Chamber selects three finalists in drawing

WAYNE - Three finalists were selected among the estimated 58,000 registrants in the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce grand finale of the Holiday Magic Drawing.

Winning the top prize Thursday evening was Judy Nemeč, Wayne, who won $200. Nemeč registered for the drawing at The Diamond Center and she was present at the time of the drawing.

Two other finalists were winners of $100, respectively. Jennifer Widner, Wayne, was awarded $100 for her winning ticket she registered at Pac 'N' Save. The other $100 winner was Bonnie Conraby of Great Bend, Kan. who registered her ticket at Griess Rexall.

According to Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce Director Colleen Roerber, if winners were present in participating stores, they were eligible to win $200. If not present, they won $100 in Chamber Bucks.

Over the four drawings, the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce awarded selected registrants with $1,998 in total winnings of a possible $2,000. A total of 58 Wayne businesses participated in the drawing.

'We wish you a merry Christmas'

SECOND GRADE STUDENTS OF Allen Public School wish everyone a Merry Christmas as they gather around the community Christmas tree in downtown Allen. The tree is a revival this year of an old Allen tradition and was placed in the downtown intersection in honor of the community's centennial celebration in 1991. Second graders pictured around the tree are Chris Brentlinger, April Flaugh, Jeffery Hoferer, Joel McAfee, Micky Oldenkamp, Lyle Rahn, James Schneider, Jennifer Smith, Evan Uthof, Justin Warner and Melissa Wilmes. Also pictured with the students are seniors Carla Stapleton and Tracy Olson and second grade teacher Mary Johnson.

Two recall season's memories

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Christmas memories are something residents of the Wayne Care Centre aren't quick to forget, especially when those feelings relive the joy and wonder of the season.

Two such Care Centre residents shared those memories this past week.

While many older seniors would willfully admit that Christmas presents were often limited, both as adults and as children, Grace Auker and Clara Spahr, each have vivid memories of the true value of Christmas.

"We didn't have much money in the family so the presents we received were limited," Spahr recalls. "One thing my parents always made sure of, though, is that each of us got at least one present."

While presents children receive today range from the popular

Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle collection to Nintendo games, Spahr said the presents she received as little girl were much more.

"We would usually get an orange or an apple and a few nuts," the 87-year-old resident said. "I remember one time getting a doll. It's something my granddaughter has now."

CHRISTMAS YEARS AGO, similar to the way it is today, was a time reserved for family and to honor the birth of Christ. One special Christmas for Auker was that right after her marriage to Hobert "Mac" Auker.

"We were married 70 years ago last Tuesday," she said, "and we were spending our first Christmas together. We were on our honeymoon in Des Moines, Iowa and we spent it with my brother. Money was short in those days and he had a beautiful home he let us stay with him in. It was an outstanding Christmas."

Like Auker, Spahr has a Christmas memory almost fit for a fairy tale.

"I remember one year when we had a lot of snow, so much that the cattle on our farm could only get to the watering trough one at a time," she said. "We knew we couldn't get out because all the roads were covered with snow, so we told our kids that we couldn't make it to their homes for Christmas."

"Low-and-behold, about an hour later here came my daughter with her husband and her little one on a sled and they were carrying Christmas dinner with them. They had parked about a half-mile from the house and had walked the rest of the way. They even walked over a fence because the snow was so

Holiday sales reported good by businesses

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Despite the threats of an economic recession ahead, sales during this Christmas season are reported ahead or considerably ahead of sales in 1989.

Of the 15 businesses polled in an informal, unscientific survey conducted Wednesday and Thursday of Wayne businesses, eight businesses said holiday sales are up this year. Only three businesses said sales had dropped from 1989 figures, while four said sales were about the same.

"We've had fairly even sales of all merchandise," said Chuck Surber of Surber's Men's and Women's clothing store. "We've sold quite a few sweaters for men and ladies but we've got an even spread in all merchandise areas."

