Conway seeks to have case reheard

State Senator Gerald Conway of Wayne has asked the Nebraska Supreme Court for a rehearing of a case which challenges his right to serve the Legislature while holding a teaching position at Wayne State College.

The supreme court said last Friday in a 5-2 decision that Conway must give up his teaching job at Wayne State if he wants to con-tinue serving as a state lawmaker. Chief Justice William Hastings and Judge Thomas Shanahan dissented its first rate increase since 1983.

James E. Markham, Wayne office manager, said the company's Aug. 1 filing in two Nebraska rate areas will affect 33 towns, including Wayne, Wakefield, Emerson, Bancroft and lackson.

The proposed rate will mean an average increase of about $5 to $6 a month for the typical residential customer.

If the final rates adopted are lower than the interim rates implemented Oct. 30, Peoples will refund the difference, with interest, to customers.

Markham said that all communities in the rate areas are represented by a rate review committee of community officials, assisted by the Nebraska Energy Office and the League of Municipalities, working with an expert consultant to examine the proposed increase.

Although the cost o 'Although the cost of natural gas has decreased over the past eight years, Peoples' costs to deliver the gas have increased, Markham said. "We have been able to avoid a rate increase by increasing efficiencies and controlling costs, even though inflation has gone up more than 31 percent. "We are committed to keeping costs down and providing safe, reliable natural gas service. Even reliable natural gas service. Chautauqua 1992: Literature of our Democracy

Wayne one of two sites

The Nebraska Humanities Council has announced that the communities of Wayne and Sidney will host the Great Plains Chau tauqua during the summer of 1992, probably in early July.

The theme will again be "American Renaissance: The Literature of Our Democracy," featuring first person portrayals of seven 19th century writers and re-formers, including Louisa May Alcott, Henry David Thoreau and Carrol Peterson of Doane College as Walt Whitman. This program has just moved into the Dakotas for its final weeks of the '91 season, after spending a week each in Alliance and Central City.

Chautauqua scholars will stay for a week in each community and will present programs all over town, the most notable of which are five different evening shows given outside, under a tent, probably in a

"We are willing to take this program anywhere to demonstrate its charm and its usefulness," said Jane Hood, Executive Director of the Nebraska Humanities Council, the sponsoring agency in Nebraska. "This year we had a late night poetry reading in a bar in Central City.

"There were at least 125 people, some of whom were enjoying a beer, watching Walt Whitman reading poetry about the Civil War, as he was leaning against a snooke

table. People tend to associate Chautauqua with the tent, but programs and conversations are also held in cafes, homes for sen citizens, libraries, museums and in

"Chautauqua's goals are many," said Hood, "We want to get peo-ple interested in reading and in talking about ideas; we want to stir up dialogue about current issues, such as womens roles, racism, the environment, education and poli-tics, in which people recognize the fundamental importance of the humanities. The scholars present texts for discussion with the town's residents. And both scholars and townspeople enjoy themselves

According to Hood, Wayne and Sidney were chosen because they had many innovative ideas and both wanted to bring people and nearby communities in to make Chautaugua a regional, as well as a local, effort.

A year later, progress pleases START officials

The Wayne SIAKI program is, celebrating an anniversary of sorts. It was August of 1990 that the START steering committee announced its Action Plan to the community of Wayne, broke into task forces, and began work on various areas of improvement in the community.

The START program has been the focus of numerous Wayne Her-ald articles over the last year as projects were completed or launched. As the first anniversary of this self-help community program passes, however, a look back at the overall success of the project copies in order.

ject seems in order.
In August of 1990, the START
Action Plan identified five general focus areas: Day Care, Housing, Business Expansion, Community Images/Attitudes and Public Facilities/Recreation. One year later, what has been accomplished in these areas by the START task forces?

Day Care

Opening in August, the Wayne Child Care Resource Center will assist families in Wayne in linking up with available day care providers, assist providers by offering important information and educational resources, and will offer a toy-loan service for licensed providers.

The Resource Center will be headquartered at the Wayne Public Library. START day care task force chair, Mary Temme, along with Janet Dyer have spearheaded the project.

"It's very fulfilling to see this happen," comments Temme, "I think it will coordinate and strengthen the day care system in the Wayne area." the Wayne area.

Results from the START survey, conducted in 1990 along with continuing efforts by the day care task force have also spurred the task force have also spurred the City of Wayne to write a grant for funds to build a new day care center in Wayne. START's local leader, Julie Mash, and Restful Knights co-owner, Carolee Stuberg have taken a personal interest in this grant by assisting in its writing and are hopeful it will be accepted shortly. shortly.

Housing

The housing arm of the START program has perhaps been the most visible of the five. "Housing may be the most acute need that the START survey indicated, so we naturally have had the most momentum," explains task force leader Fauneil Bennett.

The housing task force averaged over 20 people per meeting and have completed an additional special needs assessment survey. The abundant data provided by this task force helped in writing a recently awarded Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) to the city of Wayne for apartment renovation designed for elderly and low income families.

