DURING A FINAL visit to Kevin and Bonnie Kai's hog operation, AgLink student Jeremy Beaver looks over the pigs as they come toward him.

AgLink allows for growth Country gives youth learning experience

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Although he won't come right out and say it, Jeremy Beaver has learned a great deal during his stay on a farm. Beaver, along with five other youth from urban Nebraska areas, participated in the AgLink program for three weeks this summer. Beaver stayed with the Kevin and Bonnie Kai family on their farm south of Wakefield. Beaver, a quiet eighth grader from Norris Junior High in Omaha, said of all the things he's learned it's that of responsibility. That lesson was something Mr. Kai was glad he learned. "I think it will have a lasting impression on Jeremy," Mr. Kai said Monday, the day Jeremy returned to Omaha. "Five or six years down the road, he'll be able to say he did this. "I would hope from some of the experiences he's had here, he'll make the right decisions down the road rather than take the easy way out. He's found through hot, dirty and stinky work that he can do anything he sets his mind to."

BEING AN OMAHA youth, Beaver said he faces the challenge of staying away from gangs. He said he's had pressure from friends to join a gang but so far he has refused the temptation.

"There's trouble you face in the city you don't face out here," he said. "You're a little bit more free in the country but it's more work. You can do almost anything you want in the country — things you can't do in the city."

Although occasionally bored, Beaver said he has adapted. He said he enjoyed working with the hogs because "they're fun to work with," but of all the things he's learned, it's to be more responsible.

"You learn responsibility," he said. "I've learned that if you're responsible, you get your work done."

Hearing that was something Mr. Kai applauded. He said he tried to emphasize that if you take care of major tasks, you're awarded. He said much of the work the Kais did with Jeremy were goal-oriented.

IN ADDITION to seeing goals accomplished, Beaver said he wants to do one thing when he returns home: "I want to get a dog when I go back," he said as he patted Doogie, Kai's dog.

Starting out, the Kais found Jeremy wasn't motivated the same way they are. Mrs. Kai said he was used to eating only one meal a day and sleeping until noon and on the farm, that's something they can't do.

"I think I've seen a lot of changes," Mrs. Kai said. "By nature, he's quiet and it's a big adjustment for him. In the last five

City asks people to lower electric usage

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

As the summer's first heat wave enters its second week, city officials are asking people to lower electric usage. Just as customers are charged by the kilowatt hour, so is the city, according to Gene Hansen, electric plant director. Right now, the electrical demand is at a $12.53 per kilowatt cost to the city and that cost is passed to the public. Hansen said that cost is built in and it stays with the city for an entire year. The greater the demand, the more electricity which needs to be produced, thus the higher the expense.

"We reach our peak demand seven to 10 times during the summer. The rest of the time, we're not trying to get people to reduce their load," Hansen said.

So far this summer, the peak output is 9,500 kilowatts. Hansen said that 9,500 peak will cost the city throughout the year, since it's charged according to that amount.

If electrical usage continues to rise, higher amounts will stay with the city throughout the year.

THE WAY THE city is charged is according to its peak output during the year because the companies which supply Wayne energy have to have the facilities and the manpower to be prepared for that amount all year, he said. During the winter, Wayne peaks at 7,500 kilowatts and during the off-season

Winside Travelers Inn to hold special open house for centennial event

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series of articles about the Winside Centennial Celebration July 20-22.

By Diane Jaeger
Winside Correspondent

WINSIDE - The old Winside Travelers Inn will once again hear the patter of feet across its wooden floors during Winside's July 20-22 birthday celebration. The Inn, built around 1886 and used as a rooming house when owned by A.M. Averill, who named it the Averill House, has been vacant for the past year. Prior to that time, it most recently had been used as a private home.

On May 3, 1892, Ernest Hans obtained a license to conduct a saloon in a room in the northeast corner (formerly the dining room) on the Averill House, records show.

Some of the recorded owners of the property after Mr. Averill, were Martin Redmer and John Dimmel. Dimmel purchased it in 1898 and also operated a saloon in the building until he retired in 1917. Mrs. Ed (Emily Jane) Carlson purchased it Aug. 4, 1923 from John Dimmel and renamed it the Traveler's Inn. The Carlsons owned it until 1978 when it was sold to Mr. and Mrs. John J. Gallop, Jr. In 1988, it was purchased by Scott W. Jackson, its current owner, according to public records.

The Inn also had several owners in-between those mentioned, but the ownership was either short-term or transitional, according to public records.

PLANS FOR WINSIDE'S Centennial are to open three rooms on the Inn's main floor for displays or antiques and family heirlooms and demonstrations, according to Winside Centennial officials.

The Inn actually has six rooms on the main floor and eight upstairs. Included in the structure is a root cellar and a kitchen, according to Mr. Jackson, present owner of the building.

Family heirlooms belonging to Willis and Gladys Reichert, siblings who reside in Winside, will be displayed at the Inn.

The family of Jacob Reichert came to Nebraska by train, locating in Winside on March 8, 1888. The first night the Reicherts spent in Nebraska was in the Averill House, according to family history.

The Reicherts had brought with them by train some farm machinery, furniture, household goods and other necessary articles, according to Ms. Reichert. Some of the articles included a hall rack, a rocking chair, an Edison phonograph with a morning glory horn, an 1859 Bible and a combined medicine and cook book.

Some of these items will be on display at the Inn during the Winside Centennial celebration, Mr. Reichert said.

AS CENTENNIAL preparations continue, some Winside folk will man the old Travelers Inn.

ALSO, A QUILT that the Epworth League of the United Methodist Church made and raffled off in 1914 and won by Samuel Reichert will be displayed.

Family heirlooms such as tools and kitchen utensils, belonging to the Harry and Esther Heinemann family, will be on display at the Inn. There will be demonstrations of

Corrections to be made Exercise area to get repairs

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Corrections are being made to the Wayne County Juvenile Detention Facility, according to Wayne County Sheriff LeRoy Janssen.

The corrections follow two escapes in two weeks by juveniles held at the facility. Janssen said part of the reason for the escapes is due to a recent ruling by the Nebraska Supreme Court which makes it so youth can't be held in solitary confinement upon arrival for observation.

The changes which Janssen said are in the works will make the outdoor exercise area totally enclosed.

Currently, there is a gap where inmates are taken from the exercise area into the building, which is the route one inmate escaped Thursday.

THE AREA WHERE an escape is possible is between the south side of the west wing of the building and the north side of the fence which lines the exercise grounds.

Before the facility housed juveniles, the area in question was used as a patio for the sheriff when he and his wife resided at the facility. It has a three foot fence on the west end which was not designed for housing inmates.

Janssen said when the facility became a juvenile detention center over a year ago, contractors were asked to enclose the exercise area, but no bids were received since contractors said they were too busy, Janssen said. So the work was never completed.

Janssen said the work will be completed by 30 days from Monday. He said inmates will not be allowed to use the exercise area until the new fence is completed.

"All residents will have to stay within the secured perimeter for 30 days or until the fence is completed, whichever comes first," Janssen said.

JANSSEN SAID the two youth who escaped had a different attitude. He said both youth were contracted from the Omaha Tribal Council for housing until they appeared for court dates. He said charges will be filed against each youth in Wayne County for escape.

If they are found guilty, each youth could face up to a year in a Nebraska Penitentiary Facility. Janssen said he did not know what facility they would end up at if found guilty.

"Of previous escapees, they've all been placed in the state penitentiary system," he said.

Janssen said although putting in a new fence will not prevent facility residents from escaping, it is the best means of keeping them in. He said despite punishment, most of the juveniles housed neither have any concept of punishment, nor do they realize the trouble they face.

"We're taking steps to insure this doesn't happen again," Janssen said. "It isn't that we're not aware of the problem but we're learning from experience. Anytime you run a detention facility, you run the danger of someone getting out."

