

Two girls stage escape from detention center

WAYNE - According to Wayne County Juvenile Detention officials, two juveniles escaped Thursday, Aug. 16 at 2:30 p.m. but were later apprehended by officials near Walthill.

Officials said the two youth — ages 15 and 13 — escaped through a door window at the facility. The juveniles apparently broke a screen on the west door, used to take juveniles to the exercise area on the west end, and tore out a screen to escape.

According to Wayne County Sheriff Leroy Janssen, the exercise area was to have been completely fenced in by July 27 by Carlson Construction Company of Wayne but the company has been slow to get it completed, Wayne County Juvenile Detention officials said.

Janssen was not available for comment.

According to Dee Gable, one of the facility's administrators, the 13-year-old juvenile is from Macy and the 15-year-old is from Madison County. Names were withheld to protect the juveniles' identities.

DETENTION CENTER officials reported that after their escape, the juveniles allegedly stole a car belonging to Frank Mrsny, Jr. Official said upon reaching Walthill, the juvenile driving the car entered into a high speed chase with law enforcement authorities, which resulted in a one-car accident 1 1/2 miles north of Walthill on a gravel county road.

Upon their apprehension, one of the females was returned to the Wayne County Juvenile Detention Center and the other was taken to Marion Health Center in Sioux City, Iowa for observation. No details about the juvenile's condition was made available.

Sheriff's office officials said the allegedly stolen vehicle was totaled.

Problems continue

Second look taken by city on garbage

WAYNE - After receiving numerous complaints, the City Council is considering the possibility of removing the curb side pick-up provision from its solid waste ordinance.

The request to have the clause repealed was directed by Councilwoman Carolyn Filter. Following Filter's request, City Attorney Bob Enz was directed by the council to make the amendment for the ordinance in the form of a new ordinance.

No vote was taken at Wednesday's meeting. The Council will vote on the proposed new ordinance at its Tuesday, Aug. 28 meeting.

Several City Council members voiced their concerns at a meeting Wednesday following the council's recessed meeting Tuesday.

Several councilpersons said they had received numerous phone calls, some taking as many as 15 calls in a one-day period.

"If we took this curb side provision out of the ordinance the trash haulers could require in certain places that residents place their garbage at the curb," Filter said. "The haulers could still make their own decisions."

meeting several ideas were bounced around. Councilman Darrel Heier suggested the first alternative that during parts of the year, haulers could pick up solid waste once a week rather than twice a week in order to keep costs down.

Citizens who attended the meeting seemed to be in agreement with Heier's suggestion so long as it keeps hauling costs — and costs charged to the customer — low.

According to Councilman Larry Johnson, while he supports once a week pick-up during the winter months (October through April), he noted that there are some homes on north Main which could not accommodate the curb side provision. He said if the clause is left in the original ordinance, those residents would have trouble complying with it.

Councilman Ralph Barclay said if the curb side provision is removed from the ordinance that the alleys would have to be kept in better shape so it couldn't be as hard on haulers' trucks.

Returning to alley pick-up, however, may result in higher costs to the consumer not only through haulers' charges but taxes assessed to keep alleys in good condition.

START helps planning

Officials begin work on future

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Orderly growth through a comprehensive plan is needed but the public needs to understand the growth, according to George Phelps and Sam Schroeder, each of whom serve on the planning commission and have been active participants in the START process.

The process of updating Wayne's 10-plus year old plan began over a year ago when the planning commission started to consider what process needed to be taken to update it. Phelps said the planning commission through START would be a good place to begin.

According to Schroeder, although the START findings don't provide all the data necessary for the comprehensive plan, it goes a long way in developing a base for one.

"IN ORDER TO facilitate some of the problems, we will need to educate the people," Phelps said. "We know we will run into problems with formulating a comprehensive plan. We're certain some of the topics will be non-controversial but others might cause some controversy because people don't like to see changes to the status quo"

The purpose of a comprehensive plan is to set the city in a direction for the future, according to Schroeder, but once the plan is complete he notes that it is not a stagnant tool that should sit for ten years until it needs to be updated. He said updating a comprehensive plan is a constant process.

