Progress pleases officials

By Mark Crist Managing Editor

Area business persons and edu-cators from Wayne State College, Wayne High School and Northeast Community College seem pleased by progress made with a program sponsored by the Nebraska De-partment of Labor. "Nebraska's Workforce: Tomorrow and Beyond" is a cooperative effort between business leaders and educators to encourage stu-dents' preparation for the work-force. A meeting to discuss the matter was held at Wayne State College recently with approxi-mately 50 educators and business persons in attendance. The con-ference kicked off the second phase of the process.

"The difficult task before us requires the collective, sustained efforts of business, education, local and state government," according to a letter signed by Dan Dolan, state commissioner of labor.

THE PURPOSE of this first, second phase meeting was to bring together area employers with educational professionals to see if the educational system is catering to business development by providing employees ready and prepared to

"Ultimately, we are hearing that businesses are getting students that aren't ready to work," said Curt Wilwerding, executive director of the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce, who attended the meeting. "While that's not necessarily true for Nebraska or the Midwest, it is a case for the nation.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the final article in a three part series about organizations assisted by the Wayne United Way.

Without support from United Way, the Wayne Child Day Care Board might not be as far along with their projects as they are.

That's according to Janet Dyer, a member of the Wayne Child Day Care Board. This year, the newly-created child care board is asking for $3,000 of the $23,000 the Wayne United Way hopes to make in its drive.

"United Way has been instrumental in getting us started," Dyer, said. "They've been very generous in helping us financially with the various fees associated with get-ting a day care operation off the ground."

OF THE $3,000 the Wayne Child Care Board hopes to receive, $750 has been earmarked for rontinuing the development of the resource center at the Wayne Public Library. The rest of the money will be used to purchase items in the infant center of the

oon-to-be-built day care center.

Purchases for the infant center include cribs, swings, toys, infant seats, blankets, crib sheets and

Providers offer testimony at public hearing

If what was said at a public hearing put on by the Nebraska Department of Social Services Thursday night, day care providers would predominantly like to be treated more like professionals.

That's what a number of persons providing testimonial at the hearing said should be used with a portion of the $4.5 million in federal grant money: to get the word out that they are working professionals. Another area day care providers addressed was the expense their operations incur due to insurance.

erations incur due to insurance.

The meeting, held at Wayne State College, offered providers and others associated with the profession, an opportunity to provide input into what can happen with the federal money. The meeting was the final one of 14 held across the state since Monday.

The money, according to the regulations surrounding the grant Nebraska has received, is to be used to support families with low incomes.

FEDERAL regulations require that two-thirds of the $4.5 million be used for parents who qualify to purchase child care. In Nebraska, the remaining money is being combined with other child care funds like at-risk child care or money that's available to parents through the job program. A number of day care advocates who testified said they would like the leftover funds used to educate the public that day care operators are professionals, and for training seminars for operators and their staffs.

In all, about 20 people associated with the day care area were in attendance. Of approximately 20 people in attendance, five testified. Irene Fletcher, a Wayne family day care operator, said she supports reme riescner, a Wayne family day care operator, said she supports programs which would encourage training of day care operators and retention and creation of more day care operations.

"One of the keys are the local support groups that have been developed," she said during testimony. "I think often times it's simply talking about the issues that come up that can give the most help to other providers."

ADDRESSING the problem of not being treated as professionals was testimony provided by Ronette Wemhoff of Coleridge.

"We need to work in rural Nebraska on making people more aware that child care is a business no longer to be considered like a high school babysitter," Wemhoff said. "I can't address enough that people have not considered day care a business. It's very, very hard because they still consider providers as babysitters. We can educate our help and we can educate day care providers but I think there needs to be some education of the parents."

Wemhoff, like two others who testified, said there needs to be more public education programs informing the public about the day care occu-

The meeting Thursday lasted approximately for an hour and a half. Included in the session were a number of tips providers could use to apply for the grant money. More information about the session can be obtained through the Nebraska Department of Social Services.

Former Wayne businessman John Carhart died Wednesday from complications of pneumonia at Hillcrest Care Center in Laurel.

at HillCrest Care Center in Lauren. He was 89. John C. Carhart was born Jan. 27, 1902 in Mapleton, Iowa. He married Winifred Main in 1926 and he was active in the lumber business for over 60 years until retiring Carhart first came to Wayne in 1914, when his parents Charles E. and Ethel (Miller) Carhart opened the Carhart Brothers Hardware store with A. Benjamin Carhart. The family moved to Wayne from The family moved to Wayne from Canton, S.D., where they owned a hardware business. Five years after coming to Wayne, the family purchased the Philleo and Harrington Lumber Yard, which today is Carhart Lumber Company.

"He was a very good business person," his son Robert Carhard Wayne, said. "He was a good teacher of sound business principals. He earned my respect as a business person and my love as a father and friend. I will miss his company and companionship."

DURING THE Great Depression Carhart's leadership allowed the business to expand. During the 1930s, the business was incorporated and the family purchased lumber yards in Pierce, O'Neill, North Platte, Randolph, Hartington, Plainview, Bloomfield, Neligh, Tilden and Albion.