Of those surveyed, many said the reason they believe sales are up in 1990 is because the agricultural economy is up this year. They said in 1988 and 1989, sales had dropped off because the drought which affected ag production had taken its toll on the other sectors.

WHILE MANY OF the merchants who took part in the poll said customers had made mention of the apparent lull in the economy, many said the threat of a recession was minimal. A number of merchants said shoppers hit the stores between Dec. 1 and Dec. 15.

Since Dec. 15, sales have leveled off, many said.

"Our retail sales are up for the holiday," said Marie Mohr, owner of the Swans store in Wayne. "We have noticed that men and women alike are shopping earlier this year compared to last year."

Mohr added that many shoppers are purchasing practical items like sweaters, slippers, sleepwear and gloves.

"I think most people in the midwest are more practical shoppers," she said.

ONE DOWNTOWN merchant who reported slower sales than last year is Sheryl Lindau, owner of Four in Hand. She said although her top selling items are jewelry and other accessory items, she said sales this year are down.

She said as a result of the threat of a turn in the economy that she has reduced her stock a little to

Program geared to assist incoming WSC freshmen

WAYNE - Robin Sobansky and Tyrone Wrice have been named director and coordinator of a new program at Wayne State College that will offer a wide range of support services to freshman students.

STRIDE (Students Taking Responsibility in Development and Education) is a federally funded program offered through student services at Wayne State. Preference is given to students who can increase their potential to earn a bachelor of arts or bachelor of science degree with some supplemental assistance, according to Sobansky.

THE GOALS OF STRIDE are to integrate students more quickly and fully into college life, to enhance their life enrichment skills and to involve them actively in the process of lifelong learning.

The STRIDE staff will work with each student on an individual basis to make referrals to all necessary academic, career, personal, motivational and financial counseling services.

To be eligible for the STRIDE program, students must be of a low income family, a first-generation student or physically handicapped.

Wayne pastor shares the message of Christmas

The people who walked in darkness have seen a great light; those who dwell in a land of deep darkness, on them has light shined. You have multiplied the nation, You have increased its joy; they rejoice before You as with joy at the harvest, as men rejoice when the spoil is divided. For to us a child is born, to us a Son is given; and the government will be on His shoulders, and His name will be called "Wonderful Counselor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace."
Isaiah 9:2-3, 6

In the evening as I walk through downtown Wayne with its well lit streets and shops, I cannot but help to forget just for a moment, the dark news which has covered our news stations these past few months. For just a few moments, the Christmas decorations of Wayne black out the news of economic recession and "Desert Shield" strategies. In those few moments, I sense the peace of Christmas in my being.

There is much darkness for our times, and there are many reports of gloom in our future. Still the Christmas message carries a message of hope and comfort. For in a darkened portion of our globe, threat has known little peace in recent history, was born in a town now forbidden to Christmas, a Child, who and is still today Christ, the Lord.

This Child, this Son, still gives hope to those who have lost hope, and comfort to those who are in need of comfort. His birth annually proclaims this to be true. And his people, though sadly not always united, do cherish together this Babe of Bethlehem.

The child that was given to us so long ago still counsels the hurting, still grants peace to the troubled, and still unites all people under His care. The Son given to us is the Light which lights up the hearts of people who live in dark times. The Savior who has arrived is the Son of the Most High and Son of a small town girl, named Mary.

We can take wide extremes of weather, health setbacks, and wealth burdens as long as we do not lose "hope." I encourage you to take a few moments out this Christmas Day to look to Christ in Christmas and you will find the light that shines in Christmas. You will find the Light that gives hope everyday in every way, and you will truly have a Blessed Christmas Day.

Students earn new World Books

BILL SCOTT OF SIOUX CITY, regional manager for World Book Educational Products, visited St. Mary's School in Wayne last Wednesday morning and presented the students with two new sets of World Book Encyclopedias, two sets of Childcraft, and two sets of Encyclopedias of Science. St. Mary's students earned the books through "Partners in Excellence," a program conducted by World Book Educational Products with the goal of placing World Book Encyclopedias in each classroom. As part of the program, students collected pledges from family members for every book they read, with World Book Educational Products matching half that amount. Scott said the students raised $1,019.70, with World Book matching $509.85, for a total amount of $1,529.55 spent on books for the school. Forty-seven youngsters participated in the program, with 44 students receiving gold medals for reading at least 10 books, and two students receiving silver medals for reading at least eight books in a seven-week period. Students reading over 100 books were Hailey Daehnke (156), Tara Hart (101), Kate Samuelson (142) and Andy Wright (117).