IN ORDER TO inform the public, Janssen said when juveniles are in the exercise area, they are monitored by an employee of the facility. He said some of the juveniles at the facility need one-on-one supervision and due to funding, that type of supervision isn't always available.

With the two juveniles who escaped, Janssen said facility officials are not aware of their previous record. In addition, he said he does not know what charges the juveniles face, so they cannot tell if a juvenile is likely to try to stage an escape.

"Violation of probation (which Thursday's escapee faces) indicates that the courts see a need for another alternative," he said. "We treat each case seriously, it just happens that we had one get away."

Janssen said, however, that there is no uniform code for informing juvenile detention officials about charges the youth face. He said it's left up to trust between the facility and the groups the facility contracts with.

Bereuter focuses on issues in Wayne visit

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

U.S. Rep. Doug Bereuter didn't discuss specifics with local constituents when he visited Wayne Tuesday morning, but rather he came to listen.

He opened the informal discussion with comments on current national issues. Issues he addressed ranged from last year's repealing of the Catastrophic Health Care Insurance to the Clean Air Act of 1990. He also addressed child care legislation.

Bereuter said versions of a Clean Air Act bill in the house and the senate do not differ that much. He said both bills are designed to clean up automobile emissions and manufacturing waste resulting in smog. In addition, he said the bill will help the farm economy.

"It's good news for ag producers since it's not petroleum based but alcohol based," he said. "Farmers will benefit from that."

BEREUTER SAID the number one problem the nation faces is the deficit. He said since the United States has had only one balanced budget in 19 years, despite the Graham-Rudman Act of the mid-'80s, the budget is still not balanced.

"You'll remember President Bush's famous campaign pledge 'read my lips, no new taxes'. President Bush has realized that he has to do something to cure the problem with the deficit," he said. "There's only three ways to cure the problem: one, you can raise taxes; two, you can cut expenditures or three, you can do a combination of both. That's why the president has backed off his previous stance."

He said he foresees plans to reduce troop numbers in Europe, the Philippines and South Korea while asking Japan to pay more for protection. He said Congress is considering changes in veterans benefits to reduce or eliminate class C coverage for non-combat related illnesses. He said each of these measures will help cut back deficit troubles.

BEREUTER SAID there is little difference between the 1990 Farm

Bill and the one passed in 1985. He said the only main differences are in protection of groundwater quality and soil conservation.

While addressing several issues, Bereuter said child care legislation has been in the works for years. He said despite differences in the House and Senate as well as Republicans and Democrats, one point which all sides agree upon is to provide earned income tax credit. He said earned income tax credit will enable families to make a decision about child care without being forced to make that decision.

He added, however, that he does not support legislation for mandatory parental leave in the workplace. He said this is not fair to small businesses since if a small business loses one person for a six month period, it could be detrimental to that company.

"I think the European system has gotten carried away," he said.

The GOLDEN YEARS

By Lee Stone

A national survey of 400 companies finds increased appreciation among personnel managers for the "work ethic" of older employees, including company loyalty, commitment to quality, practical knowledge and coolness in crisis. But, the survey also found that few companies aggressively recruit or retain older employees or help them to learn new technologies. As a result, "non-technologically oriented older workers could find themselves shut out of rewarding, well-paying positions," the survey report said. The message for older workers is to actively seek training and maintain needed skills," according to sponsors of the survey.

Driving after dark is especially challenging for older people because they have greater difficulties in seeing at night. A 50-year-old driver needs twice as much light to see as well as a 30-year-old, according to the American Safety Council. Among its suggestions: get your headlights checked. If they are misaimed by as little as eight-tenths of a degree, they shorten the distance you can see by 30 percent.

Willy Gross shines in Northeast Nebraska All-Star game held in Norfolk on Saturday

By Kevin Peterson
Sports Editor

The North snapped the South's five game win streak Saturday night, 114-104 in the Seventh Annual Northeast Nebraska Boys All-Star Basketball Game at Norfolk Community College.

The two biggest stars for the North both have a Wayne connection. Willy Gross scorched the nets for 17 points including 11 in the opening quarter to give the North a 28-23 lead.

Gross, a 1990 graduate of Wayne-Carroll High School sank two three-pointers in the game. The leading scorer for the North and the leading scorer of the game was Chad West of O'Neill. West was virtually unstoppable as he scored 28 points breaking the record of 26 points by Troy Drahotka of Norfolk in 1987.

West's Wayne connection is that he will be a Wayne State freshman this fall and will be a member of the Wayne State Men's basketball team. The North kept up the pace in the second quarter scoring 29 points and maintaining a 57-48 lead.

The lead stretched to 13 by the third quarter's end as the score stood at 85-72. The South out scored the North by three, 32-29 in the fourth period. Laurel-Concord big man John Schutte also had a major impact on the outcome of the game as he scored 10 points and hauled down a number of rebounds.

Todd Erwin of Laurel and Mark Johnson of Wakefield were two other Wayne Herald area athletes involved with Johnson scoring four and Erwin netting two in the game. All eleven of the North players scored in the game.

Jeff Means of Norfolk High added 13 while Ponca's Dave Mentzer scored a dozen. T.J. Wheeler of Crofton also scored 12 as six North players scored in double figures.

Jay Poppel of Butte finished with seven while Jason Kollmar of Norfolk scored six. Marche Noecker of Cedar Catholic netted four points.

The South was led by Ken Sander's 18 points. Sander was a graduate of Humphrey St. Francis this spring. Mike Kloth of Wisner-Pilger poured in 17 points in a losing effort.

Paul Poppe of Scribner-Snyder scored 16 while Brady Caskey of Stanton scored 14. John Rollman of Humphrey added nine and Kevin Sander of Humphrey St. Francis scored seven. Also scoring seven points was Harlan Welch of Ainsworth.

Ryan Buckley also of Ainsworth scored six points while John Arrow-smith of Rock County scored six.

Dennis Beller of Lindsay Holy Family netted four points and rounding out the South scoring attack was Kevin Zoner of Battle Creek with one.

The game was played in four, 10-minute quarters and each player was allotted six fouls. Teams were forced to play man-to-man defense and they couldn't press until the fourth quarter and in order to press you had to be behind.

The North won the first all-star game held in 1984 but the South had won every game since.

Legion win streak continues to grow

The streak continued Friday night as the Wayne Legion team won their 10th consecutive game downing Laurel 12-2 in five innings of play. The Legion's last loss came on June 3 against O'Neill.

Brian Lentz seized the pitching victory after tossing a 2-hitter which included five strike outs and no walks. Wayne pounded out nine hits in the contest compared to Laurel's two.

Matt Peterson was Wayne's only two hit performer with a pair of singles to his credit while Rusty Hamer, Jeff Lutt, Brian Lentz, Jeff Griesch, and Brian Moore all singled. The big hitters in the game were Matt Bruggeman and Jim Hoffman as each tripled.

Wayne blew the game wide open early as in the second inning they exploded for seven runs. Jeff Griesch led off with a single before Jim Hoffman drew a one out walk. Brian Moore then singled to lead the bases.

Matt Peterson singled in Griesch and with two out Rusty Hamer drilled a 2-run single. Jeff Lutt then stepped to the plate and did likewise with a 2-run single. Brian Lentz then got into the action with an rbi single to cap the seven run affair.

In the third inning Wayne added two more runs to the total. With one out in the inning Jim Hoffman tripled and Brian Moore drew a walk. Hoffman scored on Peterson's single and Moore later scored when the pitcher tried to catch Peterson stretching his lead by trying to throw him out but instead was charged with an error.

Wayne did the rest of its damage in a three run fourth as Jeff Griesch led off the inning with a walk. Matt Bruggeman then followed with a triple. Bruggeman would later score following consecutive walks by Chad Metzler, Brian Moore and Chris Fredrickson.

Jason Ehrhardt then hit a one out sacrifice fly to center field which scored Metzler for Wayne's 12th run.

The Midgets did not fare as well in the six inning opener, losing 5-2 after leading 2-1 heading to the final inning of play. Brent Gamble was charged with the loss.

