START gets tips from Norfolk

WAYNE - When Norfolk faced a severe housing shortage a little over a year ago, the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce developed a housing committee to suggest what the need was.

Today, as Wayne faces its current housing shortage, the START task force looking at the problem, listened to what is being done in Norfolk from two officials who worked on the committee Thursday night at Providence Medical Center.

The result of what the START housing task force learned is that they need to establish and meet deadlines. The START task force also learned the problem is being solved in Norfolk by the private sector.

"We went through several peaks and valleys until we reached our conclusion," said Denny Morrison, president of Norwest Bank in Norfolk, and the Norfolk committee chair. "By the time we reached our conclusion, we realized it was on the private sector's shoulders."

MORRISON'S ADVICE was simple: "You don't want to spend the next year and a half on housing. You'll need to get it done."

Following a survey conducted by the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce, some of the things Norfolk did was to hold meetings with large employers to see what the businesses future needs included. Morrison said they also stayed in close contact with realtors and contractors to see what they were doing.

"The most important thing was to keep contact with the people we needed input from," he said.

According to Dick Wozniak, the city planner for Norfolk, the solution was to provide trailer home housing for the lower income, single parent families. He said their research found there was a need for housing those whose incomes falls into the lower brackets.

According to Wayne real estate agent Dale Stoltenberg, who attended the meeting, the most desperate need in Wayne is that of lower income families. Stoltenberg did not comment on other housing needs in Wayne.

WOZNIAK SAID lower cost housing, which is considered under $25,000, was where the most desperate need appeared in Norfolk.

"We're finding that not everyone wants to rent for a period of time but we're having trouble finding single-family dwellings," he said. "We're trying to change city ordinances which will result in a reduction in the price of the land so builders can build on it. The lower it costs the builders, the easier it will be to build and the more affordable it will be to those who are looking to buy."

In addition, the City of Norfolk held an affordable housing conference after officials had attended a zoning/planning conference in Lincoln. Wozniak said this proved beneficial.

According to Nancy Braden, Wayne City Treasurer, Wayne officials recently attended a similar conference in Grand Island, and an affordable housing workshop may be in Wayne's plans in the near future.

One of the areas the Norfolk officials emphasized was keeping the public educated about the progress of the group. They said the reason it has taken so long in Norfolk to succeed at completing the projects which are needed has been either because of governmental red tape or opposition from the public following misleading stories by local media.

"You'll need to keep the public in perspective of what's going on," Morrison said.

Teenager finds year in Sweden enjoyable

By LaVon Anderson

Heldestad family in Lapland, a region located in northern Sweden.

A year isn't so long — if you spend it making new friends, visiting new places and learning about a lifestyle and culture different from your own.

That's exactly what 19-year-old Jill Lutt did when she packed her bags last summer and boarded a plane for Sweden.

Jill, daughter of Duane Lutt of Wayne and Cheryl Duff of Orchard, spent the past year in Sweden as an exchange student through the Educational Foundation, a world-wide exchange student program.

A 1989 graduate of Orchard High School, Jill said she wanted to do something different.

"I just wasn't ready to go right on to college," says Jill. "I wanted to see something first."

JILL RETURNED home this past week from her year-long excursion and says she has no regrets about spending a year away from the United States.

"I don't have any regrets whatsoever," smiles Jill, "and I would encourage anyone to go for it if they have the chance."

"You know," adds Jill, "we (Americans) tend to be pretty narrow minded. Seeing other countries and being exposed to other cultures makes you more aware of where you live."

"America — we think we're the best, and we think everyone else thinks that too. But that's not necessarily true."

WHILE IN Sweden, Jill resided with the Roland and Ingegerd

"It's a very rural area," explains Jill, adding that the Heldestad family lives in a village of approximately 300 residents. The village is located near the town of Lycksele, with a population of about 10,000 persons.

Roland Heldestad is a construction engineer and Ingegerd is a dietitian. The family also includes son Magnus, 21, a university student, and daughter Jenny, 17.

Jenny returned with Jill to spend time in the United States before completing her final year of Swedish high school, where she is studying languages.

DURING HER year in Sweden, Jill also attended Swedish high school and studied music.

"I really enjoyed school," smiles Jill. "It was easy for me because in my music classes I found that the language barrier wasn't so bad. Also, all of my friends spoke English."

"I didn't speak any Swedish when I left the United States a year ago. Now," says Jill laughing, "I can say what I have to."

WHILE IN Sweden, Jill visited Stockholm and Gothenburg and spent three weeks touring several other European countries.

"I never really experienced a culture shock," says Jill, adding that the Swedes are very influential by the United States.