Engagements

Maskell-Peterson

Diane Maskell and Paul Peterson, both of Wayne, have announced their plans for a Jan. 12 wedding at Redeemer Lutheran Church in Wayne.

Parents of the couple are Wilson and Kay Maskell of Maskell and Myron and Mary Peterson of Laurel.

The bride-elect was graduated from Newcastle High School in 1979. She attended the University of South Dakota and graduated from the University of Nebraska Medical Center in 1985. She is employed as a physical therapist at Providence Medical Center in Wayne.

Her fiance, a 1981 graduate of Laurel-Concord High School, is employed as an over the road driver for the Milton G. Waldbaum Co. in Wakefield.

A card was sent to Shirley Brockman, who was in the hospital, and Christmas cards with monetary gifts were mailed to shut-ins.

The auxiliary purchased a Christmas gift for a resident of Wayne Care Centre.

CLEVA Willers reported on the special veterans cemetery meeting held Nov. 23.

The group approved the purchase of the new ritual book for the president's office.

The auxiliary will not meet in January. The next regular meeting is scheduled Feb. 11 at 8 p.m. in the Wayne Vet's Club room with Glennadine Barker and Wilma Allen serving.

The trustees will have an audit meeting in January.

The GOLDEN YEARS

By Joe House

Millions of Americans have a stake in company pension funds. The U.S. Labor Department is responsible for policing the funds, but it is an enormous task. There are 900,000 private pension funds, and their assets total $1.7 trillion. The Labor Department has only 300 pension examiners to keep watch on how the funds are operated. Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole wants to add 100 more examiners, and she also wants to make it easier for individuals to resolve pension disputes. She has proposed simplifying the process of filing lawsuits over pension rights. The process is now so complicated and costly that many claimants don't take legal action to pursue their claims.

At age 87, retired corporate executive Jack Katz went back to work — this time as official lunchtime greeter at a popular Atlanta restaurant. Katz was invited to take the job because, after 40 years as an Atlanta businessman, "he knows everybody. He's the mayor of midtown," a restaurant spokesman said. Katz said his wife of 68 years told him to take the job because "she doesn't want me hanging around the house." But she demurs: "He loves meeting people. That's how he gets his energy."

An Announcement From First Federal Lincoln

Today's economy requires businesses to function as efficiently and economically as possible. Local economies continue to change, making it more important than ever that every branch contribute with maximum efficiency and profitability to the association as a whole. A comprehensive analysis of our current branch network reveals some opportunities to address these needs by some consolidation of branches.

This is to inform you that as of December 31, 1990, the First Federal Lincoln branch in Wayne will close. Be assured that this will not affect accounts with us in any way. Business may be conducted at any First Federal Lincoln office, or by mail.

First Federal Lincoln is as it has always been—a sound, healthy institution—and we are proud that we will again show a profit at year end 1990. Strategic decisions such as closing an office are very hard to make. Taking these steps now, however, allows us to build upon our strong foundation to ensure continued stability, maximum customer service and to position the institution for future competition.

First Federal Lincoln has enjoyed being part of the Wayne community. This city has a special spirit and is a bright spot in northeast Nebraska.

We look forward to serving you at our other branch locations across Nebraska, in western Iowa and northern Kansas.

Sincerely yours,
L. F. Roschewski

Records important to industry

Producers can improve profits

By Rod Patent
Wayne County Extension Agent

As we have entered the decade of the '90s, it is becoming more important than ever that swine producers keep good financial records. To remain in business in the '90s, producers will need accurate and complete enterprise records. These records will help producers to identify their strengths and weaknesses in their operations. As a result of these records, producers will be better able to make management decisions to help them remain competitive into the '90s.