Wayne out hit Laurel by a 6-4 margin as Jim Murphy, John Murphy, Derek Jensen, Robert Longe, Gary Longe and Tim Reinhardt all singled.

Several receive USTA awards Rec tennis classes hold Awards Day

Wayne's City Recreation Tennis Program under the direction of Tom Roberts, finished up another season recently with the culminating Awards Day at the Wayne State Tennis Courts.

Just like the past two seasons the heat and wind had their effect, but many of the participants came on non scheduled days to get ahead and stay ahead of the days where it was too windy to play.

Those who took part once again were awarded with certificates and badges depending on the programs they completed and started. The certificates and badges were given by the United States Tennis Association at a special ceremony held last Thursday.

Just like last year Tom Roberts donated several prizes and goodies to make the awards day program an incentive for all who took part. Roberts laid all the prizes on the tennis court in random array and the students hit tennis balls from the baseline and what ever the ball landed on is what they received.

"I actually believe I may have spoke too soon last year when I said the wind was the worst its ever been," Roberts said. "This season was every bit as windy as last season. That's why we worked ahead several different times so we could beat the wind and heat."

Roberts said the USTA's Skills and Drills six year program works to the advantage of the students. "If an individual can only make it half way through a program during one summer then he or she may come back and pick up right where they left off the next summer," Roberts said.

Those who begin the program could jump as far as two or three levels in one summer depending on the hard work and dedication they put into it. As mentioned earlier certificates were awarded to all youths who participated in the program and badges were presented to those who had completed a phase of the Skills and Drills six level program.

Also this year there was a special award given for those who had perfect attendance. The following five individuals received a sport watch for their efforts: Jeff Ensz, David Ensz, Mark Lentz, Kirk Carmichael and Erik Lutt. The following is a composite of the awards given at the ceremony last Thursday.

Producers to learn of results

AREA - Nebraska feeder pig producers will have an opportunity July 10 to learn about the feed efficiency and performance of pigs which were shown at the State Feeder Pig Show in February and were fed out under controlled conditions at the SENEK Test Station near Wymore.

The 17th annual Nebraska Feeder Pig Show Wrap-up meeting will be held at 8 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 3115 6th Street, Columbus, averaged 110 days for the 48 pens coming out of the show, will be reported and interpreted to exhibitors and other interested producers. The state show was a part of the Nebraska Pork Industry Expo.

Salient information on pounds of feed required per pound of gain, Bill Ahlschwede, University of Nebraska swine specialist and a member of the Pork Expo executive committee, said data collected during the feeding period, which average daily gain, amount of lean meat gained per day and percent lean of the carcass, all averages per pen-computed on a per pen-of-five basis, is tabulated and will be distributed at the session, Ahlschwede said.

Awards will be given to exhibitors of the top-performing pens, the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources staff members aid. The pigs were entered in the show in three weight divisions, and awards for the top pens will be given accordingly, he said.

In addition to the reports on performance and carcass data of the feeder pigs, Dr. Harry Baker of the Nebraska State Veterinarian's office will speak on "Tooling Up to Tool Down Pseudorabies." Discussion and lunch will round out the meeting. There is no admission charge. For planning purposes, those planning to attend are encouraged to contact the Cooperative Extension Office in Columbus, Ahlschwede said.

Fights Acne

Some people believe pimples and blackheads of acne are the inevitable consequence of growing up — caused by not keeping the skin clean. Much can be done to improve or eliminate acne, although twice daily scrubbing with soap and water will not cure this condition. Acne is a response to high hormone levels during the teenage years. Glands in the face, neck, and back produce materials that, when combined with dead skin, plug skin openings. Skin blemishes result. Products containing benzoyl peroxide are frequently effective and can be purchased without prescription. Some skin specialists recommend starting with a 5 percent concentration and increasing to 10 percent if tolerated. Prescription medicines are available for acne.

Winside church observing centennial

St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church of Winside is observing its centennial and has scheduled several special events to take place on Saturday and Sunday, July 14-15.

Theme for the celebration is "To God Be the Glory for all Generations Forever."

The 100th observance will begin Saturday evening, July 14, with a 7:30 p.m. worship service with the Rev. Jeffrey Lee. The service will include special music by the men's choir.

Speaker at the 10 a.m. worship service on Sunday, July 15 will be the Rev. Wallace Schultz, associate Lutheran Hour speaker since 1977. Special music will be provided by the adult and children's choirs.

There will be no Sunday school or Bible classes.

A DINNER will be served afterward in the Winside High School gymnasium.

A 2 p.m. worship service will follow at the church with the Rev. Larry Miller speaking.

Miller has served as pastor for the last eight years at Trinity Lutheran Church in Gardnerville, Nev. He is the son of Mrs. Lena Miller of Winside and the late Alfred Miller.

Special music at the 2 o'clock service will be provided by the children of the congregation.

A birthday cake will be served following the service.

ALTHOUGH St. Paul's first dedication service was held June 27, 1891, the congregation actually began in 1890 in the home of Edward Krause. Most of those gathering were German Lutherans. The Rev. F. Koch of Hadar conducted services which were first held in the Krause home, then later in an upstairs room of the Winside school.

ST. PAUL'S EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN CHURCH OF WINSIDE will observe its centennial with special worship services and a dinner on Saturday and Sunday, July 14-15.

The congregation soon began making plans to build a church and lots for the church and parsonage were purchased by August Krueger and given to the congregation.

The first church was completed in the early summer of 1891. Charter members included Leopold Rehmus, Edward Krause, Herman Rehmus, August Nehring, Ludwig Rehmus, Ludwig Sonnenberg, August Krause, Christian Krueger, August Brueckner, Gustave Rehmus and Carl Bronzynski.

The congregation called its first resident pastor, the Rev. Ludwig Rauch, in 1893.

In 1899 a parsonage was completed; in 1901 the congregation joined the Wisconsin Synod; in 1902 the named St. Paul's Evangelische Gemeinde was placed over the front doors of the church; in 1903 a church addition was built with the chancel, sacristy, pulpit and altar donated by August Dangberg; in 1909 the bell was purchased for $187; in 1910 the first organ was purchased; and in 1915 the 25th anniversary of St. Paul's was celebrated.

Although there were numerous pastors at St. Paul's, in 1924 the Rev. H. M. Hilpert arrived and served as pastor for 46 1/2 years — until his retirement in 1970.

In 1925 the Sunday school was organized and the congregation left the Wisconsin Synod. A new church constitution was adopted in 1930 and the Ladies Aid was organized. The congregation also saw the completion of a church basement, new walls, ceilings and floors. A heating system was installed and a kitchen built.

AS THE congregation continued to grow, it soon became clear a new church was needed.

On Oct. 2, 1955, ground breaking ceremonies were held for the current church. The corner stone was laid on Easter Sunday, April 1, 1956 with 580 persons in attendance.

The old church was sold to a congregation in Plainview. Services were held in the Winside auditorium until the new church was dedicated on Oct. 21, 1956.

The Lutheran Women's Missionary League was organized in 1961 and the present parsonage was built and dedicated in 1965.

A mortgage burning ceremony was held in January 1962, and in 1966 St. Paul's celebrated its 75th anniversary with a special worship service and dinner.

Church records indicate that approximately 693 individuals have been confirmed.

A NEW bell tower with an attached sign is being erected in the northwest corner of the church front lot in honor of the congregation's 100th birthday. The fund for the bell tower project was started by the family of the late Rev. H. M. Hilpert, who died in 1976.

The current pastor of St. Paul's is Jeffrey Lee, who accepted a call to serve the congregation in February 1990. He and his wife Gail are the parents of four children.

Other pastors serving the church were the Rev. F. Koch (1890); the Rev. A. E. Klaus (1895); the Rev. W. Hagedorn (1899); the Rev. G. H. Press (1901); the Rev. J. Frick (1923); the Rev. H. A. Hilpert (1923); the Rev. H. M. Hilpert (1924); the Rev. G. W. Gottberg (1970); the Rev. John E. Hafermann (1979); and the Rev. John A. Fale (1985).

