City Council approves $40,000 grant

The Wayne City Council apparantly agrees with the idea of spending a little to gain a lot as it voted 6-1 Tuesday night to approve granting $40,000 to Griess

Absent from the meeting was councilwoman Carolyn Filter, expressed concerns about the issue at last week's meeting. Casting the only no vote was councilman Darrel Heier.

The $40,000 grant, which will not have to be paid back by the local drugstore, will be used to move Griess Rexall from its location at 507 Main to a new store at the corner of Second and Pearl.

IN RETURN FOR ITS move, First National Omaha Service Center will take over the remainder of the building it shares with the drugstore. Following remodeling, First National Omaha will hire an additional 35-40 employees, resulting in $500,000 of added income to

Roeber named to be director of Chamber for six months

WAYNE - In a surprise move, Colleen Roeber has been named as the interim Wayne Chamber of Commerce director for the next six months, it was announced Wednesday-during a noon cham-ber general member meeting at the Black Knight restaurant.

According to Sam Schroeder, president of Wayne Industries and chairperson of the search committee, Roeber will continue as the interim executive director for the next six month time period, at which time the board will reassess the position.

HE ADDED THAT after six months, it's a possibility that the position may be offered to Roeber on a permanent basis.

Schroeder said the decision was

Despite council decision money is not for free

As the Wayne City Council faced a challenging but perplexing decision Tuesday night, folks should take note that their decision wasn't taken lightly.

On the same account, it's not an indication that the council will be handing out freebees, either.

As the city council made its decision Tuesday, it became apparent that it was stuck between a rock and a hard spot. Council members faced a no win situation by either granting money to Criess Rexall, to relocate at the corner of Second and Pearl and then falling under public criticism, or not granting it and denying the First National Omaha Service Center and the community $500,000 in economic growth, which would have received the same response.

Quite frankly, the decision to grant $40,000 for $500,000 of economic development this year (and every year thereafter) was worth it, even if it hurts the Community Development Block Grant funds invested in the community.

It may not seem fair to some businesses but situations like this

Praise deserving of those who gave their time for START

Although the GREAT town hall meeting was held a little over three weeks ago, a note of comment is still deserving: Praise is in line to START task force members who worked so hard, as are compliments for our elected officials.

While the purpose of the START task force will help the community to develop for years to come, its purpose was not to serve as a threat to elected officials, unlike some may believe. Just as the START committee did its work for the betterment of the city, 40 percent of the citizens of Wayne took part to cast their concerns about the city, where it's been, where it is and where it's headed. They, too, deserve praise.

During the GREAT town hall meeting, one audience member told Gov. Orr that our elected officials need to get in gear. While that person's comments were welcome, they were a step out of

We the people need to do our part by not just criticizing but by attending public meetings. At least that way we can have a firm, educated opinion when we go to the voting booths.

Why day care is an issue for Wayne

With an unemployment rate of 2.9-percent, business expansion in Wayne will require bringing more women into the work force. Many of these women who are not currently working outside the home or who have part-time employment need child care in order to enter the work force. Participants in Wayne's START program recognized this issue as a key ingredient in the economic success of their community, and their concerns were backed up by the survey results showing that 65 percent of the community see a need for ad-ditional day care facilities in

In past years, low unemployment was viewed as an indicator of healthy economic conditions. Not so any more — with an unemployment rate around 2 percent, an aging population, and outmigration of its young people, Nebraska will be stifled in efforts to expand economically unless it taps under-represented groups to provide the human capital for new or expanding businesses.

Married women with children are one of northeast Nebraska's untapped resources. Because of the presence of Wayne State College, they are more educated than women in many other rural areas. Since most of these women are essentially "place bound," there is no question that once they become employed, they are likely to remain in their jobs for a long time.

