Hallgren offers insight to student survey study

By Mark Crist Managing Editor

Wayne State College under-graduates want to feel more like part of the community. For this to happen, they want Wayne to be-come more involved in their community.

That was the message presented by Dr. Kenneth Haligren to the Wayne Kiwanis Club at a noon luncheon Monday. Haligren offered his analysis of a survey conducted by the business research class. The survey was conducted during the spring semester.

The college undergraduate survey is related to a two year process by the Wayne START committee.

OF THE REASONS for shopping in Wayne or elsewhere, students ranked price, service, name brands and treatment at the top of their list. "Students want to feel like they're trusted," Hallgren said. The WSC associate professor admits that he understands it's difficult for Wayne merchants to be price competitive with Norfolk and Sioux City stores. He added that there are alternative things Wayne merchants can de-

He said a majority of students are looking for merchandise that merchants could make available. Students aren't looking for a broad 'If we can get students to believe we're reacting to the survey...l can see they'll shop locally.'

"If you do this, they'll wait for the sale," he said. "What will hap-pen if you do this, you won't see the margin and you'll end up losing

STUDENTS DID show favoritism toward campus activities. Hallgren said the most common response in the survey was: "If you want us to be involved, and we should be involved in this community, get in-volved in our life. Come up to the hill and see what we're all about."

Predominantly, students said if Wayne showed a sincere interest in their needs and wants, and made that public through newspaper and radio advertising, circulars, direct mail and coupons, they would be more likely to shop in Wayne.

"If we can get students to believe we're reacting to the survey... I can see that they will shop locally," Hallgren said.

With regards to advertising, students perceived the level of importance almost equal among The Wayne Herald, the Wayne Stater, the Morning Shopper and KTCH, according to data from the survey.

"If there's any threat, students will talk" about bad experiences, Hallgren said. "Students who have a bad shopping experience in Wayne will tell 11 people the bad news and only three the good news. ...There's extreme pressure coming from different directions How we adjust to that pressure will determine students' interests in shopping locally."

More & Better OTC Drugs

Over-the-counter drugs (of-ten referred to as the OTCs) are available without a prescription and can be obtained in pharmacies and other outlets. The nonprescription drug class is changing - and for the better. Consider this evidence recently reported in Medical World News: •The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) recently banned 223 questionable ingredients in 19 classes of OTC products. Also, the FDA proposed to ban 111 ingredients in so-called diet products. By 1994 the FDA probably will have banned 400 of 700 ingredients used in 300,000 OTC products that they began investigating in 1972. •In the mid-1990s, patents will expire on many pre-scription drugs that produce big profits for their manufacturers. It is anticipated that OTC versions of these prescription products soon will become

Tuesday night.

According to City Administrator
Joe Salitros, ESC, a company which

The city law reduces water usage rates for qualified businesses that want reductions for lawns, gardens, vehicle washing and air conditioning.

ESC IS asking for its water intake monitored and its sewer output monitored and be charged for the difference. Much of the cooling systems they use require water to operate and that water evaporates before entering the sewer system. The problem the council faces is twofold. One, is to determine over what period annually ESC qualifies for the permit. The other is for the permit. The other is whether it's fair to issue a special permit for sewer while ESC gets a 20 percent water discount.

The 40 minute discussion ended as the council tabled the matter 5-2 until the next meeting. Voting against postponing the decision were councilipersons Wieland and Jane O'Leary. IN A SEPARATE matter, the

Fourteen Nebraska organiza tions, including the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation, are urging the state's Congressional delegation to support legislation that would more precisely define regulation of

The groups said in a June 13 letter to Nebraska's U.S. Senators and Members of Congress that *there have been horror stories for many farmers, landowners, busi-nesses and homeowners who have faced the heavy hand of the federal governing concerning the reg-ulation of wetlands.
"While we are fully supportive of efforts to conserve true wetlands, we believe that there continues to be a need for a more practical ap-proach in the regulations supposedly aimed at protecting wet-lands," the group's letter said.

The Comprehensive Wetlands Conservation and Management Act, H.R. 1330, addresses the wetlands problem by making sev-eral changes in Section 404 of the Clean Water Act, they said.

The legislation would:

 Redefine wetlands in a manner that protects true wetlands.

•Classify wetlands by value and •Require compensation to landowners if loss of economic use occurs.

Exclude manmade wetlands from Sec. 404 regulations. converted crop-

Exclude prior converted cropland from Sec. 404 regulations.
 Clarify the normal farming practices exemption under Sec. 404.

The groups said that many members of their organizations are confused about what constitutes a wetland, uncertain of how to deal with a wetland designation, and concerned about the excessive enforcement of Section 404 of the Clean Water Act.

Groups joining Nebraska Farm Bureau in supporting H.R. 1330 are the Associated Builders and Con-tractors, Cornhusker Chapter; Ne-braska Cattlemen; Nebraska Cat-

The Senators' letter requested funding for programs that address the shortage and training of health care workers in rural areas and grants to hospitals and states to develop rural health care plans. They also expressed their support for funding the Office of Rural Health Policy and National Health Service Corps which assist with delivery of health care in rural areas.

Besides, attending golden an-niversaries are a powerful antidote to reading the divorce pages in the paper. I always remember the story about the reporter who asked the honored couple if they ever thought about divorce in all busy years. The wife an-l, "No, never divorce. The Red Cross provided 4168 meals to disaster victims and volunteers who helped clean-up after the flooding.

The funds for these disaster operations come from the American Red Cross Disaster Relief Fund. since July 1, 1991 more than $40 million has been spent for disaster operations in the United States. Recently the Red Cross had 33 major disaster operations under way around the country.

"Some people within the Red Cross are saying the disasters in the past six months have been even more challenging than Hurri-cane Hugo and the California Earthquake," noted Kelly. "This has been a staggering six months."

This year the number of people served by the Red Cross nationwide is equal to one third of the population of the state of Ne-braska, said Kelly.

All contributions to disaster operations are only used for disaster, and all Red Cross assistance is free—a gift from the American people.

For Americans who continue to work past 65 because they have no pensions or investments, the 70th birthday is the one to cele-70th birthday is the one to celebrate. Working full-time or part-time before 70 to augment Social Security benefits can be frustrating; if you exceed the "earnings limit" set each year by Social Security, your benefits are reduced. In 1950, the earnings limit was removed to people 75 or over 17th was changed to are or over. This was changed to age 72 in 1955, and it's been age 70 since 1983.

As a girl of 12 in New Holstein, As a girl of I are in New holself, Wisconsin, she began keeping a diary because "something told me I was going to have an interesting life. Now I have a closetful of diaries," said the chic singer known as "the incomparable Hildegarde." Her cabaret career took off when she first sang in London's Cafe de Paris in 1933. In the decades since, she re-mained in the spotlight in supper clubs, on radio and in recent years in touring revivals of musical comedies. Her age, wrote one reviewer, "left no visible mark on her peaches and-cream complexion, her 136-pound frame or her witty, exuberant ca-baret persona." Booked for two sold-out performances at New York's Russian Tea Room on her 85th birthday, Hildegarde billed it — at 85!"

Allen royalty quite a pair

By Mark Crist The Wayne Herald

I remember the excitement in the air the night of the Allen Centennial Teen Queen-Pageant. On this particular night, the community also voted for their Senior Citizens' King and Queen.