The current membership is approximately 500.

THE PUBLIC is invited to attend all of the centennial events. Persons wishing to attend the dinner are asked to contact chairmen Bob or Bev Sprieck of Pittger.

Chairmen for the bell tower project are Mr. and Mrs. Bud Froehlich. Persons wishing to donate to the project may mail their contributions to St. Paul's Church, marking them "bell tower."

days of his stay, he's really opened up."

An example of the difference in lifestyles was the first day the Kais had Jeremy, they took him to church. His attire that day consisted of shorts, a T-shirt and tennis shoes. Although nothing was said, his attitude toward church has changed. Mr. Kai said last Sunday, Jeremy was wearing nice clothes and he participated in the service.

"We haven't changed our lifestyle because we can't afford to," Mr. Kai said. "But he has gotten involved in all our day-to-day activities to a regular degree. We still let him sleep in until 7 a.m. but he's right there working with us in the regular daily chores."

BEAVER SAID HE thinks the AgLink program has done quite a bit for him. He said his interest in it developed thanks to one of his friends.

"It's different from the city — very different," he said. "But I think my friends would enjoy it. There's not as much to do out here as there is in the city but it's more fun."

Timothy and Terri Gilliland

Wakefield congregation welcomes new minister

The Rev. Timothy Gilliland is the new pastor at the Wakefield Christian Church and will deliver his first sermon on Sunday, July 8.

Pastor Gilliland, 36, and his family, including wife Terri and children Todd, 13, and Tiffany, 11, arrived in Wakefield on July 3 and were welcomed to the community during an all-church Fourth of July picnic at the Merle Ring farm.

He also performed during 1974-75 with The Gateway Singers, comprised of his sisters and their husbands, Dane and Jan McSpadden and Don and Vikki Hunt.

IT WAS while he was performing with The Gateway Singers that he met his wife, the former Terri Cupp of Shirley, Ind. They were married on Sept. 20, 1975.

The family enjoys a ministry of song evangelism and averages six revivals each year as well as other programs at senior citizens luncheons, concerts, reunions, camp retreats, etc.

Pastor Gilliland has been a member of the LaMoine Christian Camp Board, Tennessee, Ill., serving from 1985-88, the last two years as board president. He has also been involved in the LaMoine Area Ministers Association the past several years, serving as treasurer from 1987-88 and most recently as vice-president.

He enjoys all sports and lists basketball and golf as his favorites.

A NATIVE of Centerville, Iowa, Pastor Gilliland graduated from high school there in 1972 and received a bachelor of sacred literature degree from Midwestern School of Evangelism in Ottumwa, Iowa in 1976.

He comes to Wakefield from Vermont, Ill., where he has served as senior minister at the Vermont Christian Church since 1983.

Prior to that time, Pastor Gilliland served as senior minister at Novelty Christian Church in Novelty, Mo. from 1977-83, as youth minister at the First Christian Church in Anna, Ill. from 1976-77, and as interim minister at the Centerville Church of Christ in Centerville, Iowa from 1975-76.

WINSIDE - Randall Prince, Angela Thompson and Jenni Topp of Winside participated in orientation/registration activities in the liberal arts program at Northeast Community College on June 21 in preparation for the beginning of classes in August.

During the day incoming students met with faculty advisors, registered for classes, checked on their financial aid and learned about services, regulations and activities for students at the college.

A total of 60 students took part in the orientation for liberal arts students.

Use care with chemicals

Officials suggest precautions

AREA - Proper safety precautions can reduce the threat of chemical exposure for farmers or field scouts who enter chemigated fields, University of Nebraska-Lincoln researchers say.

Shripat Kamble, UNL pesticide impact assessment researcher, began studying human exposure to insecticides applied to corn through center pivot irrigation systems in 1986 because of chemical safety concerns.

He said he wanted to give farmers and field scouts reliable information about the best times to enter chemigated fields and about associated health risks.

Chemigation is applying pesticides through overhead sprinkler systems. Even in the worst scenario, which is entering a field after chemigation, following label directions and precautions reduces the risk of chemical contact, the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources scientist said.

Every chemical is different and labels should be read before entering fields, he said. For example, Kamble's research found that field workers should wait longer to re-enter the field treated with Lorsban when compared with insecticides Sevin or Pounce.

Nebraska law requires the signs be posted around fields chemigated with a restricted use chemical.

"This study is especially important to field scouts who may not know when chemigation in a particular field occurred," Kamble said.

He said the study showed that if contamination occurs, it is usually on the hands. Wearing gloves protects the major risk area. Kamble also recommends wearing coveralls to protect arms and legs.

"It is easy to tell people to wear gloves and coveralls," he said. "But it is hard to do when it is 90-plus degrees outside. You may get warm, but which do you want to do, run risks or be a little warm?"

There are possible short-term risks involved, and hazards associated with the use of chemicals may be listed on the label, Kamble said.

Kamble said personal hygiene is another important factor in chemical safety. After working with chemicals, contaminated clothing should be washed separately. Hands and face should be washed before eating or smoking. Shower must be taken daily.

Each year more farmers and field scouts follow label precautions, Kamble said.

"I'm saying pesticides are a safe, useful tool if used judiciously. People can minimize the harmful effects by following the label directions and taking precautions."

This project, "Human Exposure to Insecticide Applied to Corn Through Center Pivot Irrigation Systems," is part of Kamble's ongoing research on the safety of chemicals. Next, he will examine the distribution of chemicals in the soil profile.

The research is funded by the IANR Agricultural Research Division, Cooperative Extension Division and the U.S. Department of Agriculture's North Central Regional Pesticide Impact Assessment Program.

Agency awarded grant

Goldenrod Hills to oversee operation

AREA - According to information from Carmen Godbersen, project coordinator, Goldenrod Hills Community Action Agency has been awarded a drug prevention grant.

Although Goldenrod Hills main office is in Wisner, Wayne will be one of the area cities to receive funds from the grant.

The grant is a three year project that adds seven communities per year. "Funds are provided as part of the grant to give each of the participating communities basic information on drug abuse," Godbersen wrote in a letter to The Wayne Herald.

The grant is administered by the Division on Alcoholism and Drug Abuse of the Nebraska Department of Public Institutions. Goldenrod Hills will coordinate the prevention services and the intervention services of the school community program in Nebraska.

Communities named will be given parent training, drug free youth group training and have a school and community intervention team trained.

The amount of the grant is not included in the information.

For further information about the program, contact: Corrie Kiely, Drug Free Project Director at Goldenrod Hills Community Action Agency, (402) 529-3513.

Visit

"The western European nations are not a role model for us. We can, however, learn from their mistakes."

IN RESPONSE TO a question about property assessments, Bereuter said it's not fair that people looking to buy a new home in rural areas cannot get proper financing from the Farmer's Home Administration.

He said currently metropolitan areas larger than 20,000 can get 110 percent of the loan while rural areas can only get 85 percent. He said that's something which needs work.

"In many country offices, housing is something you take care of once you get the farmland taken care of," he said. "Maybe there needs to be changes in the appraisal process but no builder can build a home in a rural community without losing value on it once it's built — that's true."

In two other issues, Bereuter said he would like to see campaign funding changes made to curtail campaign contributions from businesses outside the state of the person running for public office. He said contributions should be made from people whom the official will represent.

He said he also favors continued support of economic sanctions against South Africa until the African country treats blacks as equals. He said sanctions support what Nelson Mandela and President F.W. DeClerk are trying to accomplish.

Usage

sons, the fall and the spring, Hansen said Wayne averages about 5,500 kilowatts.

"What we've been trying to do is reduce the amount of kilowatts that we buy in the summertime, so we don't have to pay out more in what we're experiencing in kilowatt demand costs through the year," he said.

