That sure feels good

WITH TEMPERATURES NEAR 90 and humidity levels high a dabbling of water on the head felt good Thursday as was found out by 13-month-old Adrian Schnell as his mother Melodee lets water from a sponge ball drip on his head.

Chamber officials patient with search

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Patience is the word for members of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce selection committee, according to Sam Schroeder, president of Wayne Industries and chairperson of the committee.

The selection committee is working to replace Linda Smith, who served as the Chamber's executive director for four years. Smith resigned from the post June 8.

Schroeder said since Smith's resignation, the selection committee has received nine applications for the position and three were offered the job but each turned it down.

He said he attributes so few applicants to the type of skills being sought. Because the Chamber and Wayne Industries boards are looking for someone with very specific skills in running a chamber of commerce, as well as someone with a broad knowledge of economic development, the position is hard to fill, he said.

"I wouldn't say we're having problems but you've got to be a little patient," he said. "We were pretty selective when we advertised the position."

ANOTHER DIFFICULTY THE

selection committee seems to have run into is the size of the Chamber's budget. Schroeder said since the budget is restrictive, it makes the position inviting to someone approaching retirement or someone just starting out.

He added that the selection committee still has "plenty of avenues to pursue."

Applicants for the position came primarily from states surrounding Nebraska. Schroeder said a few came from other areas in the Midwest.

He added that the selection committee is hoping to have some

Flag, ribbons offer quiet reminder of Rhodes

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

"At the home of Terry Rhodes' parents, the American flag flies high over the farm where Terry grew up.

"Yellow ribbons lettered 'Terry Rhodes' and 'U.S.S. Independence' are tied to trees and the homes of Terry's four sisters," each of whom live in the area, writes Terry's mother Marlys Rice.

They're reminders to the passer-by that American servicemen are stationed far from home.

Rhodes, a Naval petty officer, is stationed on board the aircraft carrier U.S.S. Independence in the Persian Gulf. Like other parents, the Rice's are concerned about their son.

"We're just like anyone else's folks. We don't want to spout out words of pearls but we want to show support for our son," Marlys said.

LIKE SOME FAMILIES, the Rices have found parents of other servicemen fighting in the Persian Gulf.

Terry Rhodes

About a week after the Persian Gulf crisis began Aug. 2 when Iraq invaded Kuwait, the Rices received a call from the Duane Krueger family of Belden. The Kruegers have a son who is also stationed on the Independence and since then, although never meeting each other, the families have stayed in close contact.

"We share something in common," Marlys said. "We share our thoughts and what we hear, so we try to keep in touch."

Despite finding another family with a son stationed aboard one of the carriers in the gulf, the Rices try to stay in close proximity to a TV so they know what's happening.

The Independence, the last aircraft carrier built before the Nimitz nuclear class, is stationed just outside the entrance of the Strait of Hormuz, 65 miles from Iraq.

THE REALIZATION OF war first hit home for the Rices when CBS' Dan Rather reported from the Independence. They said they had toured the carrier during a visit to Rhodes in January and since that visit, things have changed.

"In his first report, we saw gas masks on the walls behind Dan Rather and they weren't there in January," Marlys said.

It's doubly disturbing for the Rices since they don't know if Rhodes receives the same news reports they do. "He can't tell us

Waste costly

Month's garbage total: 295 tons

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

In one month, the average amount of solid waste produced from the Wayne transfer station is 298.5 tons and for that, the city is charged $18.40 a ton to place it in a landfill.

That's one of the reasons, according to Nancy Braden, city treasurer, that Wayne is seeing an increase in its waste disposal costs.

In addition, the city has never been in the black with its transfer station. The station, which was supposed to be supported by revenues, has been supported by taxes since it was built.

That's one of the reasons a higher rate was charged to Wayne's two solid waste haulers and therefore passed on to customers.

For 1990 it is estimated that the transfer station will lose $21,000 for normal operating costs alone — that figure doesn't include depreciation or the increase, Braden said.

THE ALTERNATIVE IS to try to find differing ways of hauling solid waste, according to Bill's G-Men owner Bill Lueders.

Since the notification of the increase to his costs, which becomes effective Sept. 1, Lueders has toyed around with a number of ways to keep the fees he charges to consumers down.

One of the ways he suggested to city officials when the cycle began was to eliminate alley pick-up, opting for curb-side pick-up. But after the City Council passed the ordinance calling for curb-side pick-up, councilpersons received enough calls to force them to consider changing the ordinance back to its previous form, which doesn't require the type of pickup.

With curb-side pick-up set to be erased from the ordinance, Lueders has changed his rates a second time to try to accommodate his customers.

