Conway: No easy solution

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

As Nebraska currently enjoys the lowest unemployment rate in the nation, a recent Nebraska Supreme Court ruling poses a threat to seeing that trend continue.

The court found March 3 that a property tax bill passed in 1989 by the Nebraska Unicameral was unconstitutional. With that finding, the decision about what to do has been thrown back in the laps of the state senate.

According to District 17 Sen. Gerald Conway, R-Wayne, the Nebraska Legislature now faces two options: either put all property taxes back on the rolls with no exemptions for inventory, thus creating a strain on businesses and ag producers, or take all property taxes off the rolls and leave the burden on income and sales tax.

"I'm not sure we can do anything except put all property taxes back on the rolls and then ask for a change in the constitution," Conway said.

The earliest a change in the constitution could occur would be during the primary election in 1992. Conway said he is concerned that waiting that long could deliver a major blow to employers and the ag industry, but he adds that he doesn't want to start tinkering with the state Constitution.

AS A RESULT OF the ruling, the Nebraska State Chamber of Commerce has voiced its concern with the dilemma. In a recent column, state chamber president Jack Swartz writes: "There are alternatives to the 'all or nothing' approach. There are middle ground approaches and what we must look at."

Conway agrees to a point. He said there are things which can be looked at to avoid the all or nothing approach, but he warns that some middle ground will have to be found to protect Nebraska's business climate, while insuring that personal property taxpayers, like homeowners, will not end up carrying an unfair burden.

Despite the danger to businesses, the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce has not announced what proposal it favors. According to the Legislative Committee Chairman Cap Peterson, that decision won't be made until later this month.

"We'll review it and see how the proposed bills work," Peterson said. "The legislative committee will review the proposed bills when they come fourth along with the proposed amendments and we will make a recommendation to the chamber board before recommending any bill to the state senate."

ACCORDING TO Wayne Chamber President Mark Sorensen, placing all property tax back on the rolls would not be good for economic development. He said if everything goes back on the tax rolls, retail businesses will likely end up losing business to shoppers who travel to Iowa to purchase goods.

"We've had good history lately with increases in retail sales and I'd hate to see that all go out the window with a boomerang effect because retail stores can't afford to keep a good variety of inventory for their customers," he said.

Sorensen said the same is true for ag producers, particularly livestock producers, who will have to reduce their herds in order to ensure any profit margin, something that already is strained.

While the ruling did not say that any bills cannot have exemptions, it doesn't sound like that's an immediate option because of the way the state constitution is written. Conway said he thinks the choice will have to be left up to Nebraska voters.

START programs falling in line, officials say

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

At some point, the members of the Wayne Strategic Planning and Resource Targeting team will meet to review the progress made over the past year, according to Julie Mash, who headed up the START program.

Since their first review session in November, a number of initial projects are nearing completion, but that's not to say the work is complete.

"I'd like to see us come back together on a regular basis and that's something we haven't done since Ray Clark was here in November," Mash said. "Right now, we're due for another meeting." She added that once each committee completes its initial goals, it will be time to reevaluate where it's been, where it's going and what more needs to be done.

The Wayne START program held its first meeting just over a year ago and today, committee chairpersons speak of noticeable progress they have made with minimal drawbacks.

Housing Task Force

Fauneil Bennett
chairperson

When the housing task force was established following START's final meeting May 24, 1990, the committee had two primary goals to meet: One was to identify current and future housing needs by gathering input from employees, employers, local construction companies, realtors, housing managers, WSC housing officials, local government housing officials and local financial institutions; and two, based upon the findings, to determine solutions to housing problems and make recommendations.

According to the Housing Task Force Chairperson Fauneil Bennett, all the data has been compiled and a final report is almost ready to go to press. She said the Housing Task Force was successful because they established realistic goals from the onset.

Bennett says the final report is being printed by Peoples Natural Gas and once published, it will be used by the city planning commission for an upcoming comprehensive plan.

"We're optimistic that this plan will be used as a vehicle for the comprehensive plan," she says. "The emphasis of our report will be for the construction of low-income and affordable housing."

Public Facilities Task Force

Sam Schroeder
chairperson

Of all the task forces, the public facilities task force faced the widest array of work in accomplishing their task. According to Chairperson Sam Schroeder, much of what the committee faced has gone according to plan.

He said the League of Human Dignities has determined accessibility for the Wayne County Courthouse, Wayne City Hall, the Wayne City Auditorium, the Wayne Public Library and the Wayne Post Office. While some improvements have been made, others have left question marks.

Schroeder said the Wayne Post Office is due to have work done to it sometime in 1992 and the Wayne County Courthouse has already gone through some capital improvements, which make it partially accessible for the handicapped. He said there is little that can be done for improvements to the Wayne Public Library without major renovation and problems have been noted to accessibility of the restrooms in the City Auditorium.

But the projects for both the city auditorium and the library remain contingent on the possible construction of a community center at some future date.