Sometimes, when you find things out about individuals, you can't help but root for them to win. Such was the case with Joe and Anna Carr, the Allen Centennial Senior King and Queen.

During their years of marriage, the Carrs have lived in Dixon County the entire time. When I found out at the pageant that they had been married for almost 70 years, I couldn't help but find myself excited at the prospect that they would be named Allen's senior royalty.

They were.

After meeting the couple last weekend, I can understand why.

JOE AND ANNA were joined in marriage June 30, 1921. When the Carrs married, they were both 20 years old.

Their romance started in 1918. Anna says she was at church one Sunday evening when Joe came up with some friends and wanted to know if they wanted to go for a ride

"I'd never met him, but I said 'yes, I'd go'," Anna recalls. "We went for a little ride and when we came back he said 'you want to go in and sit with me?' Of course, I said 'yes.' That's how it was. That's how we met."

Through their life together, the Carrs have shared happiness and sorrow. During the Korean War, one of their children was killed. During the 1930s, they survived the Great Depression.

Their oldest daughter, Norma, lives in Sioux City; Joseph Jr. lives in Kansas City; Gary lives in Vista, Calif.; and Marjorie lives in Omaha. The couple has several grandchildren and 24 great-grandchildren,

Joe and Anna Carrare happy to have shared their lives together. The couple was recently selected as the Allen Centennial senior royalty.

THE ALLEN couple are very complimentary of each other. They each praise their spouse for being a good mate and for being a good caregiver, particularly of their children.

"He helps me with my housework," Anna says. "He's always willing."

They're also quick to admit at their amazement at being Allen's Centennial Senior King and Queen. Among their duties will be to ride in the Allen Centennial parade July 7.

"It was quite an honor," Joe says. "I was really quite surprised."

'We've got lots of friends," Anna adds.

The couple moved to Allen in 1945. They said they have enjoyed their lives in the small village because it has good people and a friendly climate.

"There's been quite a few changes since we moved here." Anna says. "The town hasn't grown any but it's a good place to live."

SINCE MOVING to Allen, the couple has lived in the same house 46 years. Joe says when he first bought the home, he didn't plan to live there that long.

"It seems like home," Anna adds with a smile.

At the time the couple was named Allen Centennial Senior King and Queen, they each say they were quite surprised. They admit they don't know what comes with the territory but they're proud to share the honors.

One thing they've done already, is to appear on KTIV's noon show with Jim

"We feel like it's just about the best honor we could have," Anna says.

Direct deposit available for benefit checks

People who are already helping elderly parents who can't manage their own financial affairs should be aware that they can receive their parent's benefit checks directly if they become a representative payee, Thomas O'Connor, Social Security manager in Norfolk, said.

When a person becomes a representative payee, he or she agrees to manage a beneficiary's Social Security or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) checks in the beneficiary's best interest. Social Security sends the benefit checks directly to the representative payee and requires the payee to account for the funds received and that the funds are spent on behalf of the beneficiary.

While most older people can manage their own money very well, O'Connor said, some can't, so they need someone to serve as a representative payee. A close relative, such as an adult child or a spouse, is usually the best person to take on this responsibility. A representative payee won't be appointed unless medical or other evidence shows that it's necessary.

In addition to paying a beneficiary's bills, a representative payee also assumes responsibility for reporting changes that might affect eligibility for benefits.

To get more information about becoming a representative payee, call the Norfolk Social Security office, O'Connor said.

Hobby is satisfying for Gilster

Pender man gets back into hobby

By COREY RUSSMAN

Taxidermy, according to Webster's dictionary, is the art of preparing, stuffing and mounting skins of animals to give them a lifelike effect. To Ardell Gilster of Pender, taxidermy is also a rewarding, satisfying and challenging hobby.

Gilster, at age 67, has a lot more time on his hands now that he has retired after working for Christiansen Construction Co. of Pender for 25 years and at Automatic Manufacturing Co., also of Pender, for around 15 years. His spare time is now filled by his taxidermy work.

Gilster has lived in or near Pender for all of his life. On a farm southwest of Pender is where he first began his love for animals. He has always loved animals ever since he was a kid and would trap, which was one reason he decided to start taxidermy work. His first taxidermy work was when he cleaned a skunk and hung it on the barn door to dry at the age of 12.

Ardell learned the art of taxidermy in 1954 through a correspondence course from a school in Omaha. The course took him about a year to complete, and during that time, he was graded and had to write a report. In order for him to pass the course, his final project was to show his skills in taxidermy by doing any common animal. For this project, he stuffed a possum.

In 1973, however, he gave this hobby up because he simply did not have enough time. Later, after retiring, he came back to it because he had a lot of time on his hands and needed something to do.

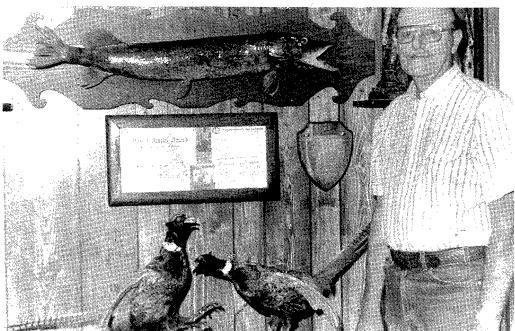

Ardell has done around 50 animals. He can mount "most any kind of animal," and has done fish, partridges, pheasants, ducks, raccoons and possums.

The easiest animal for him to do is a squirrel and the hardest is a deers' head. To him, the deer is the hardest to do because it takes more time than all of the others. It takes him over three weeks to mount a deer head, and it is hard for him because "once you start, you have to stay with it."

Although he isn't working on any animal right now, he is waiting for fishers to bring him their catch.

Many people believe that you would only want to mount your prize animals, but he believes that any size animal can be mounted.

You could mount a child's first fish. It would be nice and would be something for the child to look at for the rest of their life." During the fall seems to be Ardell's busiest time with deer and pheasant hunting season.

Ardell Gilster has mounted a variety of animals over the years, including this northern pike which he caught and a pair of pheasants. He says he can work with almost any kind of animal a person might want to have mounted.

To him, the hardest part of his job is to "bring out the beauty of the animals." and to make them look lifelike. With any animal, you have to get the eyes right, with birds you must shape the feathers right, and with fish, the color must be perfect.

There are several steps Ardell must go through to get the final product.

First, he or someone else must skin the animal. Then he must preserve and process the hide, which takes up to three weeks for a deer. He also has to scrape all the fat from the skin so the hide will not be ruined. Next, he uses a substance called clorox powder to help preserve the hide. Then he must stretch the hide over the form. which he either buys or makes himself. Then he must put in the eyes, and finally, he sews the hide and shapes the animal to look life-

Gilster does most all of his work in the basement of his home during his free time.

There are very few tools that he needs to do his job, and all a taxidermist really needs is a fat scraper, sharp knife, and a needle and thread.

He also said it "takes a lot of time and patience to get the animal right.

Ardell gets much satisfaction knowing that he created something that others will get enjoyment out of for years to come. Having a taxidermist preserve your catch has Ever Wonder What It's Like To Work in a Nursing Home?

Gardening is rewarding, but be sure to cover up & protect from sun

Gardening at home can be a rewarding

But, too often people don't think about properly protecting their skin. Protection is important even when a person is outside for a short period of time.

Gardeners often believe they won't be out too long, so they avoid sunscreen and fail to wear protective clothing.