"What START did was to kick off a community-wide dialogue," he said. "The planning commission hopes to be able to pick from the START findings, as well as that dialogue, what it can to help benefit the city in the future."

WITH SUCCESSES seen from the START survey evident in some people's eyes following last week's GREAT town hall meeting, Schroeder says Wayne is well on its way to developing a comprehensive plan which will benefit its citizens for years to come.

Phelps agrees that START provided a good base but notes that Wayne will have to continue developing the image it wants to

Wood sent to Saudi Arabia

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

When Frank Wood's son Troy enlisted in the Army in 1987, neither had any idea that his enrollment might result in battle action.

Today, with tensions rising in the middle east, Troy, 21, finds himself positioned in Saudi Arabia as a gunner with the 27th Field Artillery.

Naturally, his father is a little nervous about the situation.

Mr. Wood, who spent 18 months in Vietnam as a construction engineer, said he worries about his son but he tries to keep busy working.

"The scariest part of it is the chemical weapons," he said. "Even though they're well equipped with sensors and gas masks, it's a little scary. The hardest part for them when they wear the suits is the heat. You also know that he might be going to war. It's hard to accept that."

SPECIALIST FOURTH Class Wood was sent to Saudi Arabia from Fort Bragg, N.C. Saturday, Aug. 11. Mr. Wood said he found out his son was going to be sent when Troy's wife, Kris (Blohm) Wood, an Allen native, called to tell him once she received word.

"When it happened (Iraq's invasion of Kuwait Aug. 2), I didn't even think that he might be headed over there," Mr. Wood said. "When Kris called me Wednesday (Aug. 8) morning I almost felt like I was in shock. I hadn't even thought about him going into that."

Since learning of his son's departure, Mr. Wood said he has stayed in constant contact CNN (Cable News Network).

In addition to trying to stay tuned into the TV, radio and newspapers, Mr. Wood said he keeps in touch with Troy's wife Kris. He said he thinks the U.S. government is doing its best with the situation and he supports putting troops in Saudi Arabia.

"Her (Kris) spirits are up," he said. "She says she's not coming home because she wants to be there when Troy returns."

MR. WOOD SAID HE is also concerned with the length of time U.S. troops may have to be stationed along the Iraqi border. He said he has heard reports that troops might remain in the middle east until after Christmas.

Troop numbers presently are at 50,000 and it is expected to rise to 250,000.

"There's a lot more people standing ready from what we understand from TV and radio," Mr. Wood said.

The audit report was read and approved and a check for $45 was presented to the American Legion for one-third share of Girls State expenses.

HOSTESSES for the August meeting were Eveline Thompson, Shirley Brockman and Betty Heithold.

The next meeting will be the District 3 president's visit on Sept. 10 at 8 p.m. Gold Star members also will be honored at the September meeting with Fauneil Hoffman, Eva Brockman and Darlene Draghu serving on the committee.

Hostesses in September will be Neva Lorenzen, Mabel Sommerfeld and Arline Hammer.

YARD OF THE MONTH

This contest is sponsored by Country Nursery Lawn Service of Wayne and judged by an independent group of observers.

Although Mr. and Mrs. Don Hansen only use Country Nursery Lawn Service once a year to aerate their lawn, they reap the benefits of the service.

"They did the aerating for us at the start of the summer and I think it helped the lawn because it absorbs water better and it gives the lawn a chance to breathe," Mr. Hansen said.

By their own efforts, the Hansens said they mow the lawn once a week and water it with their underground water sprinklers only when the lawn needs it. They do their own fertilizing with "whatever's on sale". They said usually they use diazolan to kill bugs and Scott products to fertilize the soil.

"We really do like the service Country Nursery has provided us," Hansen said. "He doesn't do anything but our aerating but he's always fair to us."

Wayne State hires sports information director

Mark Meighen has been named the new sports information director at Wayne State College. He replaces Jean Berger who recently accepted the women's sports information director position at Wichita State University.

Penn State and with the Buffalo Bills brings a tremendous range of experience that should enhance our ability to spread the Wayne State sports story throughout Northeast Nebraska and the Midwest."

Prior to Slippery Rock, Meighen served as a media and public relations assistant for the National Football League's Buffalo Bills, and as a feature writer in the Penn State Sports Information Department.

