At a Glance Contract signed

WAYNE - The City of Wayne has signed a new 25-year wholesale power con-tract and capacity purchase agreement with Nebraska Public Power District.

The new contract provides a two percent discount in power costs resulting from savings from the 25-year agreement. Long-term contracts enable NPPD to better plan for the future, retainqualified personnel and make future borrowings for generation and other capital improvements at lower rates. The contract with Wayne provides for NPPD to continue to furnish all of the city's lectric requirements and for NPPD to purchase the capacity of the city's power plant for use in NPPD's system. According to statistics provided by Dr. Haun, enrollment has climbed from a decade low of 232 in 1985-86 to 315 projected for

The solution: adding 4,594 square feet to the west end of the school building, according to Haun.

"We've looked at this for three years and we've studied our options," Lutt said. 'There is a definite need and the school board understands that."

According to Haun the school

According to Haun, the archi tect's estimate of the cost to build this addition is $282,531. A prob-lem exists, however, since bidding has not yet taken place and if lowest bid is higher than the architect's projected figure, the schools may be strapped for HAUN SAID the building's addition will be paid for by $100,000 presently in the school's building fund with the rest being borrowed on short-term (two year) tax-free, tax anticipation notes.

He said because of the amount needed for the construction of the addition, taxes will have to be in-creased five to seven cents per $100 of assessed property until the loans are paid off. He said presently the schools are levying .0524 for the building fund and this amount will be at least .1054 when the taxes are levied next time

Haun added, however, that budgeting will not be completed until bids are taken and the school finds out what the actual cost will be. The Wayne Community School Board will take bids until Thursday, April 19 at 2 p.m. when all bids will be read aloud.

"We'll be very cautious about going any higher than the architect's estimate," Haun said. "We've cut just about to the point where we can't cut anymore."

WEST ELEMENTARY school, however, is almost at capacity now, according to Lutt. He said it's a burden for the teachers to instruct more children than the rooms were originally intended. He said, 'to put 29 kids in an 840 square foot room is not a good situation. It is not conducive to the learning atmosphere."

Lutt said the increase became noticeable three years ago when the elementary school was forced to move its music teacher out of her room and have her move from classroom to classroom because her room was needed for added space.

He said the rise in enrollment is the result of added work in the area, the increase in younger families with children moving to Wayne and a rise in non-traditional student enrollment at the college. He said many of the non-traditional student enrollment at the college. He said many of the non-traditional students have children and they wind up attending the Wayne

"The potential kindergarten census indicates the students are there," he said. "... With the condi-tions that result from that many added students, we simply need

Lutt said the addition at this point is also cost-effective. He said it's a viable alternative to add on to the building rather than having to build a whole new one.

Again last week, some of us had a chance to show some elementary students around The Wayne Herald and on Monday; we received some thank yous from the students. The only problem with the thank yous is they asked some questions the students apparently forgot to ask, so for now, I'll try as best I can to answer some of them.

One question posed by Beth Sperry of Wayne was how we correct a cutline under a picture if we make a mistake. To answer the question, we usually go back into the computer file which has the cutline on it and with the mouse attached to the computer, we place the cursor where the mistake is and correct it. It's simply a case of proofreading our work. Erin Milander, Wayne, asked how we get colors into the paper in her thank you letter. To make my response as simple as possible, when the paper rolls through the first tier of the press, the colored ink is placed on a spot on any given page where we want it, then as the paper passes through the rest of the press, other details like the copy and the photos are added to the page and fit accordingly so the color and the black ink don't mix together. don't mix together.

MILANDER ALSO asked how we work the mouse. The mouse is an added feature which allows us to direct where we want the cursor to go on our screens. To move the cursor from one place to another, we move the mouse to where we want it (the cursor) placed and press the button, which moves the cursor

Adam Hillman, Wayne, asked how the fireworks appear on my viewing screen when I'm not using it. Each of the computers in the office have a different program. A-few of them have clocks and a few have fireworks. Basically, the fireworks (or the clocks) are in the computer program and is directed by that program to let us know the machine is on. If the machine is off, the fireworks will not go off.
Hillman also asked what the lasers in the laserprinter does. Simply put, and to the best of my knowledge, the laserprinter does. Simply put, and to the best of my knowledge, the laserprinter lines up the type by calculating what the size, type and distances of each letter or group of letters should be. The laser makes those estimates as precisely as anything presently technologically available.