"The landscape was what I enjoyed most. Here, you can count the hills and you can count the trees. But northern Sweden is all

BRAN includes many from area

By Mark Crist

Why would a group of approximately 450 bicyclists trek across Nebraska?

Because it's there, according to three from Wayne who participated in the Bike Ride Across Nebraska (BRAN).

According to information from Gary West, who participated in the BRAN adventure, Wayne was among the best represented towns in the state. West said Wayne boasted 16 riders, while two represented Laurel, two from Emerson, one from Winside and two who used to live in Wayne.

Of that group, Lyle George was the only person to travel from Wyoming to the Iowa border and he was only one of three people in the state who biked the entire trip, which began in Sidney and ended in the Omaha suburb of Chalco Hills.

"The best way to describe BRAN is like a fraternity," West said. "The right of initiation is the completion of the trip. You create a closeness from going and completing the ride."

BRAN RIDERS AGES ranged from 9-years-old to 72-years-old, West said. Included in that range was Dr. Wayne Wessel, a 53-year-old dentist, from Wayne.

"From my standpoint, it's nice to know I can get out and do something like this," Wessel said. "I picture myself as a little overweight and some picture me as over the hill. If I can go and do this, it shows that if someone has an intent to do this, they might want to contact a bike club."

One of the two youngest riders was Chris VanMeter, who rode approximately 65 miles, along with his father Gary. Lisa Walton, also of Wayne, was the other youngest person on the trip. She rode with her parents Al and Lauren Walton.

Other participants from Wayne included Carlos, Chad and Troy Frey; Jed and J.D. O'Leary; Earl Norman, Tim Powell and Charles Shapiro. Laurel riders were JoAnne Malchow and Lois Stage; Emerson, Carlene and Marvin Bodlak; and

Brick house is 'home sweet home' to couple

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of articles leading up to the Winside Centennial Celebration July 20-22.

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Even though it's not the oldest house in Winside, it's "Home Sweet Home" to Donald and Leona Backstrom.

As you enter their home on east Main in Winside, a pillow inscription embroidered with the "Home Sweet Home" motto best describes this home constructed sometime in the early 1900s.

The home, which is believed to be the only one constructed of brick from the Winside Brick Yard, was built around 1910. The brick factory existed from 1898 to 1903.

Originally, the house was owned by Charlie Unger. Unger owned the home from 1909 to 1955. Storz Brewing Company held the mortgage on the home in 1911 when Unger was short of cash, but when Unger sold it in 1955, he did hold the title.

In addition, the walls which form the infrastructure of the house, are made entirely of brick with the exception of the rear entrance way and the bathroom, both of which were added to the house years after it was built.

Tenants used an outhouse for restroom facilities and bathed in the kitchen sink, at one time, according to Mrs. Backstrom.

"When we put up the kitchen cupboards, we had quite a time doing it," Mrs. Backstrom said. "We had to drill into the wall and put a sleeve in it before we could hang the cupboards."

THE BACKSTROMS are only the fourth owners of the building. When Unger sold it in 1955, it belonged to Jimmy Johnson until 1965, at which time it was purchased by Beatrice Prince until the Backstroms purchased it for $6,500 in 1975.

"I like it down here," Mr. Backstrom explains. "I like the location as well as the looks of the building."

Ironically, the Winside Brick Yard ceased production because the clay in the area was not good enough to make bricks, according to a 1940 history book. That's why the brick yard had such a short life span.

The Backstroms, though, are pleased with their home.

"Storm-wise, we feel more comfortable living here because the brick is not going to blow down as easily," Mrs. Backstrom said.

"It's pretty sound-proof," Mr. Backstrom added. "We can't really hear much from the outside. It's pretty quiet."

The only problem the Backstroms have run into is when the weather is either extremely hot or extremely cold for an extended period of time. If the weather is at either extreme, it gets a little uncomfortable living in the house.

WHEN THEY bought the house, their intentions of purchasing it were meant as a joke, according to Mr. Backstrom. He said when Mrs. Prince died, his bid on the home was not meant to be taken seriously.

"We were looking at another house and when Mrs. Prince died, I had always said I liked this house," he said. "As a joke, I called up Cecil Prince (Mrs. Prince's son) and made a bid on it. It just so happened that we got the house."

Along with being soundproof, the Backstroms have found that it is usually comfortable from the elements. Mr. Backstrom, who suffers from emphysema, said the house does a pretty good job of keeping the wind and the humidity out.

There's an additional feature the Backstroms like.

"There isn't the upkeep on this as there is on a wooden structure," he said. "You don't have to paint it and it won't rot."