Meighen, who is single, earned his bachelor of arts degree in journalism from Pennsylvania State University, and his master's degree in sports administration from Slippery Rock University.

Meighen comes to WSC from Slippery Rock University in Slippery Rock, Penn., where he's been the assistant sports information director since August of 1989. His duties included writing press releases for varsity sports, coordinating statistics, supervising gameday personnel, developing brochures, and assistant editor of Rock Magazine.

WAYNE STATE football practice began last Saturday at the Wayne State practice field. The players will continue two-a-days through Thursday.

Wildcat football team taking a lean look at self

The 1990 Wayne State College football team still has a lot of beef, but this year it will be leaner thanks to the College's Human Performance Lab.

Eighty nine of the Wildcats underwent "skin fold" tests recently at the Lab to determine how their body fat compared to a National Football League chart for professional football players.

The project was a collaboration of Ron Olsen, Wayne State College Wellness Director, head football coach Dennis Wagner, and Dr. Ralph Barclay, division head of Human Performance and Leisure Studies at WSC and Human Performance Lab creator.

The student-athletes were tested for body fat using skin calibrations at the chest, abdomen and thigh. Players with a high percentage of body fat were asked to keep a one-day dietary diary which is analyzed by a computer for intake of proteins, carbohydrates, and saturated fats. The Lab then issues a dietary and exercise prescription for the student-athlete to follow.

The resulting leaner student-athlete is more productive according to Olsen, a native of South Sioux City. "The combination of heat and excess body fat acts as a blanket causing the body's core temperature to go up. This leads to fatigue, especially late in the game, and it also slows reaction time," Olsen said.

The team averaged 10.6 percent body fat, with the offensive and defensive linemen rating superior compared to NFL standards. The average college-age male has 16-18 percent body fat. The Wildcat football players will be tested again following the season, and plans are currently being made to incorporate the testing into the other 11 varsity sports offered at Wayne State College.

The services which take very little time, are available at a modest cost to the public. Anyone interested in receiving a complete fitness evaluation and exercise prescription can contact the Human Performance Lab at 375-7483.

Incidentally, Ron Olsen enters his first year as Head Wellness Director at Wayne State College. Olsen comes to Wayne from Omaha where he was a physical education teaching sub for the Omaha Public Schools.

Olsen is a 1971 graduate of the University of South Dakota with a P.E. under grad degree and he received his Masters Degree from UNO in exercise science.

MICHELE GOLDEN tests Matt Holle for body fat at the Human Performance Lab in Rice Auditorium. The study on the football players was designed to see if they fit into the standards of the NFL.

KTCH

Wayne's station with something for everyone

As a small, rural radio station, KTCH has designed its format to attract a wide variety of listeners on both the FM and AM bands.

In just two months, KTCH will be celebrating 15 years as an FM station, as its AM station will have been broadcasting 22 years.

According to four-year station manager Mark Ahmann, KTCH is seeing some changes on its FM band due to the replacement of its antennae. He said he hopes the station's problems aren't affecting its listeners but adjustments are still being made to the tower but they're not expected to take long.

Ahmann said KTCH offers a variety of programs which entice listeners to tune in. As always, KTCH will be broadcasting the University of Nebraska, Wayne State College and Wayne High School football games, plus one high school game of the week Fridays on the FM band.

In addition to its sports coverage, KTCH also has a variety of programs listeners enjoy regularly. Ahmann said the "Wax Works" program, which features nostalgic radio broadcasts, can be heard each Sunday from 6-11 p.m. on both bands (AM and FM). Featured on Saturday is the "American Country Countdown" with its show from 7-11 p.m. "Something Special" fills in the special weekend broadcasts with adult contemporary music Sundays 1-5 p.m.

Regular features during the week include the popular "Bargain Counter" at 11:10 a.m. Monday through Saturday. The Brownfield and Mid-American Farm Network can be heard at various times throughout the day Monday through Friday and major local news reports are broadcast by news director Mike Grosz at 7 a.m., 8 a.m., noon and 5 p.m. In addition to local news, KTCH offers ABC news every hour on the hour.

