Event excites local officials

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Meena Dalal and Jo Taylor have reason to be excited. They're organizing plans to bring Chautauqua to Wayne in 1992.

The two Wayne State College faculty members will hold an organizational meeting tonight (Monday) at the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce. The meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. It is open to the public.

"This kind of experience is at the heart of the American ideal," Taylor said. "Educating and stimulating the American mind is a key to democracy. Chautauqua fits with that ideal."

Currently, the emphasis is in community input into the project. Chautauqua is sponsored by the Nebraska Humanities Council.

CHAUTAUQUA originally began in 1874. It started as a means of providing Sunday school teachers training about theology and biblical history. The format quickly expanded into the largest adult education program in America.

Since its inception, Chautauqua has undergone dramatic changes. In 1932 it almost died, but in 1976 it was revived to its current format by Everett Albers, the executive director of the North Dakota Humanities Council.

It is now a nationally heralded public humanities forum which draws upwards of 500 people nightly to a big blue and white tent for evenings of humanities monologue and dialogue.

The theme for the 1992 program is "American Renaissance: The Literature of our Democracy."

DESPITE THEIR optimism for the event, Dalal and Taylor agree that it is still tentative. There is much work to be done before Chautauqua can be staged in Wayne.

"We really want it to be a collaborative effort as opposed to a Wayne State College effort," Taylor said. "We want community people to be involved since this will be a community event."

Wayne AAL branch holds free recycling clinic May 23

WAYNE - Did you know that the energy saved by recycling an aluminum can will light a bulb for 12 hours?

That will be just one of the things the Wayne Aid Association for Lutheran Branch 1470 will tell people when it holds a free recycling clinic Thursday, May 23 at 7:30 p.m. at Grace Lutheran Church in Wayne. The community is invited to attend.

THE WAYNE AAL branch will provide those in attendance with information about the "three R's" of the '90s: recycling, reusing and reducing.

Waste Wise is an entertaining and informative program that focuses on environmental concerns, challenges and solutions. Program participants will enjoy a short videotape starring well-known TV personality, Jesse White (the Maytag repairman). Participants will also learn about the simple steps individuals and families can take to help save the environment.

To find out more about Waste Wise, contact Kelvin or Cynthia Puntney at 585-4736.

Work pays off, Kirkwood House opens its doors

WAYNE - An event that's taken years in the making is about to come true for Jeannia Bottger and Rod Bressler.

On Saturday, May 18, the residents and staff of Kirkwood House celebrated their open house. That event marked the beginning of a new facility in Wayne.

Kirkwood House, a residential rehabilitation center, is professionally managed by First Step, Inc., a private corporation headed by Bottger and Bressler. Michelle Tullberg and Mary Jo and Wally Curtis are also members of the corporation.

First Step, Inc. purchased the four plex at 514 E. 6th on Nov. 10, 1990. Following renovation work, the center officially opened April 1.

According to Bottger, the facility has the physical space for 12 clients. It's under contract with the department of public institutions to provide services for 10. Currently, seven residents are living at Kirkwood. One more admission is planned May 29.

THE FACILITY is staffed around the clock with an anticipated one to six staffing ratio during awake hours. One full-time person is awake and on duty during the sleeping hours.

First Step, Inc. currently has a staff of 12 in addition to their consulting staff. Consultants include Wayne Pharmacist Will Davis, R.N. Julie Sexton, and Gayle Johannson, registered dietitian. Marta Nelson, from Complete Computer Systems, provides computer and accounting expertise.

Bottger, a native of Ainsworth, is a licensed practical nurse. She has 20 years experience as a nursing-home administrator. Bressler, an Emerson native, has five years experience in the nursing home setting. Pam Potter, LPN, is the program's clinical and program coordinator. She has 15 years experience in long-term care. Barbara Clements, First Step's bookkeeper, has nine years experience.

