Council quick with matters

On a night when there wasn't much on the agenda, the Wayne City Council was quick to act on six items Tuesday.

Receiving the most attention on the agenda was a proposal by Wayne resident Brad Wieland, who wayire resident Brad Wieland, who asked the council to place stop signs at the intersection of Fourth and Douglas Streets.

According to Wieland, the volume of traffic at the intersection could create a problem for pedestrians. He said cars often times either don't slow down for pedestrians. ther don't slow down for pedestrians or can't see them and he's concerned that an accident may occur if action is not taken. He asked that each council member drive through the intersection to determine the need for either two-way or four-way stops. Duane Schroeder, who resides at the corner of Fourth and Lincoln Streets endorsed Wieland's Streets endorsed Wieland's request for a four-way stop.

Despite support from Schroeder, Wayne Police Chief Vern Fairchild said stop signs would not solve anything. Fairchild was supported by Public Works Director Vern Schulz.

"I don't think stop signs there will do any good because statistics show that drivers don't pay atten-tion to them," he said. "Besides, 1 don't know that the traffic volume supports such a measure."

The council took no action on the matter. Wayne Mayor Robert Carhart directed the council to take up Wieland's request to drive through the intersection before the next council meeting.

Concerns arise

School board OK's budget

Despite facing a number of variables which could be detrimental to the budget, the Wayne School Board went ahead and approved the monetary plans for the Wayne Community Schools' 1991-92 fiscal

According to Superintendent Dr. Francis Haun, the schools' budget may be dramatically affected by any further decisions dealing with property taxes. In addition, a teacher salary schedule for the upcoming year has not been approved by the teacher's union and the schools may face arbitration procedures if action doesn't occur soon.

Because of these two issues, the school budget, although passed, may be put in limbo.

UNDER THE budget, schools will have a $1.6 million property tax request. The total budget calls for $3.58 million in expenditures, not including federal programs and LB 89. This represents an increase of 5.81 percent over the 1990-91 budget.

"Due to increases in state aid. the total property tax requirement be essentially the same as the 1990-91 budget year," Dr. Haun said. "An exact tax levy is not predictable until such time as the personal property tax situation be-comes resolved and assessed valuation on remaining taxable prop-erty becomes available."

IN THE BUDGET, the cost for regular instruction is planned at $2.2 million, which is an increase of 6.07 percent over the 1990-91 figures. The cost for teacher salaries is by far the largest figure in the expenditure portion of the

Despite having concerns over the lack of a teacher salary con-tract for the 1991-92 school year and being uncertain which direc-tion the property tax issue will go, school heard members, were school board members were pleased that so much of the bud-get is composed from state monies, rather than local revenues.

The state funding, which composes $1.8 million of the budget is up considerably from two years ago. In 1989, the schools received just short of $759,000 from the state. The increase is due to LB 1059 and sales taxes collected,

ESU 1 approves percent hike

By LaVon Anderson

The board of directors of Edu-The board of directors of Educational Service Unit One (ESU 1) met Tuesday night in Wakefield and approved a total budget hike of just under 21 percent for the 1991-92 fiscal year.

ESU 1 board members conducted a public budget hearing prior to Tuesday night's regular monthly meeting.

prior to Tuesday night's regular monthly meeting.

During the meeting, board members approved a calculated formula that would produce a tax asking of the requested $577,013 of the $4,377,610 budget unanimously adopted.

Programs funded by the county leave include school pursing services.

Programs funded by the county levy include school nursing services ($289,465), staff development ($69,585), media ($104,535), general administration ($164,560), board ($48,575), building and site ($34,500), vehicle ($28,750), operation of plant ($16,430), maintenance of plant ($6,000), special projects ($43,300), LB 89 ($39,975), and transfers ($874,000).

BOARD members conducted a public hearing last week, Aug. 8, and voted unanimously to exceed the 0 percent lid as established by LB 829

ESU 1 Administrator Rodney Garwood said the board's approval allows ESU 1 to increase tax bud-get receipts by 5 percent, or ap-proximately $40,000.

THE NEW 1991-92 ESU 1 budget shows an increase of $747,230 over last year's budget of $3,630,380.