Other regular feature shows KTCH broadcasts includes "Things and Stuff" Monday through Friday from 8:20 a.m. to 9 a.m. as well as disc jockey Dan Baddorf's "Oldies but Baddies" several times a week.

Promotions done by KTCH are numerous. The station is proud of its annual Easter egg hunt, its turkey hunt around Thanksgiving as well as the 10th annual Couples Golf Tournament on Sept. 16.

In addition to these regular promotions, KTCH is sponsoring a 7-day Caribbean cruise with Trio Travel of Wayne. The cruise, where area residents can join Mark and Jane Ahmann, will make ports of call at Grenada, Barbados, Martinique, Marie-Galante and St. Thomas. Information about the trip is available at KTCH or Trio Travel.

GENERAL MANAGER MARK Ahmann and sports director Mike Grosz provide full coverage of Wayne State College and Wayne High School football games; (lower, left) advertising executive Sandy Bartling is ready to promote all local businesses on KTCH; morning man Dean Bilstein signs KTCH on the air at 6 a.m. Monday through Saturday.

Conway chosen

Wayne senator elected

WAYNE - Nebraska State Sen. Jerry Conway of Wayne was recently elected to chair the Midwestern Division of the Council of State Governments. He will be succeeding Rept. Jane Barnes, of Illinois, whose term expires this fall. The 1,800-member organization gathered in Chicago for its annual meeting.

Sen. Conway announced that his first official act would be to declare that the site for the next annual meeting will be in Nebraska.

"It will be a perfect opportunity to showcase our state," Conway said. "Much of what the council is all about is to learn from each other and I believe that we in Nebraska have a great deal to be proud of and are very willing to share our experiences," he added.

During an interview in Chicago, Conway described his chairmanship as a progression that started shortly after being elected state senator six years ago. "Being from a legislative district that borders two other states, I quickly recognized the value in cooperation," Conway said. He was instrumental in starting the tri-state legislators group that works with SIMPCO to foster joint projects enhancing Siouxland communities.

Since he was known for speaking out in Lincoln on interstate cooperation, Conway said that he was chosen to represent Nebraska on a Midwest task force on economic development. He was chosen to chair that task force. "It was because of that position that I became active in the Council of State Governments, I am looking forward to serving as their chairman," Conway concluded.

The Council of State Governments works to strengthen the effectiveness of state government and to enhance interstate cooperation and dialogue by providing information and assistance on issues that affect state governments. The Council of State Governments is a joint agency of all state governments — created, supported and directed by them. The 12 states in the Midwestern division are Nebraska, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

Program provides valuable service to those who use it

AREA - The Nebraska farm economy has improved since the inception of the farm mediation program in 1988, but the mediation program continues to provide a valuable service to those farm borrowers and lenders still facing difficulties.

"The farm economy has improved on the average, but not for everyone. There are still farmers who could benefit from the mediation program," according to Mark Galvin, administrator of the Nebraska farm mediation program.

Galvin said over 350 requests for mediation have been processed in the last two years by the Nebraska farm mediation program. This voluntary state program is the result of the Farm Mediation Act that was adopted by the Nebraska Legislature in 1988.

Farm mediation is a process which brings borrowers and creditors together to resolve financial disputes. The process is voluntary and binding only if the parties can reach a mutual agreement. Borrowers involved in mediation are provided free financial analysis. All information is strictly confidential. The program is administered by the Nebraska Department of Agriculture which contracts with the Nebraska Farm Mediation Service, the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service and individual mediators across the state.

"It's important for farmers to know that this program is not a creditor-developed program, but a neutral program designed to result in successful agreements between the farm borrower and his/her creditors," Galvin said.

Each party participating in mediation is charged $20 per hour for the time spent in the mediation session.

Galvin said a farm borrower or creditor can request farm mediation at any time. "It is not necessary that a foreclosure or bankruptcy proceeding be filed or contemplated prior to requesting mediation. In fact, mediation may be more successful while options are still available," he said.

The Nebraska farm mediation program is available to all farm borrowers and creditors throughout the state. Persons interested in requesting mediation, or learning more about the service, can call (toll free) 800-446-4071.

project. He stresses that if Wayne is to continue growing several issues being dealt with by the START task forces is ultimately important. Among those issues are housing, child care, public facilities, expanding/attracting businesses and community image, attitude and communication.

