RICK AND JEAN DOCKHORN TAKE a moment out of their busy BRAN schedule to pose for a story and picture. The couple, who reside in Lincoln, were among the 500 plus BRAN riders who visited Wayne Thursday.

Communication is a key to suc-cessful riding for Jean and Rick

The Dockhorns were among the 500 plus riders who recently stopped in Wayne with the Bike Ride Across Nebraska

The Dockhorns, who live in Lin coln, ride a two seat bicycle, oth-erwise known as a tandem. The reason communication is important to their ride is not only because they have to be in sync to propel the bike but also because lean is legally blind.

lean, who attended Wayne State College from 1971-74, said the BRAN ride is an event she and her husband look forward to. This is their fourth consecutive BRAN trip.

"I was excited about being here," Jean says. "His sister and I went here at the same time and I wanted to come back and see what it was like. Staying at the campus made it fun."

The couple agree that this year is the best year they've had on the BRAN ride. Unlike many others, they weren't getting tired as the trip went along but they were gaining momentum.

good communication," Jean says. We have that."

Rick says he enjoys riding the tandem bike. He says he enjoys it because if they were riding sepa-rate bikes, he would have to be waiting on Jean.

"This way, she's only a couple seconds behind me," he says, jokingly.

"Very funny," Jean responds.

RICK ADDS that he enjoys the opportunity to spend the quality time with his wife. He said despite the fact her vision is limited, it is not a barrier. He said the time they spend together is fun.

"I enjoy it because the com-pany's there and there's an emotional support network that makes it all the more fun," he says. "We enjoy it. That's all it amounts to.'

Like other bikers on the BRAN ride, both Rick and Jean say they've enjoyed this trek. They say they enjoy the challenge.

"You get to meet a lot of peo-ple," Rick says. "A lot of these people have been on a lot of rides and it's fun to see them again. We all have a common denominator. "We do a lot of things together. She's my best friend."

about legislative session

By Mark Crist Managing Editor

State Sen. Jerry Conway, R-Wayne, said northeast Nebraska came away from the recently concluded legislative session "smelling like a rose" but that was after hours of hard work and much ado.

Conway, who has resumed his duties as an assistant professor at Wayne State, said the legislature was kept busy with a number of priority items this year. He said many were due to the post-elec-many were due to the post-elec-tion year and others were the re-sult of problems created by the state's property tax problem. Most intimate to the Wayne senator, was the redistricting plan. Conway served as chairman of the government committee, which oversees the redistricting process before it's taken to the floor.

Criticism heavy

Conway was criticized primarily for overseeing a process which op-ponents of the Bernard-Stevens plan said broke up Madison County and removed Dixon County from Conway's district, a move they al-lege favored Conway. Under the 1991 redistricting plan, Madison County is now represented by seven senators where before it was represented by six. represented by six.

You have to realize the redistricting plan was not my plan," he said. "As chairman of the committee, I told the other 48 senators that I would not develop a plan, that it was up to other people to create proposals. I was the keeper of the key. Parent notification

One of the bills passed by the Nebraska Legislature was a teenage notification bill, requiring teens under 18 to notify parents or obtain a court order before getting an abortion.

Conway said he wholeheartedly supported this bill.

'Toward the end ... he (Nelson) was letting the minority tail wag the dog, so to speak.'

Sen. Gerald Conway

"Parents should not be excluded," he said. "Being a parent of a teenage daughter, I would be quite offended if the system allowed for this. I don't approve of abortions, period."

He added that children who Block said that approximately 3000 tickets would be available for sale July 1 to attend the Arnold Palmer exhibition game. Proceeds from ticket sales will benefit Girls Incorporated and the Boys Club of Sioux City. Palmer helped break ground for the 2000-acre residential golf course community in March 1989 when he launched a ball from the future site of the 18th fairway across the Missouri River towards Nebraska. Palmer and Palmer Course Design Company architects have visited the course several times since then to oversee its de-

The par 72 course boasts 84 separate tee surfaces and mea-sures anywhere from 5,065 yards from the forward tees to 7,165 yards from the professional tees. The course also features six lakes and many strategically placed bunkers. Block added that week-long grand opening activities would also include opening the private course to public play for one day, Monday, August 19. The Dakota Dunes Country Club will begin taking reservations for this event on July 1. More information regarding the public sign. In will be available later.

IPS Electric and Midwest Gas have also installed miles of underground pipe and electric cable to serve the first phase of residential development."

Extensive landscaping plans were implemented this spring, with over 1000 trees and shrubs being planted along Dakota Dunes Boulevard and throughout the community. Both lanes of Dakota Dunes Boulevard are now paved Construction is expected to begin late this year on a 40,000-square-foot office building at Two Rivers Business Centre, located Rivers Business Centre, located east of Interstate 29 near the existing Dakota Dunes Golf Course.

At the peak of construction, Block said over 300 individuals have been employed through the various contractors working at Dakota Dunes. Approximately $17 million has been invested in developing Dakota Dunes to date.

The 1,600 acre area was built by the Lower Eikhorn Natural Resour ces District and is managed by the Nebraska Game and Parks

Fishing has always been a major attraction at the lake, but bank access has been limited. In 1991 two jettles will be built. The joint project of the Lower Elkhorn NRD and Game Commission also includes a new boat ramp, road and parking lot west of the swimming beach.

Anglers will be intrigued by the introduction of two fish species to the lake. According to fisheries management supervisor Jeff Schuckman, dizzard shad have been stocked to establish a forage base for the larger predator fish.

"Reproduction on bluegill and crappie was insufficient to support a larger walleye population," savs Schuckman. Since the initial stocking of adult shad last year,
