Gone fishin'

WITH SCHOOL OUT, Kirk Carmichael (right) and Trevor Schroeder have found a way to pass the time by netting guppies in Logan Creek. The two were doing their net fishing Thursday afternoon in the creek, but it looked as though the findings weren't going that well. The two did collect around 40 guppies on one try but the little fish kept getting away from them on this try.

Laws restricting offices from helping

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Although Home Health Care and Hospice are doing what they can to assist people in need of their services, laws meant to protect each organization are restraining what the offices can do. Those same laws are resulting in a variety of problems for the elderly and the handicapped.

According to Wanda Kucera, director of the Wayne Hospice, there are a number of situations where people who need care or attention are being overlooked. Kucera said there are a number of cracks in the laws which aren't covered by Hospice or Home Health, which results in the neglect of people who need and want help in their homes.

"The people we find falling between the cracks are the elderly or the handicapped because often they have no insurance benefits to support them in their home when they want help," she said.

The problem seems to be that those needing help don't fall under the guidelines of Hospice care. Hospice is designed solely for families with a family member who is suffering from a terminal illness. Kucera said the answer to the problem is to provide some kind of low cost or free service which would assist the elderly who want home care.

SHE SAID THE shortage of this type of service is resulting in malnutrition and abuse. She said if the conditions persist for long, it results in illness or the loss of freedom of being able to live in their own homes.

"We need some kind of program where people can be checked upon," she said. "For the elderly or the handicapped to afford personal care is often too expensive for their pocketbooks and we aren't allowed to care for those who are not suffering from a terminal illness."

Kucera said a grant has been applied for by the Wayne Ministerial Association to provide respite care, but it is uncertain whether the grant application will be approved.

According to Ann Witkowski, director of the Wayne Home Health Care office, patients of Home Health often find themselves between the cracks because they don't have adequate health insurance coverage. In addition, she said insurance companies are slow to respond to the growing needs of Home Health Care as an alternative to a hospital stay or placement in a retirement facility, such as the Wayne Care Centre.

"Insurance companies are always talking about the rising costs of hospitalization but the insurance companies have been slow to respond to the growing needs of Home Health Care," she said. "They need to start seriously looking at Home Health as an alternative to hospitalization."

According to information provided by the two offices, about two in 10 local families need some kind of additional care to what Home Health and Hospice can provide. Kucera said they receive about three or four telephone calls a month requesting their services, but since those calling don't meet the criteria, the services can't be provided.

THE ALTERNATIVE Home Health and Hospice have turned to is to ask professional nurses to spend their free time checking up on those who need care which does not fall under the stipulations of Home Health. They said the nurses who volunteer their time provide their services free of charge.

"The problem with doing that though, is that families feel like they're imposing on someone's time if people volunteer time to check on them," Witkowski said. "The families often feel better if they're paying for the service but those who help out don't take any money for doing it."

If that support falls through, families with elderly and partially handicapped members often have little alternative but to remove them from their home.

"That happens (removal from the home) because there's a lack of available support," Kucera said.

Runway essential to city's well being

WAYNE - With the competitiveness of the business place, a good airport is essential to meet the demands of businesses, according to members of the Wayne Airport Authority.

That's primarily the reason the group is seeking federal and state funds to build a new north-south runway at the Wayne Municipal Airport.

According to information provided by Wayne City Treasurer Nancy Braden, who also acts as secretary-treasurer for the Airport Authority, the proposed runway is 4,200 feet long by 75 feet wide. It has been in the planning stages since 1975, with minor revisions in 1982.

According to Dave Ley, one of the members on the Wayne Airport Authority, if the grant is approved in the near future, the runway could be completed in two years. He said two to five years is about right for the project to be finished if the grant is approved by the Federal Aviation Administration and the Nebraska Department of Aeronautics.

"So far, the federal government has put close to $1 million into resurfacing the present runway and the purchase of the land for its extension and the new runway," he said. "But they're dragging their feet by getting this new project approved."

THE TOTAL COSTS for the project are expected to cost $1.5 million. According to Braden, the federal government would contribute $1.4 million for the project with $52,150 coming from the state of Nebraska. She said the other $100,550 would be paid for by the City of Wayne.

"The city has been levying taxes for this project for the past 10 years," she said. "Once the project is complete the levy will probably be pulled out."