Tyler Bayless, Wayne, asked in his letter how many people work in the building. The answer to that question is not easy but on an average day, you'll find about 21 people working in the building. That number, how-ever, does not include the number of carriers and correspondents we have names we have for our computers. If you're curious, our computers at The Wayne Herald are named after the seven dwarfs.

One of the things which seemed to impress the students was the weight of the rolls of paper we use on the press. Each broadsheet roll weighs about 1,000 lbs, and each tabloid sheet weighs about 500 lbs. According to our press foreman Al Pippitt, we go through about 15 rolls of

Conway sees own amendment relevant to LB 1059

AREA - As LB 1059 approaches ernor Orr, more amendments were adopted last week to fine tune the measure. One such amendment, which I offered, is particularly relevant to the eventual, over all success of the bill.

As I have explained in previous columns, LB 1059 is not a property tax relief measure as one would normally think. It is a school finance plan which increases the amount of state aid from the current 26 percent to 45 percent. One of the net results, however will be a reduction in the need for property tax on a state-wide basis. Those tax on a state-wide-basis. Those school districts receiving more state aid under the new formula, will be able to reduce their local property taxes. My strong belief that property tax relief for those with the greatest tax burden, led to my amendment, a limitation on the amount of property taxes that all political subdivisions can collect.

Generally, I am not supportive of lids, preferring to trust the wis-dom of the locally elected officials to use restraint in the spending of property tax dollars. However, in this situation, there were two over-riding considerations. First, and foremost, since LB 1059 imposes a lid on school districts' spending ability, it only seems fair that all political subdivisions operate under a similar provisions. Secondly, many have expressed concern that if the property tax burden is lessened by the increase in state funding, might other taxing, authorities use this opportunity to fund priorities that they might not have otherwise.

This, you will recall, is what happened in many parts of the state last year when LB 84 was passed to reduce the property tax burden. That bill, the Property Tax Relief Act, reduced property taxes statewide by 8.5 percent. Yet, many home owners and other property owners saw no reduction and some, an increase, in their taxes. Many feel the reason this happened was feel the reason this happened was because the schools, the towns, the-counties and the other political subdivisions saw the need to increase their budgets by more than the 8.5 percent. The net than the 8.5 percent. The net result was that the property owners

Summer workshops set for ag in the classroom For the past six years, Ne-braska's Ag in the Classroom Program has sponsored summer work-shops for elementary and sec-ondary teachers. This summer the three graduate credit hour work-shops will be held in Omaha and Scottsbluff. The Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District is now accepting applications from educa-tors in the district for five full tuition scholarships.

Teachers may attend the three week workshops in Omaha beginning in late June or in Scottsbluff beginning in late July. The field ex-periences and classroom experi-ences will be covered in two weeks of half day sessions in Omaha or in one week of full day sessions in Scottsbluff. The remaining time will be spent on independent project production and presentation.

The workshops provide teachers with innovations and creative ways to incorporate the food and fiber into their curriculum.

Teachers who would like to apply for the full tuition scholarships should contact the Lower Elkhorn NRD in Norfolk at 371-7313 for an application form. The application deadline is April 16.
For more information on the Ag in the Classroom Program, contact the program coordinator, Eller Hellerich, in Lincoln at 421-4400 or the Lower Elkhorn NRD.

AN ADDITIONAL problem the elementary school has run into is the lack of storage room. Lutt said since the rooms are so full, teachers are having to store materials in the halls because there is no room we're going with four class-rooms because of the cost and the space requirements we need," Lutt said. "We've allowed for an adjustment if the numbers go back down or if they continue to increase."

Haun said the four rooms being added will be smaller than the classrooms in the building, which has helped trim the cost of the addition somewhat. He said the present rooms are 1,020 sq. ft. and the rooms being added will be 940 sq. ft. He said there is also an al-ternate in the bid which calls for a new all-weather playground area and if bids are too high, the alternate can be removed. Lutt added that as of yet, no negative comments have been received from the public.

I think the public knows that we need this added space, so we haven't had any negative response to our plans, he said.

