Board gives nod to addition bid

WAYNE - At a special meeting Thursday, April 26, the Wayne Board of Education chose to accept the bid of Otte Construction Co. of Wayne in the amount of $284,290 to add onto West Elementary School.

After listening to architect Lynn Jones, from the firm of Davis/Fenton/Stange/Darling, the board approved the measure 5-0 with Dr. Ken Liska unable to attend the meeting.

The project will add an additional four classrooms to West Elementary School, which the board believes will meet the 36 percent increase in elementary enrollment over a five year period.

According to meeting minutes, the addition is expected to take 180 days and work is to begin immediately. The approval of the bid also includes construction of a concrete slab area west of the elementary school building.

Otte Construction's bid was 1 1/2 percent lower than the figure the architects had figured for the project. It was also the lowest of three bids submitted, according to meeting minutes.

"We are pleased with the bids that were received on the project," Jones read from a prepared statement at the meeting. "Otte Construction submitted a base bid of $278,450 and a bid for alternate A-1 of $5,840."

The project will be financed from existing building fund monies and from tax-free notes to be issued in September 1990, according to Dr. Francis Haun.

Housing shortage poses problem for businesses

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Great Dane Trailers and The First National Bank of Omaha Service Center have one thing in common.

Not enough suitable housing exists in Wayne for all their employees.

The problem with inadequate amounts of suitable housing — rental and purchase homes — is one of the issues the START committee is focusing its efforts upon.

Additional problems exist because developers are taking chances on building new homes to address the need. City ordinances, designed to protect Wayne from getting burned, are slowing construction of new homes. In addition, there's not a large supply of lots available within the city limits.

"All that we've talked about has been pointing to the negative things in the housing market, but maybe that's good because it indicates growth," said Chris King, manager of the bank card center at First National Bank of Omaha.

"Since we're talking about the Chamber of Commerce and Wayne Industries and they're focusing on the problem then maybe they'll find a solution this year. It's a good problem to be experiencing."

ACCORDING TO Bob Carhart, of Carhart Lumber, the decline in home building is a result of the economic downturn during the 1980s. He said he thinks builders are ready to start taking some chances on developing properties, though.

Carhart, who has served on the START committee, said to see new housing developments, the city needs to take a new look at the ordinances it established a few years ago which protected them.

"If we're really concerned with making housing more affordable, we need to do some things to provide that housing," he said. "It's not only incumbent on builders to address this need but also on the community."

Wayne Industries is also taking action to work on the problem, according to Sam Schroeder, president of Wayne Industries. The lack of suitable housing isn't the only problem he sees.

"It's not really a housing shortage but we have to coordinate all the matches to make transactions work," he said. "There needs to be more networking for rental housing so matches can be made."

FOR NEW HOUSING to be developed, Schroeder said investors must make a commitment before builders can.

One problem seems to exist in the amount of suitable housing, especially for young, recently married couples, according to King. Terry Hanson, of Great Dane echoed that concern.

"I certainly hope the college continues to increase in its enrollment but since the college kids need housing too, it adds to an already existing problem," Hanson said.

Officials from both Great Dane and First National Bank of Omaha said if their businesses expand, there will be a desperate need for additional housing.

"All we hope is that our expansion isn't slowed by it," said Mike Monaghan, programming manager for system development at First National Bank of Omaha. "It's much easier if our people live in Wayne because it makes it easier for them to get to work."

According to Carhart, if expansion occurs, it will be directed west,

Communication enters grey areas for some

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Last Thursday, the START committee chose to make communication its top priority.

But with communication, there appears to be quite a few grey areas.

From START surveys returned, committee members determined that greater communication needs exist within the framework of the city and county governments and the public. In addition, there needs to be a greater flow of information to the rural areas surrounding Wayne, including neighboring cities.

There aren't any clear-cut answers to the problem and there aren't any clear reasons for the communication problems.

"Many of the problems go way back in time," according to Bill

Dickey, who is a member of the START committee. "It's not so much a we-they relationship that we need to establish but more of a cooperative effort."

Part of the problem is marketing. Wayne businesses seem hesitant to market the community as a whole to draw in business from surrounding towns.

