Theft charges filed

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Wayne County Attorney Bob Ensz announced Friday that he has filed charges against Jerry A. Heier, 23, of Wayne for the alleged theft of cash, coins, checks and food stamps from Quality Foods Center in Wayne on March 10.

The alleged theft occurred sometime between the store's closing Sunday, March 10 at 6 p.m. and opening Monday at 8 a.m. The burglary was reported by Quality Foods personnel Monday, March 11 at 7:30 a.m.

ACCORDING TO Ensz, Heier is a former employee of the store. Ensz said Heier was in the store at the time of closing and allegedly removed the money from a safe after the store had closed.

City of Wayne Police Chief Vern Fairchild said approximately $15,000 to $16,000 was allegedly taken from Quality Foods and over $15,000 was recovered. Fairchild said he did not know the exact amounts which were allegedly taken, nor did he know the exact amount which was recovered.

Ensz said early Friday that he filed theft charges against Heier, which is a class III felony charge, because the incident didn't appear to be a burglary, as had previously been suspected.

Along with being charged with theft, Heier has also been charged with criminal trespassing, a class I misdemeanor with a maximum punishment of one year in jail and a $1,000 fine, or both and a minimum of nothing.

WITH THE THEFT charges, the maximum penalty is 20 years in prison, a $25,000 fine, or both and the minimum sentence is one year in prison.

Fairchild said Heier was arrested Thursday, March 14 at 3:30 p.m. at his residence in Wayne. He said no more arrests are expected; although Ensz said the investigation by the Wayne Police Department is continuing. Fairchild added that he believes the incident was a one-person operation. At the time of arrest, Heier did not resist, he added.

Foundation exceeds phonathon goals; reaches $180,788

WAYNE - The 1991 Wayne State Foundation phonathon raised a record $180,788, according to Wayne Groner, vice president for institutional advancement. This effort exceeds last year's record total of $164,000.

"The remarkable success of our phone campaign is a strong indication that the public has a great deal of confidence in Wayne State College," Groner says. "Alumni and friends we talked to are very proud to be associated with Wayne State and they are willing to support our programs through their generous gifts."

The phonathon proceeds will fund scholarships and support other programs on campus, according to Cyndi Wagner, director of annual giving and phonathon coordinator.

Wagner credited student callers for much of the campaign's record success.

"These students did an outstanding job," she says. "They made hundreds of calls during the month-long campaign, and they represented Wayne State College very well."

The phone campaign has progressed rapidly in recent years, Wagner says. Here are totals from previous years: 1986, $46,000; 1987, $69,000; 1988, $97,000; 1989, $114,000; 1990, $164,000.

Director hired Stuthman to direct local office

WAYNE - Christine Stuthman of Wayne has been hired as the Wayne Family Service Coordinator for Goldenrod Hills.

Stuthman, a 1983 graduate of Wayne State College, began training for the position Feb. 18, and she will soon be working out of the Wayne office located upstairs at 512 E. 7th St. She holds a bachelor's degree in counseling and sociology.

SINCE BEING named coordinator, Stuthman said she set a number of plans for the Wayne office. She said she would like to make people more aware that the Wayne office is there for their needs.

"When I first talked to people, they didn't realize we even had one," she said. "I'd like to try and make the office more visible."

In her duties, Stuthman will oversee contacts with the economically disadvantaged residents of Wayne, Cedar and Dixon counties while informing them of Goldenrod Hills' services. She will also be responsible for the seven monthly immunization clinics held in Antelope, Cuming, Dixon, Cedar, Madison and Wayne counties.

SHE SAID ONE of the most important aspects to her job is to provide volunteers for the variety of services Goldenrod Hills offers. One such example is Alvena Wilson, who formerly was the Wayne family service coordinator, who is now working as a volunteer.

Wilson left her position with Goldenrod Hills to pursue other career options but she still works as a volunteer.

Talks address shopping trends

WAYNE - "What do you like most about Wayne?" was the first question asked a group of 10 Wayne State College students participating in a focus discussion led by Wayne State Professor Ken Hallgren.

The focus group is part of a joint project between the START Business Expansion Task Force and the Wayne State College business research class.

In a 1-1/2 hour session last Tuesday evening, local Wayne merchants had the opportunity to view the student focus group from behind a one-way mirror. Approximately a dozen questions were posed to the 10 students to help the Business Expansion Task Force determine the marketing effectiveness of Wayne businesses.

WAYNE - Leona Nelson and Marvln Echtenkamp were all smiles Thursday night.

That's because Nelson was selected as the grand prize winner of $250 in the Wayne Great Giveaway drawing and Echtenkamp was chosen as the second place winner of $150 in Giveaway bucks.

While it was the first time Nelson had qualified for the final drawing, Echtenkamp qualified two years ago. He said he was excited about being chosen as the Great Giveaway second place winner.

OTHER FINALISTS in the drawing were Erwin Jernan, Ed Kluge, Eldon Roberts, Bonnie Nelson, Pam Nolte, Janice Mau, Lorraine Johnson, Helen Beckman, Ruth Haun, Elaine Hedell, Verdina Johs, Lois Lessman, Floyd Glassmeyer and Russell Lutt.

All of the finalists are from Wayne except Hedell, who is from West Point.

Echtenkamp submitted his second place entry blank at Clarkson Service in Wayne and Nelson submitted her first place registration at Pac 'N' Save.

