

Task force presents final housing report

By Mark Crst
Managing Editor

Housing in Wayne will continue to be tight for a while, but it received a needed boost Thursday when the START Housing Task Force released its final report.

The report comes after almost a year-long study on Wayne's housing market. It outlines suggestions to improve housing availability and affordability for the community.

About half of the report finds barriers to providing affordable housing in Wayne, which is an area of concern. The other half explains studies the committee conducted to support its findings.

Copies of the report have been distributed to a number of Wayne housing and governmental officials. Public copies are available from the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce or any task-force members.

ACCORDING TO the task force report, "area housing officials generally agree there is a housing need for low and moderate-income families."

Report data estimates hiring in 1990 and 1991 will see the greatest increase in the under $13,700 category, where 224 employees (mostly part-time) are expected to be hired. Ninety-four workers are expected to be hired in the $13,700 to $21,900 category and 25 employees in the over $21,900 category are expected to be hired.

To compound the housing shortage, projected enrollment increases at Wayne State College will create an occupancy rate of nearly 99 percent in the residential halls for the 1991-92 school year. That is an increase from the '94 percent occupancy rate this year, which could further strain the housing situation since there is a 1 percent vacancy rate in town.

DESPITE WAYNE'S shortfall of affordable housing, the report outlines a number of suggestions to alleviate the pressure.

The report suggests increases in density for housing areas and moderations in city standards. It also suggests ways to alleviate construction costs and it calls for reviews of city administrative policy.

Areas addressed under land density include establishing a minimum of Special Planned Developments and Planned Unit Developments. The report suggests building in more flexibility to allow developers to increase density in exchange for the provision of open areas. It also suggests allowing lot-splits and separate ownership and zero lot-line construction in new and existing areas.

UNDER MODERATING city standards, the report suggests changes in building and lot codes. The report indicates needs to reduce right-of-way widths and paving widths, removal of park land dedication requirements, and removal of water and sewer pipe size requirements.

In addition, city standard changes include review of storm water drainage, spacing and alignment requirements of manholes, "drive-over" curbs, right-of-way parking, reduction of easement widths and removal of double engineering/inspection requirements. Also, the removal of unenforced street tree requirements that might interfere with solar energy is suggested.

The study calls for reviews of maximum driveway grade requirements, allowing surface street options other than hard surfacing, zoning districts for mobile homes and reviews of the R-3 (residential) zoning regarding minimum lot sizes.

IN REFERENCE to construction costs, the study suggests adhering to national model code and adopting the latest updates to allow for the use of up-to-date materials and techniques that local customs might prohibit. It also notes the establishment of a mutual exchange of tradesmen licenses to encourage free and open competition. It's final construction suggestion calls for an exploration of disposal options of building materials.

Under administrative policy, the report calls for reviews of guarantee requirements of developers; investigation of consolidating with other communities for cost-sharing of planning, zoning and construction inspections; input from local housing professionals on matters concerning housing; city participation (bonding streets, electric, water and sewer improvements); tax increment financing for subdivisions; grant funds for development of affordable housing subdivisions; and reviews of city deposit requirements for hookup to city utilities.

Balka: We'd like input for solution

WAYNE - As Gov. Ben Nelson's tax plan prepares to weather the state legislature, Wayne served host to Nebraska Tax Commissioner Berri Balka Thursday.

Balka, who spoke to a number of Wayne businessmen at Geno's Steakhouse, said during a pre-luncheon interview that there are no easy solutions to the state's property tax dilemma. He said he's more than willing to listen to any suggestions.

The state's personal property tax system was found unconstitutional by the Nebraska Supreme Court March 1.

The tax commissioner said he supports Gov. Nelson's short-term tax plan, made public Wednesday. He said he hopes the plan will offer the state some time to create a long-term solution.

"It's a little early to tell what the long-term solutions will be in general because the three-R committee will take a look at the whole tax program," Balka said. "They'll be looking at different tax rates, structures and programs which will allow us to move forward on a more permanent tax structure."

NELSON'S PLAN includes repealing personal property taxes on business machinery and equipment, with losses to local government of $90 million. Increases in state aid would replace the $90 million lost.

The program also establishes a 1.75 percent surcharge on depreciated property, repeal of the sales tax exemption on energy use by farmers and businesses, and it would cut the fee retailers get for collecting sales tax. Nelson's plan would impose a zero percent lid on property tax increases by local government subdivisions for the coming year, with certain provisions, and it would put all personal property tax back on the rolls effective in January 1992.