After two or three hours of digging, planting and watering, sun damage is possible.

Frequent and/or severe sunburn can cause serious skin damage over the years.

Precautions should be adhered to whenever in the sun, but exposure should be minimized between the hours of 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., because the damaging rays are at their strongest then.

Even cloudy days without sunscreen or protective clothing can be risky, because the sun's ultraviolet rays -- the cause of sunburn -- penetrate through clouds.

Prolonged exposure to sunlight with little or no protection represents the major reason why skin cancer is an epidemic in the United States.

Basal cell carcinoma is the most common form of cancer. Others include squamous cell carcinoma and malignant melanoma. All kinds of cancer should be detected and treated immediately.

The location of the cancer, its type and the patient's prior experience with skin cancer all are considered when dermatologists select the most effective treatment method.

Information about skin cancer and about the free MoleWatch® skin cancer screening, provided by appointment at Midwest Dermatology Clinic's 10 offices in eastern Nebraska and South Dakota, is available.

Midwest Dermatology Clinic and its Skin Cancer Clinic can be reached in Omaha at (402) 552-2555, in Norfolk at (402) 371-3564, or by consulting the Yellow Pages for the nearest office.

travelers: take precautions

Summer is the time for sun, fun and vacations. As you take off for that longawaited nature walk, camping trip or week at the beach, remember that less-than-idyllic things can happen in these idyllic set-

One of the most common ailments is "travelers' diarrhea." This illness can be prevented by eating hot foods when hot and cold foods when cold, avoiding raw or undercooked meat or fish, and making sure you drink and eat only pasteurized milk and dairy products when traveling.

If diarrhea strikes, it is recommended that you take an over-the-counter remedy, eat soups, bouillon or broths served hot and drink a lot of fluids to replace lost fluids and restore energy.

Upset stomach, nausea, indigestion and heartburn also can spoil a trip. To calm your stomach, don't overeat, avoid stressful situations and remember to pack an allpurpose stomach medicine recommended by your pharmacist.

To avoid constipation, the number one travel-related ailment, add more fiber to your diet by eating plenty of fruits, vegetables and whole grains. Drink lots of water and make sure you get enough physical exercise.

To avoid heatstroke, postpone strenuous physical activities until the cooler part of the day. Wear a brimmed hat and light-colored cotton clothing.

If someone is over-heated give them cool water, fruit juices and keep them in the shade.

No matter where you are, bug bites and stings may strike. Symptoms of insect bites can include itching and swelling. An insect repellent containing the ingredient DET should be applied to skin and clothing.

Stings can usually be treated with ice and, if necessary, an antihistamine for local swelling. But a severe allergic reaction is a life-threatening emergency.

If an affected person has trouble breathing, nausea or a generalized rash, they should be taken immediately to the nearest emergency room.

If you know you or a family member is allergic to insect stings, a medical alert tag should be worn and ask your pharmacist or doctor about a bee/insect sting kit.

DENTURE MYTHS

""I KNOW I SHOULD HAVE MY DENTURE REPLACED BUT I JUST DON'T WANT TO GO THROUGH A LONG ADJUSTMENT PERIOD AGAIN."

The first time is always the hardest. You're a pro now. You've learned the basics about eating, speaking and wearing a denture. There will be some adjustment, but it will probably be shorter and easier than the first time. And it is important! Prolonged use of ill fitting dentures can irritate the gums, tongue and cheek, and even cause the ridges of your mouth to shrink to the point where it will almost be impossible to fit you with normal dentures. Your ability to chew may decrease and your face may acquire deep aging lines and wrinkles. When you look at the big picture the temporary adjustment period isn't so bad.

These myths and facts about dentures have been brought to you by the American Dental Association and

TAKE A MONTHLY INCOME NOW, FOR A DESIGNATED PERIOD OF TIME --- AND WHEN THE PERIOD IS UP, YOU HAVE YOUR ORIGINAL DEPOSIT BACK.

HOW DOES IT WORK?

You make a single deposit which results in two contracts; a deferred annuity and an immediate income. A sum is withdrawn from the deferred annuity which creates the immediate income, providing a monthly income for a period of time you select. If the current rate remains the same, it will equal your total deposit. This result is not quaranteed if our current rate decreases, but will accelerate if rates increase.

HOW IS THE SPLIT ANNUITY TAXED? A significant portion of each payment is not in-cluded in income since it is a return of your deposit allocated to the immediate income producing annuity. The immediate annuity is not subject to the 10% penalty tax applicable to distributions before age 59 1/2.

An IRS Form W2-P is sent to you in January re-porting taxable income received during the previous year.

Childhood interests lead to retirement hobbies for Osmond farmer

(By Bernice Blecha, Osmond Republican)

For more than 50 years, Ray Krohn's hands wielded the tools of the trade of his father and grandfather - reins of horse harness, shovels, tractor steering wheels and other farm equipment - including 25 years of custom grain threshing and corn shelling. It would seem a little unlikelythat, come retirement, these same hands Crocheting finished would adjust to the more delicate tasks of using a crochet hook and a weaving frame. But that is exactly what transpired, and Ray's new interests have occupied much of his free time since he and wife Dorothy moved into Osmond in 1981 tertains in several from the three-generation family farm communities. northwest of town where Ray's grandfather first settled in 1907.

A visit by a daughter-in-law, Mrs. H. Dale (Candy) Krohn, set the stage for the beginning of Ray's hobby - he watched as Candy crocheted an afghan. During his observation, Ray kept in mind a drawer of socks which had accumulated - not really good enough to wear but still good enough that there should be some use for them. Could Candy teach him to crochet? Maybe then he'd find a use for the socks.

Candy provided one basic lesson. From then on for Ray it was "learn as you go" as he began crocheting oval rugs. That was in 1980, the final year of farming for the Krohns. Since then he has made more than 100 rugs.

Slacks Provide Fabric

"recycled" double knit polyester slacks, and, he opines, women's slacks work best since they usually don't have pockets or heavy strips, kept "continuous" by a method of making rounded corners. Width of strips knit strips will vary from 1/4 to 3/8 inch while single knit strips may be as wide as 11/4 inches and then folded for added thickness. The number of garments required for a rug depends on whether Ray's cutting from a man's size 48 slacks or a woman's size 10. As the strips are cut, they are rolled into neat balls. A number of boxes contain assorted plain and patterned balls of fabric strips. Cotton does not work well, Ray says, because the nature of the fabric doesn't allow for cutting it into the narrow strips. Tube socks, however, do work well because of the weave of the material. The tube sock rugs are made from macrame cord with a strips have a natural roll which gives a pleasing look to the finished rug.

The size of the crocheted rugs is about 24 by 40 inches. Each takes about 40 hours to complete. The majority of Ray's rugs are created with a size J crochet hook. The only other equipment needed is a card table to work on. Most of the crocheting is done in the couple's living room as Ray watches TV. The patterns? Many of them happen quite by accident, Ray says. And, there are generally no two exactly alike.