Carhart had been ill since 1984, when he was diagnosed with Alzheimers disease. He had lived in the Hillcrest Care Center in Laurel

With the business environment and technology changing, we need to see that education changes with the times."

While some business persons at the meeting said they were pleased by its results, some said it provided them with ideas that they can implement right now, provided them with ideas that they can implement right now, which will be an incentive for their employees. Educators said they found out that they're doing many of the right things.

"The best thing that came out of the meeting is that people are getting together and becoming interested in improving the work-force," said Ted Helberg, em-ployee relations manager at the M.G. this way, educators can explore what Waldbaums has to offer.
Some of the things he said he thinks many of the businesses represented can do is to provide more tours for students and classes, open up opportunities for business people to have visits to the classroom and have business people meet with instructors to discuss what type of people they're looking for in the workforce.

"For the most part, the colleges are giving that concentrated effort," said State National Bank President Dave Ley. "The educa-tion system is becoming more responsive to the needs of employ-

Dr. Haun added that he thinks high schools in general are preparing students for the workforce. He said the one thing that came out loud and clear, however, is that "businesses are looking for people with more training than students can get in high school." He said that's probably good because it will encourage students to continue with their education in or form or another. He said if students don't go to college or Dr. Haun added that he thinks one form or another. He said if students don't go to college or technical school, they can probably get on the-job training starting out with a small company.

"There's a definite need to expand training in high schools, especially in the areas of technology," he said. "Whether we can afford that is another question.

"People at the meeting, however, were not critical of the high school preparation they see in students either entering the workforce or going to college."

Winside will return home next week to host Walthill in a 7 p.m. contest to accommodate for homecoming festivities.

Winside spikers earn big win at Stanton

The Winside volleyball team surpassed a major hurdle in their quest for a highly successful season Thursday night in Stanton as they upended an undefeated Filly team, 15-12, 15-5.

The win improved the Wildcats record to 7-2 while Stanton stumbled to 7-1. "This is the best allaround game a Winside team has played since I've been the head coach," Wildcats coach Paul Giescoach," Wildcats coach Paul Gies-selmann said. "We dominated ev-ery phase of the match. I don't know but our girls seem to like big matches and we came in here against the Norfolk Daily News number one team and dominated them."

Winside was 96 percent in the serving category hitting on 44-46 attempts. Patti Oberle was the top server at 11-11 with one ace while Jenny Jacobsen was 10-10. Kari Pichler was 8-8 with one ace and Holly Holdorf was 8-9 with one ace. Yolande Sievers was 5-5. Pichler did the setting chores and Giesselmann was happy with the way the sophomore ran the offense in notching 15 set assists.

"Kari_did_a_fine_job_of_running_the floor show," Glesselmann said, "but a lot of the credit came from a great night of serve receiving and great hight of serve receiving and passing. Patty Oberle played an excellent game from the stand point of serve receive. She got 60 percent of the Stanton serves to begin with and she did a great job of passing to the setter," Giesselmann said.

Offensively the Wildcats enjoyed success but defense really drew the attention of Giesselmann. orew the attention of cliesselmann.
"I believe that Stanton got a little

Wildcat golfers win at Dakota Dunes

WAYNE-The Wayne State men's golf team came away with a big tournament victory at Dakota Dunes Country Club Thursday in the Briar Cliff Invitational.

The Wildcats carded a 329 team score which was 12 strokes ahead of runner-up Northeast Community College. Dordt finished third with a 345 while Northwestern was fourth with a 350.

Buena Vista finished fifth with a 351 while the host team Briar Cliff was sixth at 362. Teikyo-Westmar rounded out the field of teams with a 367.

Brian Siefert of Dordt was medalist with a 73 but Wayne State's Sam Prue finished runner-up with a 76. Other Wildcat scores on the Sam Prue finished runner-up with a 76. Other Wildcat scores on the day included Rob Braun with an 80 which tied him for fourth, Gary Block with an 84, Jeff Carlson's 88 and Dustin McClaren with an 89.

Wildcat women golfers win tourney

WAYNE-The Wayne State women's golf team was in action at Mahoney Golf Course in Lincoln for the Nebraska Wesleyan Invitational recently, and Tom Cook's Wildcats earned a 15-stroke victory over the host team Wesleyan and Midland.

The tournament was shortened to nine holes because of the wind. The Wildcats carded a 194 for championship honors. Following the 209 of Wesleyan and Midland was Hastings with a 212, Doane with a 220 and Concordia with a 225.

Ann Fiedler of Wesleyan was medalist with a 45 while WSC golfers Keri Goette and Dawn Garrett tied for third with 47's. Deena Curtis fired a 48 and Shannon McGuire finished with a 52.

Junior high spikers lose to Wisner

WAYNE-The seventh and eighth grade junior high volleyball teams of Wayne lost their opening games of the season Tuesday against Wisner with the seventh grade losing, 14-16, 6-15 and the eighth grade losing, 9-15, 11-15.

Junior high coach Joyce Hoskins noted that Ann Wiseman was the top server for the seventh grade team while Kari Schindler was the top server for the eighth grade team. The junior high teams will be in action again on Oct. 8 at Schuyler.

