WAYNE STATE COLLEGE President Dr. Donald Mash unveiled plans for Heritage Plaza. Once complete, the plaza will be located east of U.S. Conn Library.

Mash unveils Heritage Plaza

WSC celebrates 100 years

Local dignitaries, staff, faculty and supporters of Wayne State College gathered Wednesday afternoon to celebrate Heritage Day as Dr. Donald Mash, president of the college, addressed the audience.

"We're here today to recognize heritage — the heritage of Wayne State College," Mash said. "At the same time we celebrate our heritage and our tradition, it's very important that we focus our mission today, and even more importantly, our role for the future."

During Mash's presentation, he unveiled plans for Heritage Plaza, an outdoor commons area located to the east of U. S. Conn Library. The college president also stressed the vision the college must maintain for the future to preserve its tradition of excellence.

"THOSE PLANS are developed in the college's master plan, to guide the physical development of the campus," he said.

Plans also include additional programs that students will need for the future and plans to continue to make Wayne State a regional center for northeast Nebraska.

In addressing the audience, Mash introduced them to an artists' rendition of Heritage Plaza. He said since the area east of Conn Library is the center of the campus, it's only fitting that it be a meeting place for students, faculty and staff.

"IT WILL DO a number of things," he said. "It will provide something nice to look at, it provides a place for students, faculty and staff to meet and interact outside when the weather is nice and comfortable and finally, it will provide an outdoor podium or stage, from which will create fun and activity here in the center of the campus."

Connie Keck, who was the chairperson for the Heritage Week events, opened and closed the meeting, congratulating those in attendance for coming.

In all, approximately 75 people attended the Heritage Day get-together.

Wayne State asks state for $270,000

Wayne State College has joined Chadron State College and Peru State College in requesting additional funding for the 1992-93 fiscal year. The request was made Wednesday at a special meeting of the State College Board of Trustees.

According to Andrew Soll, vice-president for administration and finance, Wayne State needs $270,000 in additional funding for the creation of six faculty positions. The need the college is addressing is due to increases in enrollment and the need for additional class sections.

If Wayne State receives all the money in the request, the money used will average $45,000 per each additional faculty member. Soll said $32,000 is for base salary requirements, $8,000 is for benefits, $3,000 for supplies and $2,000 for equipment.

SOLL CITED the inadequate funding Wayne State has received over the years for the size of the college.

"We keep going back to this adequacy study but it's a very important analysis of our funding situation," Soll said.

The analysis study showed that Wayne State finished 13th among 13 colleges in this region of the nation for funding per student. The study was done over a year ago.

Part of the reason for the shortfall in the college's funding is because the biennial projections for the budget were based on stable enrollment rather than enrollment increases. This year, Wayne State's enrollment is 40 percent higher than it was in 1988. It is also up by approximately 350 students over the 1990-91 school year.

Soll said even if the college doesn't grow next year, enrollment will still be 12 percent above what it was when the budget was origi-

Senators get public input

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Despite having a small turnout, three Nebraska state senators have an idea where three of four resolutions discussed at a public hearing Thursday are headed.

Senators Gerald Conway, R-Wayne; Ron Withem, D-Papillion; and Elroy Hefner, R-Coleridge, listened to comments from several different individuals. Topics of discussion included governmental use of the state fairgrounds, a study on the merger of county and city governments and term limitations for elected public officials.

A fourth item which was planned to be discussed received very little attention due to a governor's veto of the bill following the conclusion of the state legislature this year. That item dealt with election laws.

Also in attendance at the meeting was former District 17 Sen. John Murphy of South Sioux City. He, along with John Beltzer of Lincoln, spoke out in support of term limitations for public officials. Marie George of Dixon, however, said she was opposed to the measure.

CONWAY SAID he was pleased by the participation at the public forum. Conway's office scheduled the forum in Wayne. Two others are planned Nov. 9 and Nov. 16 in Lincoln.

Dominating forum discussion was the term limitation issue. Proponents of the issue said they favor it because it will provide for a constant overturn of lawmakers on both the state and national levels, which will provide better representation for the public. Opponents said it is not an issue in Nebraska.

In an interview following Thursday's meeting, Conway said he opposes term limitation. Hefner, who could not be reached for comment, supported a similar measure last year.

"We need to take that issue and make sure it dovetails in and makes a better structured government for Nebraska," he said. "With legislative bodies like ours, I haven't seen the need to do it."

"If you look at federal Congressional bodies, it may be different. I think this needs to be studied more to make sure it reflects all Nebraskan's viewpoints."

Conway said a primary reason he doesn't favor term limitations is because senators who are able to get into office for more than one term can use the second term, providing that's the final term, to play to their own political agenda. He said that's something that concerns him because it allows for abuse of the government.