"The committee has taken the initiative to have a study made for the community center," Schroeder says. "We have adopted a needs study for the project."

Other areas addressed have been talks revolving around the recreation/leisure services in Wayne, interlocal agency communication and agreements, and expansion of the Wayne airport.

Expand/attract business

Randy Pedersen
chairperson

When the Expand/Attract Business Task Force began, the group had four specific objectives to meet its goal. Today, most of those goals are just short of being met.

According to task force Chairperson Randy Pedersen, steps are being taken to conduct a rural and Wayne State College survey of attitudes toward shopping in Wayne. He said a rural survey is being prepared and is expected to be sent out soon and the college report is being prepared by one of Wayne State's marketing classes. He added that the Bureau for Economic Development at the college is also preparing a list of Wayne High School graduates to find the interest in their relocating in Wayne.

In addition to studies, a doing business in Wayne brochure is nearing completion. Pedersen said the brochure will inform people about how to start business in Wayne and what procedures can be followed for funding a new business.

Another program, the mentor program, will assist retiring businesspeople in training present employees or potential buyers on how to run the operation once they retire.

Of the areas the task force has dealt with, the most difficult has been work with the mentor program. He said, however, that a priority business list has been prepared.

"Right now, if we need help with anything it's the need for volunteers who are interested in helping us," Pedersen said. "We have a good number of people already involved but we can always use more."

Community Image Task Force

chairperson

Although the Community Attitudes, Image and Communication Task Force shares a common goal with the Public Facilities Task Force, much of the progress the image task force has accomplished deals with the beautification of Wayne and enhancing positive influences on customer relations between businesspeople and customers.

According to Chairperson Dr. Wayne Wessel, the beautification committee is proceeding well and a meeting is scheduled for April 11, which will bring volunteers together to discuss some of the projects; in particular, those involving the State National Bank park, located next to The Wayne

UN-L extension nutrition specialist to be featured speaker at Spring Event

Dr. Darlene Martin, a registered dietician and University of Nebraska-Lincoln (UN-L) extension nutrition specialist, will present a program, entitled "The Changing American Diet," during the annual Spring Event sponsored by Wayne County Home Extension Clubs on Tuesday, April 23 in Wayne city auditorium.

The public is encouraged to attend either the afternoon session, beginning at 2 p.m., or the evening session which starts at 7 p.m.

EDUCATING the public about dietary choices which reduce their risk of disease is the major thrust of Dr. Martin's work for the UN-L extension program.

Prior to teaching for UN-L, Martin was director of the food and nutrition program at Langston University in Oklahoma.

She received her Ph.D from the University of Oklahoma.

MARTIN feels that the American public has become more aware of the relationship between nutrition and health and as a result is becoming more demanding for nutrition information.

In response to those demands, Martin has done research and writing in the areas of artificial sweeteners and food substitutes as well as prenatal and infant nutrition.

Herald, Viken Park and Water Tower park, located across the street from the Wayne Care Centre. Although the beautification committee is making progress, Wessel said they're still seeking manpower for the program, as well as financial assistance.

He added that a spring cleanup appears to be taking shape for sometime in late April or early May.

"Most of the roadblocks we've run into are the result of a shortage of volunteer help and schedules that don't mesh," he said. "I think, though, that our beautification plans are going well."

Wessel added that there are ongoing talks between Gail Korn, who is overseeing the beautification program, and WSC Athletic Director Pete Chapman and WSC Football Coach Dennis Wagner to place a flower banner on the north end of the stadium, which would be composed of yellow flowers spelling the letters "WSC."

Child Day Care Task Force

Mary Temme chairperson

Of all the task forces, the Child Day Care Task Force probably had the most defined goal of all: To encourage the best quality day care for the children of Wayne.

According to Mary Temme, chairperson of the task force, progress is being made although there were some initial shortfalls. Today, they are organized as a non-profit group known as the Wayne Child Care Board and their purpose is to encourage and support the development of child care services.

Temme said of the group's objectives, one should be completed sometime in August, when they open a resource center at the Wayne Public Library, which will be open to any child care provider offering things from small equipment, to toys and informational resources. Donations for the resource center are still being sought.

Another objective the Child Day Care Task Force faced was the development of a child day care center.

Temme said task force members have looked at sites and the costs involved of building a new facility with information provided by local builders. She said when the task force meets next Tuesday, a proposal is expected to be made by, at least, one local builder. She said the plan can not only be used for grant applications, but future projects when an individual shows an interest in starting their own center.

"We're hoping to make some decisions about a center by May or June," she says. "It is hoped that construction will occur sometime before the end of the year."

In conclusion

Julie Mash
START Chair

Mash said that she thinks the committees are making some good progress toward meeting all the goals they set forth to meet when the START action plan was originally set up. She said despite running into some shortfalls, the groups have been able to overcome most of the obstacles they've faced.