The Nebraska Swine Enterprise Records and Analysis Program currently has 180 producers enrolled. The program furnished producers with information to help them evaluate their swine enterprise in six areas: income and profit; production; death loss; labor use; marketing; and feed cost and consumption. Fifty-two different factors are calculated in these six areas.

Producers are also able to compare their individual operations with similar types of operations enrolled in the program. Group averages are completed for farrow-to-finish, feeder pig and finishing operations.

The table represents seven selected items found in the group averages for farrow-to-finish operations. This data was collected from 42 operations enrolled in the Swine Records Program from Jan. 1 to June 30, 1990.

The total feed expense per cwt. of pork produced amounts to 61 percent of the total cost of producing pork. The high one-third profit group is producing pork with 20 pounds less per feed cwt. than the average profit group, and the high one-third profit group is keeping average costs of diets somewhat lower than the average profit group. This higher feed efficiency and the lower costs of diets of the high profit one-third group, resulted in total feed expense that were $2.24 per cwt. of pork produced lower than the average group.

duced lower than the average group.

Not surprisingly, variable and fixed expenses for the high one-third profit group were $2.54 per cwt. lower than the average profit group. The records would show that the high one-third profit group is producing pork for $4.78 per cwt. less than the average profit group and $9.74 per cwt. less than the low one-third profit group.

The average profit group show a profit of $19.55 per cwt. of pork produced, while the high and low one-third profit groups showed a profit of $26.56 per cwt. of pork produced and $12.14 per cwt. of pork produced, respectively.

In 1991 the Swine Enterprise Records program will be offered statewide in Nebraska. An informational meeting is planned for Dec. 21 from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. in Room 100A, McClay Building, Northeast Community College in Norfolk.

For more information, contact the Wayne County Extension office at 375-3310.

Hefner seeking committee chair

AREA - State Sen. Elroy Hefner of Coleridge announced that he intends to seek the position of chairman of the Legislature's Revenue Committee when the Legislature convenes in January. He has served as vice-chairman of the committee for the past 14 years and served as chairman of the Legislature's Miscellaneous Subjects Committee for six years.

In his announcement he promised to be fair, impartial and cooperative with all members of the Unicameral.

"I will work with the committee members to provide a fair and equitable tax system for the citizens of Nebraska," he said.

The committee chairman positions are elected by members of the Unicameral by secret ballot the first day of the legislative session, scheduled for Jan. 9, 1991.

Letters To Santa

Dear Santa,
 How is Mrs. Santa?
 I've tried to be good.
 Guess what I got for you?

I would like some nuts, a panda bear, too and I would like a very big orange in my stocking.
 Love, Rena Wilde

Dear Santa,
 Hi! I'm written this to let you know I've been good or trying to be. How's Mrs. Clause? My Christmas list is short and sweet. Typoes and poster my brother got me a bunch of poster you can take care of the types. I like anything from Poison to UB40. Well, there will be something for you to drink and eat. We will leave raisins for the reindeer. Well, got to go.

 Yours truly, Sherry

Dear Santa,
 I hope that Mrs. Clause is doing fine. Tell her that I thank her for all the help she has done for you and that I hope her candy taster especially fine. Just make sure you don't put too much candy in the stockings we might get sick.

By the way my name is Max. I'm 11 1/2. We are leaving you a suprise and your Reindeer raisons. My sister wants perfume, a panda bear, gumball. My other sister wants a new brother. Posters, tapes and maybe stuffed animals and a nin-tendo tape. I guess I'd better give my wishes. I want a vanila ice tape, etc. posters and everthing remote control.
 Well, bye!

Sincerely, Max Wilde
 P.S. If you can please give my sisters what they want.