THE ONLY other topic which received discussion dealt with mergers of city and county governments. Speaking on behalf of the measure was South Sioux City Administrator Lance Hedquist.

Hedquist said he supports expanded laws dealing with interlocal agreements between city and county governments. He said expanding the definitions of interlocal agreements could prove beneficial in the future.

"National studies such as the Grace Commission, state studies such as the Nebraska Futures Study point to the need for reform," Hedquist said. "The establishment of Natural Resource Districts in the state prove that consolidation can

Senator has full agenda on tap

In addition to the legislative hearing Thursday, Nebraska State Sen. Gerald Conway, R-Wayne, had comments on three other items: property taxes, a trip he left for Sunday to Europe and the Nebraska Supreme Court's denial to hold first hearing on the state's redistricting plan.

The trip Conway is making to Europe is to start plans for future trade with the European community.

Because most of the trade with European nations is not done through Washington, D.C., but rather through the states, the senator said the trip will open up channels for the future.

"The purpose of this trip is to help break down trade barriers," he said.

Conway, chairman of the Government, Military and Veterans Affairs Committee, said he wasn't surprised that the Nebraska Supreme Court referred a challenge to the redistricting plan to the lower courts.

He said the state's high court probably doesn't want to deal with an original action of this nature.

The challenge to the redistricting plan was initiated by officials who are upset that District 21, which represents Madison County and Norfolk, will be eliminated. As chairman of the committee, Conway oversaw the process.

The District 17 senator said he will not hold any town hall meetings to discuss the state's property tax problem until after the state's 3-R committee, which is addressing the problem, holds its public hearings. A public hearing with the 3-R committee is scheduled soon in Norfolk.

Center lists concerns with bill

The appropriations bill passed this week by the U. S. Congress increases credit assistance for beginning farmers and provides modest funding for incentive payments to farmers for environmental protection, but fails to increase badly needed funding for sustainable agriculture research, according to the Center for Rural Affairs of Walthill.

"The best news is the increase in funding for direct Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) farm ownership loans to over $66 million," said Center policy analyst Chuck Hassebrook. "Historically, this program has been the best targeted of all FmHA loan programs to serving family sized and beginning farmers." Other good news is the $6.75 million appropriation for the Water Quality Incentives Program, according to Hassebrook. The program provides incentive payments for farmers to implement practices to protect water quality in areas particularly vulnerable to water contamination. Hassebrook adds, "This modest funding will at least enable this innovative program to get off the ground, though $6.75 million will cover only about 140,000 acres nationally."

"The bad news is the failure of Congress to increase funding for the Low Input Sustainable Agriculture Research Program (LISA). This means that there won't be much growth in research on profitable and environmentally sound farming systems that make reduced use of purchased inputs," according to Hassebrook. "LISA stands out among federal research programs for supporting on-farm research, involving farmers directly in decisions about which research gets funded and for emphasizing research that increases family farm opportunities. Yet, its $6.75 million appropriation accounts for less than one half of one percent of federal spending on agricultural research and extension programs. This type of research needs to be given higher priority at USDA."

Congress also appropriated $41 million for the Wetlands Reserve Program, to buy long term easements from farmers to restore and protect farmed wetlands in five as yet unnamed states, as well as $70,000 for the Center for Sustainable Agriculture Research at the University of Nebraska. The bill also included important Congressional directives to USDA on how it spends research dollars. According to Hassebrook, "Those directives send a clear message to USDA that federally funded agricultural research should support goals of increasing opportunities in agriculture and rural communities, protecting farmer and farm worker health and enhancing environmental quality."

Wayne loses on homecoming

Blue Devils drop 28-14 decision to Tekamah

The Wayne Blue Devils football team fell to 2-5 Friday night following a 28-14 setback to Tekamah-Herman on homecoming. Lonnie Ehrhardt's troops led 14-13 at the halftime but the visiting Tigers dominated the time of possession in the second half while scoring all 14 second half points.

"The bottom line is that we just played too much defense," Ehrhardt said. "In the third quarter Tekamah ran 16 plays compared to just four for us. They held the ball over nine minutes in the third period alone."

Tekamah got on the board first in the contest when Brady Ray broke loose for 34 yards but Wayne came right back and scored on a 11-yard option run by quarterback Regg Carnes. Jason Fink converted the extra point to tie the game.

Later in the first period Wayne scored when Carnes connected with Bobby Barnes from 22 yards out and with Fink's point after the Blue Devils had a 14-7 lead with three seconds left in the opening period.

Ray then scored from four yards away early in the second quarter to tighten the Wayne lead to 14-13 which is where it stood at the intermission. In the third quarter Ray scored his third touchdown on the night when he caught a 30-yard pass from Joe Breckinridge on a third down and eight play.

