Report provides options

By Mark Crist Managing Editor

A survey developed by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and the Nebraska Department of Educa-tion has given the Wayne Community Schools options for the future.

The survey, presented at the Wayne School Board meeting Tuesday, seeks to provide not only the improvement of educational programs and school facilities in Nebraska but also to stimulate the insight and development of teachers, principals and superintendents through their in-service programs, according to the introduction of the survey. Wayne Superintendent Dr.

Wayne Superintendent Dr. Francis Haun said the school will use the survey to gauge future development. The survey addresses a number of areas including demographics, financial data, curriculum and program considerations, enrollment histories and projections, and options for consideration for each of the distinct building: district's buildings.

THE SURVEY, which was funded by the Wayne Community Schools suggests options the board of ed-ucation and the school administration may want to consider. Ac-cording to the survey contract, the primary purpose of the study is to determine facility needs for the district. The survey cost an estimated $3,500.

According to the report, the district will be looking at two major considerations in the near future. One consideration will be either the complete renovation of the Wayne Middle School or construction of a new middle school. The other consideration is the closure of the Carroll Elementary School and the bussing of Carroll students and the bussing of Carroll students into Wayne. "Every self-study has indicated that the Carroll school should be closed," Dr. Haun said. "Just like the widdle school ide of the school should be the middle school, it's getting old. But I don't foresee that happening in the immediate future because we don't have room for those stu-dents in the Wayne Elementary building. The Carroll building is serving its purpose well."

NEVERTHELESS, the report indicates that the Wayne Middle School is in desperate need of renovation or replacement. The report says, "while portions of the building are structurally sound, other elements of the structure pose major problems for renovation. The problems cited with

The problems cited with the Wayne Middle School building inluce structural components, real-locating space in the building and life left in the structure. According to Dr. Haun, if renovation occurs, the building would serve the dis-trict's needs for-15 years. A new facility, he said, would be more practical.

"You could bring everything up to code and still have an old building," he said. "If you build a new one, you'll have a building that will last up to 75 years."

OTHER CONCERNS in the survey include the lack of athletic and vocational facilities at Wayne High School and what appears to be a problem with size at the Wayne Elementary School.

The report said vocational facilivite report said vocational racin-ties could be relaxed if a co-operative venture were launched with Wayne State College but he report-says the boys and girls locker rooms at Wayne High School are too small and the weight room is dangerously small.

Also, the report indicates that the high school gymnasium is un-derutilized. The report added that if a new middle school were built, it would alleviate some of the space shortage for athletic facilities at the high school.

IN ADDRESSING educational needs, the survey is critical of Wayne's vocational program while praising of the district's fine arts

"With the changes in the work place and with respect to recent federal legislation, there is a need to closely examine future plans for the vocational curriculum in the high school," the report says. "... The potential for working in a cooperative vocational education program with Wayne State College should be pursued rather vigor ously." The survey added that addi-tional space is needed for the high school's special education program but Dr. Haun said the problem isn't. with space but rather how the administration's utilizing the space that's needed.

He said he believes that once the new ESU 1 building is con-structed in Wayne, that new build-ing should alleviate some of the problem. In most areas of vocational education in the high school and middle school, the survey suggests replacing the shop classes with industrial technology classes, which would give students hands-on ex-perience with robotics and modern technology.

THE SURVEY ADDS that en-rollment is expected to continue to increase for the next 10 years. It predicts that the school enroll-wart in the 2000 cl school war ment in the 2000-01 school year will reach 1,017 students. Dr. Haun said he thinks that might be a little conservative since the district's en-

if a current one moves out." One of the primary keys to the study is the advent of the Class I schools affiliating with K-12 dis-tricts. Dr. Haun said as soon as all the affiliations are made, which is supposed to occur in 1993, the district will have a better idea of how the survey will be realized to its potential.

By closing the landfill early, Wakefield will only be required to follow Nebraska laws, which call for a 2-foot cover of the landfill with whatever soil's available. EPA laws called for a 2-foot cover of a spe-cific grade of soil.

October 13-19 designated National Homemakers Week The week of Oct. 13-19 has been designated National Homemakers Week

Persons interested in joining a Wayne County extension club are asked to call the extension office, 375-3310, or visit the office located in the Wayne County Courthouse. Interested persons will be referred to an existing club in their area. "Being a homemaker today is much broader in scope than it used to be," says Margie Rieschick, NCHEC presi-dent. "In days gone by we were primarily concerned about our own homes and families. Now we have extended our field of interest to include our communities, state and the world. We need make no apology for being a homemaker. It is the most important profession of all! I like to think of our organization as the professional organization of the homemaker."

Jessye Goertz, extension agent in Morrill County, writes, "Families are busier than they've ever been and more wom-en are working outside the home. A void was filled by home extension clubs in the early 1900's and a void can still be filled with home extension clubs today. That void may have changed through the years as educational materials and involvement with other women has become more accessible, but the need for women to come togeth-er, to work together and learn together regardless of their age, religious affiliation, marital status, education, eco-nomic level, cultural background, etc. remains important. "In fact, maybe it's more important now than 50 or more

brara bridge continues to enjoy the solid support of officials in both Nebraska and South Dakota," Bereuter said. "Because of the obvious economic benefits which will result from the bridge, both states have designated its construction as the number one interstate bridge construction priority. "The Niobrara bridge will open up the opportunity for increased tourism in the area and provide re-