In the neighboring town of Wakefield, with a population of 1,200, day care has helped Waldbaums continue to fill jobs in its egg processing plant. Eleven years ago, the Waldbaum company had the foresight to recognize that, given their location in rural Ne-braska, expanding their employee pool meant utilizing mothers not normally found in the work force. According to Ted Helberg, Human Resources Director for Waldbaums, "We realized that if we wanted to fill jobs in our plant with local women, we would have to address the need for quality child care while they are working. Our strategy was to offer free day care to mothers who work full time. With a work force consisting of 243 women (42 percent), this family-owned company is the largest egg producer in the United States and was recently ourchased by Michael

Wayne's employment based with the opening of First National of Omaha's Bankcard Service Center. One of the reasons First National chose Wayne for this facility is the presence of educated workers ready and able to go into the work force. With Wayne State College rorce. With wayne state College providing an opportunity to attain the skills necessary to qualify for jobs at the Bankcard operation, a "town and gown" collaboration has proven to be a success. Of 95 workers hired by the Bankcard Center, 75 are women. Chris King, measure at the Bankcard Center, and the Sankcard Center of the Sankcard Center a manager at the Bankcard Center, when asked about plans for additional positions, stated "Future expansion at the Wayne Service Center is dependent in large part on the availability of local workers. Since so many of our jobs are filled with women, we realize that availability of day care is very important to our growth." a manager at the Bankcard Cen-

The Wayne START Day Care Task Force has a three-fold action plan. Providing an afterschool program for "latch key" children is objective one. Members of this task force are now seeking a location for this program. Their second objective involves setting up a resource center for home day-care providers. Mary Temme, Chairman of the Day Care Task Force, stated, "Many parents prefer a home day care environment and we want to support these endeavors with resources such as toy lending libraries, educational programs and information exchange."

Since there are currently no day care centers located in Wayne, the Day Care Task Force has their work cut out for them with their third objective — to start a day care objective — to start a day care center in Wayne. A survey con-ducted recently by a Wayne State College student indicated that approximately 80 children could be erved by such a facility. As one ay care provider wrote on he day care provider wrote on her START survey, "I am a provider and get calls all the time. I have to turn down most because of no room. One mother called 29 people before she found a sitter.

With a clear indication of the need for day care and an under-standing of the economic benefits to providing these services to the City of Wayne's work force, the Day Care Task Force is committed to accomplishing their goal — provide quality child care to the community of Wayne.

Time for action on gas prices

I have asked President Bush to confront major U.S. and multina-tional pretroleum companies with the issue of price gouging. In a letter to the President I said that there is no excuse for the price gouging that seems to be taking place. These excessively high prices are doing severe damage to our ability to hold down the rate of inflation.

The President and Energy Secretary Watkins should meet with the major U.S. and multinational petroleum companies to directly confront them with the issue of price gouging and demand that they lower prices immediately so that increases in prices at the

Have you ever noticed how long weekends never go the way you want them to?

That's always true at my house I wanted to take the entire week-end and not do a darn thing but rest and relax. Looking back on it on a Tuesday morning as we're pushing for deadline, I don't think either of those words were in-cluded in my list.

Since Rhonda and L are working desperately to finish work on our home, which we're due to close on in a week, we had little time to do nothing.

I should have seen it coming Friday when I went to the Allen-Winside and Wakefield-Tilden-Elkhorn Valley football games. The weekend started off on a busy note and it kept pace through the period. Covering football games for the paper isn't really something I consider work but nevertheless, I should have seen it coming.

HAVE YOU EVER NOTICED, too, how you can tell when it's football season? The way I tell is that the soda they sell at vending stands tastes good but it has no carbonation. That's the way I can tell because you know that soda has sat in the stand through the summer and the heat has wilted

Marketing survey reveals income potential

Development, Utilization and Marketing Board funded study con-ducted by the University of Ne-braska-Lincoln shows that certain marketing strategies could bring added income to Nebraska soy-bean producers. An average of an extra $.30 per bushel could be ob-tained by using the strategies out-lined in the report.

The project was completed by two faculty members of the Agri-culture Economics Department at UNL, Dr. George Pfeiffer and Dr. James Kendrick, Dr. Charles Curtis, and C.G. Haberle of Clemson versity were also involved. The final report entitled, "Profitable Soy-bean Strategies för Nebraska Pro-ducers" was made available in Au-

Dr. Pfeiffer said the intent of the Dr. Preitter said the intent of the study was to find a practical method of increasing soybean profitability through marketing techniques. He said they were looking for simple strategies which could be carried out without consuming a great deal of time watching and studying daily markets.