She added that while it appears that committees may be approaching a concluding point, the work that has been done by the committees will become an ongoing thing. She said that the five areas identified in the START Action Plan, presented by then-Gov. Kay Orr back in August, will most likely continue to grow and be added onto. Those five areas, as discussed previously, include: Day Care; Housing; Community Image, Attitudes and Communication; Public Facilities; and Expand and Attract Businesses.

"Like it is true with the housing data which has been compiled and researched, there won't be too many years go by that the data each group has compiled will have to be updated," she said. "It means that we'll have to continue to evaluate what has happened so that we can keep current."

DANICA SIEFKEN (NEAR) and Jennifer Schmitz keep themselves busy talking on the phone as members of the Wayne High School cast of 'Bye Bye Birdie.' The musical will be held Friday and Saturday at the Wayne High School lecture hall and the showtime for each performance is 7:30 p.m.

Correction

In the article about the Wayne City Council meeting in the Thursday, March 28 edition of The Wayne Herald, Alan Foote was inadvertently omitted as one of the military personnel recognized by the city council for his participation in the Persian Gulf conflict.

As the result of a misunderstanding, a clarification needed to be made to the article about Bud Erlandson's carving on display at Mines Jewelers in Wayne. The carving will not be donated to the Wakefield rest home, but rather put on display there with permission of the board. Erlandson said he plans to keep the work within his family.

Plan for 900 number may work

Well, I'm back. Back to normal and back from my month-long series on newspapers. This will probably be one of the few references I make to newspapers in my column this week because this column will address my idea for increased personal income through an inventive telephone service.

I have discovered a new and inventive way of supplementing my income, but it's going to take some cooperation by the FCC.

I'm going to change my current telephone number to a 1-900 number, that way whenever someone calls me, I'll make money.

I HAD THOUGHT about getting a 1-800 phone number but why should I have to pay for the telephone companies' service. By getting a 1-900 phone number, people calling me will have to pay. I'll do it honestly, though, by charging $2 for the first minute and 25 cents for each additional minute.

The trick to this proposal will be to allow the FCC to charge those people I call. Say if I were to call my parents in Scottsbluff or other members of my family and friends, it would be an automatic charge to their telephone bill, rather than to mine.

I heard recently on the TV show "20/20" that the 1-900 telephone service is a multimillion dollar business, so this should be a good way to supplement my income.

IN MY PROPOSAL to the FCC, the reverse charges will be less. Instead of assessing $2 for the first minute, I'll ask that it be reduced to $1 for the first minute and only 25 cents for the next up to the first 40 minutes and after that, there will be no charge.

For local telephone calls, I probably should have a lower rate, so I think I'll assess 50 cents for the first minute and 25 cents for each additional up to 10 minutes. That would be a pretty good way to supplement my income.

I have another idea which would aid my cause. Instead of having a

Mark'n the Spot
by Mark Crist

telephone without an answering machine, I'll add on the answering machine and each time someone calls me, the answering machine will kick in. One of the things I could do is make sure the receiving recording on the machine is longer than a minute, that way I'll earn $2.25 for each long distance call I receive and $1.25 for each local call. I could make big bucks if this plan works.

What about those wrong numbers I receive? Hee, hee. Guess what, folks, if you call my 1-900 number and dial the wrong one, you'll be charged $2.

ALSO, WHEN I get those annoying telephone calls from MCI or other businesses which do telephone soliciting, then they'll be charged with the call. Boy, this idea's getting better by the minute.

Just imagine, I get to charge MCI for calling me.

"Hello, this is your MCI representative and do I have a proposal for you. Would you like to save some money?" will be the caller's response.

My response: "Hee, hee. Not only do I want to save some money but I'm charging you some money for calling me."

"Click"
So just remember, that's $2 for the first minute and 25 cents for each additional minute. If you call locally, it's 50 cents for the first minute and 25 cents for each additional one.

Research shows sorghum can act as mopping agent

AREA - Sopping up nitrogen from contaminated soil, sorghum can act as a giant, environmental sponge, research indicates.

Scientists Ken Moore and Jeff Pedersen found that sorghum's dense, fibrous root system absorbs nitrogen from the soil, reducing further leaching and potential groundwater contamination. Moore and Pedersen are U.S. Department of Agriculture Agricultural Research Service researchers at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

They recycle the nitrogen into the food chain.

"Not only will nitrogen be removed from the soil, it will be fed to livestock," Moore said. "So the large component of the nitrogen is continually cycled through the system in a safe manner."

In Moore and Pedersen's system, sorghum is planted in nitrogen-contaminated soil, cut several times during the growing season, and fed as silage to livestock. The livestock convert it to meat.

They use sorghum because of its root system, regrowth potential and current use in Nebraska, Pedersen said.

Last summer, six classes of sorghum were tested at the Northeast Lincoln Wastewater Disposal site to identify types best suited for Nebraska.

Nitrogen amounts removed from the soil in their tests ranged from 148 pounds to 231 pounds per acre. Dry matter yields ranged from 5.7 to 8.3 tons per acre.