THE WAY TO help balance kilowatt usage is to cut down on the demand from noon until 7 p.m., Hansen said. He said the city asks that people do laundry, watering and clothes drying in the morning or early evening to help balance kilowatt usage. In addition, avoid using unnecessary lighting.

"The point we need to get across is that the more demand on our system, the more Wayne has to pay out for the purchase," he said. "We have a very attractive rate system with Nebraska Public Power ... and we don't want to see rates increase more than they have to."

Hansen said Wayne does not have a shortage of electricity but when more blocks (kilowatts) of energy are purchased, more money has to be paid.

"We're just giving people the opportunity to do what they want to but do it wisely," he said. "...We don't suggest that anyone be uncomfortable, especially the elderly or the handicapped. All we want people to do is use common sense."

ATTENTION CITY OF WAYNE ELECTRIC CUSTOMERS

During these long hot days of summer your electric utility must buy more electricity to supply an evergrowing demand. Electric power becomes costly and these added expenses must be passed on to our customers through rate increases.

You can help us keep your electricity rates from increasing, by conserving where you can. When you know that it's going to be hot, do laundry in the morning or evening. Water your lawn in the morning or evening. Also, turn your air conditioner up a few degrees, between the hours of 12 noon and 7:00 pm.

If these measures are taken by you then we can keep your electric rates stable.

Specialist develops guideline

LINCOLN - A University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension environmental nitrogen specialist has devised a guideline which considers four factors when growing crops that require supplemental nitrogen.

Richard Wiese calls these factors the Four E's--Economics, Efficiency, Environment and Energy.

Economics In the use of nitrogen has been a factor in U.S. crop production for more than 250 years, Wiese said.

"The best economics for nitrogen use from any source was considered to average a $2.75 gain in crop value for each dollar expended in applying added nitrogen to the crop," he said.

In Nebraska, Wiese said, nitrogen helps farmers produce about 45 additional bushels of corn per acre. If corn is valued at $2 per bushel, then $90 is gained from the use of added nitrogen, Wiese said. In order to obtain a return of $2.75 per dollar invested, nitrogen costs will average $32 per acre, the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialist said.

Efficiency is based on the crop's recovery of the applied nitrogen, Wiese said.

"Crop recovery of supplemental nitrogen in the year of application should be above 50 percent if the latest and the best knowledge on nitrogen application is put to use," Wiese said.

The remainder may be leached, lost to the atmosphere or bound in soil organic matter to be used by future crops, Wiese said.

Total nitrogen hauled from a field of corn is nearly 85 percent of the supplemental nitrogen, he said.

Environmental concerns, primarily of nitrogen leaching into ground water, have led to the recommended use techniques called "best management practices," Wiese said.

By using the correct amount of nitrogen and the most effective application, producers can prevent water contamination rather than treat the water after it has been polluted, Wiese said.

Natural gas, an exhaustible resource, is the principle power supply used in the manufacture of commercial nitrogen fertilizer, Wiese said.

"It takes about 40,000 cubic feet of natural gas to manufacture, distribute, store and apply one ton on anhydrous ammonia containing 1,640 pounds of nitrogen," Wiese said.

More than 50 percent of the retail cost of nitrogen fertilizer is from manufacturing costs, Wiese said.

"A responsible and positive attitude which makes one aware of the Four E's in using nitrogen sources on crops will be necessary to minimize the entry of nitrates into our groundwater," Wiese said.

ATTENTION FARMERS!!

1st Generation cornborer can cut yields up to 40 bushel per acre. Don't let this happen to you. Check your fields for feeding and shot holes. When checking your fields, step off 10 plants. Check each one by pulling whorls out and checking for larvae. Each plant would be considered 10%. If you have 4 out of 10 plants, you would have 40% infestation. Check 3 to 4 spots in your field to get an average. If you have any questions call:

Committee reports presented at Allen centennial meeting

Several committee reports were presented during a recent meeting to discuss plans for Allen's centennial celebration, scheduled to take place during the summer of 1991.

Larry Boswell conducted the meeting with 18 persons attending.

A report was given on the pre-centennial Fun Run/Walk which was scheduled to take place July 4 with Dale Jackson as chairman.

Chairmen Joanne Rahn, Clair and Fran Schubert, and Bill and Pearl Snyder reported that approximately $400 was raised during a pancake breakfast held June 24 as a centennial fund raiser.

Joanne Rahn also reported on the progress of the centennial quilt, and Marcia Rastede reported on the Allen History Book which she is compiling.

A REPORT on the Allen alumni banquet, scheduled July 5, 1991, was given by Duane Koester, alumni president. Committees have been appointed and notified for the banquet.

It was announced that a plan for ordering red and white centennial flowers will be worked out, with E and C Greenhouse of Allen providing the flowers. The greenhouse also is planning to carry red tulips for fall planting.

Discussion also was held concerning the centennial budget and what to do with any leftover funds following the 1991 event. It was decided that all monies left in the centennial fund following the observance will be donated to the rescue unit/ambulance fund.

IN OTHER business, plans were discussed for a centennial food stand. There will be a central food stand sponsored by the centennial committee and manned by community churches, with proceeds going to the centennial fund.

Churches wishing to participate are asked to elect a representative to serve on the food committee.

Norma Warner will serve as general food committee chairman.

The Allen ministers will be in charge of a church service to be held on Sunday, July 7, 1991.

SEVERAL other projects and ideas were discussed, as well as chairmen needed for various events.

Individuals or groups wishing to sponsor a booth during the centennial must have an approval form and pay a sellers fee, with the amount to be determined by the centennial executive committee.

Residents of Allen are encouraged to volunteer to assist with centennial events. Persons unable to assist may contribute financially by sending their donations to Julie Sullivan, centennial treasurer, at Allen.

The next general meeting will be held Thursday, July 26 at the Allen Senior Center. Representatives of the various clubs and organizations in the community are asked to attend and make reports.

Area students take part in orientation

AREA - Students planning to attend Kearney State College next fall are taking part in orientation activities on the campus this summer.

According to Mitch Johnson, director of Summer Orientation, the summer orientation program provides prospective students and their parents an opportunity to spend a day on campus in preparation for the fall semester.

Students are divided into small groups for various activities, including consultation with faculty and pre-registration for fall classes, a campus tour, and presentations regarding the variety of services available to students. Parents also spend their day in small groups getting an overview of the campus, campus facilities and services.

Those who attended summer orientation this week, listed alphabetically by hometown, include: Wakefield, Jennifer Lunz and Laura Plendl and Wayne, Brian Lutt.

were made for working at the fair and making a booth.

Upcoming events include the Style Revue in Wayne on July 10 and 16; the Wisner Livestock Show on July 14; and Demonstration Day at Wayne on July 26.

Serving lunch following the meeting were Melissa, Megan and Amy Miller and Kelly Nathan.

The next meeting will be July 12 at 10 a.m. at the Hoskins fire hall.

The Library Card

This column is written twice a month to inform the Wayne area as to what types of reading material and other items are available at Wayne Public Library.

Think cool! That's what we've been trying to do the past few weeks. And we're not the only ones. Have you noticed how many magazines have featured "cool meals," "no-cook meals" and salads, salads? We began to think about all those cookbooks on our shelves and whether there were any hints, recipes, what-have-you for these miserable days.

At a glance, Better Homes and Gardens cookbooks are loaded with special subjects: Salad Book, Dessert Cookbook, Barbecue Book, Crockery Cooker Cookbook, Stir-fry Recipes, More From Your Wok. All have possibilities for cool meals or quick-cook meals that won't heat up your kitchen. The Farm Journal's Molded Salads and Desserts sounds cool. Another source of cool ideas is the comprehensive cookbooks, such as Rombauer and Becker, The Joy of Cooking, or Betty Crocker's Cookbook, or Farm Journal's Country Cookbook. These books have gems hidden in them, but you have to mine the books for them! There are no chapter headings for cool or no-cook.

