Board addresses issues

Money gets focus of meeting

By Mark Crist

Money was the word of the Wayne Community School Board meeting Tuesday night as most of the items discussed by the board of education dealt with taxpayers' dollars.

The board dealt with an increase in a charge to the elemen-tary school addition, talked to a representative of Municipal Bond Underwriters, heard preliminary re-ports on the 1990-91 school bud-get and dealt with teacher salaries nd benefits during its executive

According to information pro-According to information provided by Superintendent Dr. Francis Haun, a fault has been found in the wiring of the elementary school. As a result of changes by power companies, a new 120-208 volt 3-phase power system will have to be added to the school since it is currently wired under a 120-240 volt system.

The to the change in power service and the need to correct

"Due to the change in power service and the need to correct the existing code violations, the contractor has encountered an increase in the scope of work," according to a letter from architect Lynn L. Jones.

The change results in an increase of nearly $1,000 to the crease of nearly $1,000 to the project. The project will now cost the schools $285,231.30, rather than the original cost of $284,290.

IN A DISCUSSION with Chuck Poore, a representative of Municipal Bond Underwriters, 230, $5,000 tax-free notes will be sold to cover the costs of the addition to the elementary school.

The notes will be 2-year tax-free notes available for purchase Sept. 1 from the Omaha underwriting group, Haun said.

The bonds most likely will be sold within Wayne County, Poore explained to the board. Each bond will be sold in $5,000 increwill pay them off within two years, Poore said. If they're not paid within two years, the school district can roll them over, Haun said.

In order to certify the bond or-der, the school board completed a proclamation. The plan to pay off the bonds within the 2-year time frame is included in the proclama-tion. Guidelines of the proclama-tion are pursuant to state law.

NEXT ITEM ON the agenda was the school budget for the 1990-91 school year. According to Dr. Haun, the schools will experi-Dr. Haun, 'the schools will experience a 5 percent increase-over-last year's budget. He said the total budget for the next fiscal year, beginning Sept. 1, is $3.4 million. Haun said his budget figures are only estimated, however, because he has not been supplied revenue data from the State of Nebraska.

"That's as far as I can go until we get data from the state," he said. "Also, that doesn't include possible increases in teacher salaries."

Haun said the 5 percent increase in the budget is lower unauthe 5.46 percent increase authorized by the state. He said the budget figure of $3.4 million does not include programs like special education, Chapter I and other

He noted that taxpavers should see a 20 percent reduction in property taxes following the in-crease in sales and income taxes as a result of LB 1059, the school refinance measure being challenged by a petition.

IN A SEPERATE matter, the board appointed Dr. Arnold Emry as the chairperson representing the board of education in its negotiations with the Wayne Teachers Association. Joining Emry on the committee are board members of the committee are board for the c members Dr. Ken Liska and Ken Haun said it is the hopes of the board to have the teacher's salaries settled prior to adoption of the budget. He added that no proposal has been put forth by the board.

(Pat Moynihan wants taxpayers to stop funding the trust fund while it's part of the budget as a bookkeeping gimmick to make the deficit appear less than it really is.) New York's Governor Mario M. Comon has stated his support for Moynihan's proposal in a front-page piece in the May issue of Aging News, The Newsletter of the New York State Office for the Aging. He writes, in part: "...Moynihan has proposed to roll back the Social Security payroll tax increase on workers and the businesses that employ them. I support the Senator's proposal ... (which) ... will benefit American workers without harming retirees ... Social Security payroll taxes are not building reserves for future retirement benefits; instead, they are being drained to finance the current Federal deficit and replaced with 10U's that can only be repaid later by massive tax increases. The Social Security Trust Fund — our promise to retirees — is now more illusory than real. It looks as though voters will have the option to decide on one of the more controversial bills passed by the State Legislature during its last ses-

The group — Nebraskans Against Higher Taxes — apparently collected enough signatures to force LB 1059 on the ballot.

Despite the argument that LB 1059 is not a constitutional issue, it is an issue which should be voted on by the public. In each of the Legislature's votes, LB 1059 — the school refinance measure — received just enough support to squeak by. If it's that close a call, the state's lawmakers should have given citizens the right to vote on it in the first place.

THE ARGUMENT that LB 1059 is not a constitutional issue wavers a little bit. If it had not been passed, the state's funding system might have ended up challenged in the courts which might have made it a constitu-

In addition, the reason the bill was passed is because lawmakers had the option of raising property taxes (considerably) or trying to find an alternative solution by increasing sales and property taxes. Obviously, they chose the latter.

As of yet, we've probably heard all the arguments for and against the bill but in any controversy, there's their side, our side and then there's the truth. The bill may go down in Nebraska history as the law which needed to reveal the truth. The problem is that each side — those in favor of it and those opposed - haven't told us the truth.

WHY DO WE always have to cut through the red tape and the polical bureaucracy to find out the whole story. If Paul Harvey got ahold of this issue, he'd have a wonderful time because voters would "now know the state of the stat the rest of the story.

The issue has come to this: big business doesn't want it and the farmer desperately needs it. The alternative, which was suggested but overlooked, was to have a different tax scale for the farmer than the rest of us pay. But that, too, has its faults.

The interesting thing about the bill is that it could all be for naught if Ed Jakshaw's 2 percent spending lid amendment is approved by voters. Governments don't want it but Jakshaw has a number of voters believing

To wrap this up, it's nice to see voters are taking an active role in the issues. It may very well mark a new age in — why am I using this word — politics.

I very much appreciate the at-tention of your newspaper to the listening session I held in Wayne on July 3. The coverage you provided was excellent and further helped inform constituents on Congressional issues. These items deserve additional comment. First, I did want to clarify that I didn't mean to suggest by any means that new housing built in every village automatically lose value. That depends upon the village and its location — in effect, an actually market values in that on potential market values in that community.