But Moore said he is sure that does not represent the crop's potential.

"I know we can get the removal up to 300 pounds of nitrogen per acre," he said.

Research showed the sorghum removed three times more nitrogen than a normal cropping system would use.

A sorghum/sudan crop that removed 200 pounds of nitrogen and yielded 7.8 tons of silage per acre will be the focus of future research.

"The nitrogen removal of the sorghum/sudan cross was very good," Pedersen said. "And that's important because sorghum/sudan crosses are in widespread use in Nebraska right now. So we could develop systems that utilize sorghum/sudan crosses and fit immediately into on-farm management."

R. Scott Schroth, superintendent of water pollution control at the Lincoln Wastewater system, said removing nitrogen from soil "potentially has the ability to extend the life of a disposal site by better managing waste. That will mean less cost to the consumer because we won't have to go to the expense of finding a new site."

For the system to work, Pedersen said, livestock feedlots must be nearby to provide a market for the silage. Large livestock operations have their market on-site, Moore said.

Moore said hybrid selection is the key to avoiding potential toxicity problems. The researchers are now studying which hybrids are best for avoiding toxicity for animals.

Widening Highway 35 vital for community growth

A recent suggestion by the Wayne City Council and City Administrator Joe Salitros has left the community reeling with joy.

Salitros has been directed by the council that he contact the Nebraska Department of Roads for possible widening of Highway 35. This development would be beneficial to the community and we should lend our support to it.

Community development, as we all know, comes in various shapes and sizes. While the task of widening Highway 35 would in all probability lessen some of the land adjacent to residential property, it would lend itself to the betterment of the community because it would enhance safer travels.

This project would be beneficial because the more traffic we have coming through the city, the more likely it is that we will have a greater influx of customers for our businesses. In a time when we are seeing continuous emphasis placed on business expansion, this widening project would only aid that cause.

While the argument could be made that higher traffic volume could pose a problem for pedestrians crossing the highway, we should encourage the addition of traffic lights with the project, thus slowing down drivers, while making it not only safer for pedestrians but individuals who journey the road by motor vehicle.

We applaud the city council and city administrator in their directive and we encourage the Nebraska Department of Roads in their positive consideration for this timely project.

Surveys seek input from WSC, rural area

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article appeared in the April 1991 Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce newsletter. It is reprinted with permission of the chamber office and its author.

For the past couple of years, the City of Wayne has been involved in analyzing its strengths and weaknesses in relationship to feedback from community members. Residents of the city were surveyed in 1989 through the START program, and the data has been analyzed and reported. Two important parts of Wayne's consumer market, the primary rural trade and the students at WSC, were omitted or under reported in the survey. Thus task forces were formed to further assess the marketing effectiveness of Wayne businesses to these two distinct segments.

Julie Mash and her committee are working on assessing the college market while Dick Sorensen and his people are planning the assessment of Wayne's primary rural trade area. Without question, these efforts will require cooperation and communication. The task forces felt the chamber newsletter was an excellent vehicle for updating chamber members about the work of the task forces.

The college study will be used to close the information gap related to the marketing effectiveness of Wayne businesses to Wayne State College regular, undergraduate students. In January, 1991, the Wayne State College Business Research Class adopted the study as a class project; the long-term objective being to gather input to effectively position Wayne as the "friendliest of all college towns". The study is primarily divided into three parts: 1) research of secondary data sources; 2) conducting a focus group interview with 12 regular, undergraduate students; and 3) surveying a sample of 600 students.

A task force of local business owner/operators has been instrumental in developing the information needs of the study and validating the questionnaire for the focus group interview. On March 12, 1991, the focus group interview was conducted with the local task force viewing it behind a one-way mirror.

Feedback from the focus group interview was used to further develop the survey instrument that will be used to collect data from the sample of 600 regular, undergraduate students. The data will be analyzed to study socio-economic characteristics of the respondent and his/her opinions, attitudes and perceptions of the marketing effectiveness of Wayne businesses.

The primary goal in assessing the rural market area is to develop an accurate profile of the rural residents, to determine what products and services are purchased in Wayne, and to identify the kinds of things Wayne should be doing to position itself as a pleasant place to shop and live.

Once these consumers are polled and the significant future aspects of growth and development are identified, Wayne can best consider its outlook if it continues to do just what it is doing now or whether the future requires change. Feedback from Wayne State College students and residents of Wayne's primary rural trade area enable a more comprehensive look at the long-term marketing techniques and approaches.

Bill offers senior rights

Give Older Americans Freedom To Work

Once again in the 102nd Congress I am cosponsoring a bill that would repeal the Social Security earnings limit for individuals who have attained retirement age. Under present law, a retiree between the ages of 65 and 69 may earn wages up to $9,720 and still receive the full amount of Social Security benefits. For income over $9,720, Social Security recipients aged 65 to 69 have their Social Security benefits reduced one dollar for each three dollars. Benefits for recipients aged 70 and over are not reduced, regardless of their earnings.