Then the final scoring of the night came in the fourth quarter when Chris Booth intercepted a Carnes pass and rambled 35 yards to paydirt. The win moved Tekamah's record to 6-1 with the Tigers only loss coming to Fremont Bergan in week three.

Tekamah grounded out 16 first downs in the game compared to just seven for the Blue Devils. The Tigers had 223 yards rushing on 49 attempts while Wayne had 108 yards rushing on 25 carries.

Carnes was 6-14 with one interception and one touchdown through the air for Wayne for a total of 56 yards while Breckinridge was 6-7 for 60 yards and a touchdown for Tekamah.

Wayne was penalized four times for 30 yards while Tekamah was whistled for six penalties and 55 yards. Jim Murphy was Wayne's leading rusher with 31 yards on seven attempts while Carnes rushed eight times for 30 yards. John Murphy had three rushes for 22 yards and Kyle Bensen had six carries for 16 yards.

Barnes caught two passes for 30 yards and John Murphy caught three passes for 19 yards. Tim Reinhardt had one reception for seven yards.

Defensively the Blue Devils were led by Jason Fink and Jason Brandt with 12 tackles apiece while Bensen and Matt Metz had seven tackles each. Dwaine Junck had six stops and Carnes, Barnes and Chad Paysen had five tackles each.

Wakefield defeats Coleridge

WAKEFIELD-Paul Eaton's Wakefield Trojans volleyball team improved to 10-3 with a 15-11, 5-15, 15-10 victory over Coleridge Thursday night in Coleridge. The Trojans suffered a letdown in the second game which Eaton attributed a combination of Lisa Blecke getting hurt and not playing in the second game along with Coleridge playing very well.

"Lisa injured her knee when she collided with a teammate," Eaton said. "That happened in the first game and she sat out the second game before returning for the third game."

Connie Witt led the Trojans in serving with a 12-12 outing and four aces along with scoring eight points. "Connie came in and served for all eight points in the third game," Eaton said. Danielle Fallesen was 9-11 in serving with two aces.

Kristen Miller was 25-25 in setting with 14 assists while Kathy Otte was 26-27 with 14 assists. Fallesen led the hitters with a 20-25 outing and nine kill spikes while Blecke was 10-10 with five kills. Fallesen also had eight blocks.

Wakefield will host Bancroft-Rosalie on Tuesday before the conference tournament begins on the 28th.

Wakefield suffers first loss of season, 14-7

The Wakefield Trojans suffered their first loss of the gridiron season Friday night at home as the third rated Bloomfield Bees of the C-2 division downed the sixth rated C-1 Trojans 14-7.

Bloomfield's big offensive line made an impact on the smaller Trojans as the Bees, stung the Wakefield defense for 268 rushing yards on 53 attempts. Wakefield, known as a rush oriented team, had to resort to the air after gaining just 27 yards on the ground in 20 attempts.

"We just didn't run the ball very well," Wakefield coach Dennis Wilbur said. "We missed way too many tackles on defense and we had some mental letdowns and you can't have those against good teams like Bloomfield and expect to win."

Wakefield trailed 7-0 at the intermission following a four-yard run by Michael Fehring who ran for a total of 159 yards on 33 attempts on the night. The touchdown followed a blocked punt and Bloomfield scored with just 33 seconds left in the half.

In the third quarter the visitors scored on a 26-yard run by Fehring to lead 14-0. Then in the fourth period Marcus Tappe hooked up with Brent Oetken for 60 yards and with Matt Stanton's point after the Trojans were within seven points with over 10 minutes remaining.

Wakefield got one last chance to score when they took over at the Trojan 47-yard line with 4:09 remaining but a Tappe pass was intercepted by Bloomfield who ran out the clock.

Bloomfield had 15 first downs in the game compared to eight by the Trojans. Tappe was 7-17 through the air for 144 yards and two interceptions while Bloomfield was 2-4 in passing for 45 yards for a total yard advantage for the Bees of 313-171.

Wakefield had five penalties for 54 yards while Bloomfield had five penalties for 45 yards. Anthony Brown led Wakefield in rushing with 18 yards on eight carries. Oetken caught two passes for 88 yards while Brown caught five for 56.

Defensively Wakefield was led by Brown's 23 tackles while Ben Dutton had 20 and Thad Nixon, 10. Aron Utecht finished with nine and T.J. Preston had eight. Bill Rusk had a fumble recovery.

Wakefield will host Emerson-Hubbard on Wednesday night before traveling to Stanton to close out the regular season on Nov. 1.

Boys win districts for third straight year

Wayne boys, girls earn state cross country bids

The Wayne boys cross country team captured the B-3 district tournament in Columbus Thursday afternoon which gave the Blue Devils their third consecutive district championship.