In addition to "dragging their feet", Braden said acquiring the money for a new runway has been slowed because of political maneuvering in Washington, D.C. She said the Airport Authority Board has written letters to Sen. J. James Exon, but at the time of the letter writing, he was not aware that the project had been approved. Braden said the FAA and the NDA approved it about 10 years ago.

THE REASON for the need of a new runway is because the present

Wakefield awarded housing block grant

WAKEFIELD - It looks as though home shoppers in Wakefield may have a solution to the town's present housing shortage.

It was announced Wednesday from the governor's office that Wakefield is one of four communities to receive a Community Development Block Grant.

The grant, according to information from the department of economic development, is for $65,000. Wakefield joins Aurora ($108,000), Lexington ($140,500) and Scottsbluff ($96,700) as recipients.

According to Wakefield City Administrator Lowell Johnson, the application for the grant was the result of two surveys conducted which showed a definite need for additional housing. Johnson said it is hoped that the block grants will enable elderly residents to place their homes on the market once two investors build new apartment or duplex facilities.

"What the surveys showed is that we have local businesses looking to expand and they can't house their new employees," he said. "Many of the people moving here are young and are looking for affordable housing. What we're trying to do is help them make the purchase of those single-resident homes once these new duplexes or apartment buildings are finished."

The CDBGs are used solely for income eligible people for the purchase of homes. Johnson said the money which will be coming from the grants will be used solely for a no-interest down payment on the purchase of a home once a lending institution approves a loan. The CDBG loan will be 30 percent of the down payment up to $10,000.

"We're taking a big risk by doing this, but we think it's well

Licensing pets help control pet population

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Each year, Wayne police officers impound an average of 50-60 stray animals and each year about 35 are euthanized, according to information from the Wayne Police Department.

According to Vern Fairchild, the Wayne chief of police, 54 animals were impounded in 1989, of which the majority were dogs. He said the number one problem the police department runs into is that not enough owners are licensing their pets.

"If they're not licensed, we can't notify the owner if they're impounded," Fairchild said. "Animals are kept at the Wayne Vet Clinic for five days before they're euthanized, so owners do have a chance to call police if their pet is missing."

According to Dr. Jay Liska, one of the three veterinarians at the Wayne Veterinary Clinic, Wayne has good leash laws. He said some communities have a big problem with stray animals and pets wandering, but Wayne's forefathers have done a good job of making laws which work.

According to information from city hall, however, there is no advertising for pets which are caught and unclaimed. Liska said the work the vet clinic does is a public service to the city since the clinic charges the city at a reduced rate for housing the animals and Fairchild said since advertising has never been done before, there's

Hardee's changing fast food image to health and fitness

Hardee's Restaurant is out to change the image that all fast food restaurants are not good for you. The environmental and health conscious Hardee's are now packaging hamburgers in recyclable styrofoam which is totally environmentally safe.

New Wayne Hardee's manager Barb Brenneman says that Hardee's is also lowering the cholesterol content by cooking with cholesterol free oil. "I think Hardee's is really taking a positive step in attempting to provide for a healthy society," Brenneman said. "We also provide nutrition guides for those who want them. They consist of serving size, calories, protein, carbohydrates, total fat content, cholesterol, sodium, calcium, iron, and potassium for everything we serve."

Hardee's has also gone to cooking their french fries without salt which lowers the sodium content. Since 1961, Hardee's has developed its menu on what customers have told them they wanted to eat when they came into their restaurant.

Hardee's uses only 100 percent American beef hamburgers. They also utilize a special manufacturing process to ensure the quarter-pound hamburgers are more like homemade in texture and taste.

Both the chicken fillet and grilled chicken sandwich feature a whole piece of all white chicken breast meat. The fisherman's fillet is an all white north atlantic cod-fish.

Every morning Hardee's bakes their own biscuits from scratch using real buttermilk, all vegetable shortening and vitamin enriched flour. The salads are freshly prepared each and every day.

It was 1988 when Hardee's set the industry standard by becoming the first major restaurant company to completely switch to all vegetable oil to cook all of its fried products, including french fries. Because of this, Hardee's fried products are low in saturated fat, low in cholesterol and do not taste greasy.

Most of Hardee's menu provides consumers with much of their daily protein requirement, plus a substantial amount of other important nutrients.

