New state law cripples county

By Mark Crist Managing Editor

The Wayne County Commissioners have been caught trying to do taxpayers a favor. Now, they have to pay the price. In an effort to keep the past

In an effort to keep the past three fiscal years' budgets as tight as Ebenezer Scrooge was with his money, the county commissioners dipped into the county's reserve funds in order to avoid raising taxes. Now, the ghosts of budgets past, present and future are haunting the county government. To make matters worse, things

To make matters worse, things aren't expected to get better. "We got ourselves into a finan-cial bind being the good guy," Wayne County Board Chairperson Merlin Beiermann said.

THE PROBLEM started as far back as the 1988-89 budget when the commissioners transferred $10,000 into the budget from inheritance tax reserves. This was done so property tax requests would not go up during that fiscal Inat plan worked so well, that the board took $5,000 from the inheritance tax fund again for the 1989-90 budget. In addition, $50,000 budgeted for the county relief program was freed up when the state took that program over. As the budget continued to see

As the budget continued to see shortfalls, the commissioners dipped into the inheritance tax re-serve again in 1990-91, drawing $131,000.

This year, in the 1991-92 bud-get passed last week, the commissioners used up the remaining $121,600 in inheritance tax re-serves after cutting approximately $32,000 out of office budgets. To balance the remainder of the $3.8 million budget, $16,888 was taken from the emergency bridge fund and $65,000 was taken from the of the emergency bridge fund and the $65,000 represents one-third the 305,000 represents one-third of the snow removal/equipment fund. The commissioners also requested that offices budgets remain as tight as possible, with most offices seeing anywhere from 0 percent to 4 percent increases.

"The commissioners have sharpened the knife and made cuts," said Wayne County Clerk Deb Finn.

By all figures, the county will end up well over $300,000 short for its 1992-93 budget unless the state legislature makes some changes. Even if the county government's end down't sounty government's need doesn't increase any from the $203,488 shortfall this year, the county will still come up cash short for the 1992-93 budget.

BEIERMANN SAID the budget would be OK today, except for the legislature's most recent budget restrictions, calling for 4 percent lid on the 1990-91 budget from LB 1059, and 0 percent hike in 1991-92 over the previous years asking dollar under LB 829. In both instances, there was a provision to call for an increase of 5 percent, which the commissioners have done. Nevertheless, that 5 percent boost doesn't do much since it deals with asking amounts, rather than budget amounts.

The reason the restriction on the asking dollar hurts the county is because prior to the bill's passage, the reserve funds kept the asking amount lower. Now, having fewer reserves to draw from, and restrictions in budget increases, the county is sure to see a budget shortfall in 1992-93, which may result in reduced services, Beiermann said Since the 1988-89 budget, the amount of reserves the county has been forced to use has doubled each year. With the demand for reserve funds being used up for the 1991-92 budget, the county board estimates that the reserve demand will be well over $300,000. If the demand follows the trend, the ac-tual figure is over $400,000. THIS YEAR the county's properly tax request is up $900,000 over 1990-91. The request for the 1991-92 budget is $1.1 million. The 1991-92 budget is figured to he $3.8 million.

The 1991-92 budget is figured to be $3.8 million. "There's not a whole heck of a lot we can do," Beiermann said. "We'll have to decrease services in 1992-93 if things don't change. We'll probably cut the roads pro-crease and reduce organizing the grams and reduce graveling the roads. We can't close the court-house doors but we will have to cut staff if these demands continue.

While the budget problems may seem like a simple matter, the county is also reeling after seeing approximately $11,400 removed approximately $11,400 removed by way of personal property tax re-funds following court rulings on gas pipelines and railroads in March. Also, the county has to find some way to pay back Great Dane Trailers $70,000 from a similar court case which was lost in May. A humpit with the state shortffr area court case which was lost in May. A lawsuit with the state sherift's asso-ciation over county retirement plans is pending and it could cripple the county further. "The legislature did this to look good," Beiermann said. "I wish they'd start worrying about their own budget matters rather than marring up the county's."

NEW DIRECTORS SWORN IN

The Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources district Board of directors appointed two new directors during its monthly meeting in July.

Representing subdistrict 6 is Doug Pinkley of Leigh. Pinkley is the sales manager for Heartland Nutrition in West Point. He replaces Chris Vrtiska of Dodge who resigned from the board earlier this year.

New director-at-large Timothy Tighe of Humphrey will fill the vacancy left by Charles Myers of Lyons. Tighe is a vice-president at the Bank of Madison.

During the meeting the board approved an increase in the cost-share rate for dam construction for land treatment. Before Thursday's board action, the Lower Elkhorn NRD paid 65 percent of the cost of constructing dams.

Under the newly approved rate, the NRD will pay 75 percent with the landowner paying 25 percent of the construction cost, the same amount as the current terrace system cost-share rate. As a land treatment practice, a farm pond will conserve water, control sediment and provide wildlife habitat.

The August 22 board meeting was preceded by a public budget hearing at 7:30 p.m. at the Lower Elkhorn NRD office in Norfolk. The proposed budget included a property tax requirement for fiscal year 1992 of $988,514.23, slightly higher than the 1991 requirement of $987,824.00.

Last fiscal year's property tax requirement resulted in a levy of 2.97 cents per $100 valuation.

The board meeting followed the budget hearing at the Norfolk office.

The grants program will be funded by two fee assessments: •A $1 assessment on any new A $1 assessment on any new tire sold in the state made of rubber or other resilient material; including pneumatic and solid tires, that could be used on any motor vehicle, motorcycle, trailer, semi-trailer or farm tractor. Collection of this fee assessment began July 1, 1991. The fee assessments are col-lected by the Nebraska Depart-ment of Revenue and forwarded to NDEC for use in developing and carrying out the grants program. from the fee assessments. As of June 30 of this year, the tire fee assessment resulted in an $700,000, which will be available for grant funding when the pro-gram's starting date is announced. No figures are available on the retail business fee assessment, which went into effect only last month. Funds available for grants will in-crease, NDEC officials said, as business fee assessments are collected, along with additional tire assess-

NDEC hopes to present both the intended use plan and program priority system to the Council at one of its remaining meetings in 1991. "NDEC intends that any modifications of either document will be introduced to the Council for review and approval," Dearing added. added

Political subdivisions may be eligible to apply for grant funding for implementing a major solid waste program, while grants under the littler reduction and recycling program provide smaller amounts of seed money for community-based public education, cleanup and re-cycling programs. ing Nebraska communities the op-portunity to apply for state grant funding to assist with their individ-ual area needs for solid waste management, Dearing noted. Waste reduction and recycling incentive funds may be allocated by approving an applicant's plan that would allow incremental funding over a multi-year period, rather than a lump sum of funding at the start of the grant period. "Matching funds acquired by political subdivisions to be used in conjunction with state grant fund-ing will be an integral part of as-sessing each grant application submitted for approval," Dearing explained. explained.

"Establishing priorities for grant funding will not be easily deter-mined, given the urgency of some sources of Nebraska political subdivisions in addressing a wide array of solid waste management programs," Dearing said. She said NDEC is working on has not yet awarded any grants. "We (NDEC) hope that the grants situations. An example would be to upgrade a landfill to meet licensing standards," Dearing said. "A major, parallel state policy concern, however, is the threat or actuality of