Wayne scored 42 points while runners-up Albion and Central City tied with 56 but Albion won the tie breaker. Columbus Lakeview was fourth with 57 and St. Paul was fifth with 64. Schuyler was sixth with 98 and Columbus Scotus was seventh with 106. David City Aquinas and O'Neill rounded out the field of nine teams.

Todd Fuelberth kept his undefeated record for the 1991 season in tact with a first place clocking of 15:53. Matt Ley finished second in 16:49 and Nate Stednitz ran to a 16th place time of 17:31. Aaron Geiger and Randy Johnson placed 17th and 18th respectively with times of 17:39 and 17:40 while Jason Johs placed 21st in 17:50.

"We ran well as a team," Wayne coach Rocky Ruhl said. "I thought Todd, Matt and Randy ran great races. Todd's time of 15:53 is the best we have seen in districts in the five years I've coached" at Wayne. Having all six of our guys break 18 minutes is a very good team effort."

Wayne became the only school in the nine teams present to have both the girls and boys qualify as a team for the state tournament when the girls placed third. "I think having both the boys and girls team qualify for state and to be the only school to achieve that in our district is a great accomplishment to our teams," Ruhl said.

after Geiger dropped out. I thought they did a good job of responding to adversity. They stuck with it and qualified for state for the second consecutive year."

The top three teams in each district qualify for state and Wayne finished with 67 points for third place honors. David City Aquinas won the meet with 32 while Columbus Scotus was one point back for runner-up honors.

Schuyler was fourth with 82 and O'Neill was fifth with 83. St. Paul finished sixth with 93 and Central City was seventh with 97. Albion rounded out the field of eight with 126.

Schluns finished second in the individual standings with a 16:42 clocking while Susie Ensz was 15th in 18:17. Carrie Junck placed 24th in 19:19 and Jessica Wilson was 26th in 19:22. Jill O'Leary ran to a 21:38 time.

Incidentally, Geiger will be able to run at the state meet Friday in Kearney.

Wildcats drop to 4-3

Winside suffers loss

Randy Geier's Winside football team suffered six turnovers against state rated Beemer Friday night and the Wildcats could not overcome that as they fell 54-22 in Winside.

"We kind of shot ourselves in the foot with six turnovers," Geier said. "We can't afford those kinds of mistakes against good football teams like Beemer. We weren't very aggressive and we were dominated on the line of scrimmage on both sides of the ball."

Beemer led 9-0 after one quarter of play at 29-6 at the intermission. The visitors held a commanding 41-14 lead after three. Beemer had 21 first downs to 15 for Winside. The Bobcats had 361 yards rushing while Winside was held to 59.

three-yard run by Stueckrath with Jensen passing to Frederick for the two-point conversion in the fourth quarter.

Winside spikers down Allen

ALLEN VOLLEYBALL PLAYER Cindy Chase attempts to spike a ball over Winside's Holly Holdorf in action Thursday night in Allen. Winside won in three games.

In what may very well be a preview of one of the Class D-1 sub-district finals later this fall, Winside defeated Allen Thursday night in Allen, 15-13, 11-15, 15-8.

Paul Giesselmann's Wildcats improved to 9-3 with the win while Allen fell to 13-3. "Anytime you can beat a top ten team on their home court you've accomplished something," Giesselmann said.

Allen came into the game ranked eighth in the Lincoln Journal & Star while the Wildcats entered the contest rated seventh in the Omaha World Herald. "It was a real good match," Giesselmann said. "The difference in the first game was we scored seven points on blocks."

Allen coach Buffy Romshek was not disappointed with her team's performance despite the loss. "I thought we played well," Romshek said. "Our percentages were up in every category but I felt the difference for our team was missing serves at critical points of the match which we normally don't do."

Winside was led in serving by Patty Oberle who was 17-17 with three aces while Wendy Rabe was 13-13 with three aces. Jenny Jacobsen was 14-15 with three aces and Holly Holdorf was 9-9 with one ace. Kari Pichler was 9-9 with one ace and Christi Mundt was 9-11. Winside was 73-77 in serving.

Pichler led the team in setting with 19 assists and Jacobsen had 15 successful spikes with eight kills. Holdorf was 16-18 with six kills and Rabe had six kills. Oberle had five kills.

Jacobsen led Winside with six blocks including five aces while Holdorf had four blocks with three aces. Rabe and Pichler each had three blocks. Winside combined for 16 blocks and 11 ace blocks.

Allen was led in serving by Cindy Chase with a 15-15 outing and two aces while Christi Philbrick was 15-18 with three aces. "Philbrick was 69-70 in setting with 27 assists and Chase was 26-28 in hitting with eight kills. Denise Boyle was 21-26 with nine kills. Chase led the Eagles in blocks with six.