Brenneman and her family moved to Wayne in March to take over the Wayne store. Her husband Carl is the assistant manager of the Wayne store. Barb came to Wayne from the LeMars, Iowa store after growing up in Alton, Iowa.

The Wayne Hardee's store employs between 35 and 40 people with about 80 percent coming from the college. "We feel that Hardee's is one of the fastest growing food chains," Brenneman said. "We do a lot of promotions and right now we are promoting our double cheeseburger." Hardee's is also promoting its new Cool Twist Toppers on their sundaes including oreo, m&m and health.

Beginning in the near future the Wayne store will initiate something new according to Brenneman. "We are switching our coffee to 100 percent columbian blend," Brenneman said. "We think the customers will really enjoy the switch."

Besides the assistant manager in Carl Brenneman, there are five supervisors including Suzanne Penn, Marc Rahn, Kristie Aljets, Michelle Wattier and Tona Harder.

The Brenneman's have three daughters, Miranda age 10, Ashley age 4, and Kayla age four months.

WSC retires athlete's softball jersey

By Kevin Peterson
Sports Editor

One of the highest honors a collegiate athlete can ever receive following a career filled with success, is for the respective school to show its appreciation for a job well done by retiring his or her jersey.

Wayne State College recently had the privilege of retiring one such jersey. The number on the jersey reads number three but the individual wearing the jersey stands atop of all prior Wayne State College softball pitchers.

Roni Johnson—a Wayne native, finished her collegiate career with a loss against the College of St. Mary in the district semifinals but that lone loss can not possibly hamper what she has accomplished while on the mound for the Wildcats.

Johnson grew up in Wayne and has virtually always been a pitcher. Her high school coach while playing with the Wayne 18 and under team was Marilyn Strate. In her final year of high school eligibility, she played for Ralston in Omaha under the direction of pitching coach Mike Govig. With Johnson at the helm, Wayne placed runner-up in the state girls 18 and under tournament in 1985. The following year Johnson was named Miss Nebraska Softball by the Nebraska Softball Association. Ironically, Strate was also Johnson's coach at Wayne State through her sophomore year.

Strate moved to Marshal, Minn. in the fall of 1988 to take over SW Minnesota's softball program and as Johnson prepared for her junior pitching season, she did so with a new mentor in Doug Feagan.

As with the previous two seasons with the Wildcats Johnson enjoyed some success but following the fall of 1989, Feagan moved on, after just one year at the helm of the softball program. Interim Dan Pollard stepped in to take Feagan's position with the assistance of former WSC football quarterback Scott Raue.

It was this year—Johnson's final year as a Wayne State College pitcher, that she rose to the top of her field and reached a higher echelon of excellence. How does one athlete overcome the adversity of playing under three head coaches in four years to become one of the premiere players in the country and still manage to have fun doing it?

"Roni competed at a level higher than anyone on the team," head coach Dan Pollard said. "She is very mentally strong and is very disciplined. She knew what she wanted to do on the mound and she went out and did it every day whether it was practice or a game. I am a firm believer that you play a game like you practice and she always gave it her all in practice."

One of the things Johnson had to get used to this year, unlike her first three years at Wayne State, was being the premiere pitcher on the team. "In my freshman and sophomore years the pitching duties were shared between three of us pitchers," Johnson said. "I always pitched a lot of the big games which was an honor for a freshman to do, but there were other pitchers for other games."

This season Johnson virtually had the luxury of pitching the large majority of the season and that was evident in her winning 20+ games. Dan Simmons, head coach of the national champions in NAIA softball this season for Kearney State College says that Johnson is without a doubt one of the top five pitchers in the nation on the NAIA level.

"It seemed like we had a lot more fun on the team this year," Johnson said. "A lot of us are good friends off the field but we as a team believe that the coach can make or break a team and that we were a reflection of our coach which is why we seemed to have more fun playing softball."

Another reason why Johnson seemed to have fun playing softball this year was because she was in the process of breaking records—many records—15 records to be exact.

Johnson finished her tenure at Wayne State with 524 innings pitched which is the equivalent of 75 full games. She pitched 223 2/3 innings this year alone which is another record. She made 35 appearances this season and notched a 20-11 season. (the most victories by any WSC pitcher.)

Her career ERA average was .615 and in 1987 she gave up .480 runs per outing. She allowed the fewest earned runs in a career at 46 and in 1987 and 1988 she allowed just eight runs in each season.