"Maybe we need to do a better job of marketing," said Dick Sorensen, who owns a farm near Wayne. "People as far north as Highway 20 come down to shop and I've never heard any negatives from them but we could do a better job of marketing to those we've missed."

Part of the problem addressed by the START committee was communication coming from the city and county governments. Wayne Mayor Wayne Marsh said he has had people complain to him that the city doesn't announce well enough what it's doing during the city council meetings. He said he can't quite figure that out.

"Maybe what people are asking for is to have the city administrator write a column in the newspaper," he said. "Otherwise, we don't do anything that's not published. I think people might like to see some form of gossip column."

The concern was also addressed by Bob Nissen, chairman of the Wayne County Commissioners. He said it seems as though people need to take a more active role in what their governments are doing.

Nissen said everything the county commissioners do is publicized but other than using the local media he doesn't see any alternatives.

"I think it's just the same as it

Letters

Clarification wanted

I feel that a correction is needed to a news story on the front page of the April 19 issue of the Wayne Herald regarding problems facing area rural schools as they deal with reorganization. As the story appeared Wayne County Superintendent, Harry Mills remarked that the Sholes School and District 47 was much different than the Hoskins School reorganization effort, stating that Sholes and District 47 had followed proper procedure; thereby implying that the Hoskins School had acted illegally and improperly.

A charge has been brought against the Hoskins School Board by five persons who feel the school has committed a technical error. The case has not yet received a proper court hearing because the plaintiffs seem intent upon stalling action for as long as they possibly can.

Anyone who has been involved in school closing and merging knows that there are no clear cut, black and white paths to follow. We are told what should be done and given deadlines as to when they shall be done, but the procedures and methods are cloudy and undefined. The Hoskins School Board worked very closely with the State Department of Education, but were given no specific guidelines. We have had the services of an attorney at all times.

It is easy to sit in an office in the Wayne County Court House and second guess an effort that was taking place in Hoskins before that person was appointed to his office.

It is true that the Sholes and District 47 efforts are different from Hoskins, just as these plans will be different from what District 51 and District 57 will be as they deal with L.B. 259. I'm sure that each will have a different solution than that of the other school. But I am sure that they will, as we have in Hoskins, deal with it in a way they feel will be the best educational opportunity for the children living in their district, both now and for years to come.

Eventually it will be District Judge Warren that will decide the fate of the Hoskins Reorganization plan. In the meantime the plaintiffs seem to be stalling rather than bringing the issue to a conclusion.

I want to state that we, as a board of education, did not act capriciously and without much thought, consultation and advice.

YARD OF THE WEEK

This contest is sponsored by Country Nursery Lawn Service of Wayne and is judged by an independent group of observers.

Cliff and Elaine Pinkelman, 1115 Sherman in Wayne, spend about eight to 12 hours a week working on their yard. Elaine said she spent Tuesday afternoon working on the yard.

In addition to having a well-trimmed yard, they have Country Nursery spray and fertilize the yard.

"We water it once a week and soak it good," Elaine explains. "I don't believe in just wetting the top. How much we water also depends on the heat. If it doesn't rain, we spend the weekend watering it."

The work Country Nursery does for the Pinkelman's includes aerating the lawn in the spring, a four-step process for applying weed killer and fertilizer application in addition to the weekly care they provide.

"The first part they do (Country Nursery) gives the lawn a boost to start with and then they kill the bugs and dandelions."

has been in the past," he said. "As long as things are going along well, people don't mind it. But people aren't interested in something which doesn't involve them."

Nissen said that the agendas which are published could be more precise.

The problem seems to continue, though.

"When we have a public hearing, not many people attend," he said. "I really don't know what the answer to this problem is."

That's something Dickey said he hopes will be accomplished through the work by the START committee.

"We may take a facsimile of the rural areas and towns are thinking," he said. "If the community of Wayne were to ask for the information to make it a local hub like Don Mash is doing at the college, maybe it would be the best thing we could do."

"... The whole communication thing is such a vast area. You've got to start some place but you have to have a goal. I hope through START that we can determine a specific target area and do something to attract it."