"We feel we can play better," Giesselmann said of his Winside team. "Our serve receive wasn't that good but that was a combination of not passing well and Allen's good serving. They have a nice team and they can serve the ball well."

nally drawn up. "That's a lot of additional students to try and absorb into a budget that's already dead last among other institutions our size," he said.

ONE OF THE reasons for adding six additional full-time faculty, Soll said, is because the market for adjunct faculty in northeast Nebraska is pretty much used up. He said that adds to the need for six additional new faculty.

Examples of the areas at the college which need additional faculty include: general education curriculum, education division, computer and information sciences, fine arts and criminal justice. Soll said areas will be prioritized according to enrollment figures.

The biggest challenge Wayne State will face in receiving the additional funds is that the State of Nebraska has called for budget cutbacks in all colleges. One example which has been well publicized is the cutbacks at the University of Nebraska, where the speech communications department is in jeopardy.

Soll said Wayne State, however, differs from the University of Nebraska in that WSC is making cutbacks in different areas.

"We know it was difficult for the legislature and the governor to find funds to address our needs as well as the needs of other agencies," Soll said. "We know it will be equally difficult if not more difficult this year."

work and can work well. The legislature should be commended for this past action.

"... I would support the state's passage of legislation that allows the citizens the statutory ability to improve the delivery of governmental services."

Conway said he favors expanding the laws to deal with merger agreements so long that it can be done where it's beneficial for both governmental entities. He said he can see some situations where it could create conflicts.

"Most of it deals with services that are offered, whether it be law enforcement or solid waste collection agencies," he said. "...What we need to know is if current laws are enough. Right now we haven't run into any laws where there is a conflict but there are cooperatives going on right now."

If the legislative resolutions proceed as they are expected, Conway said he expects that they will be presented as bills to the legislature as soon as 1992. He said much of it depends on how the legislative hearings progress.

Smokey visits pre-schoolers

A SPECIAL GUEST VISITED WITH youngsters from Stepping Stones Pre-School Wednesday at Redeemer Lutheran Church. Smokey discussed fire prevention with the children and how to prevent forest fires when they camp out. He told the Stepping Stones students that they need to be careful with fire all the time and that they need to use precautions whenever they're around fire. He also warned the youngsters not to play with matches. Prior to Smokey's arrival, the youngsters listened to a short fire prevention message from Steve Rasmussen, who works with the forest service.

Videoconference features discussion on income tax for agricultural producers

A statewide satellite videoconference designed to help farmers and ranchers better manage their income taxes is scheduled Nov. 26 at 10 a.m. The video conference will be shown at the Northeast Station in Concord.

Deb Rood, agricultural economics program coordinator at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, said the title of the videoconference is "Income Tax Management for Ag Producers". Topics will include: leveling tax liabilities using prepaid expenses, deferred income and depreciation; employment taxes; payments-in-kind; family wages; health insurance plans; differences between personal and business expenses; savings for education and retirement plans; like-kind exchanges and installment sales and recent tax law changes.

Tax professionals will make short and concise presentations on income taxes and at many sites, a tax professional will be available to explain and answer participants' questions, Rood said. These experts will answer questions during the program:

•Gary Bredensteiner, director of the Nebraska Farm Business Association at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

•Esther Guertin, taxpayer education coordinator for the Omaha District of the Internal Revenue Service.

•Janice Mumm, a certified public accountant from Ceresco.

The cost of the program is $12 which includes a packet of tax materials including speaker outlines and the 1991 Farmers Tax Guide.

Additional people from the same operation will be charged $6 with no packet materials, Rood explained. For home viewers with a satellite dish, satellite coordinates will be given after the registration fee is paid. Registration deadline is Nov. 21.

To register, contact your local extension office or the Department of Agricultural Economics, 303C Filley Hall, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Lincoln, NE 68583-0922 or call toll-free 1-800-535-3456.

Hospital holds clinic

A genetic counseling clinic will be held Nov. 6 at Lutheran Community Hospital in Norfolk. There is no fee charged to attend the clinic, which is conducted four times each year by a genetics team from Meyer Children's Rehabilitation Institute of the University of Nebraska Medical Center. A physician's referral is recommended.

Genetics counseling is available to those who have questions or problems associated with risks of an inherited condition or birth defect.

For more information, or to make an appointment, contact the Home Health Care Department at Lutheran Community Hospital at 371-4880.

Department to host forum

Goals and objectives for the health of Nebraskans for the year 2000 will be the topic at a public forum to be held in Norfolk on Tuesday, Oct. 22, at 7 p.m. at the Northeast Community College.