The project compared the price of soybeans at different times of the year in combination with various marketing techniques. The most profitable strategy appeared to be the purchase of a routine PUT option in May. Pfeiffer said the advantage of a PUT option was protection against dropping price levels while ensuring the ability to sell for more later on. Over the tenyear period from 1979 to 1988, this marketing method would have returned an average of around $.30 per bushel more than simply selling the crop at harvest time. The additional income was derived from the cash price rising relative-to the futures price, not an absolute increase in the futures price. That is, the storage of soy-beans after harvest was profitable in most years not from a general improvement in bean prices from fall to spring, but because of a nar-rowing of the basis between cash price and futures price. Complete details of this strategy and other techniques to minimize risks are oublished in the study report.

Pfeiffer commented that the study is based on historical statistics and does not take into account factors such as the Middle East cri-sis or U.S. fast food chains switching to soybean oil. He cautioned that producers must continue to take a number of variables into account.

The Wayne Blue Devil football team over came 100 plus degree field temperatures last Friday nights in Schuyler to come away with an 18-12 win in double overtime.

Both teams struggled offen-sively throughout as the first score was not registered until mid-way through the fourth quarter. # Laurel struggles in loss to Randolph

The Laurel Bears football team opened up the 1990 season on the road in Randolph last Friday night in a rematch of last year's opening round of the Class C-1 State Playoffs.

Laurel could not muster a score in the opening game and fell 26-0. "We really felt that the game was closer than the score indicated," Laurel coach Tom Luxford said. "We took the opening kickoff and marched down to the Randolph 45 yard line before we fumbled and they scored within six plays which was a big turn-around."

In the second quarter Randolph blocked a Laurel punt and recov-ered it in the endzone for a touchdown and they scored yet another touchdown late in the first half on

WSC football team defeats UNO

By Kevin Peterson Sports Editor

Wayne State began a new decade of college football Saturday in Omaha and it's a beginning that the Wildcats had been unaccustomed to in the decade of the

The Wildcats defeated UNO 24-17 in front of 4500 fans, in Wayne State's first win over UNO since 1970. The two teams faced each other in 1988 with UNQ winning 38-10. Second year coach Dennis Wagner told his team going in to just have fun herause they in to just have fun because they had nothing to lose.

"Our main goal going into the game was to let people know that game was to let people know that we mean business when we take the field," Wagner said. "I told the kids to go out and have fun because we really didn't have anything to lose even though we felt that we could beat this football team."

On Wayne State's first offensive play from scrimmage they pretty much set the tone as quarterback lon Goolsby for a 42-yard gain.

Troy Jackson scored a touchdown from four yards out to cap an opening drive of 72 yards on eight plays and following Blaine Branscum's point after the score quickly read 7-0 in favor of the Wildcats.

We felt we set the pace from the "We felt we set the pace from the onset," Wagner said. "We wanted to get ahead so they, (UNO) would start questioning them-selves."

UNO came back and kicked a field goal to pull within 7-3 but that was as close as the Mavericks would come as WSC scored 17 second quarter points to take a 24-3 lead into the locker room at the intermission.

Branscum connected on a 27 yard field goal with 14:53 remain-ing in the second quarter to boost the Wildcat lead back up to seven points at 10-3. Later in the quarter however the WSC defense, which played superbly on the day, relied on its special teams for the next touchdown as Mike Kennedy recovered a blocked punt in the endzone. The punt was blocked by Mike Ware and following Branscum's point after the score was 17-3.

Then with 1:20 remaining in the half Troy Jackson sprinted to the endzone from 31 yards out to cap a 97 yard drive in 10 plays. Jackson finished the contest with 104 yards on 25 carries and scored two touchdowns. Gale Lawton finished with 93 yards on 25 carries. with 93 yards on 28 carries.

The Wildcats did not score in the second half and despite UNO's heroics late in the game which included a 27 yard pass play with 24 seconds remaining and a 70 yard punt return in the third quarter, WSC held on for the win.