Studies have indicated that any increase in the earning limit would generate more in new taxes than the government would lose in increased Social Security benefit payments. It is important to remember too that the penalty applies only to income from wages or salaries. Investment income is not penalized. The seniors who most need the additional income are the ones who face this earnings limit.

Keeping in Touch
By Cong. Doug Bereuter

If we eliminate the earning limit, working seniors will have greater ability to map out their own lives and plan how they want to work and save. And, in many of our communities we will increase the possibility that older citizens can become an important part of the workforce, providing much needed skill and experience.

Last Soviet Tanks Leave Czechoslovakia

Because the world's attention has rightly been focused on the conflict in the Persian Gulf, it is easy to overlook the very important events that are occurring in other regions. For example, last week the last of the Red Army tanks in Czechoslovakia were loaded on flat-bed rail cars and withdrawn to the Soviet Union. The Soviets had 80,000 soldiers and five tank and motorized divisions in Czechoslovakia before democratization. A few soldiers remain, but all of the tanks have left. More than anything else these tanks had come to symbolize the decades of Russian subjugation and control in Czechoslovakia. These were the tanks that crushed the democratic movement in 1968. Now, peacefully and without fanfare, Czechoslovakia had the Soviet Union remove this powerful symbol of the old communist tyranny. It is yet another sign that Czechoslovakia is rapidly becoming a part of the democratic Western world.

Lawmakers start full debate Public hearings conclude

LINCOLN - With most committees having completed public hearings, the Legislature started to debate in full day sessions this past week. We are currently debating bills that senators have designated as their priority bills for this session. The tone has changed dramatically during the past week as senators have started to discuss more controversial legislation.

STATE BOARD OF ELECTIONS

Earlier this month I chose LB 579 as my priority bill. The bill originally called for uniform registration forms to be used by all election officials throughout the state.

However, as the Government, Military, and Veterans Affairs Committee completed its public hearings on numerous bills which proposed changes in Nebraska election law, it became more and more evident to me that we needed to begin a process that would promote positive election reform. For this reason I decided to amend LB 579 to create a State Board of Elections and as committee chairman name the proposal as my priority.

One of the problems that the Government Committee uncovered during public hearings was

Capitol Views
By Sen. Gerald Conway

the inability of local election officials to get undisputed legal advice on how state election laws should be interpreted. State law currently allows both the Secretary of State and each of the ninety-three county attorneys to advise local election officials on election laws. This has resulted in some election laws being administered differently from county to county.

This past week the legislature gave first round approval to LB 579 and its amendment which creates a state board to oversee elections. It is my hope that this will help prevent a repeat of last year's election controversies which included a prolonged election contest in the race for the Legislature's District 30 seat and a Democratic gubernatorial primary that took forty-eight days before a winner was declared.

Best-known names once those of Nebraska hotels

Some of the best-known names in Nebraska's towns and cities once belonged to hotels. Fairbury's Mary Etta, Beatrice's Paddock, Fremont's Pathfinder, the Dale in Holdrege and the Madison in Norfolk were community landmarks and centers of local social activity. They hosted not only conventional travelers, but "drummers" (traveling salesmen), trappers, touring show people, and medicine men selling their patent wares. Along with opera houses, the town hotel provided space for wedding receptions, dances, and parties of all kinds.

Edward A. Bystrom, a traveling salesman during the 1920s, recalled typical hotel rates about 1925: $1. for a "bowl-and-pitcher" room, $1.50 for a room with running water, and $2.50 for a room with bath—a rarity in all but the largest towns. If a room lacked running water, a thoughtful landlord might bring a pitcher of hot water each morning.

Hotel guests could generally get meals as well as accommodations. Some hotels were on the American Plan, in which the guest was charged for meals, whether eaten there or not. Several Nebraska hotels, including the Mary Etta and the West Point, were renowned for their excellent food.

Most of these landmarks are gone—replaced by chain motels or motor lodges. A few were torn down or destroyed by fire; some were refurbished for use as apartments or retirement homes. A number of the survivors are on the National Register of Historic Places, the nation's official list of historic and cultural resources. Outstanding examples include the Arrow Hotel in Broken Bow, the Hendee in Cozad, and the Phelps Hotel in Big Springs. The name "Yancey" was associated with hotels in Grand Island and North Platte; both buildings are now on the Register.

How many of these hotel names can you match with the town of its location?

Name	Town
DeFair	Harrison
Clarke	Theford
Weaver	David City
McCloud	Holdrege
Stockman's	Falls City
Perkins	Hyannis
Evans	York
Grand	Nebraska City
Commercial	Kearney

Wayne County Fair officials take step closer to finalization of plans

WAYNE - Wayne County Fair superintendents met March 21 with the Wayne County Agricultural Society to update the premium list for the tabloid which will be published soon. There still is time, however, to make corrections or suggestions by notifying any of the superintendents, directors or the fair secretary.