Staff from the Nebraska Department of Health's Division of Health Policy and Planning will present an overview of health promotion efforts and interventions needed to improve the health of Nebraskans by the year 2000.

"We need recommendations from members of the public and from the medical community in order to reach our goals," said Dave Palm, director of the Bureau of Health Planning and Data Management at the Health Department.

"We would also like input on how appropriate or realistic people feel these goals are," Palm said.

The department's goals include reducing infant mortality, increasing immunizations, reducing deaths from cancer and other tobacco-related disease, reducing injuries, decreasing cardiovascular disease, and improving nutrition. Input from the public is needed on other possible goals, Palm said.

A panel will discuss the goals following a slide presentation. Members of the panel will include Jim Deitloff, executive director of Goldenrod Hills Community Action in Wisner; Dr. Tyler Martin, a pediatrician from Norfolk; Darlene Martin, a nutrition specialist from the Cooperative Extension Service; and Joan Cline, a health educator from Macy Health Services.

After the panel discussion, input from members of the public will be invited, Palm said.

The forum will be held in the theater on the campus of the Northeast Community College, 801 East Benjamin Avenue.

NORTHEAST NEBRASKA FFA MEMBERS QUALIFY FOR STATE LAND JUDGING COMPETITION

Piles of soil and four foot deep trenches replaced books and desks last Thursday for approximately 250 FFA members during the 1991 Northeast Area Land Judging Contest near Norfolk.

Students from 12 area schools competed for individual honors and a qualifying berth in the state land judging contest on the Walter Strate farm east of Hoskins.

During the annual competition, FFA'ers recognize and evaluate soil traits, then suggest appropriate conservation methods needed to maintain the land's productivity.

Chris Logfren of West Point topped the field in the individual scoring competition. Logfren took first place with a score of 342.

Tekamah-Herman FFA members Chris Booth, Bryce Chatt, Scott Elliott and Loren McCormick compiled the first place team score and qualified for the state contest to be held in late October near Kimball.

Other teams qualifying for state are from Howells/Clarkson, Blair and West Point.

The Strate farm and the Dennis Puls farm were the sites of a conservation session following the contest. Soil Conservation Service personnel guided the FFA'ers on a tour highlighted by conservation practices such as Conservation Reserve Program land, a possible road structure site, windbreaks, terrace systems, conservation tillage and heavy residue management systems.

Back at Northeast Community College, the contest participants were rewarded for their land judging expertise at the awards ceremony. Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources district general manager Stan Staab announced the winners and presented ribbons to the top scoring individuals and teams.

The contest was sponsored by the Lower Elkhorn NRD and Northeast Community College in cooperation with the USDA soil Conservation Service, the Nebraska Department of Education's Division of Vocational Education and the UNL Cooperative Extension Service.

Safety tips for Halloween

Parents who want their children to enjoy a fun, but safe and non-destructive Halloween have a number of options open to them, said a University of Nebraska-Lincoln family life specialist.

Herb Lingren said Halloween raises three main issues for concerned parents: pranksterism, street safety and food safety.

Pranksterism, the "trick" part of "trick or treating" that comes into play when a treat isn't forthcoming, has come to be viewed as both destructive and a mild form of blackmail by many, Lingren said.

"To emphasize the positive aspects of Halloween, focus on a more constructive interpretation of the word 'trick,'" he said. "Encourage such simple magic tricks as palming a coin, more active tricks such as juggling, or the simplest, just guessing the identity of the person in disguise."

"Thus, for the favor of being entertained, the giving of a treat becomes more acceptable," he continued. "Many parents now refer to the activity as 'trick and treating.'"

Lingren said there are many sources for simple tricks children can use, including a number of books on games and magic available at libraries. "What better time to do magic than on the anniversary of Houdini's death?" he asked.

Other possibilities include singing, juggling, or reciting short poems or limericks, he said.

Lingren noted that some communities have taken innovative steps to encourage children to complete their forays at an early hour and return home. One such program is the "Trick 'n Treat Phone Squad," a contest often sponsored by local merchants, the police or civic clubs. Children enter by submitting their names and phone numbers, Lingren explained. Names are then drawn at random and children called at a pre-set time such as 8 p.m. Children who answer win prizes for being home on time.

"It's an effective incentive and fosters the development of responsibility," Lingren said.

Street safety is another concern, he said. Two other UNL specialists, Rollin Schnieder, safety and Rose Marie Tondl, clothing and textiles joined Lingren in recommending a number of steps should be taken to improve safety:

- Purchased costumes should be flame-retardant. Avoid highly flammable crepe paper on homemade costumes. Use a flashlight to illuminate the pumpkin.

- Choose light-colored material for better visibility and add reflective tape.

- See that costumes are at least 6 inches above the ankle to prevent stumbling. Pin hats to the child's hair so that it doesn't blow away or obstruct vision. Shoes should be flat and comfortable.