Other current staff include: Lisa McIntyre, service coordinator; Bethany Dittman, CSM; Jody Obermeyer, CSM; Linda Dierking, Norma Emmons, Amy Morris, Brad Clements and Mike Reis.

THE PROCESS for getting First Step began in 1987 when Bottger and Bressler explored the possibilities of providing services for residential rehabilitation II clients. That process began after President Ronald Reagan's signing of the Omnibus Reconciliation Act.

"One of the things this law did was mandate that nursing homes would not be reimbursed to care for people who did not have a serious medical diagnosis," Bottger said.

Although the mechanism to meet the law was left up to individual states, it did specify that "the safe and orderly progression of these people into alternative living arrangements would begin by April 1, 1990 and be completed by April 1, 1991."

With the goal of providing separate housing for clients, Bottger said they ran into some roadblocks. The first roadblock they encountered was in Emerson, where residents there opposed the facility with such force, it made their task impossible to accomplish. First Step then turned its eyes to Wayne and Ainsworth.

DESPITE GETTING off to a shaky start in Wayne, First Step found promise in the community. Since bringing in residents, Bottger said the neighborhood has started to accept them.

"The neighborhood children have come over and bounced a basketball with us," Bottger said. "We haven't felt like anybody in the neighborhood has been alienated by us."

"Actually, people who have schizophrenia are very fragile people and they're afraid of the community. Rather than the community being afraid of our clients, we're afraid of them."

Although the Omnibus Reconciliation Act targeted Alzheimer patients and the chronic mentally ill, in the end the target group were those who suffer severe or persistent mental illness. It was the mentally ill people, who were living in nursing homes, who are being exposed to the community.

KIRKWOOD HOUSE is licensed by the State of Nebraska Department of Health to provide residential rehabilitation II services. The mission of the corporation is to rehabilitate clients who have lived in nursing homes or other institutions so they can function nearly as independently in a residential setting. Staff and residents work together to achieve goals and expectations.

"The residents of the house very much enjoy living in Wayne," Bottger said.

The final service that First Step, Inc. will provide is a day rehabilitation program. Rehab services will be provided at the job site, located at 110 Main St. It is currently under renovation. The building which will house the program used to be The Wayne Herald, the Wayne Veterinary Clinic and Dr. George Goblirsch's office. The job site is expected to open sometime over the summer.

"We hope they will learn some sort of skills that will mainstream them into the work force," she said. "We do not expect them to be able to work an eight hour day, 40 hours per week job. The goal is to get a meaningful job."

WSC professor speaks Retired teachers program focuses on Nebraska heritage

Dr. Donald Hickey, professor of history at Wayne State College, presented the program at the May 13 meeting of Wayne Area Retired Teachers.

Dr. Hickey was introduced by Roberta Welte, program chairman, and spoke on "Nebraska Heritage: People and Institutions."

Hickey pointed out that Nebraska has made a number of significant contributions to the nation's development.

Unique institutions in the state include the Nebraska Unicameral (the only one in the United States), Boys Town (one of the most successful charities in the world), the Nebraska National Forest (the largest of its kind in the country), Arbor Day (the brainchild of J. Sterling Morton), and Big Red Football (one of the cleanest and most successful programs in the country).

DR. HICKEY also named several persons from Nebraska who have achieved national distinction, including Red Cloud, William F. Cody, John J. Pershing, William Jennings Bryan, J. Sterling Morton, George W. Norris, Willa Cather, John G. Neihardt, Marie Sandoz, Johnny Carson, Dick Cavett and Henry Fonda. A poll was taken following the program and revealed that 95 percent of those in attendance were born and raised in Nebraska.

Hickey's program was made possible by a grant from the Nebraska Humanities Council, a state affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The Retired Teachers made a donation to the council.

ATTENDING the meeting and program at the Black Knight were 22 members and two guests, Dr. Hickey and Dr. Jo Taylor.