SPONSORS OF the fifth annual Wayne Great Giveaway are: Hardee's of Wayne, Fredrickson Oil and Convenience Store, Pac 'N' Save, The Wayne Herald and Marketer, Diers Supply, Taco Stop, Stoltenberg Partners, Farmers and Merchants Bank, Medicap Pharmacy, Midwest Land, Clarkson Service and ERA Property Exchange.

The winning names were drawn Thursday at The Wayne Herald and Marketer by Andy Wright after Wayne Herald Publisher Gary Wright read each semi-finalist's ticket. He then returned all 16 tickets to the box, where they were shaken up before Andy drew the winning names.

Terri Schwarz bride of Rodney Dahl in double ring ceremony in Kansas

Terri Schwarz of Marysville, Kan. and Rodney Dahl of Omaha were united in marriage on Jan. 26 at the Evangelical United Church of Christ in Marysville.

The Rev. Jack Ulmer officiated at the 4 o'clock double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Merlyn Schwarz of Marysville and the late Merlyn Schwarz. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Dahl of Wayne.

Grandmother of the bride is Janet Mengers of Marysville. The bridegroom's grandmothers are Alice Wagner of Carroll and Luella Dahl of Loveland, Colo.

Decorations included emerald-pew bows with iridescent centers and a unity candle at the altar, along with two floral arrangements of fresh lilies and roses. Ivy plants were placed on the railings at each side of the altar, with matching wall banners.

MAID OF HONOR was Kelly O'Neil of Omaha, and bridesmaids were Tracy Taphorn and Tami Vering of Marysville, sisters of the bride. Junior bridesmaids were Alicia Vering and Shelley Vering, both of Marysville.

Layne Marsh of San Diego served as best man. Groomsmen were Brad Moore of Omaha and Tony DiMarco of St. Paul, Minn. Junior groomsmen were Brandon Vering of Marysville and Ryan Dahl of Wayne, brother of the bridegroom.

Ushering guests into the church were Greg Vering and Jeff Taphorn, both of Marysville, and Corey Dahl and Kyle Dahl of Wayne, brothers of the bridegroom. Flower girl was Jessica Taphorn of Marysville.

Organist and soloist was Janet Robinson of Lawrence, Kan. Selections included "Trumpet Voluntary," "The Wind Beneath My Wings," "The Wedding Prayer," "He Has Chosen You for Me" and "Let Us Climb the Hill Together."

GIVEN IN marriage by her mother, the bride wore a white satin mermaid gown with a high neck and Alencon lace. Long, fitted sleeves with shoulder puffs were accented with bows at the elbows.

The fitted skirt with a flounce at the knee was edged with Alencon lace at the hemline, and the detachable cathedral-length train was inlaid with lace and beading and a bow at the waistline.

She wore a beaded headpiece with an illusion pouf and shoulder-length veil, and carried a bouquet of white gardenias and roses with ivy.

The bride's attendants wore emerald iridescent moire taffeta gowns with white Victorian lace V collars, fitted bodices and full tea-length skirts. Each carried a bouquet of white roses with ivy.

The bride's mother wore a pale green moire taffeta two-piece suit with an iridescent collar, and the bridegroom's mother selected a dark green two-piece dress in street length. Both wore corsages of white lilies and roses with ivy.

A RECEPTION, dinner and dance followed at the American Legion Hall in Marysville.

Cutting the cake were Glenda Christener and Willa Griswold, both of Marysville, and Sara Russell of Manhattan, Kan. Kay Mengers of Lawrence poured.

Laura Booth of Lawrence was seated at the guest book, and Marlys Hiltgen of Frankfort, Kan. and Gayle Ritchie of Topeka, Kan. were in charge of the gift table.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Dahl

THE BRIDE, a 1987 graduate of MHS and a 1990 graduate of Washburn University, is employed with MCI in Omaha.

The newlyweds took a ski trip to Salt Lake City and are making their home at 11577 Wakeley Plaza No. 13, Omaha, Neb., 68154.

Wayne woman speaks on year in New Guinea at Retired Teachers meeting

Gertrude Vahlkamp-Heins was a guest speaker at the March 11 meeting of Wayne Area Retired Teachers and told about the year she and her husband Dale spent in New Guinea at the Highland International Lutheran School.

Mrs. Vahlkamp-Heins taught the kindergarten class and her husband did repairs around the complex.

She also showed a film of their work in New Guinea and of several students, along with several items of clothing and artwork done by the students.

TWENTY-ONE members attended the meeting at the Black Knight in Wayne. Mrs. Vahlkamp-Heins was introduced by Vera Diediker, program chairman.

President Bette Ream conducted the business meeting. Plans were made to work with the Wayne State Foundation to conduct tours of the rural schoolhouse on campus for the public during April and May. Dates and times will be announced.

Alice Schulte, legislative chairman, reported on several bills being discussed that are of interest to the group. Mildred Jones, information protective service chairman, distributed booklets, entitled "Home Safety Checklist," and Betty Anderson, health chairman, showed the group several exercises they can do at home.

THE NEXT meeting of Wayne Area Retired Teachers will be May 13 at the Black Knight. Ila Noyes and Roberta Welte will serve as program chairmen.

Dr. Donald Hickey of Wayne State College will speak on "Nebraska's Heritage: People and Institutions." The program is sponsored by the Nebraska Humanities Council and is open to the public.

Persons wishing additional information about the program are asked to contact Roberta Welte, 375-4649.