Balka said he expects that the three-R committee (Revenue, Revitalization, Restructuring) will find a solution that will work. He said at this point, "there's nothing on the table that might not be discussed."

"I think that people have to look at different ways of moving forward," he said. "Ways that have not been explored in the past."

ONE OF THOSE ways not explored in the past involves changing the way automobiles are assessed. In the governor's current plan, motor vehicles will be assessed a fee, determined by the age, rather than being charged based on the value. Balka said he supports that system because it would provide a flat rate rather than one which could be found unconstitutional.

Balka said his office has received a number of suggestions, either by telephone or by mail. He said the public is well aware of the tax crisis.

"If we want to be 100 percent safe, everything will have to go on the tax rolls under our current system," he said. "Anything moving away from putting everything on the rolls could jeopardize any new system. That is, unless we go in and change the state's Constitution."

Chamber honors WHS seniors

Report: Student responses favorable

By Mark Crst
Managing Editor

Wayne State College students predominantly would like to feel more like members of the community, according to a recent survey by the WSC business research class.

Wayne State College Professor Dr. Kenneth Hallgren said student responses in the semester-long project were very positive toward the community, although the data might not indicate student impressions. He said students expressed an interest in shopping in Wayne if the merchandise they're looking for is readily available.

"This is a market that offers tremendous potential and it's virtually untapped," he said. "Now we have some data that will help us to reach the student market."

SURVEY RESULTS indicate that the student population thinks Wayne merchants are friendly and receptive to them, but limited merchandise and prices higher than more competitive markets take them elsewhere, such as Norfolk or Sioux City.

Of students polled, 57.8 percent said price of merchandise was extremely important to their shopping interests. Over 74 percent said it was quite important to be greeted by friendly personnel.

Unfortunately for Wayne merchants, responses indicate that 77.9 percent of the students said they "sometimes" to "never" check Wayne first when looking for merchandise.

BUSINESSES GETTING the best rating in comparison to major shopping areas, included grocery goods (65 percent), cards and crafts (60.3 percent), fast food (58.8 percent) and drugs/medicine (45.4 percent).

Businesses earning the worst marks were men's clothing (1 percent) and women's clothing (1.3 percent). Student responses for clothing show that 32 percent of the men go to Sioux City and 19 percent to Norfolk, and 33 percent of the women go to Sioux City and 21 percent to Norfolk.

Another area which received poor grades was availability of banking services. Only 22 percent of the students polled said they have a Wayne checking account while 50.9 percent said they do

'They're (students) saying 'yes, there are some bad apples there but let's not develop myths based on a few bad apples.'

their banking services from their home towns.

"The first thing we need to do is have people realize the market is there," Hallgren said. "Right now there is some feeling that there is an alienation by local people toward the college market. That's not every business but the general raw attitude is that there is a problem there. If businesses react, I think they'll get a very positive reaction."

HALLGREN SAID the next step in the process will be to assist merchants in reacting to student needs. Once accomplished, he said students will be much more likely to shop in Wayne or check the community first.

Statistics support Hallgren's idea. Fifty-eight percent of the students surveyed said they would definitely to probably shop more in Wayne if the community responded to their needs. The survey indicates that students would change their shopping trends if the merchandise and pricing they seek is available.

"Students feel good about shopping in Wayne," Hallgren said. "If we look at what products aren't offered locally and what students want offered locally and figure out if it's economically feasible then they might shop more here."

"Once the business community responds, we'll get a favorable response from students. Students are accepting that they haven't been as conscience of shopping in Wayne. They're saying 'yes, there are some bad apples' but let's not develop myths based on a few bad apples."

Of the students surveyed, 31.9 percent were freshmen, 24 percent were sophomores, 21.5 percent were juniors and 22.7 percent were seniors or graduate students. Of the 405 respondents, 62.2 percent were female and 37.8 percent were male.

Runza eyes store in Wayne; waits for closing

WAYNE - Prospects are good for having a Runza restaurant opening in Wayne, according to Carl Sjulin, a spokesman for Runza International of Lincoln.

Sjulin said if everything goes as expected, the Runza building will begin construction sometime in July. The site of the new business will be at 618 E. 7th St., presently the residence of former Mayor Wayne Marsh.

Sjulin said it is hoped that the store will open by the fall, but no dates have been announced. Zoning for Seventh Street is commercial, he said, so there won't have to be any ordinance zoning changes.