- Use face paint instead of masks that can block eyesight. But test the paint first on a small area of the body to see if it causes an allergic reaction. Keep paint away from eyes.

- Go early while enough light remains for motorists to see children. And always accompany trick 'n treaters. Added fun can result if the parent or guardian also dons a costume.

And finally, reports of treats bobby trapped with pins, razor blades and other foreign objects surface every Halloween. Always check treats carefully before letting children eat them.

Researcher has book on nutrition

Good eating and good health are clearly linked, but millions of Americans don't read well enough to understand most traditional nutrition advice.

A University of Nebraska-Lincoln researcher's work should help ease the information gap. Nancy Betts, nutrition researcher in NU's College of Home Economics, developed a booklet to provide interesting, understandable nutrition information for low-literate adults nationwide. It's being reviewed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which funded the project.

While reading skills of 36 million Americans are between the fourth and eighth grade levels, Betts said, most nutrition information is written at an average of the 10th grade reading level.

"There is a whole segment of the population being missed," said Betts. She hopes her efforts will help provide comprehensive nutrition information to such people.

Betts received a $30,700 USDA grant to develop information geared to the functionally or marginally illiterate. She started with seven USDA nutrition booklets, one dealing with each of the seven dietary guidelines.

Betts combined all seven in a single booklet written at a fifth to sixth grade reading level. She included tips on feeding children and economical shopping.

Determining what nutrition is interesting as well as readable to low-literate adults was important, Betts said.

"We needed to give it to them in a form that they would pick up and read it," she said.

To get a feel for the needs and interests of perspective users, Betts sought their advice as she developed the information.

About 150 people who read at between the fourth and eighth grade levels provided Betts with feedback on her work.

Participants were chosen from adult basic education classes and job training programs in Omaha, Lincoln and nearby rural areas.

Participants read Betts' prototype booklet and offered their opinions of it. Discussion groups and individual interviews provided first-hand information Betts needed to revise the booklet to suit its intended readers' needs and interests.

They liked a color photo on the front page, but suggested every food group be displayed instead of just the fruits and vegetables pictured in the first prototype, she said.

A section on the first page inside was added that depicted the five basic food groups and recommended number of daily servings.

"They wanted to know what a serving was," Betts said. "So we included a sidebar that explains it."

There was a great demand for calorie information and shorter recipes with fewer ingredients, she said.

"They hated the stuff about the alcohol," Betts said. "They didn't think alcohol should be in a book about nutrition."

Betts said the project was difficult because she and her colleagues had no idea what low-literate adults had heard or knew about nutrition.

Her aim is to educate adults with low-literacy skills about the factors in foods that relate to heart and other diseases and reduce misconceptions about nutrition, she said.

"They knew the word cholesterol and knew it was bad, but they didn't know why," she said. "We need to educate these adults on things high-literacy level adults know already and kind of take for granted."

Betts' work with project participants revealed some education-related differences which are important in designing useful material for low-literate adults.

Low-literate adults are likely to be concrete thinkers, she said, and that can create problems in designing information for concrete thinkers.

For example, participants didn't easily understand a chart reinforcing the idea that more calories are expended with more activity, Betts said.

The chart also detailed several activities and categories for men and women based on reference weights and heights. The low-literate adults didn't see how the information could help them because they didn't weigh the same as the example, Betts said.

The concept that men and women expend calories at different levels also was confusing, she said.

"They judge things a lot by their own personal experience," she said.

Program through Northeast, WSC caters to area graduate students

With the new telecommunication technologies now available, Northeast Community College is exploring the possibility of offering graduate classes and other programs in the college's 20 county service area. The programs would be offered through the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, in collaboration with Wayne State College.

A meeting to gain input from people interested in this type of long distance learning is scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 30 at 7 p.m. in the Maclay Building Boardroom on the Northeast campus. Dr. Ron Joekel, chair of the Department of Educational Administration at UN-L will be on hand, along with Northeast President Dr. Robert Cox to answer questions and discuss options.

According to Interim Dean of Community Services Nancy

USDA officials were so pleased with the results that they plan to use the prototype with only a few minor changes, Betts said. However, because of budget cuts and other factors, it's not yet known when the booklet will be published.

Betts hopes to continue research on low-literate adults. The next step is teaching low-literate adults how they can manipulate their diet to reduce health risks, she said.

Ultimately, Betts hopes to develop nutrition materials to be used for teaching literacy skills.

Betts' research was conducted in cooperation with the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources Agricultural Research Division.

Schwede, the new uplink and downlink capabilities of Northeast's telecommunication facilities presents many new opportunities for distance learning and degrees. "Rural residents will at last have the chance to pursue graduate and undergraduate coursework closer to home," Schwede said.