She has struck out a career total of 287 batters and 225 of them came this season—both are records. She has 18 career shutouts to her name with 11 coming this season. In 1987 she allowed the fewest hits of any WSC pitcher in a season at 36. She had three saves in 1988 and five career saves—also records.

"Roni is a big reason why Wayne State enjoyed success this year," Pollard said. "We set school records for the most wins and for the most games played. A lot of that credit should also go to the administrative staff for their support."

Despite all of the time Johnson has put in for the game of softball she still managed to pull a 4.0 grade point average during the past semester. Johnson will student teach all of next year in Omaha before graduating next May.

Come March however, Johnson will help out with the Wildcats softball program as a pitching coach. They say you become a product of who teaches you so it will be interesting to see who the next Roni Johnson will be.

RONI JOHNSON AND Dan Pollard hold up the retired jersey and list of accomplishments set by Johnson during her softball career at Wayne State College. Johnson, a Wayne product, leaves behind 15 records she established in her four year tenure.

Program to feature Red Cross; local chapter seeks volunteers

WAYNE - People in the Wayne area will be able to join with others throughout the nation to test their ability to survive or save others in accidents and natural disasters when the ABC-TV network presents an hour-long interactive special, "The American Red Cross Emergency Test," Thursday, June 7 (8-9 p.m. CDT). Local stations include Channel 8-KCAN, Albion; Channel 9-KCAU, Sioux City; Channel 13-KSFY, Sioux Falls; and Channel 20-KETV, Omaha.

 The hour, hosted by John Ritter, presents a viewer-response test of 20 questions. These questions will help the audience evaluate their knowledge of what to do in a variety of emergency and disaster situations.
 Stars will highlight special areas of home, recreational, public safety and natural disaster.
 A selection of answers will be provided, followed by demonstrations of Red Cross-recommended emergency responses. Linda Teach, Chapter representative, said that "people who are informed and aware of what to do in emergency situations can literally make the differences between life and death or serious injury. Preparation is the key. I urge local viewers to test themselves, and, if interested in helping provide disaster services locally, then contact the Wayne County Chapter through me at 375-1521 or Mary Nichols, Chapter Chairperson, 375-1950 for information on Red Cross CPR, lifesaving and emergency preparedness courses."

 There are many local heroes and heroines who have saved lives because they are trained to know what to do. Last year over 100 area people were trained in Red Cross sponsored courses of Cardio-pulmonary Resuscitation (CPR), First Aid and Lifesaving.

Some may be eligible to get Social Security income payments

AREA - If you have limited income and resources and are age 65 or older, or blind, or disabled, you may be eligible for monthly Supplemental Security Income (SSI) payments. SSI is a Federal program that makes payments to persons with limited income and resources who are aged, blind or disabled.
 A blind person whose vision is less than 20/200 with glasses, or who has tunnel vision of 20 degrees or less should consider SSI. But, you cannot have much income nor own much property. But, you can have your own home. There is no minimum or maximum age for people who are blind or have a disability.
 You should apply for SSI if you cannot work because of a physical or mental condition that is expected to last at least 12 months or result in death. A child under 18 is eligible if he or she has an impairment comparable to one which would prevent an adult from working.
 People can get SSI even if they have other income. Many people get Social Security benefits and SSI. The amount of a person's SSI payment depends on how much other income he or she has. Income includes Social Security benefits, salary or self-employment income, pensions or annuities or any money received, as well as housing and food paid by another person.
 In 1990, a person can have countable income of up to $388 a month and still get some SSI payment. An eligible couple can have income of up to $579 a month and still get some SSI payment. Social Security doesn't count all income, however, so you may be able to get SSI even if you have more income, especially if you live in a State that adds money to the SSI checks or if most of your income is from working.

 In addition to income limitations, a person cannot have resources of more than $2,000. The limit for a couple is $3,000. Resources include savings and checking accounts, bonds, stocks, life insurance, real and personal property. Not all resources count, however. The people at Social Security can give you more information about what does and doesn't count.
 So, if you think you're not eligible for SSI because of your income or resources, think again. You may be. Contact Social Security to get complete information. The people there can tell you what you want to know. Just call the toll-free telephone number — 1-800-234-5772, or the local number — 402-371-1595 for an appointment with a Social Security representative.

one, which runs from the southwest to the northeast, is dangerous to aircraft since they often have to take off or land in a cross wind. According to Ley, some insurance companies won't let the aircraft land here for that reason.