During the years he has been crocheting, Ray says he's learned to blend colors a heavy coat lining. for more appeal. He does consult his wife for color schemes, but the two readily agree that they do not like the same com- created placemats for granddaughters and him was "Auch Du Liebe Augustine." binations. So, Ray chuckles, "if she children for whom his wife would babysit. From that start nearly 70 years ago, Ray doesn't say an emphatic 'phew' to my Also made of the finer cord were learned "Home, Sweet Home" on his

Some Rugs Woven

Ray's hobby is not limited to the crowaistbands men's have. Slacks are cut into cheted rugs. He also creates woven rugs on a frame which he sets up in his basement. The 4x6-foot frame is marked and depends on the fabric being used. Double numbered, and one works outward from "0" at center toward both sides. The fabric strips or cords are thumbtacked to the frame. He has fashioned an iron bar to "snug up" the woven fabric and then uses a screwdriver for a final tightening of the strands. Keeping an even tension is probably the most important factor in completing a nice flat rug which is straight and has no bulges, he points out. The rugs are first basted or sewed by hand so they can be taken off the frame without coming apart. The ends of the rugs are then bound on a sewing machine.

Some of Ray's finer looking woven shiny finish. The brightly-colored macrame cords are harder to come by now, Ray notes, adding that they are no longer as popular as they were some years ago. People now prefer the natural look of the jute-type cord, he says. Consequently, he relies on persons who are disposing of leftover cord for his supply. One of his woven favorites is a "Christmas rug" of red, green and gold with accents of other colors. Also among the woven rugs are one made entirely of assorted colored men's and women's felt says. hats and another fashioned from fabric of miniature rugs to be used with doll furniture.

Durability Proven

Sometimes individuals will "order" rugs of a particular color. He does sell some, but has given many as gifts to friends and family, and quickly points out that the rug making is a hobby, not something he's "in for the money." He estimates that a rug of the tube sock variety would probably sell for $15 to $20, and that better crocheted or woven rugs could go as high as $40 to $50. He has made a rack in his basement to display the rugs which, he emphasizes, are very durable. The couple has had several crocheted rugs in use for nine years in their home. "They make the best bath mats you can find,'

Music Is Another Love

Ray, who will be 77 in August, doesn't limit his time to the rug crafts. He rides a stationary bike in the basement for exercise, since his health no longer permits him to walk long distances. He learned to play the accordion at age seven and he now shares his music with others.

He has a regular monthly schedule for entertaining at Osmond General Care Center, at six other area nursing homes, and at Plainview Senior Center. He also plays occasionally at Osmond Senior Center and for community events such as barbecues and the Northeast Oz Block Party. Most all of Ray's "concerts" are of the free-gratis type, however, occasionally he is offered some compensation, he

Ray came to play the accordion the way many early day musicians did - a Among the macrame cord given Ray talent shared with him by his father. The was some of a small diameter. From it he first — and only — song Ray's dad taught own and continued to add selections, all played strictly by ear. In the early years, he played for barn dances and house dances. A performance which was special for Ray was to "spell" his uncle who was providing accordion music for a silver anniversary dance for Ray's parents. He recalls that the family cleared out a machine shed, put down shiplap for a floor, and invited family and friends to the celebration. After the dance, the floor was taken up and used for walls in granaries and other buildings.

Ray and his wife, the former Dorothy Friedrich of Plainview, are looking forward to celebrating their 45th wedding anniversary on Sep. 26. Their family includes four sons, four daughters and 23 grandchildren.

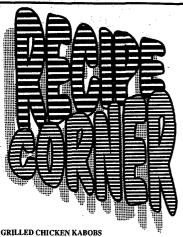

Hobbies Attributed to Parents

As Ray reflected on the activities of his retirement years, it's evident that his parents laid the groundwork for what would become hobbies for him after leaving the farm. His dad was the encouragement behind the accordion playing. His interest in a craft such as rug making, he suggests, had its beginnings way back when, as a lad, he occasionally helped his mother quilt with a needle or tie quilts.

People using diet to modify cholesterol

People in the United States are using cholesterol-lowering behavior at a greater rate than ever before, the Nebraska Medical Association reports.

From 1983 through 1989 visits to physicians for high blood cholesterol levels increased nine times. There was a fivefold increase in the dispensing by retail pharmacies of prescriptions for cholesterollowering drugs.

Americans are hearing and acting on the diet message. They are moving toward a better diet and healthier lifestyle in general, the association reports. From the mid-1960s until 1984, fat as a percent of American's total diet energy intake has declined from 42 percent to 36 percent and appears to be headed still further downward, according to the association.

South Sioux City couple enjoy foster care experiences

By The South Sioux City Star

It isn't easy to be in your 50s and have a seven month old baby.

Far from being a story about some strange medical miracle, this is a story about a South Sioux City couple whose home, over the years, has been filled with children that no one else wants.

Bennie and Nancy Bolton are foster parents. They have taken care of 20-25 children in the past 17 years.

The Boltons' introduction to foster care came by accident when Nancy was working for the South Sioux City Community Center.

"When I was working at the Community Center there were a couple of times when kids were just left there with no place to go. We'd call the police department and the welfare office and no one knew what to do. They'd ask me if I could take the child home for the night," says the 51-year-old mother of three. "After this had gone on for quite a while, someone suggested we should become licensed foster-parents and get paid for the expenses. That was 17 years ago."

Though the Boltons became foster parents by accident, it was no accident that the couple has kept taking children for almost two decades.

"We have always been really fond of kids. We had kids around all our life," said Ben.

The Boltons, unlike many foster parents, specifically take on children with special medical needs. They currently are caring for a seven-month-old baby girl whose premature birth, and resulting complications, forced the small child to be on a heart monitor.

The Boltons also recently received guardianship of an 18-year-old girl, Georgette, who has profound Cerebral Palsy.

Georgette has lived with the Boltons for 16 years. Georgette's mother placed the child with the Boltons through Region IV Services in South Sioux so that Georgette could attend special education classes at the Bryan Special Education Center here.

Georgette was the Boltons first "official" foster child after the couple became licensed to provide foster care services.

Bennie and Nancy Bolton have taken care of 25 foster children in the past 17 years. The Boltons say that the many reasons they participate in the foster care program is for their love of children.

Coup

Georgette needs constant care from the Boltons. She can neither walk, nor talk and every basic living skill is accomplished only with assistance. The Boltons don't mind though, to them, she's perfect -- she's their

"She's not that hard to take care of. She's small and easy to lift," Nancy said.

The couple's own children, two daughters and a son, grew up with Georgette. Nancy says her children always treated Georgie as a sister.

"Our kids thought nothing of it (Georgette's handicap). The were more than willing to babysit. They'd take her with them when they went places or to events at school. Even now, if anything ever happened to us, our kids would want to take Georgette," Nancy said.

The Boltons said Georgette has been a real addition to the family and they wouldn't have passed up the chance to share their lives with her.

'We've had a lot of fun with Georgie. A lot of good times. We took George camping once and I tell you, I wouldn't have missed that for the world," laughs the 52-year-old Ben, "She was so excited she couldn't sleep all night. She wanted to spend the whole a part of the family. night talking to the moon!"

The Boltons have had quite an assortment of youngsters for foster children. Ben said some of the children that have entered their home have not been perfect angels, kids whose lives are so troubled that they are almost unreachable.

"We get some kids that no matter how much you try, they're going to defy you," Ben said

Ben said the couple has been foster parents for quite a few younger children about two to three years old. He said helping the young children is rewarding work because all it takes is lots and lots of love.

"It is really satisfying to see what love and affection and good food can do. You get so attached to them. You get awfully attached to the little ones and they can be a lot of fun but you sure miss them when they go," Ben said.