"Due to the change in alley pick-up, we're increasing our rates to $11 with no charge for up to six bags of grass/leaf clippings a week," he said. "We will pick that up on Mondays only."

MRSNY SANITATION owner Frank Mrsny said although he never favored alley pick up, he said Wayne's rates are not out of line. He said Norfolk residents pay $11

Alternative available through composting

WAYNE - If there is an answer to the solid waste problem facing the city right now, it might best be handled using grass and leaves for compost, according to Wayne County extension agent Rod Patent.

Compost is a form of fertilizer from clippings. Patent said compost is best used during the winter but it can also be used effectively shortly after fertilization.

He said to develop a solid program — mixing compost with lawn fertilizer — it is suggested that grass clippings not be picked up until after the lawn is mowed three times. Patent said the reason for this is so nitrates from fertilization are kept in the soil.

"As the lawn is watered, the nutrients from fertilization will move down," he said. "Thatch from the clippings will also be reabsorbed as fertilizer. A couple layers of grass on top of fertilized soil will help the nitrates to stay in the ground as well as recycle the ni-

Totem pole offers birthday reminder

By Diane Jaeger
Winside Correspondent

WINSIDE - Residents and visitors to this community can now enjoy another permanent reminder of the town's recent 100th birthday.

An Indian totem pole, created during the three day celebration, was recently erected on the northwest corner of the village park.

The 19 foot, 8 3/4 inch tall red cedar was snatched from the yard of Winside resident Wilva Jenkins prior to the July centennial. It was placed in the park the morning of July 20 when members of the Northeast Nebraska Woodcarving Club started creating the work of art.

"We estimated the tree to be approximately 100 years of age," says Warren Gallop, who was also the centennial chairman for the park.

The age was determined by the number of growth rings on the tree.

CLUB MEMBERS NOT only used chain saws, but carving chisels and knives to smooth, shape and detail the figures.

"We looked in books with Indian totem poles and decided to use the figures most widely used by the Indians," he said.

The figures include a bear holding a fish, a symbol of strength; a beaver for industriousness; a raven symbolizing shrewd or crafty; a frog (which Gallop didn't know the symbolization for) and a thunderbird on top with its wings spread, symbolizing a fighter or a survivor.

"Among the Indians of the northwest Pacific coast, poles were carved and used to commemorate important events," he said. "The carvings were largely of animals associated with particular families, their histories and legends. Sometimes the poles were used as monuments for ancestors."

THE DIAMETER OF THE base is 19 1/2 inches and the diameter of the head is 13 inches. It was estimated the tree weighed over 12,000 pounds.

"It was really fun working on it during the centennial and it really drew a lot of spectators," he said. "Many of them picked up chips of cedar from the ground for souvenirs."

Members of the club who worked on the totem pole include Ed Wright, Mike and Betty Stolley, all of Norfolk; Bob Dolata, Richard and Roberta Carmen and Mike Fluent, all of Wayne.

The pole was finished by Warren and his son Jeff who coated it with linseed oil and turpentine. Local residents who assisted Gallop in placing the pole in a cement foundation were Jeff Gallop, Trevor Hartmann, Tuffy Hartmann, who used Hartmann's Crane Service to do the job and John Gallop, Sr. of Norfolk.

a month and his rates are $11.50 after the city's rate increase. In addition, he charges 40 cents a 36 gal. bag for lawn/leaf clippings.

Although both solid waste operators were willing to release their residential rates, neither would disclose commercial rates. Each operator noted that commercial rates will increase proportionately.

ALTHOUGH RATES ARE going up in 1990, that doesn't stop the possibility of another rate hike in 1991, Braden said. The 50 percent increase by the city to haulers was first considered at 80 percent but she said the council was leery of a sharp increase like the one imposed on water two years ago.

"At this point, there's too many variables," she said. "Whether the transfer station will lose money or break even is up in the air. It's too hard to tell at this point whether we'll have to have another rate increase next year."

Braden added that the 298.5 tons of solid waste being taken to Jackson, Neb. by the city needs to be lowered. She said the weight amount doesn't include large items like refrigerators, stoves, tires or the like but currently it does include grass clippings, which help create a bulk of the weight.

Since lawn/leaf clippings will be separated as of Sept. 1, Bill's G-Men will be taking them to an undisclosed alternative site and Mrsny sanitation will place them in the back of a truck designated for a city landfill site northeast of Restful Knights. Braden said it is unknown whether they will be buried or placed out there while Lueters said his will be incinerated and buried.

brates already present in the freshly cut grass."

IN ADDITION TO putting grass clippings back to use, leaves also make a good fertilizer.