Since a great number of households now have microwave ovens, the problem of cooking in hot weather has been drastically changed. Methven has a series of excellent books on microwave cooking which includes such titles as: Microwaving Meats, Microwaving Baking and Desserts, Microwaving on a Diet, Microwaving Convenience Foods and Microwaving Light and Healthy. Betty Crocker's Microwave Cookbook and Jill Spencer's Microwave Cookbook and Cecilia Norman's Microwave Cooking are excellent general cookbooks for microwave cooking.

One other summer activity which descends on us in the heat and humidity is canning and preserving. Andrea Chesman's Summer in a Jar: Freezing and Canning Cookbook, Better Homes and Gardens Home Canning Cookbook and the United States Department of Agriculture's Complete Guide to Home Canning will take care of all your home canning concerns.

With all this wealth of ideas and recipes, we should be able to think of something to fix for dinner tonight. If it were only a little cooler, we might have the energy to try something different!

The Farmer's Wife

By Pat Meierhenry

This is definitely "corn growing weather." When the temperature and humidity match at 6 in the morning, at 76 degrees, that's warm. But I hear of 122 degrees at Phoenix, 104 degrees in LA, with fires, and I pull close to the air conditioner and shudder.

Some rain would be welcome again. Not floods and tornadoes, just cool rain. I keep hearing stories about weddings and anniversary celebrations on Saturday, the 16th. One couple drove away from a wedding reception at Davenport, and watched twisters in the sky above Bruning.

But the one everyone will remember took place at Naponee, a little town near the Harlan County Lake. The power was off when it was time to proceed with the ceremony. Therefore, they couldn't use the organ, and there was no piano.

The soloist ran home and retrieved tape accompaniment to her songs, which she played with batteries; the candles provided illumination, and the congregation hummed "Here Comes the Bride" as she came down the aisle!

Since the band had all electronic instruments, they couldn't play until 11 p.m., when the power came back on.

A program called Ag Link has been in the news. Farm Bureau families are hosting urban young people this summer. I'm sure it will help further understanding by both the hosts and the guests.

It reminds me of a similar project over twenty years ago. At that time, our church in Hoskins was in a joint parish with Peace on the highway. Our minister was a jolly fellow named John Saxton who had contacts in Omaha.

Consequently, many of the church families had young visitors from North Omaha. We had a shy black girl named Janice, and a black boy. Don and Mary Ann Meierhenry had two more.

We also had three of our own, and they had six. We teamed up for trips to town, and it was a good thing we had a station wagon.

You could tell the city kids were used to being hauled in bunches. When we started to load up, one would always yell, "Double up and move over!" You can get a lot of kids in a car that way. It was a learning experience for all of us.

Drains Run Slow?

You'll never have a slow running, or clogged drain again! The secret? Clean drains don't run slow.

Slow drains, or periodic clogs, are SIGNALS that a thick layer of GOOK is choking your pipes. Grease, hair, and other waste stick to your pipes, with every use. This gook deposits along the entire length of the pipe. It chokes your pipes gradually, as it gets thicker and thicker.

Conventional drain openers can't fix slow drains. They react chemically on the surface of the gook. To be effective, they must remain in contact with the waste. Even a small tunnel through the gook lets them flow out to the sewer, leaving the gook behind.

In the past, the only way to remove this build-up was to rooster your pipes. An expensive, temporary measure.

Now, with just a few minutes each month, you can easily clean out your pipes... and KEEP them clean with Plumb Clean. Its totally unique formula clings, and penetrates deep into the gook. That is what allows it to liquefy even years of build-up. Plumb Clean will clean the entire length of your pipes. It will make your drains run like new, when used as directed. This penetrating action is so revolutionary, we stand behind Plumb Clean with a money-back guarantee!

Saves Money. A 1 lb. container of Plumb Clean holds up to 41 drain treatments. Even if drain openers could fix slow drains, it would take over 10 quart bottles to get the same number of treatments. Plumb Clean costs about 35¢ per treatment. We don't know of anything that cleans drains for less.

Safe Too. Conventional drain openers are dangerous chemicals. They can injure eyes on contact. They can release deadly vapors, in some situations. Some may damage your fixtures. Plumb Clean will not burn skin, or eyes. It will not release harmful fumes. When used as directed, it is 100% safe for people, and of course, all plumbing.

So, if your drains are giving you a SIGNAL, act now. Get safe, guaranteed Plumb Clean today! Available at:

FIRST NATIONAL BANK'S SENIOR CITIZEN CORNER

HOW OLD IS TOO OLD? We're just come through what social historians may someday call the "Decade of Greed," the 1980s, where an MBA was the key to prosperity and its credo "I like to think was make it or take it. It was a period marked not just by disregard, but disdain for those who couldn't (or wouldn't) measure up to the "me" decade's selfishness. The '80s that spawned more limousines-for-rent companies also saw the shocking rise of homelessness and continuing cutbacks in social programs. Now that we're starting to remember our moral obligations to one another as a civilized society, many people seem to be shocked to find out that the older folks among us have been treated almost as if they are an expensive embarrassment. (Never mind that these are the people whose labors and taxes made it possible for the young adults of the '80s to have their privileges.) One of the more shocking aspects of this discovery is a discussion currently going on about medical care for the very old. Some no doubt well meaning medical ethicists feel that we may be doing older folks a disservice if we provide medical care beyond a certain age. Some, with less concern for the elderly and more for the bottom line, agree, and are legislating for cutbacks, or cutouts, of certain conditions now paid for by Medicare and Medicaid.

It's disturbing that this discussion should even come up. The decision to stop treatment or continue should be with the individual, and only the individual, or the closest relative or designated spokesperson for that individual if he or she cannot speak for themselves. (That's why a living will is so important. The decision stays with the person who should make it. It removes guilt from those who may otherwise be forced to make it.) Cutting back on government medical funding is obscene. Tell your congressman you don't want any government or medical agency to ever determine a cutoff age for treatment.

ON A HAPPIER NOTE: Marriages are up among the older set. Often, it's economic. But most couples surveyed said they were marrying out of the highest motives: affection, respect, love. Some are giving their furnishings to their children or charity and buying new things they refer to as ours - not his or hers.

NEVER TOO LATE: Seniors who have led what may delicately be called an "unhealthy" life style may feel it's too late to undo damage caused by smoking, immoderate drinking, and a diet of high sodium and saturated fatty foods. But the opposite is true. The sooner you start doing the right things for yourself, the sooner you can stop the decline in your health and, often, reverse it. The key is exercise. Being active sets all the best of yourself in motion. So get up, get out, and get going.

Hog price cycles; planning prices for '90s

AREA - Hog producers should use a $46 to $48 planning price, instead of current swine prices, when evaluating future swine business investment, said a University of Nebraska-Lincoln marketing specialist.

Al Wellman said the slaughter hog market prices at Omaha are near $60 per hundredweight, down from the mid-$60s in early June. But before a producer starts budgeting out a swine enterprise expansion or addition, Wellman advises considering hog price cycles.

"A study of the last 10 years of monthly average Omaha hog prices suggests the one thing that we can expect in the 1990s is variability," the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources economist said.

The hog industry is characterized by 3.5 to 4-year price cycles, Wellman said. For example, in the decade of the '80s, there were two and one-half cycles. Hog prices started the decade with $38.37 hogs in January 1980 and decreased to the decade's low of $29.66 in April 1980. Hog prices then slowly strengthened for the rest of 1980, making a 1980 annual average of $40.84 per hundredweight.

In 1981 hog prices turned upward, peaked at $63.47 in August 1982, and remained in the high $50s during late 1982. The high yearly average price, for the 1980-89 period was $56.15 in 1982.

"Hog farmers typically responded to these high prices by increasing hog numbers. The increased supply of hogs, in turn, decreased hog prices," he said.