"WsC held on for the win.
"We got a little complacent in the second half," Wagner said. "At halftime we went in with a 24-3 lead and the guys were all fired up but emotionally we let down some in the second half."

ner however, was very with the way his Cats moved the ball in the fourth quarter when they were trying to eat the clock. "When we wanted to move the ball and get some first downs in the fourth quarter we did," Wagner said. "I would have liked to see us do more of that in the second half but I'm happy with the win."

UNO finished with 11 first downs in the contest compared to nine by WSC. The Cats rushed for 200 net yards while UNO gained just 100. UNO passed for 133 yards compared to 61 for the Wildcats giving WSC the edge in total yardage, 261-233.

Wagner also feels that Jerry Kleidosty adds a lot to an already strong Wildcat defense. "Jerry makes our defense even better because he doesn't give other teams a chance to key on Bob Sterba and Randy Rouse," Wagner said

Wagner said that just because WSC defeated UNO doesn't mean that they will walk through the schedule. "We have to keep playing team football," Wagner said.

"This weekend Evangel is coming in here as an NAIA Division if top twenty football team and they will be looking to beat us. We have to be looking to beat us. We have to keep focused from week to week to well like we did in the weeks preceding the UNO game."

Evangel is very good on its special teams, an area in which Wagner felt was one their weaker points against UNO. "It was very important for us to beat UNO," Wagner added. "You always want to start the season with a win. The kids went down with a great attitude and came away with a win. We are where we wanted to be We are where we wanted to be right now, but that game is history. We have to focus on Evangel. They have an experienced team coming back. Last year was a very hard fought football game for us down there. I'm sure Evangel is looking forward to coming up here and forward to coming up here and doing to us what we did to them

WAYNE - Dr. Donald R. Hickey, professor of history at Wayne State College, has received the American Military Institutes's 1990 Best Rook Award

Dr. Hickey's book, "The War of 1812: A Forgotten Conflict," was cited by the Institute for its contri-bution to the field of military history and has received many rave

"This award is a continuation of the many honors Dr. Hickey has received for his publication," says Dr. Donald Whisenhunt, provost and vice president for academic af-fairs at Wayne State. "The American Military Institute is the most respected organization regarding military history, further indication Dr. Hickey's outstanding scholarship."

Published by the University of Illinois Press, Dr. Hickey's five-year project has sold more than 10,000 copies and was listed in the May edition of the Book of the Month Club.

Dr: Hickey discovered a need for a broad, comprehensive study on the War of 1812. Most studies on the War of 1812 focus on one or two aspects of the war-usually the two aspects of the war-usually the military campaigns and naval engagements. Based on 20 years of research in a broad range of sources, Dr. Hickey explores the military, political, diplomatic, economic, social, and financial history of our second war with Great Ritain.

He has also published a series articles about the War of 1812.

Dr. Hickey, who came to Wayne State in 1978, earned his bache-lor's, master's, and Ph.D degrees from the University of Illinois.

The Farmer's Wife By Pat Melerhenry

When one hits the 50th birthday, one tends to think of how fast the years are going, or retirement plans, and of 'old age'. Of course, we have all learned that old age is relative, depending upon our present age. Joan Burney is fond of saying it's a question of mind over matter, if you don't mind, it doesn't matter?

I was in a church basement on I was in a church basement on Saturday, helping to prepare a funeral lunch. One of the ladies said her grandchild likes to rhyme, and when she was 55, the kid kept saying, "55 and still alive," which she did not appreciate.

We chuckled about how old that age seemed, until we were there. The pastor told us that in a former congregation, there was a there. The pastor told us that in a former congregation, there was a little girl whom he grew to love. He said to her one day, "When you grow up, I'm going to marry you." She looked dubious, and replied, "You'll be dead by then!"

I've attended a couple of 80th birthdays the past month, and was inspired by both honorees. One is planning hip replacement surgery so she can get around better. The other was diagnosed with multiple myeloma five years ago. Myeloma is a particularly vicious and painful cancer, and she has had many difficult days. But radiation, and cancer, and sne has had many dif-ficult days. But radiation, and chemo, and faith in God, have helped her fight. As one nurse at the party commented, "She's not a quitter." A lesson about all of life.

I sent roses to both ladies, be cause I believe flowers are for the living. Besides, I'd read the re-sponse an octogenarian had given when asked what she would prefer as a gift. "Just give me a big kiss", replied the honoree. "Then I won't have to dust it."