Decks wed 40 years

MYRON "MIKE" AND Lou Deck of Hoskins will observe their 40th wedding anniversary on Sunday, March 24. Friends and relatives are invited to attend an open house reception from 2 to 4:30 p.m. in the Winside auditorium. The honorees request no gifts. The reception is being hosted by the couple's children and their spouses, along with grandchildren.

Grace Ladies Aid meets

Grace Lutheran Ladies Aid met March 13 with 31 members present. Hostesses were Elsie Hailey, Irene Lutt and Rose Fredrickson.

Vice President Ellen Heinemann called the meeting to order and gave the opening devotions, "I Am With Thee, I Am Thy God," assisted by Esther Baker.

Ellain Vahlkamp reported on a number of calls made by the visiting committee, including a visit to the Wakefield Health Care Center. Leora Austin purchased flowers for Renata Anderson.

Esther Baker will write this month to Duane Fahr and Ellain Vahlkamp will write to Mike Erickson.

The care center committee reported showing an Easter Heart-warmers film and serving sandwiches when they visited the center on March 4.

INVITATIONS will be sent to women of Immanuel Lutheran Church, Laurel, and First United Methodist and St. Mary's Churches in Wayne for the May 8 guest day.

Birthday cards were signed by members for Irene Geewe and Mrs. Lou Baier, and an anniversary card for Mr. and Mrs. Art Hagemann.

Linda Coulter led the group in a thank offering service.

Seated at the birthday table were Ellain Vahlkamp, Matilda Barelman, Lena Fuelberth and Arden Nelson.

HOSTESSES for April will be Ellen Jensen, Agnes Pfeil and Melvy Meyer.

She says she also plans to seek additional cooperation among Nebraska public libraries, which will enhance the Wayne system. She says she also looks forward to continuing programs, like the youth reading program and she says she's anxious to work with the youth of the community.

"I just want to be able to make a difference," she says. "I've handled all the jobs of a library but in this position, I feel I can make an impact by providing the information sources people want."

BURYANEK IS quick to recognize the condition of the Wayne library as excellent. She says that speaks well of the outgoing director. She said she would like to work with the board to see the library continue to grow.

Some of the plans she has for the library involves the addition of a computerized card catalog, because a computerized card catalog makes it easier for customers to find what they're looking for.

She says a computer system will streamline the system and it will make librarians' work easier and

WHEN STUDENTS were asked how much discretionary income they have to spend each week, $40 was the average amount, with about half being spent in Wayne.

"Hearing how much money students are now spending in Wayne versus how much they could spend, if attracted to do so, is a great incentive for all of us to improve our marketing techniques," said Bill Dickey, a member of the START task force. "If my math is correct, $20 times 2,500 day students for 36 weeks is approximately $1.8 million and the potential is there to double that if we could attract all of their dollars."

Students were also asked questions like what their best and worst experiences as a consumer in Wayne have been and what attracts them to stores.

According to local START leaders, this initial program was successful. The next step will be to conduct a sample survey of students at Wayne State College.

Gardner presents Foundation with $250,000 scholarship gift

Daniel W. Gardner, chairman of the board of Milton G. Waldbaum Co. in Wakefield, has presented a gift of $250,000 to the Wayne State Foundation, according to Athletic Director Pete Chapman.

Gardner's contribution has been earmarked for the establishment of an endowed athletic scholarship fund at Wayne State College.

"Over the years, Dan Gardner has offered tremendous assistance to Wayne State and its student-athletes through his unselfish hard work, support, and financial contributions," Chapman said. "It is only appropriate that our endowed athletic scholarship fund be named after him in recognition of those efforts."

"The fund will serve as a reminder, in a powerful and learning way, of the impact that Dan Gardner has had on Wayne State Athletics. The fund is the embodiment of the Dan Gardner spirit—support of athletes' efforts combined with a financial commitment."

Gardner, a New York native who came to Wakefield in 1952, has built Waldbaum's into the nation's second-largest egg processing plant. In the 1970s, Gardner became especially interested in the Wayne State athletic program when his son, Kirk, played football for the 1977

(8-3) Wildcats. Since that time, he has generously supported the athletic program. He also serves on the Wayne State Foundation Board of Trustees Executive Committee.

"I am very happy to reaffirm my involvement in the development of the College and northeast Nebraska," Gardner said. "Our high regard for the important role of the College and our commitment to the quality of life in northeast Nebraska are the factors which motivated me."

Scholarship funding will be provided by interest generated from the initial $250,000 gift. Therefore, a perpetual source of funds will be in place to support programs each year.

Wayne State President Donald J. Mash says the College is very grateful for Gardner's contribution.

"Mr. Gardner has stepped forward again to help," Mash said. "He has been providing leadership by example. He cares about the College and cares deeply about northeast Nebraska."

Wayne State Foundation Executive Director Wayne Groner adds, "We're thankful for Mr. Gardner's generous and ongoing support, and we appreciate the confidence he has shown in Wayne State College."

Business meeting, banquet top agenda

Wayne post hosts District 3 Legions

WAYNE - American Legion Third District Convention was held Saturday, March 9, hosted by Irwin L. Sears Post 43 in Wayne.

Flag raising ceremony took place at 8 a.m. at the Wayne City Hall.

Business meeting opened at 9 a.m. at the Wayne Veterans Club conducted by District 3 Commander Jeff Swanson, assisted by Vice-Commander Gene Twiford with 60 Legionnaires in attendance.