Administrator Rodney Garwood said a large portion of the increase ($450,000) is due to transfers. Specifically, the two areas within transfers responsible for the in-transfers responsible for the increase are (1) due to a large increase in grant money the unit anticipates; and (2) to fund the building of a new special ed facility to be located in Wayne.

The other portion of the increase is due to increased contracts from the schools served by

Providers say licensing day care homes not that difficult

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second article in a three-part series about home day care providers.

By Mark Crist Managing Editor

People may not realize that Wayne and Carroll have 24 li-censed day care homes between the two communities. While each home can care for as many as 10 kids, it is simply not enough for the number of children in the two communities.

Licensing, two providers who spoke to The Wayne Herald say, is not that difficult. It's a simple matter of filling out a great deal of

Providers who are licensed pre-

Providers who are licensed pre-dominantly will tell you that they're glad they've licensed, while admit-ting that non-licensed providers care is just as thorough.

"I wanted to be licensed for my own piece of mind," says Jan Frick, who has been a licensed provider in Wayne for almost a year. "Being licensed gives the parents whose children I care for the same peace of mind."

BEING A LICENSED provider has its benefits along with its pit-falls. As a licensed provider, home day care providers get government assistance for food and their assistance for food and their homes are inspected by the fire marshall, the Department of Social Services and they have to know cardio-pulmonary resuscitation and first aid skills, not to mention the seminars they attend. If there are some pitfalls, there is a lot of pa-perwork involved in the licensing process and there are periodic in-spections by the Department of Social Services.

Home day care provider Lynette Carmichael, who has offered the

it can be a little nerve-wracking when the computer spits out a providers' name for home inspections. But she says it's all worth it.

"I learned that they aren't coming in here to tear us apart but rather to help us if we need it," she says. "They offer tips which help us care for the children better."

ANOTHER ADVANTAGE to being a licensed operator is that providers get together for support sessions every other month. Through these meetings, providers get helpful tips on how to be more efficient in the operation of their businesses.

Frick says she got into the business because when she moved to Wayne several years ago, she found that there were very few operators who could care for her three children. She said she has a good understanding of what it's like to be on both sides of the fence: one as an operator and one as a business person looking for

"You want to be a professional and treated like a professional, whether you work at home or for a business downtown," Frick says. "I confess that I was guilty of not treating the people who cared for my kids with the same respect I look for doing this type of work."

PROVIDERS SAY that there are rewards for what they do. For both Carmichael and Frick, staying home with their own children has proven worthwhile, while earning money caring for other people's children. Carmichael says it was an added benefit to her because she wanted to stay at home, rather than work outside.

Dixon County Fair officials need to make changes for the future

After coming off what we could easily deed a successful Dixon County Fair, there are a few suggestions we would like to recom-

Thing back the same carnival that came this year. This year's carnival was excellent; an improvement over years past.
 Continue to have tractors on display on the south end of the fairgrounds. This was a nice addition to this year's fair.
 See if it's possible to hold the fair over the last few days of the week and extend it into the weekend. Having a fair the first few days of the week, we believe, is a detriment to attendance.
 Find out if there's any possible way to bring in educational formers like fair had in years past, lever solutions to activative.

forums, like fairs had in years past. Items relating to agriculture would be great and topics of general interest, like home repairs and horticultural facts for the small gardener would be wonderful. In conclusion, we would like to congratulate the Dixon County Fair Board on a job well done. This year's fair is a step above some we have seen in the past.

Forget counting the census, it's a waste of time and money

With all the mistakes which have occurred during the 1990 census count, it's time to review whether the current way of collecting census data is appropriate.

A story in today's Wayne Herald outlines this problem. Of the eight communities in the Herald's coverage area, four had changes made from the preliminary census counts. This doesn't include the communities which may have checked the census and not responded to the preliminary figures.

It's also hard to believe that Wayne's population fell since 1980. If all the information coming from Wayne State College is accurate, Wayne's population should have grown, not declined.

Another problem stems from the fact that some households either forgot to fill out their census reports or ignored them and filed them in the trash. How can a census which determines federal and state funding be applied when such problems exist. Ob-

While we can offer no simple explanations to collect census data, surely the government can figure out a new way: perhaps by utilizing birth and death records, along with property exchanges Having a faulty system means that the old one must be changed.