All four individuals said improving communication begins with the public.

"One of the problems is that people don't respond unless it's a big issue," Sorensen said. "We need to voice our concerns on the issues or our voices won't be heard."

east and north of town. But expansion depends on a number of factors.

Schroeder added that there is no quick fix to the problem. He said that's something people will have to face.

"We're at that point where we're going to have the employment but you don't know how much or how fast, so you gamble if you take on a large project and can't complete it," he said. "Developers need to be assured that employment growth will be there."

Schroeder said if anything, the START survey has had a positive effect on the community.

"The whole positive thing about START is its got people talking," he said. "As long as you're talking there will be a solution."

Students celebrate Earth Day

AREA - Fifth and sixth graders at Wayne Middle School got a chance to make a difference Thursday afternoon by planting over 200 Scotch pine seedlings at the Wayne Country Club.

Outlying rural schools were also given some of the 1,000 Scotch pine, which were donated as part of the Earth Day/Arbor Day festivities by State National Bank.

In addition, Wayne Mayor Wayne Marsh proclaimed Sunday, April 22 as Earth Day in Wayne. Marsh was also in attendance with State National Bank senior vice-president Pat Gross, school board president Sid Hillier and Middle School Principal Dick Metteer for the tree planting ceremony on the back nine of the Country Club.

"The State National Bank is pleased to be part of this project," said David Ley, bank president.

State National Bank was one of 217 banks statewide which took part in distributing 26,000 Scotch pine seedlings. The program is part of the Nebraska Banker's Association Centennial Tree Program.

In today's edition of The Wayne Herald, this picture page is dedicated to the efforts by State National Bank and the Wayne Middle School fifth and sixth graders work.

MIDDLE SCHOOL STUDENTS planted Scotch pines Thursday at the Country Club. Wayne Middle School students Earth Day stories

We need to plant trees because they release oxygen and moisture into the air and take out the carbon-dioxide from the air. Tree roots also hold the land in place when it rains so the rain won't erode away the soil that the trees need. Trees also supply us with many of the things we eat and use in everyday life such as apple, oranges, grapefruits, nutmeg and cinnamon to name a few, and also tables, chairs and newspapers.

Nate Wattier

I think it's important to plant trees because we are planting new and great lives for our country. These new lives do lots of things that people don't even think about. The trees are such a great thing. We should respect and look up to the greatest wonders of nature.

Travis Koester

We need trees to live, because they produce a lot of products we need, such as paper. If we didn't have paper we couldn't write letters, get newspapers or find out information. We also need trees for fruit and wood. Think about that the next time you write a letter, get a newspaper, or eat an apple.

Erin Granberg

My opinion of planting trees can be narrowed down to three words, we need trees. Trees produce air for our very existence on Earth. They also play a major role in our lives as products. But over all, trees bring temperatures down by giving off water and providing shade.

Kristine Kopperud

Trees are good because they are what keeps the world alive. They help people by giving us wood, paper, some fruit, water, and other important resources. Trees are the center of our society.

Adam Diediker

Trees are our life line, because they produce oxygen. When we cut down or burn down trees we are cutting down life. Plant trees to keep the next generation alive.

Andy Rise

Trees are important. They give off oxygen which we need to live. They also help stop global warming and the Greenhouse effect. People are cutting down thousands of trees in the rain forests everyday. Without trees the Earth will die and so will we.

Tonya D. Wortman

It is good to plant trees because they help us survive by giving us the things we need, like food and shelter. If we didn't have trees the world wouldn't be as pretty as it is now. Please help save trees!

Jessica Sievers

I think we should plant trees because we need trees for paper. What would we put on our pancakes without the sap from trees. Trees provide a home for the birds and if we keep cutting down trees the birds will die out. Trees help keep America looking good.

Erin Langemeier

I feel it's important to plant trees because trees help us survive and make life easier. Most of our furniture is made from trees. We get many of our foods such as spices, fruits and even some breads. Trees are homes to many animals. Trees give off oxygen into the air and provide shade. Trees are essential to life. By planting trees we save not only the tree population but ourselves and other plants and animals.