Host greetings were given by LaVerle McDonald, Darrel Heier, councilman representing the City of Wayne, greeted the Legionnaires and wished them a successful convention.

Alternate NEC Jack Gilmort

presented a message. Other speakers were senior department vice-commander Gene Schmitz, department adjunct Duane Bokemper, assistant department service officer John Hansen and area "A" Vice-Commander Ed Peterson. Harold Thompson also spoke on behalf of the sons of the American Legion.

The 11 a.m. Post Everlasting was conducted by a group of Legionnaires from American Legion Post 307, South Sioux City. This portion of the convention was held in memory of District 3 veterans deceased since the 1990 District 3 Convention.

The noon banquet was held at the city auditorium with 134 Legionnaires and Auxiliary members and guests in attendance. Guest speaker was Mark Ahmann, committee chairman of public relations and publications of the American Legion, Department of Nebraska.

Business resumed around 1 p.m. at the Wayne Veterans Club with District 3 Commander Jeff Swanson in charge.

Awards were presented as follows: The annual District 3 American Legion Citizenship award was presented to Clarence Kalin of Coleridge; Irwin L. Sears Post 43 was presented the annual children and youth citation, The Annual Americanism Citation and the 1990 Three Star award for surpassing the post goal and four year

WSC honors on the rise

WAYNE - Student participation in the honors program at Wayne State College has increased over 30 percent compared to last year, according to Dr. Robert McCue, director of the honors program and dean of graduate studies at Wayne State.

"When the job market gets competitive I think students see graduating with honors as a distinction that gives them an advantage," McCue says.

Honors students are required to do a research project which is presented to an audience of faculty and students in their senior year. They must also maintain at least a 3.5 grade-point-average in their major and overall GPA. To graduate with highest honors, students must maintain a straight A average or a 4.0 GPA.

Students from the area who have earned spots on the honors list include: Laurie Johnson, Laurel, who is studying vocational business education; Marc Rahn, Wayne, a business finance major; Tamara Schmitt, Laurel, who is studying biology and chemistry; and Suzanne Sears, Wayne, who is studying psychology.

"The fact that we see honors students from a wide variety of majors is good evidence of the strong academic programs we have at Wayne State College," McCue said.

average in the membership program by July 1, 1990. Other posts received like awards.

Delegates elected to attend American Legion National Convention are Swanson, Ardell Mueller and Darrell Merry. Alternate delegate is Quintin Petz. Gene Twiford, Laurel, was elected to be District 3 commander and Don Persinger, Ponca, was elected to be vice-commander of District 3. Each officer will hold the office for two years.

The 1992 District 3 convention was awarded to American Legion Post 70 in West Point.

The convention adjourned with the retirement of the District 3 colors.

THE UNL REGENTS SCHOLARSHIPS PROGRAM

For more than half a century, Regents Scholarships have been awarded to Nebraska's most academically talented high school graduates. These awards clearly constitute the best known scholarship program in the state, and their prestige is matched by their financial attractiveness. Regents scholars receive payments equal to their full tuition for up to 135 credit hours of enrollment at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. This equates to a present cash value of $6,000. Continuing eligibility requirements must be met to maintain the award past the freshman year.

Three factors are considered in determining which Nebraska high school graduates will receive Regents scholarships - high school class rank; performance on the American College Test (ACT); and high school honors, activities and leadership experiences. Class rank and ACT results are the primary determinates. Statewide geographic representation is assured through the requirement that students from at least 250 high schools must be included in the list of approximately 300 award winners each year.

Wayne High School is pleased and proud to have two UNL regents scholars this year: Jeff Griesch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Griesch and Martin Rump, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Rump.

Wayne High School is one of only 50 Nebraska schools to have two regents scholars.

Region IV targets March

WAYNE - Region IV advocates have targeted March, proclaimed by Governor Ben Nelson as Developmental Disabilities (DD) Awareness Month, to prepare local citizens for implementation of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA).

The theme of the educational campaign, "Access All Around," will be seen on posters, kites and bookmarks throughout communities in the region. Advocates are also planning a series of "Kids on Our Block" puppet shows to increase awareness.

The Region IV Chairperson of the Council on Developmental Disabilities, Kay Cattle of Wayne, says more and more people are aware of the need for accessibility.

"Communities in our region are working very hard to remove some of the physical barriers but we have a lot of old buildings and the modifications sometimes have been slow," says Cattle.

Although advocates, like Cattle, agree that removing physical barriers is very important, they say access is much more. Tim Shaw, the Executive Director of Nebraska Advocacy Services agrees.

"I think individuals are often denied equal opportunity because of our general misunderstanding of people with disabilities," says Shaw. "That misunderstanding may result from sympathy or fear." Shaw says sympathy may prompt someone to provide help that is actually disabling and fear may cause them to avoid those who are different.

"I think one of the first things we, as a society, need to do is look at people as individuals," says Shaw. "People find that their lives are enriched when they open themselves to relationships with a diverse group of individuals."

Wedding of the Year

Blecke, Reeg, Cruickshank earn recognition

All-Area team announced

By Kevin Peterson
Sports Editor

The Wayne Herald released its 1990-91 All-Area girls teams today and of the 12 total selections making up the two teams only three are seniors. Jennifer Hammer of Wayne and Kelly Pichler of Winside are the only seniors named to the first team as they juniors Lisa Blecke of Wakefield, Cindy Chase of Allen and Wendy Rabe of Winside. The lone sophomore named to the first team was Wayne's Liz Reeg.

