Lawmakers convene Jan. 9

Conway ready for next session

With nine new members joining the legislature this year, District 17 Sen. Gerald Conway, R-Wayne, expects the upcoming session to be a busy one.

Topping the agenda will be leftovers from the ballot issues. The District 17 senator said two issues which will receive immediate attention will be focusing upon the creation of an appellate court and changes in taxation for ag land values. In addition to the legislature's dealing with those two issues, he said he expects that fiscal matters will be dealt with more conservatively than in the past.

"Although the 2 percent lid was defeated in the November election, it will be a tight session," he defeated in the following the said. "That, along with the threat of a nationwide recession, should set the tone for the legislature."

AS A RESULT OF having a new person in the statehouse, Conway said he thinks the legislature will be conservative when they convene Jan. 9 so they can get feel for the new governor. He said he expects a wait-and-see attitude in the Unicameral to find out if governor-elect Ben Nelson will "love the legislature to death like Kerrey did, bash the legislature like Exon used to or ignore it like Orr

In addition to establishing a feeling for the new governor, Conway said he expects that the legislature's hands will be full with determining new legislative districts for state senators and U.S. congressional representatives from

HE SAID ONCE the census is released, he is certain that some shuffling will occur, which may result in a shift of political power. Conway said he is certain that the state will see the first congressional district shift east to make way for third congressional district losses in population. Such is the case with the varying state senate districts.

"The tone for the partisan fights depends on the tenor Nelson sets," he said. "I don't think we'll see it the state of the partisan fights the said."

unless Nelson sets that tone. We're more likely to smack each other on urban-rural issues, rather than Republican-Democratic ones.

NEW FARMERS AND MERCHANTS bank president Tim Keller is happy to be joining the Wayne bank, He said he wants to see the bank become a viable part of the community.

Keller named to head up operations of Wayne bank

By Mark Crist Managing Editor

Timothy E. Keller has been se-lected to head up operations at the new Farmers and Merchant State Bank in Wayne.

The appouncement of Keller as president and CEO was made Dec. 28, 1990 by Farmers and Mer-chants State Bank.

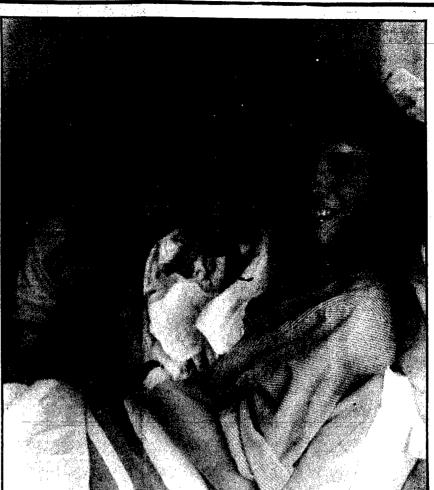

Keller, a native of Naper, Neb. comes to Wayne from The Abbott Bank in Alliance, Neb. He earned his bachelor degree from Chadron State College and is a graduate of the Colorado School of Banking at the University of Colorado-Boulder.

With his experience in the industry, he has some plans for the operation of the new Wayne bank.

Ve want to make the bank a we want to make the balls a viable, permanent part of the community," he said. "Farmers and Merchants Bank will become a good corporate citizen in the community."

WITH KELLER'S experience in the industry, he said the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Wayne will look to help the community with its needs. He said the direction the bank takes will depend on the Bornhoft died Dec. 31, 1990 after a long illness. He was 71.

He was remembered this past week by fellow Wayne attorneys Charles McDermott and Ken Olds, both of whom knew Bornhoft well

"He was a really good lawyer," says McDermott. "He was an independent guy but if he wanted to get in on a case, he would. He was very respected because he was honest. He was a great guy."

BORNHOFT SERVED as the Wayne County Attorney from 1972 until 1983. He started pracbefore McDermott came to Wayne and the same year Olds opened his practice. It was also in 1947 that he became the Wayne County Veterans Service officer, a

"We used to have offices across the hall from each other in the old First National Bank building, which is now where Surbers clothing stores are," Olds says. "In those days, we used to enjoy each others company. We visited with each other every day and we often went out for coffee together. He was a good friend."