Tisha Rothfuss

We plant trees for many different reasons. We plant them to get our food. If we didn't have trees we wouldn't be living in our wooden houses. Some of you people wouldn't get your morning or afternoon paper. Trees can also give us moisture through the air. Trees are something you can depend on.

Amy Guill

We need trees. When people breathe out, carbon dioxide flows into the air. Trees breath in carbon dioxide therefore when they breath out oxygen flows into the air. People and other living things need oxygen to live. If there was no trees there would be no animals.

Andrew

Trees are important because they supply us with oxygen and shade. Trees also give us paper, one of the leading industries that wood is used in. Wood is also something that trees are used for. So don't take trees down for fun, respect them!

Aaron Beltz

It is important to plant trees for more paper. I think it is important because we need more trees to plant for shade, wood, firewood and for cooler temperatures. I also think it is important for the wildlife and the animals. That is why we need more trees.

Audrey Jones

It is important to plant trees, because if we don't the sun will destroy the ozone layer. It is also important to plant trees because they supply our paper, for example the piece of paper I am writing on came from a tree. Trees give us wood for our shelter. If we did not have shelter we might die. Trees are very special so please take care of them.

Lisa Erdmann

Trees are important because they supply paper, oxygen, and lumber for our buildings. But you can also use trees to play in, like for tree houses and just to climb on. Those are only just a few things trees are made into, because trees are made and used for lots and lots of other things too. That's why trees are important!

Mandi Hank

It is important to plant trees because we need them to make paper, pencils and other things we need. We need trees to make boats. Trees some time grow fruit and bananas.

Nick Vanhorn

Trees are important for many reasons. Trees turn carbon dioxide into oxygen for us to breathe. They make paper for us to use.

They make many other wood products such as tool handles and tables. Trees also clean the air. We need to plant a lot more trees to get our environment clean.

Karl Wetterberg

It's important to plant trees because the trees help to get rid of the carbon dioxide and they give off oxygen. Trees also hold the dirt in place by their roots. They are used to make paper and many other useful things. That's why it is important to plant trees.

Natasha Lipp

If you didn't plant trees. You would run out of oxygen. The air would be full of carbon dioxide. The wildlife wouldn't have shelter, homes, and some animals eat leaves. People wouldn't have houses, paper, desks, etc. It would be dull not seeing trees around to look at, admire, and climb.

Scott Robbins

If we didn't have trees we probably wouldn't be in school or be able to draw. Trees are very important because if there wasn't any trees you, or me, would not be here this day. Trees are very important for you, me, and animals. So plant a tree! What do you have to lose?

Brian Johnson

Imagine if no one planted trees what would the world be like? Well for one thing there would be no homes made of wood, no paper, or pencils for that matter. What about the forests, they would all be gone, and the animals as well. But the worst thing of all, there would be no air. And as we all know everyone needs air to live, therefore there would be no humans either! So do the world a favor and plant some trees!

Nell Munson

It is important to plant trees because they reduce the amount of carbon dioxide in the air and they are needed to make lots of things. They can be shade, even a secret place. Trees are a very important thing. You can even get something to eat from some of them, the food is maple syrup. Trees are very important things.

Terry Hamer

It is important to plant trees for many reasons. First of all, trees give off oxygen which we need, and trees inhale carbon dioxide which we need to get rid of. Trees give us paper, pencils, chairs, desks, and even a lot of houses and more. Without trees there would be no enjoyable shade, no where for some animals to live, and all the other things listed. Most people don't even realize trees are that important. Like, I just learned that trees hold the soil and ground in place. There is always something to learn and experience, and what you and I need to learn right now is that if we don't act now, there might never be another chance, and there won't be anything left to pass on to future generations. You can help!

Corynn Stoltenberg

It's important to plant trees because they take the carbon dioxide out of the air, so we can breathe the fresh air. It's also important to plant trees because it's a home for many different kinds of animals. Trees also help by giving us shade on hot summer days. They keep the world greener and colorful, plus many animals eat different parts of the trees. Trees are very important in our world.

Bethany S. Johnson

It is important to plant trees because if there weren't any trees the whole world would be covered with sand and dust storms that could kill all of the crops. Also erosion would be a problem because the soil would wash away and the plants would die and also all the food we eat.