Wendy Kratke of Wakefield was the lone senior selected to the second team All-Area with junior Lisa Anderson joining her on the second team. Amy Peters and Sherri Hangman of Laurel also earned second-team status for their fine play for head coach Mike Zimmerman this season and Denise Boyle of Allen joins the second-team as well.

Wayne's sophomore point guard Danielle Nelson rounds out the second-team selections. Sarah Salmon and Kristen Miller of Wakefield along with Heather Sachau of Allen and Susie Enz of Wayne compose the honorable mention list.

Liz Reeg and Jennifer Hammer were the most consistent performers for the Wayne Blue Devils this season. Reeg did a phenomenal job of driving to the basket and was Wayne's leading scorer in this, her sophomore season while Hammer could always be counted on to be the force on the boards as well as being counted on to score. Hammer closes out her career as a Blue Devil and does so with a first-team all-conference and all-area honor.

Lisa Blecke of Wakefield was about as dominating a player as you can get for the Trojans this year as she led the team in scoring for the third consecutive season in this her junior year. Blecke is already the all-time leading scorer in Lady Trojan history and will add plenty of cushion to that total next season.

One of the most unsung hero stories of the area this year was the play of the Winside Wildcats. Heading into the season many picked Winside to earn a berth in the state playoffs but a season ending injury to junior sensation Jenny Jacobsen in the second game put the season in jeopardy.

Still, Paul Giesselemann's troops managed to enjoy a fine season in which they finished over .500 with the aid of senior Kelly Pichler and junior Wendy Rabe.

Pichler is one of those special athletes who doesn't know how to do anything but win and that rubbed off on her teammates in both volleyball and basketball this year. Rabe was a dominant force in the middle for Winside and she finished the year as the leading scorer and rebounder for the Wildcats.

Cindy Chase of Allen enjoyed another fine season in this her junior year. Chase is one of those athletes who are blessed with a lot of raw talent and again she made the most of that talent this year.

Looking ahead to next season all five Wayne Herald coverage girls basketball teams could have excellent seasons with what they have returning. Laurel will be improved as Amy Peters and Sherri Hangman get another year older.

The two-some did a nice job of complimenting each other throughout this season and will be the leaders once again next year as the Bears hope to make noise in the NENAC.

Although Wendy Kratke ended her high school career as a Wakefield Trojan this season, the senior forward bowed out in fine fashion with a solid season. She was not the main focus as other teams prepared to play the Trojans but Kratke made many stand up and take notice.

Lisa Anderson will return to her point guard position next season for Gregg Cruickshank's Trojans. Anderson has the uncanny ability to hit the outside jumper but the junior gets nearly as much enjoyment out of watching a good pass that leads to a bucket as she led the team in assists.

Wayne has great promise next year and some of that promise comes in the ball handling and leadership ability of Danielle Nelson who returns for her junior year at point guard. The Wayne girls will return four of its five starters from this year.

The Wayne Herald Area Coach of the Year honor goes to Gregg Cruickshank of Wakefield as he led the Trojans to their finest year ever in girls basketball in his first year as head coach.

The Area Player of the Year award will be co-awards this year as Lisa Blecke of Wakefield and Liz Reeg of Wayne earn the honors.

It is important for players and fans alike to realize that the Wayne Herald All-Area Team in no way reflects what happens on the area teams respective all-conference teams.

The selections for the team are based solely on how the Herald sports staff viewed each player and it was the play of these two

Wayne State loses softball pitcher

WAYNE-The 15-ranked Wayne State College softball team suffered a setback recently when freshman pitcher Heather Hoffman was lost for the season with a knee injury.

Hoffman, an all-state and all-conference pitcher from Perry, Iowa was diagnosed as having a torn anterior cruciate ligament in her left knee. She will undergo reconstructive surgery and will miss the entire 1991 season.

"It was an old injury that manifested itself to the point where Heather could no longer function," says second-year WSC softball coach Dan Pollard.

athletes that caught the most attention.

Jennifer Hammer of Wayne along with Kelly Pichler and Wendy Rabe of Winside were runners-up in the balloting.

NAC announces All-Conference girls and boys basketball teams

The Northern Activities Conference, (NAC) released its 1990-91 All-Conference girls and boys basketball teams recently as the Wayne Blue Devils had one representative on each squad.

Jennifer Hammer was the lone Wayne girl on the first team as she joined Kristen Krause of Hartington Cedar Catholic, Amy Brodersen of O'Neill, Stacy McArthur and Molly Brady of South Sioux.

Wayne sophomore Liz Reeg made the honorable mention list along with Kara Putnam of O'Neill, Kelli Bartels of South Sioux and Courtney Heimes of Cedar Catholic.

Regg Carnes was the lone Wayne boy on the first team as he joined Ryan Samelson of Cedar Catholic, Blake Hirschbach and Mike Caine of South Sioux, and Brandon Schmeichel and Damon Vogt of O'Neill.

Kyle Dahl and Jeff Griesch both were named on the honorable mention list along with Kurt Thoen, Aaron Frank and Eric Mueller of Cedar Catholic, Brad Newton of South Sioux and Wade Brosz of O'Neill.

NATIONAL AG WEEK MARCH 17 - 23, 1991

Honoring Nebraska Agriculture...

By Larry Sitzman, Director
Nebraska Department of Ag.

