving on a cruise and she needs us out of the house so she can get ready!

town leaders meet Small

The "Secrets to My Success" could have been the title for the community development conference held in Grand Island Nov. 8. About 200 small town leaders from across Nebraska shared community development success stories in the hope of finding new ways to moti-vate their citizens and help their towns grow.

Bill Podraza, city manager of Lexington, said he did not emphasize Nebraska's quality of life, work ethic or low productive costs when recruiting new businesses. He stressed getting specific information, such as land, energy needs and building costs, to potential business owners so they can estimate their first year's expenses.

Podraza pointed to the IBP sing plan fornia business which is interested in opening a site in Lexington. In both instances Lexington worked with the business, provided poten-tial sites and information to meet the businesses' needs.

GERALD Clausen, Bloomfield city administrator, urged partici-pants to identify the "sparkplugs" or people who keep the enthusi-asm going and get the work ac-complished in their community development effort. Peppernuts from Grant were shared by Ron Patrick, who emphasized taking advantage of what the local community can offer. He said the peppernuts were produced during Christmas season by the local Mennonites. Now the peppernuts are being marketed as a special order product.

287-2728 CHURCH WOMEN MEET

On Nov. 21 the women of ELCA of the Salem Lutheran Church met for a regular meeting. Circle 3 gave the program which began with a service of dedication of Thanksoffering boxes. It emphasized creation.

An informative video by Lutheran World Relief was shown. Flying Quilts' is the story not only, of the ministry of the quilts but of other projects such as school kits, health kits, sewing kits,—baby layettes and homemade soap. It focused on two typical congrega-tions in the United States showing how quilts are made or kits assem-bled, the LWR warehouse in Minneapolis where articles are pre-pared for shipment overseas, and on several projects in Tanzania where they are finally received. Especially touching were the hap-piness and gratitude of the recipi-ents. The quilts and other articles offer survival and hope through the realization the someone cares about their desperate needs.

The business meeting that followed included a report from Christian Action chairman, Helen Muller. She stressed the need of Bethphage Mission for labels for their projects to purchase a van. Thelma James was appointed chairman for the Cheer Box project. Volunteers will be needed Dec. 14 at 9 a.m. for delivery of the boxes and visits to the shut-ins. Monetary gifts to purchase fruit and flowers are welcomed too.

Martha Mortensen read a letter from Lutheran Family Services. In society they're making efforts to strengthen family life. They asked for support.

Pastor Ted Youngerman gave brief personal history of help the Women of ELCA become better acquainted with him and his family. Though retired and living in Wayne, he is very active as an interim