Avoid Holiday Depression

During the holiday season, many persons experience depression and despair. This is not a psychiatric illness and often can be minimized with careful planning. Medicines are not always the answer. Consider these alternatives:
 •Plan an activity and invite others to become involved; do not wait to be invited to someone else's affair.
 •Spend time outside during daylight hours; wear bright colored clothing.
 •Reduce food consumption and avoid or reduce alcohol consumption.
 •Obtain an additional "dose" of exercise — one of the best depression remedies.
 •Do something nice for someone else; attending to others' needs is "good medicine."

WSC graduates 123 students

WAYNE STATE COLLEGE HELD its December 1990 commencement exercises Friday. Included in the graduating class were 13 students with master's degrees and 110 with bachelor's degrees.

Farmers to face key issues in the '90s

Four key issues in the coming decade will affect U.S. agriculture, according to speakers at an "Agriculture at the Crossroads" conference in Lincoln recently. The combined impact is expected to be mostly negative.

Issues addressed at the conference were the 1990 farm bill, the current round of GATT negotiations, environmental regulations and higher fuel prices created by the Mideast conflict.

C. Ford Runge, agricultural economist at the University of Minnesota, said the speculative impact of oil prices "will hit the cost side of farming hard." According to Runge, director of the Center for International Food and Agriculture at St. Paul, Minn., agriculture will have to be prepared for the effects of a possible Mideast conflict and resultant higher fuel prices. When asked how the agricultural sector can prepare, he suggested producers reduce fuel use as well as use of fertilizers and chemicals.

Roy Frederick, University of Nebraska-Lincoln farm policy specialist, was more specific. Frederick said that gasoline prices increase about 3 cents per gallon for each $1-per-barrel increase in crude oil prices. Frederick said he has read forecasts where crude oil prices could jump to as high as $70 per barrel.

Lower price support payments as a result of the 1990 farm bill could result in producers being 10 percent worse off in income supports in 1991 than they were in 1990, Frederick said.

"Even so, rising fuel prices could hurt farmers twice as badly in 1991 as could the 1990 farm bill," he added.

Runge and other conference speakers suggested that developing countries which are U.S. grain customers may now have to spend more of their financial resources for energy needs than for food.

The complex 1990 farm bill is more than 1,000 pages in length, according to Runge. The bill's crop flexibility and flexible base provisions, he told conference participants, will be of more benefit to corn and soybean producers than wheat producers.

"The farm bill will be difficult for wheat producers, especially in the West," Runge said.

Also, Runge added, the flexible base provisions could result in what he called "incremental decoupling."

"We may be moving down the road to decoupled payments to farmers, whether we like it or not," he said.

Runge described the current Geneva round of GATT negotiations as a "giant international game of chicken" which is being played for very high stakes, primarily by the U.S. and the European Community. U.S. agriculture is not likely to benefit in the short-term, regardless whether the negotiations fail or succeed.

Runge said he was cautiously optimistic some type of agreement could be reached in world trade reform by December.

"But that's a big if," he said. "And Congress would have to approve the agreement by June and that will not be a cinch."

AMONG THE WAYNE State graduates Friday were Ken and Julie Murphy of Wayne. Ken Murphy graduated with a bachelor of science degree while Julie Murphy graduated with her master's degree.

Couple graduates together amidst 123 WSC students

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

When Wayne State College held its commencement exercises Friday, among the 122 graduates were the husband and wife team of Julie and Ken Murphy of Wayne.

"Having twins you think about everything in double," says Julie. "It's great to be graduating together. It's been a long haul for both of us to get our education. We've always done things together, so it feels good to graduate together."

The Murphys' twins are Jim and John Murphy, juniors at Wayne High School.

When the Murphys received their diplomas, Ken had earned his bachelor of science in business with an emphasis in data processing, a process he started as a freshman in 1965. Julie received her masters degree in business education.

"Our original plans were to graduate in May of 1992 when the boys graduated," she said. "But we figured that would be too much."

KEN SAYS HE IS GLAD to finally be receiving his bachelor's degree. After starting at Wayne State in 1965, he transferred to the Nettleton Technical School in Columbus in 1968. Several years later, he earned his associate degree at Southeast Community College in Milford in data processing.