By Governor Ben Nelson

March 17 - 23 is Ag Week across the nation. Here in Nebraska, we take special note of the wholesome, safe, and abundant food supply that our farmers and ranchers produce for America and for the world. Dependable supplies of quality Nebraska grains, meats, and value-added products are exported to consumers throughout the world. The dedicated efforts of the state's producers, who operate our 57,000 farms and ranches, will solidify our role as one of the top agricultural states in the nation. Join me in saluting Nebraska's agricultural producers who are truly a productive miracle.

March 17 - 23 is Ag Week in Nebraska, a time to recognize the farmers and ranchers who have contributed so much toward making Nebraska one of this nation's leading agricultural states. I am proud of the producers of our food and fiber who operate under many challenges while remaining optimistic and eager to produce a wholesome and abundant food supply for the world. I urge you to take time out to recognize these courageous, hard-working producers. Honoring Nebraska agriculture... America's providers...

Proclamation

WHEREAS, Nebraska agriculture is recognized as the most important single industry to the state's economy; and

WHEREAS, Nebraska's cultural heritage is founded on a strong rural background, the values of which continue to be the basis of our society today; and

WHEREAS, the economic growth of manufacturing, retail sales, and service industries in the state are dependent upon a healthy agricultural community; and

WHEREAS, Nebraska agriculturalists are exhibiting the strength, durability and innovation shared by their pioneer forefathers in meeting the challenges and opportunities of today's agricultural economy; and

WHEREAS, it is appropriate for all Nebraska citizens to recognize the significance and appreciate the importance of agriculture's relationship to our state economy and general well-being;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, P. Benjamin Nelson, Governor of the State of Nebraska, under the authority vested in me by law and in accordance with the established custom, DO HEREBY PROCLAIM the week of March 17th through the 23rd, 1991 as throughout the State of Nebraska, and urge all citizens to take due note of the observance.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the Great Seal of the State of Nebraska to be affixed this Nineteenth day of March, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Ninety-One.

Attest:

 Secretary of State

 Governor

We join together here to salute the men and women of American Agriculture who have shown their abilities to perform their very best, every time, jointly and separately, for the good of all!

Tuned computers help industry

AREA - Information on soil moisture and projected crop yields should be as close as a personal computer for people interested in agriculture across the High Plains this summer.

High Plains Climate Center researchers at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln are fine-tuning computer models they've developed to generate this information. They hope their computers will be churning out weekly soil moisture and projected crop yield reports by early June, said Kenneth Hubbard, UNL climatologist and center director. Hubbard spoke Feb. 18 at the American Association for the Advancement of Science's annual meeting.

The new reports will join a variety of weather and crop information already available through the center's dial-up network to anyone with a computer and a telephone modem. The center collects a variety of climate data important to agriculture from 84 automated weather stations across its region—Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, the Dakotas and Wyoming.

The Soil Water Assessment Model, which will generate soil moisture and crop yield estimates, blends research and technology with weather and crop data.

UNL climatologists have worked to develop computer programs that accurately simulate and predict conditions in the field based on weather, crops and soil data and other information, Hubbard said. The model's projections have been compared with actual conditions in tests around the region, including an eight-year yield study in eastern Nebraska.

"In most cases, it has done quite well so it's time that we start using it around the region during the growing season," he said.

Soil moisture, the amount of water available to plants in the crop root zone, "is probably the single, most important agricultural variable," Hubbard said. Plant moisture needs vary depending on a plant's growth stage and crop type. Soil moisture availability will be reported for corn, grain sorghum, soybeans and wheat.

The model factors in rainfall, crop variety, air and soil temperatures, crop water use and other variables to estimate soil moisture available to plants. It is more precise than estimates based only on actual precipitation, Hubbard said.

"It should be closer to what's actually happening to the crop," he said.

Using soil moisture information and other data, the projected crop yield program analyzes what already has happened weather-wise to the corn crop and estimates final yields.

"In the growing season, we can take weather information to date and project to the end of the season with normal data, or we can project ahead using a set of years that represents a range from good to bad," Hubbard explained. While the model doesn't factor in pests, diseases or storms that could affect yields, it still should be useful. Comparison to past yields has resulted in an error of only a few percent, he said.

"Projections early in the growing season will have a wider range of predicted yields and this range shrinks as the season progresses," he said. Reports will include corn yield ranges and state the margin of error. Yield projections for grain sorghum, soybeans and wheat will be developed in the future.

The center aims to quantify the weather's impact on agriculture in its seven-state region. Given the density of stations in the region, it will be possible to project average conditions, Hubbard said, but not yields on individual farms. The information provides an overview for public officials, policy makers, farmers and crop consultants.

"We're looking at this as a big scale monitoring of what happens across a wide area," Hubbard said. "We're not intending to get down to a farm level, but rather we're trying to show and compare regional trends."

The information helps those who must make decisions an give advice on a regional or state level, he said. "Instead of saying we're having a drought, we can pinpoint it and contrast the impacts in different parts of the region."

Maps will be drawn showing soil moisture and projected yield differences across the region to illustrate the crop and weather picture.

Center climatologists also want to develop computer models to explore how longer-term climate changes might affect the region. "The climate has in large part determined where we grow our crops," Hubbard said. "If climate changes, how will it affect where we grow our crops?"

Analyzing different climate change scenarios is part of a four-year plan for joint research at UNL and other universities in the north-central states.