Rub-on Remedies

External analgesic products seem to be especially popular during the winter months. People rub a variety of liniments, ointments, and gels on their skin to relieve muscle and joint pain that occurs with overexertion, bursitis, and arthritis. According to a Food and Drug Administration advisory panel, many external analgesic ingredients are both safe and effective. These include eucalyptus oil, me thyl salicylate, turpentine oil, menthol, camphor, capsicum, and methyl nicotinate. Helpful hints: A heating pad or hot water bottle may relieve muscle and joint pain, but using an external rub with a heating device can cause blistering of the skin. Massaging the painful area when using external rubs may greatly improve effectiveness because it increases the flow of blood and lymph through the

Wayne Herald All Area Boys Team expanded

ports Editor

Due to the fact that there were so many talented area boys bas-ketball players this year, The An-nual Wayne Herald All Area Team will not consist of two six man teams this year, but one 12-man team so that we may honor all those on the first team that we feel deserve it feel deserve it.

Wakefield leads the way with four of its starting five on the all area team. The Trojans very well could have landed all five on the first team but as already men-tioned, there were several good players in the area this year.

Wayne and Laurel each landed three on the list while Winside and Allen placed one respectively. Eleven of the twelve on the all area team are seniors with Allen's-Shane Dahl the only underclass-man—junior. Willy Gross, Neil Carnes and Craig Dyer all get the nod from Wayne. Gross was the offensive catalyst that led the Blue Devils in scoring this season and had over 30 points in a contest against South Sioux City in the first round of the NAC tournament.

Willy Gross—Sr. Wayne First Team Selection

Andy McQuistan-Sr. Wake

Gross could score from any where on the floor and was Wayne's most prolific three point scorer. Neil Carnes exemplified the epitome of a big man in the high school basketball ranks. The 6-6 senior will move on to play football at UNO next fall as his athletic shift will care the to the athletic ability will carry over to the college ranks.

Carnes was a force in the midde and opposing teams often he times had trouble scoring in the paint. Craig Dyer also gets the honor of all area first team for be ing a hustler and a consistent scorer for Bob Uhing's Devils.

Every team should be blessed Every team should be blessed with a player like Dyer. The senior did not stand tall, in faet—he was one of the shortest big men around but yet he was always among the rebounding leaders—and—averaged over 10 points a game. Neil Carnes—Sr. Wayne First Team Selection

Of course Wakefield comes off a season where they literally rewrote the Trojan record book by winning 26 games and getting to the semifinals of the state tournament—a feat which had eluded the Trojans since 1960.

One of the most under rated players in the area this year was Chris Loofe. The senior point guard was phenomenal in the way he captained the Trojan offense. Loofe was a player who got the ball to the scorers and when no one was sorging he took care of one was scoring he took care of that as well. Loofe will be remembered for his 50-foot bomb that helped carry the Trojans to the state tournament in the district fiagainst Hartington Cedar

He did a marvelous job of picking up the slack when the opposition shut down Johnson and Andy Mody than Andy McQuistan.

Speaking of Andy McQuistan, the purple heart of the year award has to go to McQuistan. He went down with a major knee injury in the early moments of Wakefield's sub-district final game against McQuistan's athletic ability and court saavy not only made him one of the finest players in Northeast Nebraska, but also placed him on the second team of the all-state teams by the Omaha World Her-

The Laurel Bears place Todd Erwin, Troy Twohig and John Schutte on the annual all area Team. These three players were the leaders of the Bears which went on to post their best record in several years.

Erwin, the point guard was another one of those players who got the ball to the players who were scoring. Erwin however, was one of the deadliest three point shooters around and his ability to penetrate the lane and then dish off to Twohig or Schutte often made him the focal point of the opposition's game plan on who to stop first.

Troy Twohig also deserves one of them purple heart awards. He battled a back injury most of the season and the senior forward played in pain several times. Finally, it was to much for him and he was unable to play in the sub-districts. He also missed a few games during the season because of the injury. Twohig has had back surgery since the season ended.

At any rate, Twohig still managed to score over 10 points a game with his injury and always hustled after loose balls.