Tentative plans for a memorial service in Wayne has been planned for late January or early February but an exact date has not yet been scheduled.

BORNHOFT graduated from the University of Nebraska Law School in 1947 and he graduated with honors. During his first few years as an attorney, his father, George, also served as the Wayne Police Chief.

Bornhoft moved to Palm Desert, Calif. in 1985 after suffer-leaving Wayne, he practiced law with his son Todd. Todd Bornhoft now has a practice in Lincoln. Of Bornhoft's five children, three are attorneys. Bud Bornhoft, Jr. practices law in Las Vegas, Nev. and Bob Bornhoft practices law in Phoenix. His other children are Rick Bornhoft and Robin (Bornhoft) Christiansen.

AS A WAYNE attorney, Bornhoft served as the attorney for the City of Wayne until 1972 when he was appointed to fill the county attorney's position for Don Reeg, who left Wayne.

"He had very high ethical val-ues," says McDermott. "He didn't believe that he should be the city attorney and the county attorney at the same time. It was because of his high code that people looked up to him."

DAN JOHNSON holds the Sloux Indian version of the hoop of the world — a foot-long pipe which also serves as religious symbol for many tribes.

Wayne teacher travels to Wounded Knee site for 100th anniversary

By Mark Crist Managing Editor

If nothing else, the Oglala and Lakota Indians want what hap-pened at Wounded Knee to be remembered, just the same was as remembered, just the same was as the Jews want the Holocaust of Nazi Germany remembered.

That's according to Dan Johnson, a Wayne Middle School history teacher, who attended the 100th Anniversary of the Wounded Knee Massacre in South Dakota Dec. 29. Massacre in South Dakota Dec. 29. The actual historical event occurred Dec. 29, 1890 when U.S. troops gathered up the Indians of the area and killed an estimated 150 to 300 people.

Despite Johnson's attendance at the ceremony, he willingly admits that when he started teaching in Wayne 20 years and he had ing in Wayne 20 years ago, he had little knowledge of Indian history in the United States. The knowledge he possesses today he credits to John G. Niehardt.

THE RECORDED history of the massacre goes something like this: Indian Chief Sitting Bull was at the Standing Rock reservation and was killed by Indian police, as a result Big Foot, the half-brother to Sitting Bull, became scared for his people and sought the protection of Red Cloud, some 200 miles away.

Following the departure of the tribe from Standing Rock, the U.S. Army went after them to take the tribe back to the reservation. Once the U.S. Army caught up with the the U.S.. Army caught up with the tribe, they separated the men and the women. During the night, the troops got drunk to celebrate the capture of Red Cloud and Big Foot and took an unspecified number of Indian warriors and physically abused them. The following morning, U.S. troops took all the tribe's weapons away from them and intimidated them. What resulted was the massacre of sulted was the massacre of Wounded Knee

The hoop of peace was broken at Wounded Knee and it is an Indian belief that by holding the memorial service that the hoop would be mended," Johnson said. THE CEREMONY Johnson attended was quite emotional. He said the Indians were hurt by the U.S. government for its failure to one of the things indians fight to recognize the massacre appropriately. He said for 100 years the U.S. government has failed to recognize the massacre for what it was.

Wayne branch bank officially closes doors

WAYNE - As a part of a business decision announced in December. the First Federal Lincoln branch of-fice in Wayne closed its doors for the last time Dec. 28.

The closure is a result of poor profitability of the branch office, according to Gary Ermels, first vicepresident manager of the north-east area operations for First Federal Lincoln.

"It was solely a matter of prof-itability," he said. "If you own sev-eral operations and one isn't prof-itable, then you have to close it."
With the closure, the Wayne office has been merged with the Norfolk First Federal Lincoln office. The Wayne branch opened its doors for operation in August, Ermels said he expects that the bank will lose some of the customers they had with the Wayne branch but he said many will prob-ably continue to conduct their business to the bank through the mail. He said First Federal Lincoln had a number of customers prior to opening the branch office in Wayne.

"We have an overlapping market here because of the mobility of society," he said. "All customers

Ermels added that he doesn't know if another business will oc-cupy the branch office. He said the one employee of the office has been offered another position elsewhere in the First Federal Lincoln organization.