Second, I would like to comment on the matter of medical care in V.A. hospitals for what are called Category C veterans. During 1989, many veterans with non-service connected medical problems were denied admission for the first time because of inadequate V.A. funds. I greatly regret that change, protested it, and voted for supplemental, funds earlier this year. It is not that we are spending less money for veterans' medical care; we are spending more than ever. However, with the huge number of World War II veterans now getting up there in years, the demand on our VA hospitals and out-patient care is at an all-time high. One of the very few areas President Bush and Congress agree deserves high funds next year is veterans' health care. vice connected medical problems

Finally, on the matter of earned income tax credits for low and lowmiddle income families, both the House and Senate bills contain this approach. Such a tax credit would be available regardless of whether or not both parents are employed outside the home. Thank you for permitting me to provide this supplemental information to your readers.

License exams State awarding good drivers

AREA - The Nebraska Department of Motor Vehicles recently announced it will make it easier and cheaper for good drivers to renew their licenses without taking written exam.

As before, drivers with no traffic violations since their last driver's license was issued do not have to take the written portion of the test if they renew their license within 90 days before it expires.

90 days before it expires.
Currently, those drivers must apply for an abstract from the Department of Motor Vehicles that proves they had no traffic violations. There was a $1.75 fee to process the paperwork.

But, starting Sept. T, examiners in every county will be able to call up driving records via computer. So, they will be able to do that on the spot at no fee to the applicant.

Department of Motor Vehicles director Margaret Higgins says the service is one of the benefits of the new commercial drivers license

The Farmer's Wife By Pat Meierhenry

By the end of July, the Centen-nial celebrations will all be over. There was Snyder, Wausa, Bloom-field, Osmond, Brunswick, Creston, and Belden still to come. And there is still Winside. Mark July 20, 21, and 22 on your calendar, and "come on over!"

The co-op is scraping and painting, the light poles are newly park; and there are antique displays almost everywhere!

There are four-generation photos at the Stop Inn, old tractors sporting new coats of paint, the Barber Shop window features old razor strops, and the Big Farmer is busily selecting tools to take to Every Centennial celebration must have a pageant, and we are no exception. It will explain that this town had its origins in a town alled Northside, established in 1881 by the railroad.

Because of problems with the landowners, the railroad moved the section east on June 14, 1886, the plat of the new town was registered and named Winside because it would eventually "win" over the town of Northside.

It was incorporated in 1890 with a population of 200, beefed up by drafting the railroad crew.

The pageant must have a choir, and it has been meeting at the auditorium on Monday evenings. It's been interesting to see how many folks have turned out to sing old favorites, like "Take Me Out to the Ballgame", a modified version of something called "That Railroad Rag", and all kinds of other songs.

This past Monday was a real scorcher! Hot and humid, we scorcherl Hot and humid, we gathered for our rehearsal, there were a couple of big fans to circulate the muggy air. Then the electricity went off! We struggled to finish before the natural light disappeared totally, and the sweat poured off our shiny faces: People have to be a little craze to do things like this, but what the heck, once every 100 years!
It seems our church was organized in 1890, too; so that event is being observed this weekend, the 14th and 15th. There's been more cleaning and painting and planning going on here, with another thoir practice on Wednesday nights. Now, we are ironing the long dresses, baking bars and pies, looking back in time. Men are getting anxious to shave beards. We're praying for rain and moderate temperatures. Centennial madness will reign the rest of the month in Winside.

Winside centennial quilt completed

SEVERAL WINSIDE WOMEN RECENTLY completed a queen size centennial quilt which will be drawn for during the community's 100th birthday celebration on July 22. The quilt, which is on display in the Winside Stop Inn meeting room, was completely hand embroidered by Irene Ditman and Ruby Ritze. It is trimmed in berry red with white blocks. The center features a replica of the Winside centennial logo which was designed by Scott Jackson and features four scenes from Winside's early history. Other blocks contain pictures of the three local churches, many Winside businesses, schools, and other historical scenes which were reproduced by Darla Janke of Omaha, Dave Ritze of Denver, and Veryl Jackson and Scott Jackson of Winside. Marian Iversen set the quilt, and quilting was done by Marian Iversen, Lila Hansen, Bertha Rohlff, Ella Miller, Leona Backstrom, Arlene Rabe, Lois Krueger, Arlene Pfelffer and Rose Thies. Tickets for the quilt may be purchased from members of the Winside centennial committee, from women taking part in the project, or at the centennial headquarters located in the Winside Stop Inn. Tickets are $1 each or six for $5. All proceeds will be used for the Winside centennial. ATTENTION CITY OF WAYNE ELECTRIC CUSTOMERS

During these long hot days of summer your electric utility must buy more electricity to supply an evergrowing demand. Electric power becomes costly and these added expenses must be passed on to our customers through rate increases.

You can help us keep your electricity rates from increasing, by conserving where you can. When you know that it's going to be hot, do laundry in the morning or evening. Water your lawn in the morning or evening. Also, turn your air conditioner up a few degrees, between the hours of 12 noon and 7:00 pm.

If these measures are taken by you then we can keep your electric rates

Social Security recipients and others receiving government checks should heed four new checks should heed four new words appearing on such checks: "Void after one year." Effective October 1, of last year, a new law puts that time limit on cashing government checks. Previously, government checks could be held indefinitely before being cashed. definitely before being cashed, and the United States Treasurty says more than nine million checks which are one or more years old have not been years old have not been cashed. Holders of these checks have until September 30, 1990, to cash them. The new law also reduces from six years to one year the time in which a recipient can file a claim for a missing check.