If this occurs, let's hope it doesn't get lost in the bureaucratic

Students need to exercise moderation

It has been confirmed that college kids get drunk more than non-college kids. Some 41 percent of all the college kids engage in binge drinking (five drinks at one setting) compared to 34 percent of non-college kids. Surgeon General Antonia C. Novello says the nation's 12 million

Support for year-round school
Amid all the talk of educational reform, on Amid all the talk of educational reform, one possible school innovation is conspicuous for the lack of attention it receives.

We refer to the concept of year-round school. Why does it seem to be brought up only by a few progressive teachers and not considered at state and national levels where educational policy trends

In our layman's view, the idea of year-round school is worth exploring. Perhaps instead of spending so much time worrying about their tax base, Nebraska educators should open a serious dialogue on the subject.

Late last week we received a letter from one of our readers which alleged a serious atrocity at the Wayne County Juvenile Detention Center. If it is true, it could cost Wayne County taylogyers a profit. County taxpayers a pretty penny.

We cannot say what the atrocity is because if it is false, it wouldn't be fair to the JDC. If it is true, the public deserves to know. The anonymous writer's comments and the way they have been composed lead us to believe that the allega-tions have some validity, but we need to be careful with allegations which might be ru-did some thorough checking with Wayne County officials LeRoy Janssen, Merlin Beiermann and Bob Ensz to see if they had heard anything about the allegations. None of them had, but that doesn't to say that they won't. At this point, there is nothing to confirm the incident which has been alieged. We won't know any more unless a court action

Unfortunately, there is little that we can do to access a good amount of information from the facility. It's just not accessible. The courts and the federal and state lawmakers have taken such extremes to protect juveniles that it seems like a violation of our rights as innocent citizens. Because of the juveniles' age, it's not only difficult for the media to gather news, but it's even gather news, but it's even harder for law enforcement to protect the public to the ex-treme which should occur and it's just as difficult for lawyers to prosecute.

Hopefully in the future, we can provide more valuable information to our readers. For the benefit of your knowledge,

A salute to Wayne's best

It's always interesting to note who some of the people are that deserve respect. Many times in communities those individuals go unnoticed but there are some people whom I respect a great deal

Wayne is no exception. There are a number of people in the Wayne community who !, personally, respect a great deal. Some are men, some are women. This week,

I'll focus my attention on those men whom I respect a great deal. While there are a number of in-dividuals I could give attention to, I've decided to limit it to just five. I'm certain I could list 20 or more people but limiting it to five is not only a nice round number but it also will make me focus on those individuals. I've also decided to list the people in no particular order. Dr. Don Mash up at the college is one of those people I respect a great deal. Not only is he an out-standing administrator, but he also has the consciousness of what the college is and foresight of what it can become.

While it could be argued that that's his job, it's a massive task to which we often don't give enough attention. Don is a brilliant man. He is one of those people who inspires me because of who he is and what he does. His work for the college and the community will last for years to come. Ken Olds is another individual I respect a great deal. As an attorney, Ken reminds me a great deal of a professor I had in college. This professor, whom I rated among the best of all my professors, had such genius, I would often leave his business law class bewildered. As a person, Mr. Olds reminds me a little of my father and a lot as a of my father and a lot as a community leader. He has all the personal attributes that I like about a person.

Dr. Francis Haun is another individual that I like and respect a great deal. He impresses me with the fact that whenever I have the the fact that whenever I have the opportunity to speak to him, he'll often provide me a variety of reading materials for whatever project I'm working on. This says to me that he's an educator, a profession I hold in high regards. Dr. Haun is another individual which insites. ignites a spark for my personal interests in education.

Wayne Wessel is the type of person which brings out the best in people. I don't think I've ever seen him when he wasn't pleasant seen him when he wasn't pleasant and outgoing and his work for FACT and START have given the community greater awareness of it's friendly atmosphere. It's amazing to me how one individual can have such a positive influence. Wayne is one of those people. Sam Schroeder rounds out my list of people I hold in high regards. When I first came to Wayne Sam

When I first came to Wayne was one of the first people I met. Often times when I talk to him, he'll crack a joke which always lightens up the mood. He has that innate ability to make people comfortable in almost any situation.

Like I said, there are others whom I could focus upon but as you can see, I have limited space in this column.