Plans are also being made for a talent show on Saturday, August 3. For more information about the talent show, contact Harlan or Carol Brugger of Winside.

Another event for the fair has been announced with the addition of a 4-H style and rhythm show this year. According to Lynda Cruichshank, the 4-H style and review music contest has been added to the Friday night schedule to give barbecue goers "dinner hour entertainment". She added that it will also provide recognition for 4-H'ers in the contests.

The show represents a change, since in the past it has been judged and announced prior to the fair. The judging of the style review and music contest will occur on July 20 during the Wayne County "pre-fair contest day." The 4-H'ers will have to wait in suspense, however, until the night of Aug. 2, when the winners will be announced.

The county fair is seeking participation from all parts of the county for these two events. In order to facilitate this, monthly meetings will be held in different areas. The next meeting will be at the Davis Steakhouse in Carroll Thursday, April 18 at 8:30 p.m. All fair enthusiasts are invited to attend this dutch treat.

NPPD offers help

AREA - Spring is a major tree trimming and tree removal season in Nebraska and improper planning can lead to accidental contact with electric lines or the breaking or pulling down of lines.

That's why the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) wants to assist property owners and private yard and tree firms with the trimming and removal process when the trees are near power lines.

Damage to power lines due to tree removal is costly to NPPD and the threat of serious injury due to line contact is of great concern to district employees.

NPPD is willing to provide clearance for tree trimming near power lines and this service is available during regular business hours at no cost to the customer.

The service may consist of top-ping out trees from the vicinity of power lines, taking the line down so that trimming or removal will be accomplished without damage to the line or the de-energizing of the line to prevent accidental contact.

Most electric lines damaged in tree trimming or removal are those individual services leading from the power pole to the house. Assistance is also available for the trimming of trees that may have grown up into the primary lines generally in the alleys or backyards.

NPPD emphasizes that it is not in the tree trimming or removal business but wants to help with those projects to avoid damage to lines or injury to individuals.

The assistance of NPPD is available by calling your nearest NPPD office.

Parents, 'Did You Know?'

by Donald V. Zels

Students at Wayne High School will have the opportunity to enroll in new courses during the 1991-92 school year.

If students indicate sufficient interest the courses would begin next fall with the opening of school.

One course, fashion merchandising, will replace the present class sewing and will be taught by home economics instructor Mrs. Kathy Fink. Course contest includes knowledge of how clothing is made and marketed, the study of color, design, fashion silhouettes, fashion terminology and textiles. Basic sewing techniques will be learned. The students will also gain experience in the work world by interning in the clothing and fabric stores in Wayne.

An additional course called physical fitness/wellness will be offered to girls grades 10-12. At present advanced P.E. classes are dominated by boys and girls generally are less inclined to become involved. This course is an attempt at involving girls in advanced physical education. Mrs. Marlene Uhing, girls physical education instructor, will teach the class. Course contest includes designing personal fitness workouts in the areas of strength training, endurance, aerobic fitness, flexibility and body composition. Class activities will center on weight training, dance, walking/running and a few lifetime sports activities such as racquetball, badminton, bowling and pickleball.

Drains Run Slow?

You'll never have a slow running, or clogged drain again! The secret? Clean drains don't run slow.

Slow drains, or periodic clogs, are SIGNALS that a thick layer of GOOK is choking your pipes. Grease, hair, and other waste stick to your pipes, with every use. This gook deposits along the entire length of the pipe. It chokes your pipes gradually, as it gets thicker and thicker.

Conventional drain openers can't fix slow drains. They react chemically on the surface of the gook. To be effective, they must remain in contact with the waste. Even a small tunnel through the gook lets them flow out to the sewer, leaving the gook behind.

In the past, the only way to remove this build-up was to roofer your pipes. An expensive, temporary measure.

Now, with just a few minutes each month, you can easily clean out your pipes... and KEEP them clean with Plumb Clean. Its totally unique formula clings, and penetrates deep into the gook. That is what allows it to liquefy even years of build-up. Plumb Clean will clean the entire length of your pipes. It will make your drains run like new, when used as directed. This penetrating action is so revolutionary, we stand behind Plumb Clean with a money-back guarantee!

Saves Money. A 1 lb. container of Plumb Clean holds up to 41 drain treatments. Even if drain openers could fix slow drains, it would take over 10 quart bottles to get the same number of treatments. Plumb Clean costs about 35¢ per treatment. We don't know of anything that cleans drains for less.

Safe Too. Conventional drain openers are dangerous chemicals. They can injure eyes on contact. They can release deadly vapors, in some situations. Some may damage your fixtures. Plumb Clean will not burn skin, or eyes. It will not release harmful fumes. When used as directed, it is 100% safe for people, and of course, all plumbing.