Hog prices decreased most of 1983, down to $40.16 in November 1982 — a 36 percent price drop in the 15 months following the August 1982 peak price. Prices generally stayed in the $40s and low $50s in 1984 and 1985, with a low of $40.68 in September 1985. Industry analysts even suggested that hog price cycles may have been eliminated and that the "inners and outers" had left the hog business, making hog cycles a thing of the past.

"History now suggests that 1984-1985 was the abnormality and that price cycles are again the expected norm of the industry," Wellman said.

Prices are quite volatile in the $40 range from September 1985 to May 1986. The second price cycle of the decade began in 1986 when prices started back up in the spring and peaked at a $63.76 monthly average price in August 1986. In 1986 prices averaged $52.34 per hundredweight. Prices decreased in early 1987 but turned around and again peaked at $62.20 in July 1987. Prices then began to decrease and reached the third low of the decade in November 1988. Hog prices in 1988 were the third lowest of the decade, with a yearly average of $44.18.

The third price cycle started in 1989 with hog prices gradually increasing throughout the year, Wellman said. The first part of the year followed the typical seasonal price adjustments but the last half of the year was counter-cyclical to historical price patterns. Omaha hog prices closed out the decade with a December average of $48.14 per hundredweight.

In 1990, hog prices have set record highs of over $65 for the week of May 21. The U.S. Department of Agriculture, however, is projecting prices to come down in the third and fourth quarters of 1990 from the record prices of the second quarter, Wellman said.

Hog prices in the decade of the '80s can be summarized as volatile, he said. The 10-year (1980-1989) average price was $47.96 and the last five-year (1985-1989) average price was $47.98. Three out of 10 years hog prices averaged over $50, three out of 10 years hog prices averaged below $45 and five out of 10 years prices averaged between $45 and $50.

"These averages better describe the economic environment that swine producers must operate in," Wellman said.

Bereuter focuses on farm bill additions

The Farm Spouse Fairness and Equity Act amends the 1985 farm bill to provide farm program payment fairness and equity to married couples when both the husband and the wife contribute active personal management or labor to the operation of a farm enterprise. It treats a husband-and-wife who each provide active personal management or labor to their farm or to an after-acquired inherited farm as separate persons for farm program payment purposes, thus qualifying them for two separate payments.

The bill continues a farm's multiyear program payments to a person who receives such a farm as a gift or inheritance. It states that such payments shall not exceed the previous owner's payments and that they shall continue without regard to other payments received by the new owner from such farm or from other farming operations.

I have decided to cosponsor this bill, H.R.2973, as I believe that Federal programs should not discriminate based on gender. It is regrettable that farm programs have continued to do so. Inequities based on gender must be corrected.

THE U.S. AGENCY for International Development is launching a new program that will send volunteer experts from U.S. financial and professional communities to Eastern Europe to help countries in that region make the difficult transition to free-market economies.

Volunteers from commercial banks, investment banks and law and accounting firms will operate under a steering committee of U.S.

business executives co-chaired by former Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and former Deputy Secretary of State John Whitehead. The volunteers will advise Eastern European governmental and financial officials on such matters as commercial banking and establishing capital markets.

Initial plans call for an advisory mission to Poland, with another to Hungary soon after. Subsequent missions to Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and other Eastern European countries also are contemplated.

Special emphasis will be placed on helping to organize the systems and infrastructure necessary to turn state-owned enterprises into private-sector companies, a vital step in shifting from centrally-managed, government-controlled economies to free-market economies.

Volunteers will be recruited initially from nearly 20 financial and professional organizations which have committed to the program so far. It is expected that volunteers from a significant number of other organizations will join the program. Participating firms and corporations will donate the time of their volunteers.

Cancer needs focus

If your neighbor's house were on fire, would you stand by and do nothing? Of course not! Well, your neighbor's house is on fire, your neighbor has cancer.

The most important way you can help your neighbor is by volunteering some of your time and talents in one of the many areas of cancer control of the American Cancer Society in Wayne County. We have important tasks crying out for as little as one hour of volunteer time per month. There are also other projects that require more time.

The American Cancer Society is the nationwide voluntary health organization dedicated to eliminating cancer as a major health problem by preventing cancer, saving lives from cancer and diminishing suffering from cancer through research, education and service.

Perhaps you are not aware of what the American Cancer Society has to offer. We have excellent educational materials for both youth and adults, free for your use. Cancer patients can be provided information and guidance, hospital equipment, dressings, wigs, support groups, individual support such as the reach to recovery program, all free to the patient.

Of course, none of these programs would be possible without funds. We rely on local volunteers to help raise money to be able to provide these materials. 60 percent mentioned earlier in this letter. Forty percent is sent to our National Headquarters in Atlanta, GA, to be used on a national level for the same programs.

The American Cancer Society is redeveloping Wayne County's Unit and we would appreciate your input and guidance in building a strong organization. Units constitute the heart of the Society's hopes and progress. It is here-at home-that the individual has direct and intimate contact with cancer and only here that individuals can be moved to protect their health. The success of the entire attack on cancer depends on an effective and strong Unit in the local community. The local Unit is in dire need of volunteers and with your assistance, the American Cancer Society can continue to provide these services to your community.

If any of you would like to help your neighbor who has cancer, please attend an informational/organizational meeting to be held Wednesday, July 11 at Providence Medical Center in Wayne, at 7:30 p.m.

As a recovered cancer patient myself, I ask you to please give some serious thought to becoming a volunteer for the American Cancer Society in Wayne County. You will find it very rewarding.

If you are unable to attend the meeting on July 11, and are interested in helping out in Wayne County, you may contact me at 371-7904 or write me at 600 S. 13th St., Norfolk, NE 68701. Thank You.

Sincerely,

Mark'n' the Spot

by Mark Crist

The summer heat is really something else. With just a little over a week since summer started (June 21) it's hard to believe that we're consistently seeing high 90 degree temperatures.

Why doesn't someone turn the humidity down too? This 90-plus degree heat combined with 90 percent humidity has really been too much. Especially for me since I've never lived in this type of humidity before.

Why doesn't the city council proclaim some week in July as "Low Temperature Week" or why doesn't Gov. Orr recall the state legislature to outlaw temperatures above 85 degrees?

Some things are really getting out of control. We need to pass laws to protect us from this heat.

LET OUR ELECTED officials deal with it. Let's not put it on our shoulders. There should be a constitutional amendment prohibiting this uncomfortable heat.

On the other extreme, let's pass laws which make it so come winter, temperatures can't drop below freezing.

That would, at least, partially solve our energy and environmental crush. Wouldn't it?

Statistics and research shows that people work better when temperatures are in a certain range. Why not enforce those temperature ranges on Mother Nature. Really! Why should she have all the fun?

If someone has found a sure-fire way to beat the heat that won't be dangerous, let the rest of us know, would ya?

Whew. My fingers are burning up from spilling all these cool ideas out of my head. I guess it's time to stop before it gets too cool outside.

Take precautions

4-Hers careful with animals

LINCOLN - With county fairs starting in early July, 4-Hers must take several precautions in handling, caring for and showing livestock when the heat index reaches danger levels, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln animal scientist said.

Doyle Wolverton, youth livestock specialist, said early summer high temperatures and relatively high humidity combine to put stress on livestock, particularly when they are moved from familiar surroundings to a different environment and in contact with other animals outside their herd or flock. Wolverton outlined a "game plan" for 4-H livestock exhibitors to follow from now until the animals enter the county fair or other show arena and compete:

- Conduct show animals' training and workout sessions in the early morning or late evening when it is cool. Groom and exercise an entry during a cool period to relieve heat stress.

- When traveling to the fair, move livestock in the early morning or late evening. Animals moved in extreme heat will get excited and over-stressed. If traveling is done under cooler temperatures, the animal will be calm and able to drink an adequate amount of liquids.

Jock Beeson makes plans to take part in show

Jock Beeson of Wayne has made plans to show cattle in the 17th Junior National Polled Hereford Show and Forum. The week-long annual event will be held in July 15-20 at the Nebraska State Fair Park in Lincoln.