The children who seek refuge in the Bolton home are under the protection of the Nebraska Department of Social Services. The goal of Social Services and the foster care programs is to get the children reunified with their parents and that means the stay at the Bolton home can be short-term or takes months or years.

No matter what the length of stay, Ben Bolton says the majority of children become

"They all call me Papa," he says.

Senior golf league is a big hit

By Kevin Peterson Wayne Herald

What started out as a simple idea being tossed around by a few local gentleman has emerged this summer into perhaps the only golf league of its kind in the state.

Lyle Garvin master minded the idea of a unique golf league consisting of senior citizens throughout the Wayne area in an effort to not only get more senior citizens outdoors to enjoy the summer, but also to promote a little more good will between the communities.

Even though Garvin was the man with the plan so to speak, he got help in forming what is now being called the Northeast Nebraska Senior Citizens Golf Milo Meyer chips a ball onto the green of number 18 at the Wayne Country Club during a recent senior golf outing.

League from Dale Gutshall, Adolph Hingst, Roy Coryell and Gordon Nuemberger.

"What we do is play every Monday morning in one of four locations which alternates every week," Garvin said. "We play courses in Wayne, Wakefield, Laurel and Pender and we are now invited to go play in Hartington and there is even talk of adding Stanton which means the word is spreading about the league and all seems to be positive."

Each town that is involved in the golf league has two representatives which are used as the spokesman for others to go to if questions arise. "In order to qualify for the golf league you have to be 55 years of age or older," Garvin said. "Then you just show up at the designated course at 9 a.m. on Mondays and play begins around 9:30."

Senior Citizens who do not belong to the golf course in their respective towns are still encouraged to come out and play in the golf league. "It costs regular green fees for those who are not members of any of the area country clubs," Garvin said. "Those that are members of a particular country club and are playing on another course pay just $4."

Garvin also encourages everyone eligible to come out and play even though the league has started. "Anyone can come on any Monday," Garvin said. "The host course decides what we play on the day we get there and it ranges anywhere from a four-man scramble to best ball or just regular golfing with each keeping their own scores."

There are weekly prizes and pin prizes given following each golf outing and those are presented at the luncheons which are optional for the golfers. "When we show up on Monday we sign up on a sheet if we are interested in eating lunch afterwards," Adolph Hingst said. "Lunch is served at all locations with Wayne, Wakefield and Pender catering it in while Laurel has their own grill and cooks right at the club house." Each golfer pays his own lunch.

Hingst was in Arizona when the original idea was formed but was quick to get involved when he returned. "I love the outdoors," Hingst said. "This sounded like a great idea to me because the object is to get involved in playing golf with people in other communities which has gone over very well to this point."

There are over 60 golfers from the four communities who have played in the newly formed league so far and the numbers keep increasing which has the local senior golfers smiling.

"You can play golf for a lifetime," Hingst said. "This is going over so well that now there is a group of senior citizen women playing on the days we play only at different courses."

Although each individual golfer in this league has expectations to where they eventually hope this league goes, Garvin has gone one step further in saying he eventually would like to see a league formed for all golfers from area towns regardless of age.

"I'd like to see somewhat of a traveling golf league," Garvin said. "It could be set up like a traveling bowling league where you visit one place each week."

"If you can dream it, you can achieve it" may be an old adage, but the development of the Northeast Nebraska Senior Citizens Golf League proves that you are never to old to dream.

Lee Tietgen takes a swing on the number 10 tee box at the Wayne Country Club during a recent senior golf outing. The Northeast Nebraska Senior Citizens Golf League began this spring and has quickly grown with members coming from Wayne, Pender, Wakefield and Laurel. The rotating league was designed to promote good will between towns and as a form of recreation for gentleman aged 55 and over.

Social Security aids funds

Social Security benefits were never intended to provide all of a person's retirement income or to replace all of one's preretirement earnings. Social Security is designed to provide a base of income on which one can build to achieve his personal lifestyle.

Most experts agree that a person needs about 75 percent of pre-retirement income to maintain his or her lifestyle in retirement. Social Security replaces about 65 percent of pre-retirement earnings for low earners, about 40 percent for average earners, and about 25 percent for high earners. (The difference recognizes the lower earner's dependence on earnings and relative lack of access to other sources of retirement income.) With proper planning during working years, a person can use insurance, savings, investments and other types of retirement income to supplement Social Security and provide for the later years.

Social Security now makes retirement planning a little easier. We provide a Personal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement that shows the earnings credited to your Social Security record and an estimate of the retirement, disability and survivors benefits payable on those earnings in today's dollars. This permits you to plan what else you need to provide financial security.

You can get a copy of the statement from any Social Security office. We will give you a form that you can complete to send for the statement. It usually takes about three weeks to receive your personalized benefit statement.

In the meantime, you should be reviewing your other retirement income sources — insurance, investments and savings. Remember, planning is the key to a successful retirement. Using Social Security as a base on which to build, you're more likely to end up where you want to be in your retirement years.

Randolph's St. Frances Church readies for centennial celebration

by Angie Nordhues, Randolph Times

Randolph's present day church was built in 1917. The parish worked for three years to secure money for the Romanesque brick structure with a seating capacity of 675. Total cost of the structure was $75,000.

IN 1991, Randolph's St. Frances de Chantal Catholic Church is receiving new shingles.

Randolph's St. Frances de Chantal Catholic Church is making preparations for a centennial celebration. The passing of last week means the centennial date is exactly one year away. Its date is set for June 14, 1992. Committees have been formed as the parish readies for the Several changes the church has gone through this month in preparation have been gaining a new priest and gaining new shingles on the roof of the Church.

Father Jack (John) Hebert arrived in Randolph on Tuesday, June 11. He has replaced Father Don Stortz. His previous assignment was at St. Peter and Paul in Butte. Randolph's first resident priest was Father Albert Hork in 1894. Before Hork, Randolph entertained visiting priests for Masses.

On the Church roof, shingles are being replaced. The crew began on the Church's highest point, the steeple and are working across the Church.

Randolph's first Church was a wooden building 24' by 40' built in time for an Easter Mass in 1892. According to Rosalee Nordhues, parish council president and centennial organizer, the committee decided that a centennial celebration in the summer would be attended by more rather than a spring

"Some Churches just don't last this long," Nordhues said. "This is why it is important to bring back the history of the Church to let people know or remind them. It is really interesting to learn about the good times and the hard

"One year passed when times were hard. The parish had to pass a hat to collect enough money to keep the priest. It was a time when crops were bad and grasshoppers were taking over the crops," Nordhues said.

Another aspect of the centennial will hardiner aspect of the centeniar wind be recognizing those families which were there for beginning of the parish and their names are still around today, according to Nordhues. This type of heritage and tradition is important and should be recognized.

At present, St. Frances Catholic Church involves over 375 families.

Nordhues said the centennial committee was formed last fall with twelve members. They include Helen Dwyer, Shirley Schmit, Velma Jean Lange, Linda Korth, Joann Tunink, Rose-mary Nordhues, Joan Steffen, Donna Gubbels, Vickie Alderson, Karen Nannen, Joann Ekberg and Mary Ann Schurman.

Some of the details and events that have yet to be planned include a reception and dinner, setting up for a special Mass, a skit, sending invitations to former priests and other dignitaries, according to Nordhues.

The committee has already decided on souvenirs, had a fund raiser breakfast and decided on a pictorial company to photograph families for the Church's centennial book

In 1899, Randolph's first Catholic school was built. In 1910, St. Frances School was built. Nordhues said many of the historical items from the school have been lost over the years.

