wayne Chicken Show be called?
A decegg, according to Chicken Show officials.
The decegg celebration of Wayne's annual Chicken Show will be held Saturday, July 14 when people from across the nation show up in Wayne to cluck their stuff.

According to Jane O'Leary, one of five committee members, people from across the nation will be flocking to Wayne to take part in this tenth annual event. She said much help is still needed for the one-day event.

Despite having assistance from the Wayne Kiwanis Club, the Eagles Club, the Girl Scouts, the Wayne County Women of Today, the Wayne Toastmasters and the Bike Club, she said help is desperately needed.
O'teary said interested organizations need to call her at 375-3729 (work) or 375-2335 (home).

BUSINESSES ALREADY volunteering support, include: Creat Dane, Heritage Homes, the Wayne Chamber of Commerce, the Mil-ton G. Waldbaum Company and the First National Bank of Omaha

the HIST National Bank of Omana Service Center, O'Leary said.

"We're looking for more service clubs to direct traffic," she said.
"This year, we'll have parking in the high school parking lot so we'll need help from clubs to drive shuttles from the high school downtown."

In addition to the regular In addition to the regular tourists who cluck their way into Wayne, O'Leary said two travel agencies have scheduled tours to visit Wayne during the Chicken Show and the Volksmarch people will be in Wayne during the event.

The Volksmarch is one of three new events for this years' Chicken Show. The Volksmarch people are walkers who travel across Nebraska in search of a new place to take in search of a new place to take their daily hike. O'Leary said this year they will be strutting between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. on the day of the show.

ADDITIONAL NEW features to the Chicken Show include: a bike ride, the best human chicken legs and chicken bingo.

"We will have people pick out a place with their name on a giant bingo card and place it in a cage with a well-fed chicken," O'Leary said. "Once the chicken is placed in the cage with the card, it will 'biologically' select which name is the winner."

the winner."

Returning to the Chicken Show is an event which was held the first few years of the annual pecking show. O'Leary said the best chicken legs was discontinued after it wasn't found to be that successful but she said there's been enough demand for it to bring it back.

In addition to new features of the Chicken Show, folks will get to find out who the top peckers are when the Chicken Ala-King and Queen are coronated. This year, the coronation is being moved from the Wayne City Auditorium to 3rd and Main Street, O'Leary said. The coronation will be held prior to the Chicken Show parade.

Park Recreation program continues to third generation youth from area

By Mark Crist

As Erna Karel glances around Bressler Park, she realizes some of the children in the Park Recreation Program represent fourth generation families to her.

The program found its roots almost 30 years ago when Karel and the City Recreation Board found a need for it. Today, the program is run by Peg Lutt, but Karel still plays a major roll in the recreational time for area youth. ON AVERAGE, they see 130

"It's a place for kids to go and have fun," Karel said. "They're taught obedience but it's not structured like school. Since that's the way it is, it's discipline

Kids from Denver, Colo. to towns in Minnesota have been in attendance this year. Locally the park rec program sees youth from Wayne, Wakefield, Win-side, Norfolk and Lyons. The program is funded through city money as well as funds from the United Way. Some local service clubs have also been known to make donations to help purchase supplies, Karel said.

"Our program is just this," Karel said as she glances around tables busy with youth working on arts and crafts as well as dances and kids playing ball near a storage shed in the park. "We ve enough supervisors to don't have enough supervisors to let the kids play on the slides or swings and if they are, we can't control them. If we keep them working on what the program offers, they're not interested in the slides and if that's the case, you know they're interested."

LUTT SAID SHE is pleased with the quality of youth the park rec program sees. This year, all of the teacher/supervisors are high school aged youth who take the youth through various activities. She said the activities the leaders provide keep the children interested and busy.

"They prepare each craft for each student, each day," Lutt said. "That's a lot of work. They have to plan their time so the kids stay interested. If they make it fun for the kids, the kids want to come back."

RYAN TEACH makes a flower pot during park activities.

The reason the youngsters find the program interesting is because since it's not structured like school, they have a chance

O'Leary said more shirts are on order since the demand has been so high but that's not to say the new order will last that long.

The good news is that since sales have been so high for the Chicken Show T-shirts, funding for the tenth annual event look good.

Financing of the Chicken Show comes from shirts sold at the show as well as other souvenirs, O'Leary said. "It's important that everyone buy the Chicken Show shirts," she said.

Additionally, large out-of-state corporations, as well as a few instate, put a lot of money into the annual event but the Chicken Show is primarilly funded through shirts.

curriculum for the district.

How my Wayne-Carroll experience helped me prepare for life after high school graduation:

I feel my high school education helped prepare me for college and for teaching. I especially appreciate the years I spent with Ann Meyer and as a librarian's aid with Bew Merriman. Other teachers in Wayne helped me prepare for adulthood. I can especially remember Mrs. Hartman, Mrs. Atkins, Mrs. Straight, Mrs. Lindsay, Mrs. Skokan, Mr. Johnson and Mrs. Mitchell. Many of the ideas these people used in their classrooms have been utilized well in mine. The Wayne schols were (and still are) filled with many excellent teachers who have [and will continue] to shape the lives of many successful young people from our community. I Thank all of them for the great impact they had on mine.