Jeremy Lutt

We should plant trees for many reasons. They provide us with food such as oranges. They give us oxygen to live. We make tools, baseball bats, buildings, bowling pins, paper and much, much more. Trees also provide warmth for homes. Trees also give beauty and shade for our world. We should always plant trees because they are part of this world.

Katie Lutt

Why is it important to plant trees? We wouldn't have desks, paper, furniture, buildings, railroad ties, violins, bowling pins, barrels, baseball bats, tool handles and many other things. If we didn't have trees it would kill plants and would take away a lot of oxygen.

Anne Wiseman

People need to start planting more trees because they have a special importance on our earth. Trees supply oxygen and control part of the ozone layer. Trees give us paper, lumber and wood. You can climb trees, build tree houses, and put on rope swings to the strong branches. Trees make up the beautiful scenery of the country and of the city. They provide shade in the summer. Trees that are hollow or aren't hollow make homes for animals such as squirrels, birds, and raccoons.

Wakefield, Allen students honor Earth Day

AREA - Equipped with spades and enthusiasm, sixth grade students from Allen and Wakefield Community Schools participated in the Arbor Day celebration hosted by the Northeast Arboretum Board on Friday, May 20.

Don Hudman, district director, welcomed students, teachers and other guests to the northeast research and extension Center near Concord.

Ray Stohler, Concord, president of the Northeast Arboretum, informed the students about the formation of the Arboretum, what it is and its purpose. He explained how youngsters can become members of the Northeast Arboretum by contributing $1 for a Johnny Appleseed membership.

Trees make Christmas trees, grow fruits to eat such as apples, bananas, oranges, grapefruits and other fruits. Trees help keep our soil in one place by their roots. They soak up lots of our extra rain water. Trees during the fall make a beautiful sight to see. This is why people should start planting more trees. It might be awhile before they even start to grow.

Jessica Ford

I think that it is important to plant trees because trees partially control our carbon dioxide and are a pretty lush green color. We need more trees for the animals to have their habitats in. There are so many trees cut down for so many things such as firewood or lumber, paper, furniture, etc. that someday trees might become extinct.

Piyali

Trees are important because we get different things we use from trees like paper and pencils and other stuff. We build houses from wood. We get different fruits from trees.

Jeremy B.

Trees are useful because they help protect the ozone layer and on a hot day they provide shade. Without trees the earth would get hot and we would burn to a crisp. Trees are also very important because if we didn't have trees we wouldn't have paper to write on, wood houses to live in, and what would they make doors out of. At school in your desks your arms would get cold when you put them on your desks because there would be steel tops on them, and would you rather ride in a steel or wood boat. So help plant a tree!

Lucas

I think it is important to plant trees because we need paper, and birds need to make their nests to live in. That's why we need to plant trees.

Megan

I think it's important to plant trees because trees breathe in carbon dioxide that's not needed. They also give us a lot of supplies. The good thing about trees are that they are a renewable resource.

Calle

Trees are important because they give us shade and give us things to use. They give animals food and some a home. If it wasn't for trees we would not have very many things like houses, chairs, paper, tables, desks, buildings, shelves, or wood for the fireplace. We must be patient with trees to grow since we get so many wonderful things.

Deladra O'Donnell

It is important to plant trees because they are being cut down all the time and need to be replanted. Plus their so beautiful.

Christine

Why is it important to plant trees? Because some animals wouldn't have homes to live in. If nobody planted trees then birds, squirrels and other animals would have no where to live. So people rest under a shade tree on a hot day. So people and animals could eat fruit off of trees.

Abe Schoenerr

It is important to plant trees because trees give off oxygen so we can live and we give off carbon dioxide so the plants can live. So we live and the plants live.

Paul

I think it is important to plant trees because trees are one of our most important resources. If we didn't have trees we wouldn't have paper. Trees also provide shade for us on hot days. And some trees even produce food for us.

Sarah M.

It is important to plant trees because many people heat homes with trees. Many things such as paper, baseball bats, furniture, violins, railroad ties, and bowling pins are made with trees. Trees are a very important resource to us!