DESPITE RUNZA'S optimism about joining the community, a number of residents along Pine Heights Road are concerned with the potential effects on the neighborhood. Sjulin said Runza officials plan to speak to each resident in the neighborhood to help calm their concerns.

While the new Runza is not yet a "done deal", Sjulin said he thinks the business would be a nice added feature for the community.

"They've been looking at Wayne for a long time and they're convinced it will be a great town" to move into, Sjulin said.

The Runza spokesman said a number of the chain's 52 nationwide restaurants are located in residential areas. He said they do everything they can to be consistent with the landscape and designs of the neighborhood.

SJULIN SAID many of his comments were in response to a letter to the editor in the Thursday, May 9 edition of The Wayne Herald. He said he does not anticipate any "neighborhood disruption" from the store. He said the Runza store will do everything in its power to make sure there is no debris or unpleasant odors coming from the store.

"That's not Runza's style," he said. In addition to providing landscaping and designs complimentary to the neighborhood, Sjulin said traffic congestion shouldn't be a problem. He said there are no plans to include parking access to or from Pine Heights Road. He said the access to the business will be off Highway 35.

Sjulin added that the store will be locally managed. It is expected that it will be owned by the Don Everett family, which owns a number of the Runza restaurants. He added that he is married to Renee Everett, executive vice-president of the chain.

"Wayne is a nice community," he said. "I'm surprised we haven't built a store there before now."

Church Women United celebrate jubilee year at May Fellowship Day

The 50th anniversary of Church Women United (CWU) was observed during the annual May Fellowship Day breakfast sponsored by Wayne Church Women United on May 3 in the Wayne Presbyterian Church. Fifty-seven persons attended the event from several area churches.

The 9:30 a.m. breakfast was hosted by women of the Presbyterian Church. Table decorations carried out the theme "Journey Toward Jubilee."

The service was written by Sharon Rezac Andersen of Grand Forks, N. D., with the assistance of the Houston, Texas Church Women United Unit.

THE JOURNEY in the "Journey Toward Jubilee" theme represents the 50-year journey of Church Women United in its commitment to the continuous struggle for peace with justice, human rights and Christian unity.

The jubilee refers to the time when all wrongs in the community are to be set right.

Krista Remer and Kim Imdieke sang "She Who Knows the God of Love," and the Rev. John Mitchell led in the singing of an Israeli round, entitled "Shalom My Friends." Jane O'Leary was organist and accompanist for the service.

CHURCH Women United began in December 1941 as the United Council of Church Women.

The organization set some radical standards for that time, including the issuing of a statement calling for peace, just one week after the bombing of Pearl Harbor, and pledging to "combat the rising tide of hatred caused by war."

In addition, the organization insisted that the newly formed interdenominational women's movement be interracial.

Church Women United members were present at the charter meeting of the United Nations in San Francisco.

During the McCarthy era, the ecumenical women's group issued a "Christian Declaration of Loyalty" which condemned the mistrust and hysteria perpetrated by those within the McCarthy circle. Representatives of the organization met with President Eisenhower to make certain their concerns were heard.

THE NEXT event sponsored by Church Women United will be World Community Day in November. The Wayne Presbyterian Church will again host the event.

State and federal constitutions require the redrawing of boundary lines following the United States decennial census to equalize district populations.

The hearing tomorrow (Tuesday) will be held on the redistricting of congressional, University of Nebraska Board of Regents, Public Service Commission, Supreme Court, State Board of Education and the newly created Postsecondary Education Commission district lines. Concerns with bill

Do you know we have a law in Nebraska prohibiting the distribution of samples of chewing tobacco? We do: LB 48. It was passed in 1989. It does not limit the sale of chewing tobacco. It only prevents free distribution of samples.

There is an attempt now to pass a bill that would allow distribution of samples of chewing tobacco — LB 577. It claims to be restrictive because it does not allow distribution to anyone under age. But why give something that is addictive to anyone? The tobacco industry has several lobbyists working, possibly as many as seven, to pass this bill. This bill is not in the best interest of the health of Nebraskans.

As a dentist, I see inflammation and white patches of tissue; possibly pre-cancerous, in the mouths of persons who chew. I have not seen a case of throat cancer; but it happens. Chewing tobacco is addictive, it is damaging to oral health, and can lead to cancer. Why should we tempt more people to use chewing tobacco? If you don't chew, or if you do