President Bette Ream presided and plans were made to attend a retired teachers workshop in Lincoln on June 6. Retired teachers will meet for their annual picnic on July 15 at 6 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church in Wayne.

The committee for showing the rural school on the Wayne State College campus will meet June 10 at 2 p.m. to set up a schedule for tours.

The next regular meeting of Wayne Area Retired Teachers will be Sept. 9 at the VFW Club in Hartington. Hostesses will be Shirley Benson and Doris Orwig.

Special gifts for Foundation

WSC names Mattson to post

WAYNE - Mike Mattson has been named director of special gifts for the Wayne State Foundation. The Foundation is the fundraising arm of Wayne State College.

Mattson comes to Wayne State from Nebraska Wesleyan University where he was the director of development. His duties included annual fund raising, alumni and special events and records management.

Previously, Mattson was employed in banking in Chadron, Fremont, Lincoln and Oskaloosa, Iowa.

As director of special gifts,

Mattson will be responsible for identifying, cultivating and soliciting gifts of bequests, trusts, annuities, life insurance, real estate and stocks and bonds. Special gifts are used to supplement Wayne State's annual operating budget, provide scholarships to students and offer grants to faculty, according to Mattson.

Mattson earned his bachelors degree in business administration and accounting from Chadron State College and completed the Graduate School of Banking program at the University of Colorado.

He and his wife, Betty, have two daughters, Julie, 13, and Erin, 10.

Event

With the meeting tonight (Monday), people will be introduced to the Chautauqua experience. From there, they will have an opportunity to gear information for a grant application prepared by the Wayne Chamber of Commerce to the Nebraska Humanities Council.

Just last year, the event was held in Oakland. This year it is being held in Central City and Alliance.

"For the economic development of the community, this has a lot of potential," Dalal said. "For one whole year, the community

Leavenworth names Hickey

WAYNE - Dr. Donald Hickey, professor of history at Wayne State College, has been named the John F. Morrison Professor of Military History for 1991-92 at the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

It is a one-year visiting position that was established in 1974 to bring an outstanding teacher/scholar to the post each year.

Dr. Hickey, who came to Wayne State in 1978, earned his bachelor's, master's and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Illinois.

will get exposure from state wide newsletters. For one whole week Wayne will host visitors from as far away as North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa and Kansas.

IT IS HOPED that if Wayne gets Chautauqua, it will be held the first week in July so it won't conflict with the annual Chicken Days celebration, usually held the second Saturday of July. A site for Chautauqua is yet to be discussed.

In addition to the event, the Chautauqua Society is developing lesson suggestions in the hopes the community can implement them prior to the event.

Information would cater around the American authors who will be featured, like Nathaniel Hawthorne, Walt Whitman and Louisa Mae Alcott, to name a few. Many of the authors come from the transcendentalist movement of the 1830s, 1840s and 1850s. Scholars will perform nightly shows featuring each of the authors selected.

In addition to Chautauqua events, community groups will have the opportunity to perform for a half hour before each evening's show, Dalal said.

"Everyone I have spoken to is excited about this event," Dalal said. "Chautauqua: I'm excited about it."

Filter earns Eagle status

WAYNE - Terrence W. Filter, 18, will hold his Eagle Scout Court of Honor conducted by Troop 174 Sunday, May 26 at 3 p.m.

The event will be held at the Wayne United Methodist Church. A reception will follow the ceremony. The public is invited to attend.

Filter is the son of Dr. William and Carolyn Filter of Wayne.

Filter, a junior at Wayne High School, joined the Cub Scout Pack 175 in the fall of 1982. Since 1985, he has been an active member of Boy Scout troop 174.

In 1986, he was voted honor camper at Ben Delatour Scout Ranch. He has held the office of patrol leader and was a member of the leadership corps.