Newly-arrived Father Jack (John) Hebert will be performing masses at St. Frances Catholic Church in Randolph during its 100th year of worship.

Anderson enjoys Randolph because of many friendships

by Angie Nordhues, Randolph Times

Since 1932, Frances Anderson has lived in Randolph. She said she first came to Randolph to teach. She said she has remained in Randolph because of the many friendships she has developed over the years.

After teaching first grade for six years, she married Ed (Mike) Anderson in 1938. She said she quit teaching to take care of her family until her husband died in 1960. She then went back to teaching fifth grade for 10 vears.

All Randolph's students were in one building when she taught at the public school, Anderson said.

Born May 23, 1906, Anderson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Elder of Atkinson.

She has two sons, Robert and Richard. Robert Anderson is an attorney employed with patents and trademarks in Washington. Richard Anderson is employed at Burlington Northern in Havelock and married Mar-ion Strathman, also formerly of Randolph. She is employed as a secretary at Kawasaki. The couple have three children, Laura, Linda and Lee.

Anderson said her granddaughter, Laura (Mrs. Patrick Gibbons) was married last summer and her other the West Side basketball team in Omaha gatherings. and is employed at Mutual of Omaha. Both Lee and Linda Anderson are students at the University of Nebraska

After graduating from Wayne State College, Anderson said she first taught at rural schools around Atkinson, before teaching at Randolph.

Her husband worked at an electric, plumbing and heating business in Randolph, according to Anderson.

Anderson has been involved in her community as a 50 year member of Eastern Star, charter member of the Randolph Senior Citizen Center, member of Mary Group at St. John's Lutheran in Randolph, was an elder at the Randolph Presbyterian Church before it was closed and serves as Randolph's contact person for the Cedar County Handi-bus.

"The bus usually takes 13, but doesn't go unless four passengers will ride. It has to go if someone has a doctor's appointment," Anderson said.

Anderson said she has really en joyed the Randolph Senior Center.

"I meet so many people there (at the Center) that I wouldn't have otherwise," Anderson said.

Most important in her life have been all the good friends she has made in Randolph, her family and grandchildren, according to Anderson.

"My parents were a great influence on my life," Anderson said. "I was adopted when I was six weeks old."

One thing Anderson said she tried, but didn't like, was nurse's training. She said she tried it for three weeks.

"I've always wanted to go to Holland, that's where my ancestors are from," Anderson said. "My granddaughter, Laura, was in Luxembourg and brought me souvenirs."

"I've always en joyed teaching," Anderson said.

One thing she said she enjoys now is knitting, especially baby booties.

Laurel Senior Center continues as gathering place

hy David Carstens, Laurel Advocate

A popular gathering place for Laurel seniors is the Laurel Senior Center. Located in downtown Laurel, the center has been open for just over ten years. The center provides constant activities for approximately forty socially active Laurel seniors.

Carolyn Sherry, a longtime Laurel resident, serves as Director and Chief Administrator of the center. She coordinates staffing, various activities and handles the financial affairs for the center. Dorothy Mohr of Laurel has served as president of the center and its operational committee for four years. Mohr is also responsible for running the center when Sherry is absent.

Unlike many comparable centers, the Laurel Senior Center does not have a full-time meal program. The center does however feature a popular Potluck Day granddaughter, Linda is scheduled to each month, where each member brings be married in July. Her granddaughter a covered dish. The center is a non-profit organization that is partially funded by the Northeast Nebraska Committee on Aging based in Norfolk. The center splits its operating costs by fifty percent with the committee. According to Sherry, the center must raise the other fifty percent by holding different fund raisers throughout the year. Recently, the center sponsored a pie and ice cream social at the Laurel Ag Days celebration. The pies were baked by the members. Almost all of the fundraising methods the center is involved with utilize the talents of the members. The center members even help in the cleaning and maintenance of the center itself. "This tends to hold our operating expenses down, while at the same time giving the members a sense of in-volvement," said Sherry. Sherry stated rising costs it takes to run the center. tional funding is gained through rental

Planning can offset retirement confusion

Every working American spends nearly 40 years paying into the Social Security fund, yet may lack a complete understanding of how the fund works for retirement. Many options as well as obligations confuse the average worker who is trying to plan for their retirement payout.

Additionally, circumstances surrounding retirement have dramatically changed for many retirees, casting uncertainty on how best to receive their retirement benefits from Social Security.

In the years prior to the adoption of the Social Security Act, many workers never retired. After the fund was started, the typical worker retired strictly to a life of leisure. Today, many "retired" workers hold part-time jobs.

"My grandfather worked until he wore out, my father retired and sat down to his hobbies, but I intend for retirement to be simply a change of careers someday," explains financial planner George Phelps of Wayne. "These days, retirement means something different." Dan Garner, financial planner in Osmond agrees.

"How you view retirement can make a big difference not only in the amount of money you need to save, but also in the payout option you choose for things like IRAs and Social Security," he says.

Some of the options available to retirees are reduced benefits started between age 62 and 64, full benefits started at age 65 and enhanced benefits when started after age 65.

"Many people haven't been told that they can take a partially reduced benefit at age 62," says Ray Welsh, a Pender financial planner. "Once we do the analysts with this in mind, find out they actually can retire early with a part-time job."

Drawbacks do exist, however, for some who take early benefits and continue to work. One is the income tax imposed on a portion of benefits if earnings from employment and investments are too high. The formula for determining if benefits are partially taxable is a very complicated one and best explained by a professional.

"We can actually plan a person's retirement income and avoid most of these unnecessary taxes, though, by monitoring the triggers in the income tax formula," says Brad Chadwich, South Sioux City financial planner. "The key is looking at the entire picture, not just looking at investment returns."

Tax free income from investments is one of the triggers in the income tax formula of Social Security investments, so an individual's choice of investments can make a difference in avoiding additional taxes.

Because of all the choices involved, Social Security benefits are not automatically paid when you qualify for them as is popularly believed. Benefits must be applied for and cannot be retroactively paid for more than six months.

Another option many people do not fully understand is that every person is entitled to choose the larger of their own benefit or one half of their spouse's benefit.

"This can be an especially useful planning tool for couples who are in business together," according to Chadwick. "In many cases, the couple is best advised to take one income instead of two."

Chadwick adds that the choice is based upon several factors and each case should be considered individually.

In order to make sure the client receives all the benefit they're entitled to, Dan Goeken, district manager for IDS Financial Services, says he usually recommends the client do the following: gather definite proof of age and relationship; verify that former and/or current employers have the correct Social Security number recorded; and inquire with the Social Security Administration to receive an estimate of benefits.

"The procedure for inquiring is really very easy and we have the forms in our office," Goeken says.

Direct deposits from Social Security a viable, safe option

"If you get Social Security or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits," says Tom O'Connor, Social Security Manager in Norfolk, "you can now choose a safer way to receive your payments — Direct Deposit."

Unlike paper checks which can be lost, stolen or misplaced," says O'Connor, "with direct deposit, payments are electronically deposited right into your checking or savings account." That makes receiving Social Security payments by direct deposit much safer than having a check mailed to your home. "In fact," says O'Connor, "if you have checks mailed to your home, you are 16 times more likely to report a problem with your payment than if you had direct deposit."

