School closure has Hoskins residents up in arms

Hoskins people are hoping something can be done to avoid seeing the closure of their public school there, but according to Wayne County Superintendent Harry Mills, the all but imminent closure of the school has resulted in a great deal of heated discussion within the Hoskins community.

"There's a possibility that smaller schools will have to affiliate with K-12 schools by 1993," Mills said." The Hoskins school board decided this was the way to go. It—was—approved by the tri-county board and the state to allow peti-

Local START team sets plans for Wayne survey

WAYNE - The local team for Strategic Training and Resource Targeting, one of the most recent committees established as a result of Gov. Kay Orr's (R-Neb.) rural re-naissance initiative, held its first-meeting Wednesday, Jan. 31, ac-cording to Jennifer Phelps, public relations liaison for the local resource team.

According to Julie Mash, team leader, part of the team's project will include a survey mailed to each household and business in each nousenoid and business in Wayne to measure community perceptions and economic needs. Mash said the local resource team will also be joined later by a steer-ing committee, composed of approximately-30 to 40 volunteers in the community. Phelps said it is hoped this committee will represent a wide myriad of people from within the community.

"We want to get representation for every segment of Wayne," she said. "Certainly anyone who's in-terested should contact Julie Mash," who is START's local leader.

Phelps continued to say that the survey will be a tool the team—plans—to utilize to determine what the people of Wayne believe the community's needs are. She said the survey will measure perceptions and economic needs. She

Time for a financial fitness checkup

With the new year, it's time to close out the personal financial books and start getting records ready for income tax filing. As soon as you receive your W-2's you can file your return. Early filing is recommended if year.

—Analyze last year's spending. Use any records you have — a budget record book, checkbooks, receipts, charge account statements. Did you make unnecessary purchases? Were products and services bought in 1989 that you will have no need for in 1990? Will you need additional products and services in 1990? Are additional funds needed to meet personal and household goals?

household goals?

—Pay special attention to credit spending. Total the amount of interest and finance charges you paid in 1989 to use credit. What opportunities did you give up by paying these additional charges? What percentage of your income is committed to debt payments? Many financial advisers suggest no more than 20 percent of take-home pay, excluding home mortgage payments.

USING 1989 SPENDING as a guide and considering the above questions, develop a plan for 1990 spending.

—Evaluate your emergency fund. This fund of money takes care of unexpected expenses. How did your emergency "nest egg" fare last year? Be sure fund money is split among higher-earning and more liquid saving options.

—Evaluate investments. Consider situation, goals, diversity, liquidity, safety and yield.

Review your will. If there's been a change in your status in the past year, you may want to make changes.

Examine insurance policies. Do you have adequate coverage? Are premiums reasonable for you to handle? Can you increase deductibles? Be sure to include the amount needed for deductibles in your planning for an emergency fund.

—Get organized for tax time. Begin to find and organize records needed for tax filing.

—Update your household inventory. Develop or revise your household inventory. Add additional purchases and delete items you no longer own. Be sure to keep supplemental material for your inventory — photographs or videotape, receipts, appraisals.

THE FIRST OF the year is a good time to do a financial fitness checkup on your finances. Sound planning and management of finances will help you achieve more of your financial goals in the future.

Wrestling article upsets reader

In regards to the article-in your-newspaper concerning the South Sloux City wrestling team not at-tending the meet in O'Neill I would like to have an opportunity

I think that there are two major areas you must consider before you can make a judgement as to why we did not make it to the conference meet and Wayne did.

The weather pattern seemed to vary a great deal that day. This can be supported by the different amount of snow that fell in different areas and also by heavy snow squalls that seemed to prevail in some areas and not in others. some areas and not in others.

The other area you should consider is the type of terrain that we have to travel on the first 40 miles west of South Sioux City on Highway 20. It is very hilly and can be way 20. It is very filing and can be very dangerous.

With these two points in mind I would like to inform you that our team left South SlouX City and it took them one hour and 35 minutes to travel to Laurel, which is a normal 40 minute drive. At this point they had not seen a snow plow and seemed to be the only vehicles on the road. They had run into some very heavy snow squalls at times and had been unable to see the road. They decided that it was too dangerous to continue so they called me and told me of their decision to turn around and come home. I immediately in-formed O'Neill of this.

I felt that if three coaches and a father all felt it was to dangerous to go on that they should definitely turn back. I was not out there and neither were you so we should not question their decision.

Shortly after they called me I received a call from some parents who had started out and turned around. They were hoping that the team was coming back because conditions between here and the Allen turnoff were very bad. This made me feel that the right decision had been made.

With the weather and roads as they were that morning I am very glad that Wayne did not have any serious problems. I am sure that if they had had an accident you would have been asking some serious questions as to why Wayne left town under such conditions and would not be questioning our. correct decision.

I also understand that a ball game in Wayne was called off that evening so that would indicate that conditions must not have

Reader clarifies story

After reading the article in your After reading the article in your paper concerning the vandalism at the softball fields I was really upset but not really surprised. Due to its location it has been a target for vandals since its start seven years ago. It's a shame some people have to resort to vandalism to pass their time. A vandal is a person their time. A vandal is a person with no brains and less morals who seeks a feeling of power over an object which can't fight back. I hope that with the cooperation of law enforcement agencies and everyone in the community that these people can be arrested. I would also like to address would also like to address some of the information regarding the Jaycees connection with the complex. Seven years ago several members of the Wayne Jaycees saw the need for improved softball facilities for about 30 teams in the facilities for about 30 teams in the Wayne area. This committee approached the council and acquired the land east of the sewage lagoon on a 10 year lease for the purpose of building a four field softball complex. Over the past seven years, many area residents have put in countless volunteer hours to turn it into a very respectable recreational facility. Due to the aging out or moving on of most of the original committee I have decided it was best to termiour contract and move on with the present Jaycees to work other projects and community im-provements. We feel that we have done what we set out to do in providing the community with the complex complex.

In regards to the cost of operating the complex, it has been self-supporting during its existence. Dues collected from players and teams have been used for maintenance and improvements. The only funds we were lacking were larger grants that could be used for major improvements such as fencing or watering systems. So to say it was too "expensive" to operate was not correct. I have not seen an itemized list that Mr. Schulz presented to the city for repairs but I sented to the city for repairs but I believe it is overestimated and that le complex could be made ayable again without much cost

Performance for seniors

WHILE VISITING THE CARE CENTER Ralph Olson (violin), Clifford Fredrichson (accordian) and Wayne Gilliland (mouth harp) deliver a performance for residents of the Care Center in the cafeteria. According to the trio, they are members of the Wayne Senior Center and are often found doing music from the 1930s and 1940s. At any rate, the residents of the Care Center seemed to be enjoying themselves.

As managing editor of The Wayne Herald, Mark Crist generates many of the Herald's story and photo ideas as well as oversees writing quality and production. "You name it, I'll do it," jokes Mark, who came to The Wayne Herald just last month from Goodland, Kan, where he was employed as a sports editor/ reporter for the Goodland Daily News. Prior to that, Mark was a managing editor at his college paper as well as a three-time sports editor and editor for the Circle K bulletin in the Rocky Mountain district. Mark enjoys the variety of work involved as managing editor as well as the people he meets while conducting interviews and covering various local and area events. "The thing that makes the job fun is the highly qualified and unique people I work with," says Mark. Although no longer a student, Mark says he loves the atmosphere of a college community as well as the people who are products of that environment. "To me," says Mark, there is no environment more impressive than one produced by well educated people." Mark's wife, Rhonda, is a secretary and is presently seeking a job in the Wayne area. The "family"

just like kids," laughs Mark.