In addition, the present runway is too short for many types of aircraft to land. Ley said twin engine turbo props and lear jets cannot land on the present runway because it's too short.

Braden said she is just hoping the funding will be approved. She said one thing which would help is for the public and local businesses to write letters to Sen. Exon, the NDA and the FAA.

"There are corporate jets that come in for Great Dane, First National Bank of Omaha Service Center and Waldbaums," Braden said. "For these companies, especially, air time is faster than driving and time is money. These corporations are really concerned with that."

Leafy spurge causing problems for northeast Nebraska farms

by Mike Lance
Soil Conservation Technician

AREA - Leafy spurge (Euphorbia esula) is becoming more and more a pest problem for northeast Nebraska farms.

Introduced in the 1800s, this native of Eurasia is becoming common in many parts of Wayne County and is threatening to expand its range even more. This persistent noxious weed is most common on undisturbed areas of farmland. Pastures, meadows, roadsides and some tree plantings show the most infestations.

Spurge is a very hardy plant. Without the natural biological control agents constantly holding its numbers in check its numbers are beginning to reduce grass forage production in pastures. Herbicide control programs are not proving cost effective on many sites. Constant tillage operation is unfeasible in many locales in eliminating spurge.

The old adage of "an ounce of prevention worth a pound of cure" holds very true with this plant pest problem. Preventing an infestation from occurring is not only the best course to follow it is not as difficult as it might seem.

The first line of defense would be to learn to recognize leafy spurge during all times of the year and knowing as much as you can about its growth characteristics. Next check the roadside right-of-ways for leafy spurge, this will alert you that this pest might be "in the neighborhood." If you purchase livestock feed (especially hay) confine the storage and feeding area to as small an area as possible. Check these areas frequently during the growing season for any signs of contamination by spurge seedlings. Spreading manure from livestock which may have eaten from contaminated hay should be restricted to tilled cropland acres, not pastures.

Plan for a minimum of two weed control trips per year until you have control of the spurge. Whether control is tillage, herbicide or biological keep it up.

Most spurge problems can be traced to letting a few plants get a foothold and spreading without any or incorrect control measures taken. Unchecked leafy spurge can ruin a pasture for forage production in a few short years. For more information on leafy spurge check with your local U.S.D.A. Soil Conservation Service Office at 709 Providence Road in Wayne.

Carlson to receive scholarship

ALLEN - Stephanie Carlson of Allen has been chosen to receive a Dorcht College Major/Program Scholarship in agriculture, to apply to her 1990-91 studies at Dorcht College in Sioux Center, Iowa. Stephanie is the daughter of Lyle and Carol Carlson and is a 1990 graduate of Allen Public High School.

These scholarships are available in all the majors and program areas offered by Dorcht. They are four-year scholarships, provided the recipient maintains a B grade point average or above. The students may keep the scholarship even if they later change their major.

Dorcht College, a Christian liberal arts college in northwest Iowa, enrolls approximately 1,000 students in more than 40 academic programs.

Pets

no room in the police department's budget for it now.

Fortunately, most of the animals which are put to sleep are strays with bad tempers or extremely old.

"Those that you would consider good animals or nice pets are usually found homes," Fairchild said. "But the ones that are euthanized are usually old, mean or not the kind of pet you'd want in your home."

In addition, Fairchild said live traps are permitted in town so long as they're used to capture animals which are then impounded. He said the city has no problem with people using live traps so long as the traps are not used for game.

One remedy Dr. Liska recommends is for people to have their pets spayed or neutered. He said fixing an animal permanently solves the problem of overpopulation of unwanted animals.

"I don't want the public to think that 'my dog had a litter or pups so I'll just take them down to the vet clinic,'" he said. "That's not our role."

How my Wayne-Carroll experience helped me prepare for life after high school graduation:

"For the technical-military career I pursued, Wayne High gave me a strong sense of self-discipline and an education rooted in writing, math and science. Without exception, I look back on the teachers and staff of Wayne High as being dedicated professionals. They were people who cared about me and my future as they did for every student. Much of my military career and current positions have dealt with instructing people. I have been successful by using the approach I observed and learned from my high school teachers and Principal Rickers. I feel fortunate that I received a quality high school education and will always be indebted to Wayne High for it."