Lori

I think you should plant trees because trees give off oxygen. If we don't get enough oxygen we will die. Trees are a renewable resource so if trees are cut down for things like paper products, I think new trees should be planted in their place. Trees are a very important resource. We need trees!

Ann S.

It is important to plant trees because with all the things that are destroying our ozone layer the sun's ultra-violet rays shine brighter and if we plant trees the rays don't harm us as much. That is why I think it is important to plant trees.

Tony Polit

It's important to plant trees because trees help keep the air clean. They also last up to be one hundred years old or older. They are nice to look at. They give squirrels and birds homes. Trees are good shade when it is really hot out. Trees help keep all the heat from absorbing into the ground.

Tom Zach

It is important to plant trees because if we didn't have trees there would be no wood, which means no paper, no houses and lots more. The world would be lost without trees. If you do cut down trees plant one for every tree you cut down. Now if you had a dead tree and some branches were still alive wouldn't you plant those branches. Well, that's why I think trees are important to the whole earth, or like you would say world.

Leanne Higbee

I think trees are important because they help reduce global warming. Trees also provide homes, paper, pencils, books, furniture, shade and much more. I think trees should be around a lot longer from now so that they could bring pleasure to people, children, and elderly and most of all Mother Earth.

Jenny Johnson

It's important to plant trees because trees need carbon dioxide and it gives off oxygen, what we need. It makes nice shade during the summer months and they're fun to climb.

Kyle

It is important to plant trees because in order to save the ozone. Trees breath carbon dioxide and carbon dioxide is putting a big hole in the ozone.

Manda

Why I think it is important to plant trees is because over the South Pole there is a hole growing larger all the time. Also trees help stop the global warming. If the temperature of earth rises only a few degrees the earth may be too cold in some places and warm in some other places. If we want a world for our great-grandchildren we should start planting trees. Just planting a few trees can help the ozone, global warming, and be able to have people live every place on the earth. So come on and plant a tree today!

Jolene

It's important to plant trees because trees give us wood, paper and homes for animals like birds. Trees also give us shade. Trees are part of the woods where animals live and take care of the young. Trees also give us oxygen. Trees are beautiful and make America great!

Crystal Webb

Trees make it possible for us to live. Trees give off oxygen for us to breathe and they take in the carbon dioxide we breathe out. Trees also give us many resources like paper, maple syrup, apples and oranges. Did you know that some of our food has wood in it? Trees are very important to us because they help our environment and I think planting them is a very good idea.

Amy Dickinson

I think trees should be planted because they give shade for people on hot days, they're good blocks from wind, and because they give off oxygen for people to breathe, and they take in carbon dioxide which helps the ozone and earth.

Adam

Please keep trees throughout America. Trees are like people. Why not treat them like people? We need trees. They house the squirrels, birds, caterpillars, and other animals too. When you chop down a tree you are not just killing the tree, but you are also killing the animals that live there. That is very cruel. Trees give you shade. They have colorful leaves during the fall. I don't think it's very nice killing trees because you are getting rid of beautiful Fall colors and Winter colors. We need trees! They keep the earth cool. They use up excess carbon dioxide and we use their excess oxygen. Without trees we would die and without us the trees would die. Please keep tree throughout America. Recycle paper. Save a tree! Do whatever you need to do, but save the trees!

Heather Burganek

The importance of trees are for pencils, paper, houses, and for homes for different animals. Trees shade our houses, parks and other places. The most important thing is it keeps our air clean. Think of what would happen if we didn't have trees. We wouldn't be able to make houses or anything that's made out of trees. The air would be polluted. There would be no homes for birds, squirrels and more. Soon everything would die out.

Katy

Trees are important because they supply us with oxygen and make our houses cooler. We need trees to shade us when it is hot. We also need trees for pencils, houses, and if we didn't have trees you wouldn't be reading this, you would be dead. If you weren't dead you still wouldn't be reading this because we wouldn't have paper to write on or a pencil to write with. We also need trees to have forests to have homes for our wildlife.