Winside did not win a game this season but Randy Prince still goes out a winner. He has over come several shoulder injuries during his high school tenure but he still managed to lead the Wildcats in both scoring and rebounding.

Prince very seldom saw a gamewhere he wasn't double or even triple teamed but still managed to lead the Wildcats.

Allen's Shane Dahl makes the Allen's Shane Dahi makes the team for becoming a prolific scorer this season when seniors Todd Hohenstein and Matt Hingst were out with illness. Dahi went through a several game stretch where he scored over 20 points a game and his ability to pick up the scoring slack when needed earns him our 12th spot on the all area team. 12th spot on the all area team.

The honorable mention list includes Jeff Griesch and Craig Sharpe from Wayne, Matt Jonas from Laurel, Todd Hohenstein and Matt Hingst from Allen and Matt Tappe from Wakefield.

The area coach of the year is Wakefield's Paul Eaton who led the Trojans to the state tournament for the first time in 30 years. Eaton and assistant Arnie Cerny did a perfect job of getting the Trojans up for the big games such as the district final against Cedar Catholic and the first game of the state tournament against Wood River and its 6-7 senior Derek Apfel.

Wayne State scored three runs in the bottom of the fourth inning to break a 1-1 tie. The Wildcats went on to post a 4-2 victory behind the pitching arm of Laura Stuerman. Stuerman iscattered eight hits while striking out four and walking five. Wayne State had eight hits in the game with Laura Stuerman aiding her own cause with a triple. Megan Dolesh also tripled while Dee Henningson, Jodie Gilfillan, Beth Clark and Roni Johnson all singled.

In the second contest it proved to be the Roni Johnson show as the senior pitcher allowed two first inning singles to Northwestern, but then shut the visitors down, not allowing a single base runner from the second inning on.

Johnson shut out a career high 12 batters in the contest and didn't walk any. Wayne State meanwhile pounded out seven hits with the deciding blow coming in the first inning as Beth Clark belted a two run home run. Dee Henning-son had led off the bottom half of the first inning with a single before Clark's home run.

Bruce A. Buehler, M.D., Director Meyer, Rehabilitation, Institute.

of Meyer Rehabilitation Institute, says it's also important to make sure people with disabilities are connected to the professionals who can help them to function as independently as possible. "The connections are there as a support, not as a control," says Dr. Buehler. "They are there to help the person get better, not to become

"We, as professionals, need to empower people to live life to the fullest extent, but they have to begin with an understanding and a wledge base." We have to make connections to help them understand what's available, know how to access it and then make their own decisions," says Buehler.

Shaw says the concept of connecting is basically remembering that people with disabilities are an important part of the community. "One of the examples I like best is that of a quilt," he says. "A quilt is bade the of several independent made up of several independent pieces of material that by thempieces of material that by them-selves don't amount to much. But, when we bring those pieces of material together, they become a beautiful product that expresses what connecting is all about."

Bob Kane, at 67, returned to celebrity status. Kane knew when he was 10 that he wanted when he was 10 that he wanted to become a cartoonist, and he started selling his cartoons at 16. In 1939, when he was 18 and had been working for a comic book publisher for several months, he came up with the concept for the cartoon superhero Batman, which won instant acceptance. Kane continued to draw the cartoon until tinued to draw the cartoon until 1966. He stayed involved with the character through the Bat-man TV series and more re-cently made appearances to promote the Batman movie.

What's more important, from the standpoint of protecting the Social Security surplus, is that the Social Security Trust Fund is now the focus of Congressional investigators who are being forced to deal with the facts about the deficit as they are, not as they wish they were. As one Washington observer noted, the administration is "cooking the books" by using the Trust Fund to pretend the deficit is smaller than it really is.

sad sidebar to that comment is that many seniors are now being beaten by their own adult children. Somehow, we've got to break this cycle of cruelty to those less able to defend themselves if we can ever hope to call ourselves

HELP-LINE: A man in Florida says he and a group of friends arranged with a local travel agent to tour the Greek Islands this summer. They paid a deposit for the package, which includes hotel accommodations. A week local they were told they had to pay an additional fee for a later, they were told they had to pay an additional fee for a "health insurance" program the agent says is needed to cover any health problems the group members may have on the tour. Question: has anyone ever had a similar experience? Is the request legal?