With direct deposit your money is safely in the bank at the opening of business on the same day payments are scheduled to arrive in the mail. "It is reassuring to know that your money will be in your account on a certain day and ready for you to use," says O'Connor.

Signing up for direct deposit is a quick and simple process. "It's easy," says O'Connor, 'all you have to do is call Social Security's toll-free number 1-800-234-5772." The best time to call is Wednesday through Friday, early in the morning or early in the evening, according to O'Connor. When you call, be sure to have a personal check or bank statement available, as well as your Social Security Claim Number. The Social Security representative will need this information to start direct deposit.

The local number is 402-371-1595.

Wayne Monument Works: service above all else

Keith and Imogene Brasch and their three sons, Leon, Brian and Andy, took over Wayne Monument Works in 1984 from Harvey and Mardell Brasch,

The monument business is becoming more competitive all the time because a lot of funeral homes have become involved in trying to sell the funeral; the casket and stone or lettering all at the same time.

The Brasch's feel they should be separate because each is a big decision and requires the customer's full attention at the proper time.

"People need time to think about a marker and its meaning because it will be there forever," Keith says.

"The first question we ask is what cemetery is it for and if there are other relative's markers there that they want to match," he adds. "If they want to match a relative's stone, we have records dating back to 1917."

If nothing can be matched, Wayne Monument Works starts with what stone color their customers want; whether it will be gray, brown, black, red or some other color. Then they talk about the type of marker: a monument, a slant monument, hickory or whatever.

"We have a lot of varieties in our showroom for people to compare the actual size and color," Imogene says.

There are also a variety of finishes or polishes available from no polish to everything polished. There is also a variety of polishes that fall between the two cate-

"Then we talk of lettering styles available from samples and what design would be appropriate for the marker," Keith says. "The design may vary from a single flower to a full scene, depending on the people.'

Wayne Monument Works is a family business. They sell the product, do the design and lettering in their own shop in Wayne and then they take it to the cemetery. The person who sells the marker follows it through to the end product.

Keith and Imogene are always willing to have people stop in and see what they have to offer. If customers are unsure of something, they draw it up exactly as it will appear on the marker. They can also make any changes to it before anything permanent is done.

"We want the customer to be pleased with it," Imogene says.

Often, they will be asked why people should have a stone. The reasoning, they believe, is simple.

Well, besides the fact it is good business for us, I would want to feel like my life is worth something," Keith says. "It shows that you once lived and it leaves your mark behind."

Wayne Monument Works is the only monument firm left in northeast Nebraska that does its own sandblasting locally. They invite anyone or group wishing a tour to contact them and they will be happy to set up a time for showing the various processes of engraving markers.

An important message from:

Paus Motor Sales in West Point, together with General Motors, has noticed the need for specialized vehicle conversions for the physicallychallenged.

GMC, in cooperation with the Center for Rehabilitation Science at Louisiana Tech University, has developed a comprehensive information program for physically-challenged consumers and their families. They also have added a reimbursement program for these persons so that when they buy a GM vehicle they can receive purchasing assistance for adaptive equipment.

As a participating dealer in this national program, Paus Motor Sales can match driving devices to customer needs.

Under the program, Paus Motor Sales, through GMC, will reimburse the consumer for the cost of adaptive aids, including installation, up to $1000. This is in addition to any other consumer rebates or incentives that may be available on the vehicle. Also, GMAC, the financing arm of General Motors, will finance any additional cost of adaptive devices above the $1,000.

Paus Motor Sales in West Point has information packets and a video tape, "On the Move Again," available on this subject. This tape, which was produced by GM, provides information to people with disabilities and their families regarding the process for becoming a licensed driver and the various types of vehicle modifications and adaptive equipment that are available. Paus Motor Sales has reimbursement application forms, which include a feature allowing the consumer to assign the payment to the vendor of the adaptive device, or to the dealership.

Paus Motor Sales also has been provided with resource guides with information regarding the availability of adaptive driving devices. This guide offers a summary of the needs of various handicapped persons, grouped conveniently by type of handicap. The resource guide includes two reference publications, Adaptive Driving Devices and Vehicle Modifications, and Disabilities and Their Implications for Driving.

Consumers wishing more information may contact Paus Motor Sales toll-free (1-800-672-7287) or the GM Mobility Assistance Center, Box 9011, Detroit, Michigan 48202, or toll free (1-800-323-9935.) TDD (Hearing Impaired) phone is available at (1-800-TDD-9935.)

Work affects retirement differently during first year

Social Security Manager, Norfolk

During your first year of retirement, even if your earnings exceed the yearly limit, you can get a Social Security benefit for any month your earnings are below a special monthly limit.

Here's how it works. In 1991, the yearly earnings limit for people under 65 is $7,080, and for people 65 and older, $9,720. Beneficiaries who are 70 or older do not have an earnings limit.

When earnings exceed those limits, we withhold $1 in benefits for each $2 of earnings above the limit for people under 65. For people 65-69, we withhold $1 in benefits for each $3 of earnings.

Under the monthly test, a person can receive a full Social Security check for any whole month he or she is "retired," regardless of yearly earnings.

In 1991, a person is considered retired if monthly earnings are limited to $590 for people under 65 or $810 for people 65 through 69.

Here's an example: John Smith, age 65, is retiring on June 30, 1991. By the time he retires, his earnings will have reached $18,720. That's $9,000 over the Social Security earnings limit ($18,720-9,720=$9,000). Using the $1 for $3 withholding rate, we normally would have to withhold $3,000 from John's Social Security benefit. But because this is John's first year of retirement, he can get a full Social Security benefit for any month his earnings are under $810. So John will get Social Security checks from July through December even though he's made significantly more than the 1991 earnings limit.

The monthly earnings limits can apply for one year only. It is also applied to the Social Security benefits of children and their mothers or fathers during the first year they start receiving dependents or survivors benefits and in the year their benefits end.

Hartington Senior Center will begin operating under the Area Agency on Aging come July 1

As of July 1, the Hartington Senior Citizen Center will be directly under the supervision of the Northeast Nebraska Area Agency on Aging and no longer associated with the Goldenrod Hills Community Action Council of Walthill, according to Hartington Senior Citizen Center supervisor Linda Conzemius.

The local center will begin a new fiscal year as of that date and manage their own budget. Conzemius said being directly associated with the agency will help the center have more independence in knowing where funds are used but will also require good participation of meal attendance and fund raising.

Conzemius said presently there are about 400 persons of the 60- to 90-plus age group in the community and about 50 meals are served a day. She said, "We're doing OK at not even a 10 percent participation, but we would like to get more seniors involved with the cen-use the center now, it may not be here in 20 years. It has taken lots of planning and long hours of work by our board members and more than willing volunteers to make our lovely center what it is. We need community support to keep it going. Our center is a place to enjoy good food and good, healthy entertainment.

The Hartington Center was started in 1967 by five women. Mina Jordan of Hartington is the only survivor of the charter group. Mrs. Jordan, along with other seniors, is still actively involved in activities such as quilting.

Fund raising events consists of monthly Sunday pancake breakfast, bake sales, rummage sales, bingo on Sunday nights, and Monday and Wednesday morning coffee and rolls.