Man arrested in Cutshall case used to be Wayne resident

Former Wayne resident David Phelps was arrested by a magistrate at Adel, Iowa in connection with the disappearance of Jill Cutshall of Norfolk. He was arrested in Perry, Iowa, according to reports by the Norfolk Daily News.

Phelps, who attended the Wayne Public Schools from 1970 until the 1979-80 school year, when he apparently dropped out of school, was arrested on a kidnapping indictment in the disappearance of Cutshall, who was reported missing Aug. 13, 1987.

Phelps attended school in Wayne from 1970 to 1980, according to a report in The Wayne Herald in the Thursday, Dec. 7 issue.

According to reports by the Associated Press, Phelps is being held in the Dallas County Jail in Adel, Iowa, which is about 30 miles northwest of Des Moines.

Kidnapping is a felony offense. If Phelps is found guilty, he could face a maximum sentence of life imprisonment, under Nebraska law, according to a report in the Norfolk Daily News.

The Grand jury investigation comes as a result of a petition drive by Joyce Cutshall, Jill's mother, who gathered enough signatures for the Grand Jury to be held.

Bond of $100,000 was set Thursday for Phelps. Extradition to Nebraska can take no longer than 30 days, according to a judge's order, the Associated Press reported. To be extradited, Gov. Kay Orr could petition Iowa's governor to return Phelps to Nebraska or Phelps could waive the extradition.

The case drew national attention when a "60 Minutes" crew reported in December, 1989 that Phelps was involved in the Cutshall disappearance. When Cutshall disappeared, she was 9-years-old.

Winside was Patty Oberle. Now of Manhattan, Kan., Jeff and John Strume, who used to be from Wayne, participated also.

FOR GEORGE, the trip was like old home week. He said along the route, he ran into former college classmates. In addition, the experience was something he enjoyed.

"I met a lot of interesting people," George said. "That's one of the reasons I did it. I wanted to go after another goal rather than the regular business work. It was nice to sit there and press on and get away from the routine of the office. The next thing you know, I was in Iowa."

George, West and Shapiro were the only three from Wayne who went out early so they could travel to Pine Bluffs, Wyo. before the entire group left from Sidney, Neb. Sunday, June 10.

"Our intentions were to bike all the way across the state," West said. "Because of bad weather Friday, the trip from York to Wahoo was cancelled. Lyle was the only one from Wayne who rode that day because most of the group left by bus and he waited for the second group but by that time, the weather had cleared and he was able to make the trip."

ALONG WITH that "fraternity" feeling, as West calls it, Wessel found it wasn't tough being a rookie.

"I found that being a first-timer, people were more willing to accept you," he said. "Bikers were very helpful at every opportunity. If you were having trouble, they would stop to see if they could be of help. There was seemingly a willingness to exchange pleasantries during the day."

West said the portion of the journey he enjoyed the most was between Calloway and Broken Bow.

"That was one of the backroads with rolling hills," he said. "It's some of the prettiest country I've seen in Nebraska."

WITH THE TRIP complete, all three riders interviewed said their interest in BRAN began about three years ago when it visited Wayne. Each came back with his own perspective of the trek.

"The thing I found inspiring was that one day my knee was hurting and I met a guy without a knee," George said. "Then I realized if he can make it on one leg, my knee problem isn't such a big matter."

mountains and trees and rocks, with rivers and lakes in between."

When asked what she enjoyed least, Jill to quick to say "palt," a flour and potato ball with ham in the middle that is boiled. "It tastes like glue."

"And," smiles Jill, "they eat sour, rotten herring in Sweden."

"I like it," smiles her Swedish friend Jenny. "Well," laughs Jill, "it's the next thing to rotten and still edible."

Jill says she really missed American food, especially Pizza Hut pizza and peanut butter. "I finally got over my craving for peanut butter when my mother sent me some from the states."

She says she also missed American television and compared Swedish television to public television stations in the states. "It's alright some of the time," smiles Jill, "but not every day."

"Swedish television is extremely boring. I listened to a lot of music and I read a lot of books."

JILL SAYS the year she spent in Sweden went quickly because of the new friends she made and the fact that her Swedish family made her feel at home.

"I got a little homesick," adds Jill, "especially at Thanksgiving. That's a very American holiday you know and I had a difficult time going to school and treating that day like any other."

"The year was very short," says Jill, "but the winter was long."

Jill explains that in Lapland the winter starts toward the end of October and lasts until the end of March, with temperatures averaging between 15 and 20 degrees below zero.

"And although it can be dark by 2 p.m. during the winter months, Jill says the sun never really sets during the summer. "In the middle of the night it's about as dark as when the sun goes behind a cloud here."