The High Plains Climate Center, established in 1987, is one of six regional climate centers nationwide. The regional centers work with the Climate Analysis Center in Washington, D.C.

The High Plains Climate Center is funded by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's National Weather Service with matching funds from the NU's Institute of Agricultural and Natural Resources' Cooperative Extension Division and Agricultural Research Division.

Bureau holds contest

ALLEN - Each year, nearly 300 Nebraskans are killed and 24,000 more are injured in traffic accidents. It is estimated that safety belts reduce the chances of being killed or seriously injured in a crash by 40-50 percent.

These statistics are particularly important to the Nebraska Farm Bureau because the medical costs for unbelted passengers involved in crashes are 66 percent higher than medical costs for passengers who wear belts. That's why the Allen insurance company is teaming up with safety officers and elementary schools to promote public safety.

The Nebraska Farm Bureau is sponsoring a general information campaign on safety belts as well as a coloring contest for all 23,792 kindergartners in Nebraska's 1,044 elementary schools.

Two winners from each school will win Buckle-up Buckaroo T-shirts and move up to a district competition. Eleven winners from the district level will win a Speak 'N Spell educational toy and move up to state competition. The winner of the state competition will be awarded a new Columbia bicycle and helmet. The winner's school will be awarded an IBM computer and educational software.

Stanley C. McAfee, Ronald Wenstrand and Steve Jorgensen are working with all the kindergarten classes in the area to make this program a success.

O'NEILL - O'Neill Mayor Dennis Shannahan was found guilty of violating the open meeting law, while two councilmen were found not guilty of the same charges.

Shannahan was fined $50 and he was ordered to pay $181 in court costs for violating the open records law from a meeting which was held Dec. 17.

Former CSC president stops in Hartington

HARTINGTON - Dr. Edwin C. Nelson, former president of Chadron State College, will be presenting a program entitled "Strengthening the Rural Community" April 8-9.

Nelson's program, which is offered in two three-hour sessions, uses small groups to determine community priorities. At a second meeting, usually held a month after the first ones, the former CSC president helps organize community resources in attacking the top projects.

Northeast offers prep course

AREA - Northeast Community College will offer a commercial drivers license prep course for truck drivers on Saturday, March 30, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. The course is designed to prepare truck drivers for the commercial drivers license exam.

Each participant will take a sample, full-scale CDL written exam that will help reduce anxiety about taking the state exam, review basic test taking procedures and serve as a self-study document to review weak areas.

The fee for the course is $20 which includes a noon meal and breaks. For more information, telephone Joe Ferguson at 644-0587 or Larry Jenkins at 644-0431. To register, call 644-0600.

Precaution advised when sealing home

WAYNE - A byproduct of a too-tightly weatherized home can be unsafe indoor levels of carbon monoxide.

Although sealing homes to keep the cold out is a smart energy efficiency move, and one People's Natural Gas encourages, a house too tightly sealed can cause carbon monoxide to be produced, which poses a serious health risk.

Carbon monoxide is a toxic gas produced by the incomplete burning of materials containing carbon. Colorless and odorless, it can build up to unsafe levels when a fireplace, wood stove or gas appliance isn't venting properly.

"Any flame-producing appliance needs air to burn," said James E. Markham, local manager for Peoples Natural Gas. "Weatherizing can reduce a home's air exchange. If there isn't sufficient ventilation, the flame can't burn properly."

A fireplace can be a particular culprit. It consumes air from inside the house, depleting the home's fresh air supply. If there isn't enough fresh air inside, negative pressure develops at the base of the chimney, causing fresh air from outside to be sucked down the chimney or furnace flue. Carbon monoxide does not go up the chimney and flue as intended.

When the negative pressure develops in the furnace flue, carbon monoxide may be blown throughout the house by the furnace fan.

There are several simple things homeowners can do to prevent carbon monoxide build-up:

- Have the furnace and gas appliance checked periodically by a professional.

- Clear vents and chimneys of bird nests, ice and other debris. Replace loose mortar on bricks on the chimney. Check automatic vent dampers for proper function.

- Be sure wood-burning stoves and added fireplaces are installed and vented properly, preferably by a professional.

- Use freestanding, unvented kerosene heaters only in rooms large enough and with enough ventilation to disperse the fumes. Do not use them in bathrooms.

- Remember, only one stove or fireplace to a chimney.

You should be suspicious of a possible carbon monoxide problem if any of the following occurs:

- A yellow rather than blue flame on the furnace burner.

- A draft from the front of the furnace when it is not operating.

- A fireplace that doesn't draw properly.

- Physical symptoms such as headaches, smarting eyes, ruddy complexion, nausea, lightheadedness or drowsiness.

If you suspect carbon monoxide in your home or building, call your Peoples Service Center or a local heating contractor.

Peoples delivers natural gas to more than 36,000 homes, businesses and industries in 44 Nebraska communities and a total of 336,000 customers in more than 300 communities in Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, Colorado and Kansas. The company is a division of UtiliCorp United (NYSE:UCU), which provides gas and electric service in eight states through its divisions.

4-H News

SPRING BRANCH

The Spring Branch 4-H Club met March 10 at the Peace United Church of Christ, near Hoskins, with 28 members, four leaders and seven visitors present.

Vice President Nate Behmer opened the meeting with the 4-H pledge.

It was announced there will be a lamb selection and showing presentation at Northeast Community College on April 6 at 12:30 p.m.