So, if your drains are giving you a SIGNAL, act now. Get safe, guaranteed Plumb Clean today! Available at:

FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH OR POISONED WELL? I recently received a brochure for a condo development sent in by a skeptical reader. The piece was beautifully produced. It promised everything to whoever would buy into the middle of what seemed to be a garden spot watered by the Fountain of Youth.

The condo complex was organized as a senior residence community. The couples in the brochure were supposed to be retirees; all of whom were obviously operating under a full charge of pulsating hormones and looking as if they were having the time of their lives riding horses together, playing tennis; toasting each other across a silver and crystal laden table with an attentive waiter standing by; dancing cheek to cheek to a band dressed in tropical white dinner jackets, and lolling lazily on a sandy lake shore.

The copy was just as seductive, offering potential buyers a "dream." There was also the implied promise of a regained youthful zest for living that came with the condo purchase. And, oh yes, it was a "once in a lifetime offer" that could be withdrawn any moment. The copy urged the reader to move quickly.

The sponsors also insisted that they could not, would not, and should not cite price in the brochure. Paraphrasing their copy, they said not to see them through dollar signs, but visit them and find out how much you really want to be part of what they offer. (Translation: Come listen to our sales pitch.)

This is one more example in a long, continuing stream of sales pitches that hit hard at people who seem most vulnerable: older folks retired on a pension and young couples just starting out. There's the promise of a "wonderful two days in a beautiful setting" where, they say, they'll answer all your questions as you tour the property. (Translation: You won't be allowed to be alone or with your spouse or companion. Someone from the sponsor will always be with you whittling away at your resistance.)

The deals are always conducted quickly and with as few papers exchanged as possible. The rationale is supposed to show appreciation for the buyer's disdain of "red tape." (Translation: We're going to get you before you have a chance to check us out.)

Remember, if it's too good to be true, it's probably neither good nor true. Always investigate before investing. If delay means "losing out" on a deal, you probably "lucked out" instead.

If anyone has had experience with similar sales pitches, or has received similar brochures or offerings, please share them with us. Write me c/o King Features Weekly Service, 235 East 45th Street, New York, N.Y. 10017.

The Farmer's Wife

By Pat Melerhenry

Yes, I got my blizzard! One day after temperatures in the 80s. I slept right through it because I had worked the night before. I had quite a time getting home on the ice that morning, but the Big Farmer almost didn't make it home at noon from one mile away.

We had a glorious Easter Sunday in spite of it. Most of the snow had melted, the roads were dry, the sky was blue, and the temperature got back up to 60.

I'm certainly glad I'm not in any NCAA basketball pool. In this game, on any given night, any team can win.

We have always been a little bit fascinated by politics. Mike is sitting at the other end of the kitchen table right now, reading the Unicameral Update, complaining about a priority bill that would allow tobacco companies to hand out sample chewing tobacco at conventions, county fairs, and convenience stores. Of all the asinine ideas.

Anyway, we went to a dinner last month at which State Senator Elroy Hefner spoke. I'd not met him before, and I kind of enjoyed what seemed to be a good sense of humor. I think you would have to have that to survive as many years as he has in our state legislature.

I had mentioned to the couple seated next to us that Senator Hefner had had a perennial opponent named Bert Evans, from Bloomfield.

Dr. Bert Evans taught Economics at UNL, and since that was Mike's major, he got to know him. When Mike was in grade school, I got to know him, too. What a character. He had an absolutely wonderful sense of humor.

He had studied at Harvard, and had acquired a totally liberal point of view. Since we tend to be conservative, this led to many discussions. Bert had the ability to disagree with you, and argue with you, with a big grin on his face.

It was kind of a craggy face, and he wore his hair long, and had a mustache, so he looked like someone out of an old Western. He kept a Charlois stock cow herd at his home place; and a colleague has said that "In the end, his greatest love was knowledge, the land, and his cattle operation."

Sometimes he came our way, if he was speaking in Wayne or going to a meeting at Walthill. I tried my darnedest to marry him off, but he would not cooperate.

He made the trip from Lincoln to Bloomfield and back hundreds of times, at all hours. Last month, his car collided with the boom sprayer arm of a fertilizer truck and he died a week later.

I didn't even realize that he had studied with John Kenneth Galbraith. The paper says that Galbraith wrote once that Bert "had a special aptitude for afflicting the more comfortable members of the agricultural power structure." That was putting it mildly.

He was another one on my list of unforgettable characters, and I just wanted you to know about Bert. Our lives were enriched by his friendship, and he will be missed.

School gets unusual gift

By Dianne Jaeger
Winside Correspondent

Bill Dalton, industrial technology instructor at Winside High School, was surprised recently when he received a telephone call informing him that the school would receive, free of charge, a 1991 Chevrolet Fleetside Pickup 4 x 2 from the Chevrolet Motor Division, General Motors Corporation.

The pickup is being given to enhance the school's automotive program and afford the students an opportunity to become familiar with the latest in automotive technology.