The Junior National, which is now in its 17th year, provides a unique opportunity for the young cattlemen to meet, work with and compete against other youth from all parts of the United States and Canada. This year juniors from as far away as the states of Washington and Florida will be part of the delegation representing Polled Hereford youth from across the country.

The Polled Hereford Show will be the highlight of the week. Heifers and state groups will be shown on Thursday, July 19, with the steers, cow-calf pairs and the selection of bred-and-owned and all heifer champions on Friday, July 20. Judging will be conducted by Clint Rusk of Colorado State University and Paul Slayton of Schellburg, Pa.

Youth in friendly competition will be spotlighted throughout the week in the Illustrated Speech Contest, Team Marketing Competition, Showmanship, Speech Contest, Beef Bowl, Judging Contest, State Exhibit and Scrapbook Contests. In addition, the winners of the coveted National Junior Merit and Lewis Memorial Awards will be announced, recognizing the overall leadership and achievement of the nation's most outstanding junior Polled Hereford breeders.

A demonstration of the APHA's new "Genetic Focus" show format, which integrates performance data with visual evaluation, will be conducted during the week. The organizers haven't forgotten the need for just plain fun, though, and have included a junior dance, pizza party, fun rodeo and awards banquet.

- If an animal does get hot while traveling, don't soak it down with cold water after arriving at the fairgrounds. Soaking an overheated animal could cause it to go into shock and die. Cool an entry gradually until its body temperature has regulated itself.
- Check the animal in at the fair when it is cool. If the fairground's pens have poor air ventilation, bring in a fan.
- Keep the bedding clean and neat will help keep animals calm. And keeping the bedding damp may aid in cooling the animal and reducing dust.

Irrigation explained on tour

LINCOLN - The annual Nebraska irrigation tour will travel to western Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas, Aug. 5-10, and will include a visit to the Gigot farms, the largest single-family pivot development in the United States, according to the tour director.

Les Sheffield, University of Nebraska-Lincoln farm management specialist, said other highlights of this 19th annual irrigation tour include a look at two drip irrigation methods for producing corn at the Northwest Kansas Research and Extension Center.

Also in Kansas at the Western Kansas Groundwater Management District No. 1 in Scott City, a weather modification project will be explained. And, at the Southwest Kansas Research and Extension Center Low Energy, Precise Application (LEPA) and a linear move pivot will be discussed.

At Garden City the Reeve Cattle Co., with a 13,000-head cattle feedlot and 4,500 acres of irrigated land with its own natural gas wells, will be a stop for the two-bus tour.

Sheffield said the vertically-integrated operation produces Tilapia tropical fish to sell to restaurants. A grain alcohol plant built in 1982 produces 2.4 million gallons of alcohol a year. A by-product stillage replaces water in cattle feed. Another by-product is fed to cattle and the Tilapia fish which are marketed to restaurants.

An option for a limited number of tour participants, Sheffield said, is attending "Texas," a play at Palo Duro Canyon, 25 miles from Amarillo, with an evening barbecue at Palo Duro Canyon State Park before the performance.

At the Bushland USDA Conservation and Production Research Laboratory, in cooperation with Texas A & M, a presentation on irrigation and water management research and wind energy research with the "Big Machine" will be given.

At the Halfway Agricultural Research Station, Texas A & M, which is tied in with High Plains Research Foundation, LEPA Irrigation Research will be discussed by Bill Lyle, inventor of LEPA. A multi-function Tumatic lateral move system for seed and irrigation, a LEPA continuous-move pivot system and a plot sprayer for accurate application of chemicals also will be viewed.

"Another highlight of this tour," Sheffield said, "is a visit to the Charles and Geraldine Schlabs Farm at Hereford, Texas." Schlabs hasn't missed one of our irrigation tours in the past 10 years, Sheffield said, and he has attended 12 tours. A catered noon luncheon will be featured at the Schlabs farm.

In Lubbock, Texas, Sam E. Curl, dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences at Texas Tech University, will discuss "Challenges in Texas Panhandle Agriculture in the 90s." At the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1, Wayne Wyatt will present an overview of the groundwater status there and give a presentation on experimental chemicals for crops.

For more information about this tour, call Sheffield at (402) 472-1773. These annual tours are sponsored by the Nebraska Water Conference Council (NWCC) and IANR. NWCC is composed of about 90 representatives of groups interested in Nebraska irrigation and water.

Soil conditions force farmers to jump hurdles

LINCOLN - Nebraska farmers' first crop irrigation started last week, but not without a few figurative dams to hurdle.

Ten University of Nebraska faculty discussed farmers' options during a July 2 teleconference of the weekly Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources Agricultural Climate Situation Committee.

Dry, loose soil rapidly soaked up water applied through furrow irrigation, causing uneven distribution in fields, reported DeLynn Hay, water resources and irrigation specialist. Bob Klein, a cropping specialist at the UN West Central Research and Extension Center in North Platte, echoed this concern, adding that many producers had called the center requesting advice.

Hay said producers are having success using a surge valve on their irrigation pipe. This valve alternately pulses high and low water releases resulting in a more rapid movement of water through the field, with a more uniform distribution. Farmers also can achieve uniform distribution by alternating the time watering rows, using an on-off-on pattern instead of one long watering. One long watering can cause a producer to apply more water than necessary since the root zone is not very deep now, Hay said.

Some power districts may start to enforce load controls, Hay said. Dawson Public Power District has a goal peak of 65 megawatts. Usage rose to 94 megawatts July 1 in that district, Hay said. Irrigators often have power load agreements with districts to offset seasonal costs during the summer.

As temperatures soared and thunderstorms continued in some parts, crop conditions varied across the state. Hail was reported to damage 40,000 acres of field corn in Hamilton County, said Roger Uhlinger, horticulturist. Plant pathologist John Watkins earlier in the day advised producers who had hail on their wheat to be ready to control volunteer wheat. Volunteer wheat can carry over wheat streak mosaic disease into winter wheat fields planted this fall.

Northeast Nebraska farmers reported excellent forage for first hay cutting. Yellow dwarf disease is occurring in oats, particularly TAM

107. Chinch bugs are still a problem in southeast Nebraska. Farmers forced to abandon their fields may want to consider their eligibility for the Zero 92 program and contact their Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office, said Roger Selley, farm management specialist at the South Center Research and Extension Center.

High temperatures and winds have started to affect the rate of evapotranspiration, the rate of moisture loss from plant leaves and soil surfaces. By July 1 potential ET rates over .50 inch were reported from western to central Nebraska. More high ET rates are expected this week as high temperatures and little precipitation is forecasted, said Ken Hubbard, climatologist.

Cleanliness important Household tasks considered money savers

AREA - You may not consider household cleaning tasks money savers. However, keeping appliances and cooling equipment clean can save money and energy by helping the equipment run more efficiently.

To lighten the load on your air conditioner and help keep your house cool:

- Have the system inspected by a professional on a regular basis.
- Check the filter on the air conditioner periodically. Refer to the User's Manual for directions on how to change the filter.

- Keep the outside unit free of dirt and debris to allow proper air circulation.

- Indoor air vents should be kept clean. Don't obstruct air flow with furniture or draperies.

Keep the grill on portable fans free of dust. Many new models provide for easy removal of the grills for cleaning. Dust ceiling fan blades regularly.

Refrigerators run more efficiently when there is adequate air circulation around the unit. The condenser coils located at the back or the bottom should be kept clean.

Defrost freezers when frost build-up is one-quarter-inch thick.

Electric ranges operate more efficiently if the drip pans are kept clean. They reflect the heat up to the pan.

Check the outside dryer vent to be sure it is lint free. Clean the lint filter after every dryer load.

Tiedtke participates
Warren Tiedtke of Hoskins participated in orientation/registration activities in the air conditioning program at Northeast Community College in preparation for the beginning of classes in August.
During the day incoming students met with faculty advisors, registered for classes, checked on their financial aid and learned about services, regulations and activities for students at the college.