The cooking class will meet in the home of leader Ramona Puls on March 23, and the "Put It All Together" cooking group will meet in the Puls home on April 13 at 1:30 p.m.

Kelly Appel read a poem, entitled "Mannerly Moose." Desiree Anderson gave a demonstration on how to set the table, and the cooking class presented a demonstration on stuffing celery.

Lunch was served by the Deck families. The next meeting will be April 14 at the Peace Church. Becky Appel, news reporter.

HELPING HANDS

The Lon DuBois family hosted the March 10 meeting of Helping Hands 4-H Club. Ten members, four leaders and five mothers answered roll call with the month of their birthday.

Vice President Ryan Brogren called the meeting to order with the flag salute and 4-H pledge. Jennifer Miller became a new member.

The secretary's report was given by Jenny Flier and the treasurer's report was given by Wendy Morse.

Members discussed the 4-H public speaking contest on April 11 at 7:30 p.m. at Wayne State College, 4-H scholarships offered to attend camp, a movie party, and Bake and Take Days, scheduled March 22-24. All members were encouraged to bake and take something to share with a neighbor or shut-in.

Letha DuBois gave a demonstration on photo and needle crafts. Wendy Morse and Mary Muhs made a hot roll mix and gave samples.

Laurel DuBois discussed changes she plans to make in her room to give it a Santa Fe look.

Kim Cherry was in charge of recreation and a game was played, followed with lunch.

The next meeting will be April 14 at 7 p.m. in the home of Rod Brogren.

Connie Van Houton, news reporter.

'Murder Room' a mystery-comedy

WAYNE - Do you have anything planned for the weekend of March 22?

Why not check out the Wayne Community Theatre's production of "The Mystery Theatre"? The production will be held at the Ley Theatre on the WSC campus, March 22-24.

The play, which is like an Agatha Christie comedy, will entice viewers to figure out if they can solve the mystery of Edgar's disappearance before it's revealed. Viewers will also be challenged to discover why Mavis's cat was poisoned and whether there is a connection between the cat's poisoning and Edgar's disappearance.

The only way to find out is by attending the Wayne Community Theatre's production of "The Murder Room," a murder mystery spoof, filled with fun.

Tickets are still available at State National Bank, First National Bank and Sav-Mor Pharmacy.

4-H'ers take part in training in Wayne and Dakota City

Several 4-H'ers and 4-H leaders took part in 4-H rocketry training held recently in Wayne and Dakota City.

Conducting the training was Harlan Glanzer of Norfolk, a 4-H leader in Madison County for over 20 years.

Glanzer, who currently works with over 60 youth in Madison County, said he keeps his garage open on Saturdays for 4-H'ers to come and work on their rocketry projects.

"This allows them to work at their own speed, but still under the guidance of an adult."

THE WORKSHOP showed 4-H'ers techniques needed to put their rockets into the purple ribbon category. Leaders learned more about working together to share material costs and ordering model rocket supplies.

The 4-H workshop was organized by Carol Larvick, extension home economist for Dakota County, and Lynda Cruickshank, extension home economist for Wayne County as part of a series of 4-H leader/4-H'er workshops for the Northeast Five Extension Program Unit.

THE APRIL workshops will be "4-H Council Training" on April 16 at 6 p.m. at the Northeast Research and Extension Center near Concord; "4-H Food and Nutrition Update" on April 25 at 7:30 p.m. in RYAN DUNKLAU, Jim Lutt, Eric Lutt and Kim Dunklau inspect the fins of a model rocket during a 4-H rocketry workshop held recently in Wayne.

Ski trip unites groups

4-H'ers travel to Iowa slopes

Seventy-one youth and 10 adult sponsors recently traveled to Cherokee, Iowa for their annual 4-H ski trip.

This year's group was joined by several youth and sponsors from the Norfolk YMCA.

The program is sponsored by the 4-H Teen Leaders in Wayne and Dixon Counties and was coordinated by Lynda Cruickshank, extension agent/4-H and youth at Concord.

TAKING PART in the ski trip from Wayne were Jock Beeson, Tony Elsberry, Amy Hattig, Deb Sievers, Scott Sievers, Tammy Sievers, Terry Sievers and Tina Sievers.

Attending from Dixon were Angela Abts, Tricia Bathke, Mandy Hartung, Brandy Hintz, Jason Stewart, Jeff Stewart and LeAnn Stewart, and from Concord were Cori Ann Clarkson, Joan Clarkson, Bret Harder and Brian Rastede.

Winside youth joining the group were Stacy Bowers, Marc Janssen, Monica Sievers and Yolanda Sievers, and from Wakefield were Andrea Carson, Heather Fischer, Sara Mattes and Scott Mattes.

Attending from Allen were Paul Brentlinger, Pat Brentlinger, Penny Brentlinger, Jamie Paulson, Greg Rastede, Bobbi Strivens and Chris Wilmes.

Jennie Hoefler, Megan Miller and Melissa Miller attended from Hoskins, and Dwaine Junck attended from Carroll.

Other youth attended from Sergeant Bluff, Iowa; Madison, Battle Creek, Hartington and Ponca.

ADULT sponsors were Sharon and Ray Brentlinger of Allen, Lynda Cruickshank of Wakefield, Kelvin and Cynthia Puntney of Carroll, Connie Robertson and Sally Shively of Norfolk, Larry and Janet Sievers of Wayne, and Martha and Loren Sievers of Winside.