Since 1972, nearly 9,000 new Chevrolet passenger cars and trucks damaged in transit or by flood have been donated to schools for in-classroom instructional purposes.

IN RECEIPT of the vehicle, Winside school was required to sign a legal affidavit acknowledging they fully understand that the vehicle is to be used in classroom instruction only and cannot be licensed, titled or driven on any road, public or private, nor can any component or components of a donated vehicle be used on or in any vehicle that will be licensed, titled, or driven on any road, public or private.

Winside's vehicle came from P. D. (Shorty) Hayes, manager of the Chevrolet Motor Division, General Motors Corp., Overland Park, Kan.

"TWO YEARS ago, with the full support of the Winside board of education and its administrators, I sent letters to all the major automobile corporations informing them that Winside School had the necessary equipment to test automobile sensors, computers, throttle, body injection and anti-lock brakes, but we needed a compatible vehicle to use them on," said Dalton.

Dalton added that he had given up hearing from any of the companies and began pursuing another avenue by contacting Andy Embrey, General Motors training instructor at Southeast

Community College in Milford. Through Embrey, the school will also be receiving, at no cost to the school district, a 1986 Pontiac Station Wagon and a Cadillac motor — port fuel injected.

"STUDENTS now days are really knowledgeable and desiring more new technology," said Dalton, who has been an instructor at Winside the past seven years.

"We have added Robotics, CNC (Computer Numerically Controlled) Lathe, Lasers, computer aided drafting, and are in the process of adding telecommunications.

"Most of this new technology has been acquired through grants at a minimal cost to the school district and shared by other schools in the Educational Service Unit One service area."

DALTON said that with the advanced knowledge and experience, students will be able to go into the work force with capabilities in computer aided drafting, computer aided manufacturing, auto technology and auto body technology.

"I want to highly commend our high school principal, Ron Leapley, who has been most helpful in applying for grants," added Dalton.

"Winside has a terrific administration and board who care about providing our children with the latest technology which they will need to compete in today's work force."

Dalton also expressed his appreciation to Tuffy and Trevor Hartman of Winside who provided the equipment and transportation to pick up the donated truck in Omaha.

STUDENTS in Dalton's classes annually compete in industrial technology competition at Northeast Community College and Wayne State College, winning many first through third place honors.

Dalton also teaches carpentry, welding, small engines, auto body and auto mechanics, as well as Robotics, Lasers and CNC.

Conference features farm safety

AREA - The N.E. Nebraska Farm Management Conference held March 23, at the Emerson-Hubbard School in Emerson highlighted Global Marketing Issues of farmers by the Assistant Director of Ag. in Nebraska, Paul Johnston, and Farm Safety 4 "Just Kids" by Marilyn Adams of Earlham, Iowa, who lost a son in a gravity flow wagon. Johnston highlighted the opportunities for Nebraska Agriculture in exporting and how Nebraska products compare to other states and what countries Nebraska is working with.

Marilyn Adams highlighted 15 steps to farm safety, such as not allowing children as extra riders on equipment, leaving front-end loaders in the down position, leaving a tractor PTO in neutral, having children take safety training before allowing them to operate machinery and locking away chemicals.

The most popular workshops were:

"Selecting and Controlling the Cost of Health Insurance," taught by Bob Brown, a Health Insurance District Agent from Sioux City, Mr.

Brown tailored his talk to what farmers need to be aware of when buying health insurance.

"Basic and Advanced Marketing," taught by Allen Prosch of the UNL Ag. Economics Mentor Program, helped participants understand and utilize the markets to their best advantage.

"Starting or Expanding the Farm," taught by Farmer and Consultant, Dave Goeller, of Pilger, covered what needs to be in a business plan to pursue financing.

Other workshops were on "Trust," "Financing an Education,"

"Taxes for Corporations, for Women and for Selling the Farm," and "Farm Safety."

The conference brought in approximately 100 farmers, almost an equal number of men and women. This was the second year the University of Nebraska Extension-N.E. Five Count Programming Unit, offered the conference. The conference was coordinated by the Dixon and Wayne staff and 15 planning committee members. The GOLDEN YEARS
By Joe Adams

The Social Security Administration came up with a revolutionary idea in 1976: credit monthly benefit payments directly to a recipient's bank account instead of mailing a check to the home address. The idea caught on. Today, about half of all recipients choose the direct deposit, which is made electronically. It avoids delays in the mail, possible theft of checks from the mailbox, and trips to the bank to deposit the checks. In addition, some banks welcome the steady deposits by granting free or lower-cost checking accounts. Still, some people prefer checks by mail — they don't want to wait for the next bank statement to verify the deposit. But the idea has caught on beyond the world of Social Security — more than 100,000 companies now offer direct deposit for employee paychecks.
How well do older Americans understand the need for eating a nutritious diet regularly? A national survey of people 65 or older found that one out of five skips at least one meal a day, and 36 percent say they never give a thought to the subject of a proper diet.