Yesterday, I went to a 95th birthday. When I got ready to leave, I shook the birthday girl's hand, and said "Many more." "Goodness! I hope not," she

Then I stopped at a nursing home to visit a friend who will be 95 in November. She told me she keeps St. Paul's words on her rerigerator in her apartment at the "high rise". (She's planning to get back there.) It basically states, "For have learned, that whatever my circumstances, I can be content." And she smiled as she said, "Sometimes I have to keep re-

Turnbull's poems in the Sunday paper that summed it up, even for a gad-about like me.

"Whenever I'm preparing to be away for a few days, as departure time nears, I'm always a little reluctant to leave. No matter that it's most likely a trip I want to make, and one I've probably looked forward to for days or months or more. I still will feel the same small tug to stay as I'm about to lock the door. Why this is so, I think I know. It's the awareness that though it may be for just a short time, I'm leaving what's dear and familiar behind. And a sad little thought always crosses my mind; how I will hate going when I finally know that I'm leaving my home for the very last time."

Costs expected to rise; alternatives available

Weatherization can help homeowners

LINCOLN - The Middle East crisis and its effect on gasoline prices also will affect home heating costs this fall for those citizens using fuel this fail for those citizens using fuel oil or propane. However, in many residences, some of the cost in-crease can be offset by home weatherization, A University of Ne-braska agricultural engineer said.

Gerald R. Bodman said weathceraio R. Bodman said weath-erization includes improving the weatherstripping and caulking to control air leakage. For most home in Nebraska, he said, air leakage represents a substantial part of the heating costs.

"While some air leakage is needed to control odors, moisture and nuisances gases and to maintain oxygen levels, this is better supplied through controlled venti-lation than through the haphazard ventilation supplied by air leakage," Bodman emphasized.

Extraordinary construction methods are required to truly get a house "too tight," the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialist said. "Few homes are 'too tight," he added.

Some of the common places to check for uncontrolled air leastage are the dryer vent, range vent, door and window frames and places where plumbing and elec-trical wires penetrate the exterior

While most dryer vents do not close very tightly, Bodman noted, the problem is worsened by lint and debris that get caught in the flapper. This will cause the flapper to stay in the open position, allow-ing air to flow freely into the dryer vent tubes and eventually into the

"Homeowners should check this." ent every fall and at least monthly during the winter to make sure the Happer opens and closes properly," Bodman recommended. "In some cases, the vent may need to be replaced because the flapper is completely missing.

"Do not put oil on the flapper hinge," he cautioned. Oil collects dirt and gets stiff when cold. If lu-brication is needed, use penetrat-ing teflon spray, Bodman said.

When replacing the dryer vent, look at how well the vent seals when the dryer is not in operation. Also check the amount of energy required to open the dryer vent. Research has shown that some vents have 10 times more air leakage than others, Bodman pointed out.

The vents with a valve floating on the discharge air are considerably more air-tight than the typical metal or plastic flapper-type vents, metal or plastic happer-type vents, Bodman said. "The disadvantage of the tighter-closing vents is that they also require more power to open them, resulting in reduced airflow through the dryer; the dryer then may operate at a higher temperature," he said.

Exterior outlets and light fixtures are easy-to-identify places for air leakage entering the wall cavity. Check with an electrician or local power supplier about ways to reduce the air leakage through them. Also, check the area where the electrical supply wires enter them. Also, check the area where the electrical supply wires enter the building, frequently near the electric meter, Bodman advised. "Electrician's putty is the pre-ferred sealant; do not use caulking around electrical fixtures," Bodman said.

Plumbing and gas line penetra-tions also provide air leakage paths. A good caulking material can be used to seal the opening around the pipes. "While you are sealing these openings, also check the places where telephone, television. and two-way radio antenna leads enter the home," Bodman said.

The caulking around door and window frames or the weather-stripping around the doors and windows themselves also may need to be repaired or replaced if it has been several years since this has been done. "Each caulking material has a limited life," Bodman said. Some of the less expensive materials, such as oil-base and latex caulks, may need to be replaced annually, while the silicone and butyl rubber caulks may last 10 years or more, he concluded.