A graduate class already scheduled through UN-L is titled "The Junior/Community College." Intended for individuals interested in working in the community college setting, the class will meet Wednesday evenings starting in January.

For more information on the meeting on telecommunication classes or the class "The Junior/Community College," contact Dr. Robert Cox or Nancy Schwede at Northeast at 371-2020.

Elks Foundation offers grants

Students planning to pursue a postsecondary vocational/technical course in a school or college leading to an associate degree, diploma, or certificate, but less than a baccalaureate degree, are eligible to compete for $2,000 grants offered by the Elks National Foundation.

The Elks National Foundation Trustees have set aside $682,000 for grants for the 1992-93 and 1993-94 years. Each grant is for $1,000 for each of the two years.

Although graduating high school seniors are eligible to apply, older students who desire training or re-training are also encouraged to apply. A high school diploma or GED is not required. Students who plan to transfer to four-year colleges or universities are not eligible.

Applications are available at the Northeast Community College Financial Aid Office. Application deadline is Nov. 22.

UN-L professor speaks at Wayne State, seeks graduate students

Dr. Jorge Rodriguez-Sierra, professor of anatomy and cell biology at the University of Nebraska Medical Center, will be at Wayne State College Wednesday, Oct. 23, recruiting potential graduate students for the Anatomy and Cell Biology Department. The Department's faculty are interested in the areas of neuroscience, reproductive biology, immunology, cancer biology, cardiology, hematology, cell biology, developmental biology, electron microscopy, and molecular biology. Dr. Rodriguez-Sierra will be meeting and speaking with students in the Carhart Science Building at Wayne State to discuss graduate school opportunities. He is also interested in meeting with high school students and Wayne

Program features works of Cather, O'Keeffe in 'Spirits of the Southwest'

A public program, "Cather and O'Keeffe: Spirits of the Southwest," will be presented by Polly Duryea, Sunday, Oct. 27 at 2 p.m. at the John G. Neihardt Center in Bancroft.

The presentation focuses on the portrayal of the American Southwest, particularly the region around Taos, by Nebraska writer Willa Cather, and artist Georgia O'Keeffe. Remarkable similarities exist between the two artists, one who captured the spirit of the region with words, the other on canvas.

Duryea, an independent scholar from Humboldt, traces the influences that shaped both women, examining four interludes when Cather and O'Keeffe stayed at Mabel Dodge Luhan's retreat for artists near the Taos Pueblo.

The slide presentation is sponsored by the Nebraska Humanities Council, and is free and open to the public.

For more information contact the Neihardt Center, (402)648-3388.

Program goes well

Project Search and Discover/OBS, a program designed to help move people toward self-sufficiency has had a successful first year, according to Maureen Baker.

The program is conducted by Northeast Community College at centers in South Sioux City, Fremont, Columbus and Norfolk through a contract with the Department of Social Services.

Program clients are usually recipients of food stamps, Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) or are working with Child Protective Services. In order to continue receiving benefits, they must complete the six week program which focuses on self-esteem, career exploration and job seeking skills.

Baker said that the four centers served 215 clients in the last program year, out of 754 that were referred. Of those, 61 are now employed, 21 are working toward a high school diploma and 42 are enrolled in college. Others are in counseling, seeking employment or were referred to other agencies.

More information about the program can be obtained through Northeast Community College or the local department of Social Services offices.

Northeast discussion set

Women thinking about returning to or starting college usually have many concerns about being able to combine classes with a busy personal life. A discussion group addressing those concerns is scheduled for Tuesday, Oct. 29 from 7-9:30 p.m. in the Northeast Student Center Cafeteria.

Involved in the discussion group will be women who are currently enrolled as full time and part-time students at Northeast. According to Sue Tucker, director of Northeast's New Beginnings program, the women on the panel will be available to answer questions such as financial concerns, family supportiveness, scheduling and child care. They also will provide insight on personal feelings about pursuing college degrees and how they "fit in" on campus.

For more information on the meeting or if you are unable to attend but have questions, contact Tucker at 644-0471.

Experience is desirable, but not required. Successful applicants must have a good work history, appropriate physical qualifications and a strong willingness to work. We will train.

And as a new incentive for entry level workers, we have created a "QUICK START" program to allow qualified employees to bypass the starting rate progression to $8 per hour plus skill pay.

Benefits Include:

- *A starting wage of $6.65 per hour with .20¢ increases each 90 days until a base of $8 is reached. Qualification for QUICK START means immediate progression to $8 plus skill pay.

- *Paid Holidays/Vacation
- *Guaranteed 40 hour work week
- *Outstanding medical benefits package
- *Savings and retirement
- *Opportunity for advancement