Angie Victor

If we didn't have trees we wouldn't have paper to write on, we wouldn't have pencils to write with, we wouldn't have chairs to sit on, and most of all we wouldn't have houses to live in. If we didn't have trees we wouldn't have shade on hot days.

Matt

A plant and tree, Are a part of me. You shouldn't cut down, The beautiful sound, Of the birds inside. Don't let them die, But if you do, I'll turn my back on you. The beautiful tree, Makes life for me. I'll plant a tree, For you and me and my family!

Stephanie Bailey

Trees are important because we use them for many things. We use trees for paper, chairs, tables, houses and many more things. If you cut a tree down, you should plant another one. Trees give you shade so you can sit and read, rest, or have a picnic. It's a place where animals live.

Jennifer

Trees are important to our environment because they make pencils to write, paper to write on, houses to live in, and money to spend. Trees make us warm on cold days. Trees make it cooler on hot days in summer. And trees make most of our environment.

Shannon Kloster

Trees are important for a lot of reasons. They are not here on this earth so you can put garbage in their holes or around them. They are here so they can keep the air clean, keep you cool in the spring and summer when you are hot, for birds and other animals to make their nest in, for things that we need in life-like paper, pencils, furniture, and other things made out of wood. Trees are needed for a lot of reasons, these are just a few.

Melissa W.

Trees are very important. They help keep our air clean. Without trees we wouldn't have pencils or paper. What would we make our homes out of if we didn't have trees? Trees are also homes for animals. And which would you rather have, a Christmas tree or a Christmas bush? I would like to encourage everyone to plant more trees.

Liz L.

The trees in our world today give off carbon dioxide. Animals like birds, squirrels, chipmunks, and other animals that live in our trees today. Trees also give off shade so that when it is hot some day we could just take a chair and sit in the cool shade. If we didn't have any shade right now everybody would be sizzling today.

no name

Trees are important for agriculture, animals, and air. Our Earth would be as hot as a fire. Without trees where would the beautiful birds make nests. I know that our earth is turning into waste. We have to do something, that's why I'm writing a poem for Science. It provides shade, paper, houses, chairs, tables, etc. My class is going to plant trees on the golf course.

Katie McCue

Trees are important to me because we use trees for homes, paper, and pencils. Trees are also important to me because it shades my house, and birds can live in trees.

Lacy

There are lots of kinds of trees. Trees take in carbon dioxide and keep the air clean. People need trees and animals need trees. People need them for paper, pencils, desks, homes, furniture, and other stuff. Animals need trees for homes, shelter, and for hiding places to hide from predators. Trees give off shade. Trees play an important part in our lives.

Ryder Paulson

We need trees for shelter. Trees are useful to keep our air clean. We need trees for shade, and to keep our homes cool on humid days. We need trees to survive.

Trever Luther

The importance of trees are that they clean the air, they make shade and shelter.

Ryan Nichols

I think trees are important because they keep the air clean. They also give shelter to many animals. It gives you shade on hot and humid days. If we didn't have trees I wouldn't be able to write about the importance of trees. Trees are also important because if we didn't have them we couldn't get the carbon dioxide out of the air. They are also important because things like school supplies and stuff in houses are made of trees.

Nick

Save our trees, Oh pretty oxygen. They make oxygen for our air, Which everyone needs from human to bear. They make cool shade in the summer, When you cut down trees it's a big bummer. They make my paper, pencil too, So listen up I'm talking to you!

no name

The importance of a tree is we would not have books and paper. We would hardly breathe without a tree. We couldn't learn without paper.

Though this contest is designed to be exciting, we don't want you to feel the electricity.

Nebraska Public Power District is holding a coloring contest again. We hope your children will be excited to enter, but mostly we hope they'll learn something in the process: that areas around power lines are not places to play.

Clip out this entire ad, have your child color it, then mail to: NPPD, Safety Coloring Contest, P.O. Box 499, Columbus, NE 68601.

We'll select five winners from three age groups: 3-5, 6-8 and 9-12. There will be 15 winners in all, each receiving a $50 savings bond. All entries must be postmarked by May 7, 1990.

So don't wait. Encourage your children to experience the fun of a coloring contest, without feeling the electricity.