Of those issues, Phelps says day care and housing are among the top which need attention. He said the housing situation could become "explosive" unless action is taken.

"We hope education and public hearings will help the public," he said. "Industries are telling us that they need to bring in these people to town to make their business grow and for that we have to have suitable housing."

"Wayne has done an excellent job of attracting industry and providing the climate to attract industry. Now we just need to provide for those industries."

Curb pick-up fair

So what's the fuss?

The homeowners in our neighborhood have always placed their garbage at the curb for pick-up. Alley pick-up is not an option for many homeowners in Wayne. Is it possible that our City Council members didn't realize that many Wayne neighborhoods do not have an alley system? Is it fair for us to pay increased sanitation service costs to subsidize alley pick-up in some areas of the city?

I have a few suggestions for those who complain that curb pick-up is unsightly — purchase decoration trash bags, buy a new garbage can or paint your old garbage can in the latest fashion colors. To the City Council, I suggest to keep in place the ordinance for curb-side pick-up. You were right the first time to have all citizens have curb side pick-up. Don't force yet another price increase on us and other alley-less neighborhoods.

So what's the fuss? The real garbage issue should be sorting for recycling and minimizing waste.

Mash announces man to job

WAYNE - Wayne E. Groner has been named to the newly created position of vice president for institutional advancement at Wayne State College, according to Dr. Donald J. Mash, president of Wayne State.

Groner will be in charge of all fundraising, public relations and alumni activities for the college.

Since 1986 he has been vice president for university advancement at Upper Iowa University in Fayette, where he initiated program planning, budget integrity, job-performance evaluation, gift-reporting standards, an annual phonathon, employee payroll-deduction gifts, The President Club for major donors, an estate-gifts program, accountability reports and computerized donor records.

Under Groner these programs increased gift income an average of 12 percent annually, doubled the number of donors and received two awards from the Council for Advancement and Support of Education.

"Private support of the College is essential if we are going to be able to do what northeast Nebraska requires of us," says Dr. Mash. "The Wayne State Foundation, and Mr. Groner's leadership of the advancement effort, can generate the funds which will make the difference. We're fortunate to have someone of Mr. Groner's background working on our behalf in this important position."

From 1977 to 1986, Groner was associate director of development and then director of estate planning at Graceland College in Lamoni, Iowa, with senior-level roles in two $10 million capital campaigns. He has two professional certifications: Certified Fund Raising Executive (CFRE) from the National Society of Fund Raising Executives, and Certified Instructor from the National Institute for Wills and Bequests Training.

"The Wayne State Foundation looks forward to the leadership Mr. Groner can provide as we continue to broaden the base for private support of Wayne State," says Becky Keidel, president of the Wayne State Foundation Board of Trustees.

Before getting into development, Groner was a radio and television news reporter in Springfield, Mo. He developed stories used by the Associated Press and CBS Radio. Also in Springfield, he owned and managed a publishing company, and was elected twice to the Missouri House of Representatives. Groner is also a freelance writer and is active in community service.

He and his wife, Eryleene, have two children, Heidi and Phil.

Governor's thanks

For several months, a strategic planning committee in Wayne has been working to implement an action plan, a framework for the future. The community is fortunate to have citizens who are willing to invest time, leadership and resources to work on this plan.

As demonstrated at the GREAT town hall meeting, state government officials and other resource persons are prepared to help, but this is your area and you know best what is needed. Working together you can make real progress, coming fourth with a renewed sense of accomplishment and a brighter outlook for your region and its residents.

The community's development of this plan is to be commended, but the involvement of all citizens is crucial. Contact someone with the strategic planning committee and join the people who are working for the future of your area and our state.

Grand marshals

ERNEST AND MABLE KNOELL were the grand marshals of the Dixon-Centennial parade during the celebration Sunday, Aug. 12. The Knoell family has a long history in the small rural Dixon County town of 150. The couple, who have been married over 60 years, were honored by the parade as they rode in one of the earlier entries of the 100-plus entry trip through downtown Dixon.