Patent said in the fall, leaves can be collected and tilled into gardens, placed around trees or around shrubbery.

The Wayne County Jaycees also pick up area leaves and take them to Garden Perennials south of town, where they are shredded and used as compost in the spring.

"At this point, recycling leaves and grass clippings is an economic alternative," Patent said. "If you have to pay a dollar to get rid of your grass, you'll need to find the economical alternative."

In addition to using clippings for composting, Patent said some farmers may be interested in using clippings or leaves as a compost back to the land in heavily traveled pastures. He said for farmers to be interested in this, the grass and leaves must be chemical free.

Wayne graduate to compete in IRONMAN Triathlon, Oct. 6

By Kevin Peterson
Sports Editor

The IRONMAN is among the most physically and psychologically demanding athletic events in the world that stretches participants to their limits of endurance.

1977 Wayne-Carroll graduate Roger Wacker, has been selected from more than 4,000 international applicants, coming from over 46 countries around the world, to compete in the 12th Anniversary Bud Light Ironman Triathlon World Championship on Oct. 6, on the Big Island of Hawaii.

The Bud Light Ironman, the most prestigious triathlon in the world, consists of a 2.4 mile ocean swim, 112 mile bike race and 26.2 mile run, all of which must be completed within 17 hours.

The 2.4 mile ocean swim, held in waters that reach depths of 90 feet, must be completed within 2 hours 15 minutes. The bike portion of the event will close 10 and one half hours after the start of the race. Most of the 112 mile course runs along the Queen Kaahumanu Highway on the Kona Coast. The highway is surrounded by black lava fields which often have been compared to a moonscape.

Intense heat and constant winds can create a course that requires tremendous psychological stamina as well as physical strength and endurance. In previous races, contestants faced unusually difficult conditions with temperatures in the mid-90's, winds up to 35 mph and gusts of up to 55 mph.

Most of the marathon takes place also on the Queen Kaahumanu Highway. The heat is intense, particularly for those who finish the race before dusk. After dark, contestants still on the course must contend with a pitch black, unlit highway. The marathon course will close 17 hours after the start of the race.

Training for the race typically requires 18 to 24 hours per week for six to eight months to develop the stamina and endurance needed to complete the 140.6 mile event.

ABC's Wide World of Sports will televise the Bud Light Ironman Triathlon, reaching an estimated 40 million viewers.

Wacker began participating in triathlons in 1986, and yet in four short years he has reached the pinnacle of success, earning the right to participate in the most prestigious Ironman in the world.

"I used to play in a band before this," Wacker said in a recent interview with a Texas newspaper. "I had absolutely no athletic background in high school but now I wish I had. I basically started four years ago the 30-year-old said."

Wacker received an invitation to run in the Ironman after finishing third in his age group at the Iron-horse triathlon in Springfield, Mo., on June 17. As an amateur triathlete, the only way to get into the Ironman is to win a spot in one of 12 qualifying races held around the country.

"I really thought that I was going to be there last year," Wacker said in the same interview. "I was running in the Texas regional qualifying race and I had a flat tire during the bike portion of the race and didn't qualify."

Training for the Ironman keeps Wacker busy. He gets up at 5 a.m. every morning and swims, then runs during his lunch break and rides his bike during the evening after coming home from his job, which is an engineering position at NASA.

Wacker noted that the key to good training is discipline and learning to budget time. One of the biggest factors that Wacker has overcome in qualifying for the Ironman was a February knee surgery. Wacker attributed that the knee surgery was done because of his overuse while training for the Houston Marathon.

Following his high school graduation at Wayne, Wacker attended Wayne State for one year before departing for the Rose Hulman Institute of Technology in Terre Haute, Indiana. Wacker received his Bachelor's Degree and then moved to Houston.

He received his Master's Degree from the University of Houston while working on the job. Wacker currently works at Lockheed, a NASA contractor. With his trip to Hawaii secure, Wacker's work out regiment will include biking some 400 miles a week, running 50-60 miles and swimming 20,000 yards.

It is safe to say that Wacker has come a long way since his high school days at Wayne-Carroll in which he was not involved in athletics. One of his brightest moments at Wayne High was winning the John Philip Sousa Award for playing the trumpet in band. Wacker and his wife Ann are expecting their first child in January. Wacker is the son of Herman and Rodella Wacker of Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Reynolds of Lower Lake, Calif. visited in the Mrs. Fred Burns home in Laurel on Wednesday afternoon.

AREA - For the next few weeks speeders had better be looking over their shoulders if they don't want to get caught on northeast Nebraska highways.