"I miss that," smiles Jenny. "It's nice," adds Jill, "but I like to sleep in the dark."

JILL SAYS she and her Swedish friends did a lot of snowmobiling in the winter and a lot of "hanging out" in the summer.

"I really liked the snow," adds Jill, "but I didn't like the cold."

"You're just not a Viking," says Jenny smiling at Jill.

NOW THAT she's back home, Jill says she'll spend the next few weeks with her Swedish friend Jenny before she (Jenny) must return to Sweden to complete high school.

"Then I'm going to be normal," laughs Jill. "I plan to go to college, live in a dorm and get a job."

Jill will enroll in Wayne State College this fall, possibly majoring in English or home economics.

Jenny also plans to attend Wayne State after graduating next spring from high school in Sweden.

Jill says she definitely plans to return to Sweden someday. "I've already been told by many of my classmates that I have to be back in 1995 for a class reunion."

Several attend orientation

AREA - Several who plan to attend Northeast Community College in the fall attended a orientation/registration at the college June 14 in preparation for the beginning of classes in August.

Among those participating include: Bradley Landanger, Carroll, building construction program; Susan Nichols, Wayne, child care program; Thomas Stevers, Wayne, welding-machinist program; Cheri McDonald and Tracy McFarland, Wayne, computer programming program; Bert Schwedhelm, Hoskins, building construction program; and Sally Sims, Hoskins, associate degree in nursing.

During the day incoming students met with faculty advisors, registered for classes, checked on their financial aid and learned about services, regulations and activities at the college.

A total of 33 students took part in the orientation for students.

YARD OF THE MONTH

This contest is sponsored by Country Nursery Lawn Service of Wayne and judged by an independent group of observers.

Lyle and Ginny Seymour are proud of their home at 1100 Sunset Dr. and part of that pride stems into the lush green yard they have.

The Seymours spend about three hours a week maintaining their yard and along with the care they provide it, comes the work done by Country Nursery.

"Country Nursery treats it," Lyle said. "That means anything that grows from seeds on the lawn can't sprout. For instance, if a dandelion seed comes into the yard, it can't sprout because the ingredients they use keeps it from growing. They do it about four times a year and in addition to that, they apply an insecticide for grubs and crickets."

Although having an underground watering system, the rain this year has helped the lawn grow. They said they've only had to water the lawn twice since the growing season began because the moisture mother nature has provided has been more than sufficient.

The service provided by Country Nursery has been a blessing for the Seymours.

"It's nice for us so we don't have to worry about it since we're gone so much," Ginny said. "Very honestly, we've been very pleased with what they (Country Nursery) have done for us."

Booster Club purchase enhances weight room

Summer vacation. A time for school-age students to relax, perhaps play a little baseball, swim or just plain soak up the sun, right—WRONG! Approximately 110 students ranging from grades 7-12 are using the summer break to prepare themselves for their athletic endeavors for the coming fall season by pumping iron.

That's right, 70 boys and 40 girls are taking advantage of the 6-9 a.m. hours and 3-6 p.m. hours to better themselves on the field as well as being as fit as they can be.

Wayne wrestling coach John Murtaugh and football coach Lonnie Ehrhardt supervise the weight room and Murtaugh says that the students lifting weights this summer are very dedicated to the task.

The Wayne Booster Club is very supportive of the student-athletes desire to train hard and for that they have purchased several new pieces of equipment for the school including new flooring, a squat rack, an incline bench, a bench for bench pressing and a couple sets of weights.

"The access to use the weight room is always there," Murtaugh said. "We are even open a couple of nights to accommodate everyone, (students)." Murtaugh said the boys are on a four day a week lifting program while the girls are on a three day a week program.

"All-of-the-students-are-on-a-computerized program which was made by the Boyd Epley staff at the University of Nebraska. "When a student comes in and wants to start lifting weights," Murtaugh said. "We look at the maturity of the individual and base a program on his or her stature."

Murtaugh said everyone is on the computer program with the exception of maybe a few junior high students who have never lifted before. "It is a very intense program," Murtaugh said. "We encourage the kids to have partners so they can have that extra motivational push sometimes needed."

All of the computer programs are based on six week intervals in which the student then maxes out to see how much gain there has been before going to a different computer program which is again a six week stint.

"The difference between the boys and girls workouts is that the girls are on a complete rotation which means they work on both the upper and lower body on the same day where as the boys work on the upper body one day, then work on the lower body the next," Murtaugh said. "We stress the fact that there should be a 48 hour interval between working the same muscles."

There are about eight different lifts for those working on the upper

THE WAYNE Booster Club recently purchased some new weight equipment for the high school. Pictured is just of the pieces, a bench for bench pressing.