To those five people, I would like to say thanks, not only on a personal level but on behalf of the community.

Raising money for the troops When the dummy bought the jail

There were many ways to raise money for the troops during World War II. Among the most unusual of these was the auctioning of the Harvard, Nebraska city jail. Its ownership was claimed by a ventriloquists' dummy, the irrepressible Charlie McCarthy. McCarthy was known worldwide as the wiseacre star of screen and radio, and as the mouthpiece of Edgar Bergen.

According to the Harvard Courier and the Sutton News, the transaction came about when six-teen-year-old Harvard resident Robert Pinckney bought the jail for $1.50 at a delinquent tax sale. Following the suggestion of a wounded sailor, Pinckney decided to offer the jail in an auction sponsored by the city of Los Angeles in its forty-million-dollar war bond citye. Challes McCathyl's hid of drive. Charlie McCarthy's bid of $10,000 in war bonds won him full ownership of the Harvard jail property, which was described as "one lot, one jail with two cells, 347 iron bars, and one iron door." As the new landlord, Charlie

Football, volleyball scrimmage
WAYNE-The Wayne State volleyball and football teams host scrimmages Saturday with second-year volleyball coach Nancy Clark scrimmaging her squad at 5 p.m. in Rice Auditorium. WSC posted a 19-18 record last fall, and return two of the top 11 blockers in the nation.

Third-year football coach Dennis Wagner's much-heralded squad will scrimmage at 6:15 at the practice field adjacent to Memorial Stadium. The Wildcats had their best season in recent history in 1990 going 7-4. They return 17 starters from last year's team, but must replace the entire offensive backfield.

Both scrimmages will be held on the WSC campus since NCAA regulations prohibit teams from holding off-campus scrimmages. A dinner and social mixer will be held following the football scrimmage at the Wayne State Student Center.

Admission is free to both scrimmages, but there is a five dollar charce for the post-scrimmage dinner party.

WSC spikers ready to block out competition

Don't blame second-year Wayne State College head volley-ball coach Nancy Clark if there is a "block party" atmosphere at Thursday's opening of volleyball

The Wildcats return two of the top 11 blockers in the nation from last year 19-18 squad. WSC led the NAIA District 11 in blocking last fall, and ranked 20th nationally. Clark looks for solid blocking and a more aggressive offense to propel the Wildcats in their first season competing as members of the NCAA Division II.

Jones Intercable opposes 'free TV'

Students must attend school a minimum of 80 percent of the in-structional period in a class in order to be permitted to earn credit for the semester.

This means that excused and unexcused absences when combined may not exceed 20 percent (18 days) of the instruction periods for a semester. A student who has more than 18 days absent in a class per semester cannot receive credit for the course. Emergency medical circumstances may cause a student to exceed the 20 percent

In such cases the student would be required to complete a com-prehensive exam for those classes in which he/she exceed the 20 percent limitation. The exam(s) will be developed and graded by the course instructors. Only after suc-cessful completion of the compre-hensive exam will credit for a course be awarded.

corn and soybean crop predictions are expected to have varying effects on opening crop prices Tuesday morning (Aug. 13), according to a University of Nebraska-Lincoln grain marketing specialist.

Lynn Lutgen, member of the University's Agriculture Climate Situation Committee, said the USDA prediction of 7.418 billion bushels of corn may result in corn prices rising 3 to 7 cents a bushel Tuesday morning (Aug. 13). That's because the estimate is slightly below trade estimates of a 7.46 billion bushels of corn with a range of 7.3 to 7.65 billion bushels.

The USDA crop estimate for soybeans was 1.869 billion bushels. The soybean trade expected 1.83 billion bushels with a range from 1.8 to 1.86 billion bushels. Since the USDA prediction is toward the upper end of trade estimates, soybean prices—already depressed—may be down 5 to 12 cents Tuesday, Lutgen said.

"If soybeans can hold price It soybeans can note price losses down to the lower end of the range—5 to 7 cents—corn should be up. If soybean price losses go over 10 cents, expect a negative reaction in the corn market," Lutgen said. "If corn prices fall, it will take a while for recovery."

While some crop producers have stopped irrigating due to recent rains and cooler conditions, DeLynn Hay, UNL water resources and irrigation specialist, said "soybeans are in a critical stage as