According to the Nebraska State Patrol, highways 81, 275 and 35 have all been designated as high speeding areas. Through randomly placed speed monitors, the state patrol has found more than 50 percent of all drivers exceeding the 55 mph speed limit.

This trend will be stopped, according to State Patrol Sgt. Leon Cederlind.

"The whole thing is selective," he said. "We won't plant any aircraft in any immediate area. Each officer has dual radar and vascar capabilities and each of us will work independently but in the same general area."

THE PROGRAM WILL be run over the next week between Norfolk and South Sioux City and will be done again at unspecified future dates to insure that drivers aren't speeding.

According to trooper Dan Thompson, the 55 mph speed limit will be strictly enforced.

"If drivers are exceeding it by any significant amount, they will be given a citation to appear in court," he said.

"Ideally, we don't want to write any tickets and a perfect day for us is when we don't have to write any, but people have got to slow down," Cederlind added.

THE CONSEQUENCE of drivers not adhering to the 55 mph limit will be loss of federal funds to assist in highway construction and maintenance, he said.

"The biggest problem we've run into is that drivers feel that they go 10 mph over the 55 mph speed limit than they're all right, but the 55 mph limit means 55 mph," Cederlind said.

Another consequence of drivers exceeding the 55 mph limit is accidents. Thompson said if drivers exceed the limit, it takes longer to slow down which results in higher accident rates.

Herald adds circulation; new services

Numerous positive developments have occurred at The Wayne Herald since the newspaper was last featured in this Business Focus just over two years ago.

With approximately 70 workers employed at The Wayne Herald on a full and part-time basis, the business' annual payroll now approaches $350,000. A large portion of the company's gross revenue also comes into Wayne from out-of-town in the form of printing various publications from approximately 36 different customers scattered throughout northeast Nebraska and beyond.

TV Weekly popular with many subscribers

One of the most beneficial happenings for The Wayne Herald and its advertisers has been the newspaper's increase in paid circulation since the debut of the localized TV Weekly.

This new section in every Monday's edition (sent to local area subscribers only) has helped the Herald expand what it offers local readers giving them added value for their subscription which is less than 23¢ each issue.

Popular components of the highly-read TV Weekly are features which have been requested by numerous subscribers. Included in this special eight page tabloid are: 1) exclusive listings for all channels offered by the Wayne cable tv company; 2) full-length feature articles about well-known tv personalities; 3) a crossword puzzle; 4) occasional horoscope information; 5) soap opera updates and; 6) tv trivia.

With more households now subscribing to The Wayne Herald, advertisers in the newspaper also are reaping the benefits of more people reading about their promotions. In fact, a recent Herald promotion, which ends this week, thus far has gained 60 new subscribers to the newspaper.

Laser technology upgrades equipment

Another major improvement at The Wayne Herald has been the purchase of desktop publishing units valued at more than $31,000.

Seven state-of-the-art workstations, purchased locally by Office Connection, enable Herald staff members to perform the following tasks at a faster, more-efficient rate: newswriting, page and advertising design, bookkeeping, payroll and circulation management.

This laser equipment also is used heavily to perform many functions not possible in the past for the newspaper's commercial printing department.

With this "basic" new equipment, The Wayne Herald is "positioned" easily to add yet further new computer programs and technological enhancements as they become available. At present, however, the newspaper's current equipment and program inventory is more than adequate to accommodate requests from Herald newspaper readers and printing customers since the equipment's "capacity" is one of the largest in all of northeast Nebraska.

Facsimile machine provides instant information

Utilized by a lesser number of Wayne Herald readers and print customers — but growing in usage weekly — is the newspaper's handy facsimile machine.

This new FAX — located in the newspaper's front office — is available to anyone from the general public wishing to send or receive a printed document from anywhere in the world in a matter of seconds!

At the Wayne Herald, the FAX is utilized frequently by out-of-town customers who need to proofread their printing order quickly.

"BANK" IT'S A TITLE THAT MUST BE WON...

NOT BORROWED.

We consider "bank" more than a word. We value it as a title that has to be earned...just like we earned the right to call ourselves "banks" in the first place. It's earned by becoming an important part of the communities we serve.

That means insuring your money to $100,000 through the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. It means providing every financial service you, your family, and your business need (and providing it with greater experience than anyone else).

It also means offering a large share of our resources to help the area we serve through loans of all kinds...to hometown businesses, to farmers and ranchers, and to families.

We could go on, but we think you see why we consider the name "bank" so special.

Savings and loans, "financial service centers," industrial loan and investment companies, and credit unions are not commercial banks. But you can't blame them for wanting to borrow the title.