During his scouting years, Filter has had the opportunity to participate in the following troop trips: 1985, camping at Camp Cedars, Neb.; 1986 and 1988, Ben Delatour Scout Ranch, Colorado; 1987, camping at Itasca State Park, Minn.; 1989, camping and touring Yellowstone and Teton National Parks, Wyo. and 1990, Charles L. Somers High Adventure Camp in Ely, Minn.

For his Eagle Scout service project, he organized and worked on scraping, priming and painting several places at the Wayne City Hall building. This included windows, doors and other structures both inside and outside.

He is a member of the First United Methodist Church. Other activities include varsity band and a member of different art projects.

He is presently employed at Hardee's of Wayne.

Filter is a second generation Eagle Scout. His father, Bill, earned the Eagle Scout badge when he was in scouting.

WSC initiates students into honor society

In place of membership meetings, the group decided to send out newsletters to all members following meetings of the executive board.

Jones awarded nurses scholarship

ALLEN - Floyd Gleason Unit 131 has been notified that Angela Jean Jones, daughter of Bob and Mary Jean Jones of Allen, has been awarded a Nurses Gift Tuition Scholarship from the American Legion Auxiliary, Department of Nebraska.

The scholarship for the 1991-92 school year is in the amount of $500. Proceeds from the veteran made poppies offered to the public on Poppy Day provided some of these funds.

Angela will be a senior at the University of Nebraska School of Nursing. Her summer plans include classes at Wayne State College and working at Pender Community Hospital.

Schutte receives art scholarship

ALLEN - Top art students of Concordia College in Seward received a total of $6,600 in scholarships during the opening of the 1990-91 Concordia Student Exhibition on April 14. The exhibition featured 270 works of 22 students.

Julie Schutte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Schutte of Allen, received the $3,000 Gerald and Georgia Brommer Scholarship. The Brommer scholarship is awarded annually to a student who will be a senior the next semester and who demonstrates artistic skill, a commitment to Christian ideals, and dedication to art production, theory and history as vital elements in a Christian life.

Schutte is a junior at Concordia College majoring in commercial art. Twenty-six of her art works were featured in the exhibition.

NWU gives scholarships

WAYNE - Wayne area high school seniors have received the following Nebraska Wesleyan University academic scholarships. These scholarships are awarded to students solely on the students' academic abilities and record in high school.

The President's Scholarship is valued at $4,000 over four years. It goes to Lanette R. Green, Wayne, Wayne High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Green.

The Plainsman Scholarship, valued at $1,600 over four years, goes to Emily A. McClelland, Wayne, Wayne High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Logan McClelland.

Hastings honors Paige for work

WAYNE - Holly Paige, Wayne, was among the students at Hastings College recently honored for outstanding academic performance.

Paige is the daughter of Jim and Sharyn Paige of Wayne.

Paige was honored for superior scholarship for earning a 3.8 to 4.0 grade point average.

Sports Briefs

Women's softball league starts
 WAYNE - Even though only three teams have registered for the women's summer softball league, play will still be held, according to league officials. Interested participants who have not signed up with a team are still encouraged to contact Dawn Creamer at 375-4262 after 5 p.m. Teams will start playing Wednesday, May 22 at 7 p.m. Any interested participants who haven't gotten on a roster can still do so by showing up for league play or by calling Creamer.

Golf Women hold annual banquet
 WAYNE - "Laugh Ladies Laugh" was the theme for the Wayne Women's Country Club Spring Banquet, recently with guest speaker Pat Meierhenry. Over 60 ladies attended the event held in the newly remodeled club room of the Country Club. Centerpieces of potted flowers and decorations were done by Gloria Lessman and given as door prizes. President Judy Koll announced that the ladies golf league officially began May 14. Morning League will continue to begin at 8:15 a.m. with coffee and 9 a.m. tee times with the evening league teeing off at 5:30 p.m. Noon lunches will again be served followed by afternoon bridge. If anyone is interested in playing bridge please contact Mrs. Ed Wolske.