WSC volleyball team gains revenge

WAYNE-The Wayne State volleyball team got a little revenge with Morningside College of Sioux City Wednesday night with a 2-15, 15-12, 16-14, 5-15, 15-9 victory.

The win upped the Wildcats record to 14-6 and a 11-2 mark in the last 13 matches. Wayne State had lost to Morningside in the finals of the Briar Cliff Tournament on Saturday in two straight games of the best two of three format.

"It was a great win for out team," WSC coach Nancy Clark said.

"It was a great win for out team," WSC coach Nancy Clark said.
"We got good performances out of all our girls and we had a balanced attack which proved to be effective."

Shannon Dunning played her best match of the year with 99 sets and 27 set assists while serving 29-29 with four aces. "Shannon really did a nice job for us," Clark said. "In the fifth game she served 10 straight balls which gave us a good lead."

Clark was pleased with her squad's serve receive. "When we pass the ball effectively we have a great offense," Clark said. "Tracy Kuester was 41-41 in serve receive and Cori Weinfurtner was 27-27 in serve receive which gave our setter are assier time setting the ball."

HUNTER SAFETY CLASS

A certified hunter safety course will be held in Winside for youth ages 11-15 beginning Oct. 3.

The 12-hour course is being sponsored by the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission. Instructor will be Ron Leapley who is a Nebraska Certified Safety Instructor.

Nebraska law requires youth 12-15 to have a certificate prior to hunting game animals. Also other neighboring states require Nebraska certificates be shown prior to hunting big game.

There is no charge for the course. It will be held in the Winside Elementary Science room from 7-9 p.m. All youth passing the course will receive a Nebraska certificate.

Anyone having questions can contact Ron Leapley, 286-4465 or 286-4850.

The Library Card

This column is written occasionally to inform the Wayne area as to what types of reading material and other items are available at the Wayne Public Library.

Titles of books are interesting phenomena. They can be straightforward, humorous, enigmatic, teasing, clever, passionate or downright boring.

Take, for instance, Wm. L. Shirer's "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich." Depending on your age, that title is a very straightforward one. You know immediately what you are going to read about and you know it will be factual, documented and historical. But, if you are too young to remember what the Third Reich was, you may find the title such a bore — not worth your time exploring — that you decide not to read the book.

On the other hand, "All I really need to know I learned in kindergarten" or "It was on fire when I laid down on it," both by Robert Fulgham, have that unexpected humor about them that you can tell they will be enjoyable books to read. And they are.

Lewis Grizzard writes humorous books and his titles are just as humorous. "Shoot low, boys — they're riding Shetland ponies," "If I ever get back to Georgia, I'm gonna nail my feet to the ground," "Don't bend over in the garden, Granny, you know them taters got eyes." Outrageous titles all, but they promise some good chuckles on reading.

Passion seems to be a very saleable commodity in book titles. You know the books we're talking about. They may not have passion in the title, but just from the picture on the cover you know that's what you'll get!! Passion can also be subtle. Rosamunde Pilcher has written two such books, "The Shell Seekers" and "September." Victoria Holt is another author who writes of romance but spices it with a little mystery. "The India Fan" and "Snare of Serpents" are two of her more recent titles.

While straightening the shelves the other day, we came across an intriguing title, "The Fourth World of the Hopis" by Harold Courlander. Several questions come to mind. What is the 4th world? What are the other 3 worlds? We found another humorous but intriguing title the same day. "The headstrong houseboat, or barnacles are better than blow-outs" by William C. Anderson. We found this one in travel, not humor. Maybe you can have the best of both with this one.

Titles can be a starting point in your reading. They can lead you to explore unexpected subjects. If you give them a chance, even seemingly boring titles can lead to interesting encounters. Try them. You just might like them.

Low forecasts may prompt support loan

Forecasts of low corn prices this season could cause marly farmers to place their crop in the Federal Price Support Loan Program after harvest, in hopes of higher prices later in the year.

Corn prices on the farm are expected to average between $1.95 and $2.35 per bushel for the season.

Teresa J. Post, an official of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, says the conservation service, says the county loan rate for 1991 corn is $1.50 per-bushel. Farmers will be eligible for a 9-month price support loan on their corn if it is stored in an approved facility.

The price support loan program provides farmers with operating cash and allows them to hold their crops off the market and benefit price increases sometime come after harvest.

PRODUCTION WORKERS

THE FEW, THE PROUD, THE ADULT WALKING CARRIERS

IBP currently has good jobs for qualified applicants at its West Point, Nebraska, beef plant.

Experience is desirable, but not required. Successful applicants must have a good work history, appropriate physical qualifications and a strong willingness to work. We will train.

And as a new incentive for entry level workers, we have created a "QUICK START" program to allow qualified employees to bypass the starting rate progression to $8 per hour plus skill pay.

*A starting wage of $6.65 per hour with .20¢ increases each 90 days until a base of $8.61s reached. Qualification for QUICK START means immediate progression to $8 plus skill play. *Paid Holidays/Vacation

*Guaranteed 40 hour work week

*Outstanding medical benefits package

*Savings and retirement *Opportunity for advancement