Since receiving his associate degree, Ken said he learned that it was increasingly difficult to advance in his field. Currently, he is employed at Wayne State College as the assistant director of the computer center where he started as a programmer last year. Like Ken, Julie is employed at Wayne State in the registrars office.

"My degree opens me for advancement at Wayne State," he said. "Without it, I was told that I had gone as far as I could go. With the degree I can move up."

IF THERE'S ANY special feelings with their respective degrees, the Murphys said it will allow them the time to share their two sons senior year in high school with them.

"We've been tied up with this for so long that we haven't always been able to be at everything they're involved in together," Julie says. "During this next year, we're going to lay back a little and enjoy it with them."

As far as their respective careers go, they both plan to stay in Wayne. Ken says he likes being employed at Wayne State because he enjoys working with the people whom he works.

"That's an important part of my job," he said.

remain conservative. She said the merchandise she's selling this year is much more conservative than 1989.

"Our traffic level is down," she said. "People are buying the typical purchases they have in the past but we've just seen fewer people this year."

Lindau said part of the reason for decreased sales is because she doesn't have merchandise marked down the way she did in 1989. She added that she thinks Norfolk and Sioux City are gravitating sales away from her store.

BOTH GENERAL merchandise stores in Wayne, Ben Franklin and Pamida, reported that sales are good this year. Jean Nuss, owner of the Wayne Ben Franklin store, said sales have been good up until the arctic cold front which moved into the area this past week. He said they're running close to last year. Pamida store manager Robbi Bishop said sales are up considerably from 1989.

"You name it and we're selling it," she said. "Our hottest selling items are Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, TVs and VCRs."

Nuss said the Ben Franklin store has been selling fixings for string-mop dolls, a variety of games and other non-Christmas items. He added that they have had trouble keeping the bubble lights in stock.

"Some of our customers have said things are tighter this year than in the past," he said. "They seem to be watching how they spend their money a little more."

deep, you couldn't even see it." ONE VIVID MEMORY of Christmas that Auker shares is the story of how she was a Sunday school teacher and how the youngsters in her class shared their thoughts of the season with her.

"You know, we hear about the hard times but I never thought of it that way," the 92-year-old resident recalls. "We never had any children of our own but I had a wonderful husband and that's what made Christmas special."

Spahr said she remembers how one Christmas she and her sister gave a toy cradle to a poor family who otherwise would not have been able to give a present to their own children.

"When I was still in grade school, we had a tree at the church and it was through that tree that we were able to give a present to a child from a poor family that probably would have gone without gifts that year. That made that Christmas special."

Criminal justice at WSC warns of mail con job

Editor's Note: This message is provided by the Criminal Justice programs of Wayne State College and Northeast Community College.

Many Nebraskans have recently received postcards in the mail telling them they are semi-finalists in a contest in which they are guaranteed to win a fabulous prize such as a new car, a vacation trip or a diamond ring.

This contest is a con job. All you have to do to win is buy some designer luggage using your credit card, or book a flight for two using your credit card or pay a registration protection and processing fee in order to get your prize, again using your credit card. DON'T DO IT!

If you do order the luggage, and if it ever arrives, you'll get very cheap luggage not worth a fraction of your purchase price. The free trip requires a ticketing fee, or a return guarantee fee, or some other fee, which makes the cost of the trip two or three times higher.

If you send in the contest winner processing fee, they will say they never heard of you. Or you will be informed your application was too late, or your application is invalid because you used the wrong color of ink or some other hidden error.

You don't win what you thought you'd win; you end up paying a lot more money than what you get is worth; and worst of all, someone else now has your credit card number!

If you get one of these contest cards, report it to the local postmaster, the state attorney general's office and the consumer fraud division of the state attorney general of the state of the contest company.

Never, never give your credit card number to someone you do not know or to someone who calls you with a good deal. If it truly is a reputable business, they will be happy to provide you with literature by mail, give you several days to think about the order and you will be able to check up on the company.

Remember, if a deal sounds too good to be true, chances are it probably is.