Conzemius said the in-center meals and meals-on-wheels help a lot of people besides the socializing the center offers. The center offers the main meal of the day and the only people-contact that some of the seniors have. The going direct to the Agency on Aging will be a plus for the center she said

In The Good ole' Summertime

One of the many activities enjoyed by the residents of Hartington Nursing Center is the outdoor barbecue held twice a month during the summer and early fall. All residents who are able and desire to go outside are taken out for the noon meal. The staff is enthusiastic about these events as they see the enjoyment the residents receive from being outdoors. The May and June barbecues were special events. Residents from the Hillcrest Care Center in Laurel and Park View Haven in Coleridge came to enjoy the meal with us.

The menu for the barbecues consist of grilled hamburgers or hot dogs, potato salad, baked beans and the all-time favorite

All the staff from dietary to nursing, activities, housekeeping, maintenance and the social services department get involved in one way or another. It is truly a worthwhile event for all.

Special events coming up in July are: a barbecue at the Hillcrest Care Center, a barbecue and homemade ice cream on the Fourth of July, a shopping trip to the Yankton Mall and a fishing trip at the West Side Park in Yankton. Everyone enjoyed last month's fishing trip so much they requested a return visit.

A busy time of year!!

Most older Americans are on diets. In fact, many have tried every diet invented in a valiant attempt to lose those 10 extra pounds that somehow crept up on them over the years. But contrary to the notion that thinner is better, studies show that carrying a little extra weight may not be bad and may actually be beneficial for older people.

Those who add a few pounds as they grow older generally live longer. A five or 10 pound weight cushion also helps protect an older person against wasting illnesses. However, losing that extra weight can help limit symptoms of maturity-onset diabetes, reduce the need for medication to control high blood pressure and relieve stress on arthritic joints.

So what's a body to do?

The best way to determine what you should weigh is to see your doctor and follow his or her advice. This is especially important for people with illnesses requiring a change in what or how much they eat and for people taking medicine. Some drugs interact with certain foods. Some medicines also can affect appetite or change the body's nutritional requirements.

As people age, the body's caloric requirement declines making it easier to gain weight on less food. But although the need for calories declines, the requirements for protein, minerals and vitamins remain the same. Because of this, older people need to Ask the modern bridge player about "auction bridge." Chances are he or she never heard of it

Auction bridge is the forerunner of the modern game known as contract bridge. It was popular 40-50-60 years ago, and how long before that. I don't know. Anyhow, its basics somehow evolved into the modern game that has all but replaced

I know of no other place, save Osmond, where auction bridge is played on a regular basis, though there, of course, may be a few.

The Difference

The two games are decidedly similar but at the same time have vast differences. In each game, two partners oppose another pair. Thirteen cards are dealt to each player in both versions. The bidding entails vastly different thinking and point computing.

Auction players need not bid "game" to earn game. Successful bidders earn and tally all the points made regardless of the bid number. By contrast, the modern day contract player must bid and "make" at least four spades or hearts, five clubs or diamonds, or three no-trump to claim a game hand. Explanation of the intricacies of the continuation of the game of contract bridge will stop here. It suffices to say that the winning pair might play an indeterminate number of hands to come up with the eventual winner. In auction bridge, four hands and it's over. Ready for another start or whatever.

Honors Are Different

In contract bridge, four or five of a suit, 10 to ace, in one hand are honors good for extra count. Four aces in one hand provide the same favor.

By contrast, in auction bridge, three to five of the cards 10 to ace, even if part are in a partner's hand, are honors. Four aces in one hand in auction bridge count 100; in contract the figure is 150.

Auction card values are: no-trump, 10; spades, 9; hearts, 8; diamonds, 7, and clubs, 6. Any successful bid that will total 30 or more points is a game bid. (In contract, of course, one must bid game and earn it, if it is to be so recorded.)

Some Play, Some Watch

Auction bridge has been played at Osmond for more than 60 years that I know of. The usual place is Thomsen's Corner, a popular local tavern. There are less than a dozen avowed regulars. There is no squabbling about who gets to play and who gets to watch. There are almost daily afternoon sessions. There is usually no prearrangement. Sometimes golf or other activities interfere with making up a

When will the Osmond auction bridge die out? Probably when the players die out. Most of the auction players are now in their 50s, 60s and 70s. There is no interest shown by younger generations in learning the near extinct auction game. The mix of active players is about 50-50 between retired city folks and their friends from the farming community.

More about Bridge

Several months ago, while at an RV

Auction bridge . . . gone with horse and buggy?

camp in Texas, I dealt a hand of contract bridge that gave my partner and myself 20 because of the unusual play. If you would points, including two aces and three like to see it, send a stamped, self-adkings. The opposition wound up with a dressed envelope to: Eugene M. Liewer, six hearts bid and made a grand slam.

I wrote down the card distribution Box 366, Osmond, Ne. 68765.

These gents represent an early generation of the card players at the "Corner." This painting, commissioned by a beer company and dating back to the mid to late 1930s, still hangs in the tavern. Left to right are: Harry Thomsen Sr., Ervin Fuerhoff, Fred Schmitz, unidentified, Frank Pochop Sr., unidentified and John Blankenhorn. Today the scene is much the same ... with new faces taking places around the auction bridge table.

Art, if it is to be reckoned as one of the great values of life, must teach men humility, tolerance, wisdom and magnanimity. The value of art is not beauty, but right action.

Nursing Home Awareness

by Sandy Leimer

Food has a special meaning for each of us. That meaning depends on who we are, where we came from, our family expertise, and our social status.

A nursing home serves numerous meals a day and must have uniformity for efficiency and cost considerations. In doing so, they are unable to comply with individual habits that have been life long. Thus comes the myth that food is terrible in nursing homes.

Everyone has certain customary dishes and styles of preparation that no one else can duplicate. In the nursing home, some residents are on restricted or special diets as ordered by their physicians and thus have limited food choices. However, nursing homes employ dieticians to plan menus that are palatable, attractive, and meet the nutritional needs of the individual. Food that is well prepared and attractively served, warm or cold, as appropriate, is the standard for any nursing home.

another advantage. "If you catch a trophy animal, you can not only say you caught it, but you can prove it "

It takes Ardell approximately 3 1/2 weeks to mount a deer's head, but only 1 1/2 days to mount a bird.

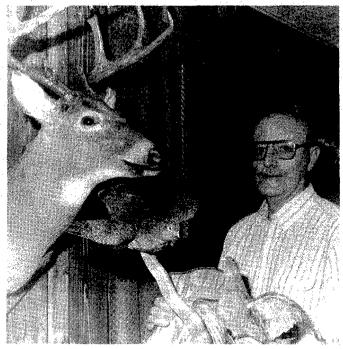

Sometimes, Ardell adds, it is very difficult to get a bird's feathers to look nice. "Sometimes you think you're going to have to throw it away. It's feathers are all messed up and look terrible. Then, once you get it stretched over the form and start to fluff up the feathers, it really starts to look like something."

As for costs, Gilster says that prices range according to the size of the animal. "A big deer would cost more than a small deer," he states.

The most unusual animal that Ardell believes he has ever done was an owl, which he did in 1956 for his brother-in-law. Of all the more than 50 animals Gilster has done, he is most proud of the deer head that he did just recently in February. It was a 10-point buck, which is unusual for this territory. He has this mounting on display in his home, and people have remarked that it "turned out better than a professional could have done."

Gilster adds that he would "like to do more, I would like to get a hold of a big mouth bass, because they are the best fish to mount."

Inside Ardell's home are many of his mountings, which he is very proud of. Among them are pheas-