The results of the housing task force's survey have been dissemi-nated to local and regional builders and the Department of Housing and Urban Development, stimulating interest in local building.

Not what we want

We, the people, felt great when the council voted not to have a recreation-leisure services director. As a result, the city wrote an ordinance for a commission.

We, the people, believed this commission would have authority, not just serve in an advisory capacity. We thought it was going to be like the old board of recreation but with a different name. Should there be a resolution drawn up to repeal this ordinance? And ask to have a new ordinance drawn up similar to our old board of recre-ation? We are not satisfied with the present situation; leaving the authority to the administrator when our board of recreation has

Citizens of Wayne, please be aware of what is going on. We did win one battle but we also lost. We do not have a director, but our board lost their authority and we did not want that did not want that.

There will be a recreation-leisure commission meeting Monday night, Aug. 5 at 7 p.m. in city hall. We need you the people, in attendance, to show your support for the return of authority. for the return of authority.

Expanding Business

The 'most recent accomplishment of the business expansion task force has been the publication of a handbook entitled, 'Creating A Business In Wayne.' nity and Economic Development and a special study of college stu-dent needs in cooperation with Ken Hallgren and the Wayne State business division.

Community Images/Attitudes

Planting flowers at the four "Welcome To Wayne" signs was one of the first achievements of the START Images and Attitudes task force. "The planting was a simple, but important way to beautify the entrances to our city," comments Julie Mash, co-planter with Garden Perennials owner, Gail Korn.

FACT, Friendliest of All College Towns, continues to be a project supported by the Images task force as well. The Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce has enrolled a total of 64 businesses in this program, according to FACT this program, according to FACT spokesperson, Wayne Wessel.

Public Facilities

Of the five START task forces, Public Facilities and Recreation perhaps got off to the fastest start. A few months after the START plan was announced, task force workers Keith Kucera, Virgil Loewe, and chair, Sam Schroeder, with the co-operation of the county, were able to remove the Centennial sign on the east lawn and the yellow tape in front of the south door.

"The sign had become worn out and was in had shane " explains and was in bad snape," explains kucera. "Removing it and the tape gave a lot of beauty back to the courthouse." Since then, the courthouse has opened the south entrance to the public and in-stalled a wheelchair lift at the east entrance.

Also in the Fall, the recreation sub-committee of this task force published a recreation handbook, listing all forms of recreation avail-able in Wayne. Even the commit-tee members were astounded at the volume of activities presented in the handbook, according to committee members Lois Shelton and Julie Mash.

Shelton, who is also involved in the development of a multipur-pose community activity center, says that work continues on this project.

Wakefield eliminated from state play

The Wakefield Midget boys baseball team was eliminated from the 1991 State Class C Midget Tournament Thursday after losing two straight in the double elimina-tion format.

Wakefield opened up tourney play on Wednesday night against Mitchell and fell 6-2. Neither team had a hit until the fifth inning. Wakefield scored in the fifth when Cory Brown was safe on a fielder's choice and later scored on a wild

Mitchell however, erupted for six runs on four hits, three walks and two Wakefield errors in the sixth inning. Five of Mitchell's runs came with two out. Justin Dutcher was credited with the pitching loss for Wakefield despite pitching a good game. Dutcher, a first year pony league pitcher was advanced to the Midget level because of a shortage of pitchers on the Midget shortage of pitchers on the Midget

Wakefield finished the game with two runs on just one hit and two errors while Mitchell had six runs on five hits and one error.

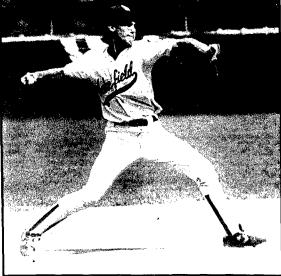

Miah Johnson had the Ione Wakefield hit.

On Thursday the host team was eliminated from state play by Oakland, 7-2 as Wakefield committed 11 errors. Travis Birkley, another 13-year-old pitcher who was moved up from the Pony League to play for the Midgets, was given the pitching loss the pitching loss.

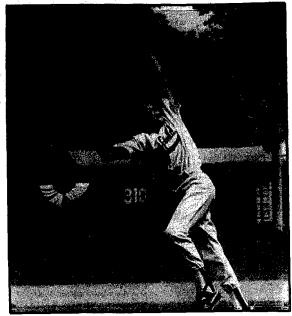

Wakefield finished with two runs on five hits and 11 errors while stranding seven runners on base.
Oakland had seven runs on eight hits and one error. Oakland scored twice in the first inning and added three more in the fourth before scoring two insurance runs in the seventh.

Wakefield scored once in the first inning and once in the fourth. Pat Jepsen led Wakefield's offense with three of the five hits. Jepsen smacked a triple on the first pitch of the game and later added a pair of singles. Joe Lauritsen and Luke Tappe also singled to round out Wakefield's hitting attack.

Wakefield closed out the season with a 6-12 record.
