Bazaar today

WAYNE — The Wayne Hospital Auxiliary fall bazaar, postponed from Nov. 2 because of a snowstorm which hit the area, has been rescheduled for today (Thursday) from 3 to 9 p.m. in Wayne city auditorium.

Soup, sandwiches and pie will be available, in addition to a variety of food and craft items.

All proceeds from the bazaar will be used to purchase equipment for Providence Medical Center.

Health forum

WAYNE — The Nebraska Commission on the Status of Women and Citizen Action will be in Wayne tonight (Thursday) to present a community forum on health accessibility.

The forum will be held in the Student Center on the Wayne State College campus. It begins at 7 p.m.

For more information, contact Jean Karlen at 375-7292 or 385-2657.

Acre reduction

AREA — A .5 percent acreage reduction requirement is in effect for 1992 corn, grain sorghum and barley, according to Melvin Wilson, chairman of the Wayne County ASC Committee. The 1991 program called for a 7.5 percent reduction in corn, grain sorghum and barley acres. The feed program does not require a reduction in oats acreage.

"Other provisions of the 1992 feed grain program will be announced as they become available," Wilson said. Knowledge of how much land will be idled will help producers plan for the coming year.

The initial acreage reduction percentage is subject to adjustment and any adjustment would be announced by Nov. 15.

Help sought

WAYNE — Due to Thursday's storm, sixth graders at Wayne Middle School are seeking assistance from anyone who will be traveling to Omaha in the near future to send their teddy bear Hershey to China. Hershey was unable to leave Wayne due to the winter storm.

People interested in assisting in the effort can contact Jill Pickinbaugh at Wayne Middle School at 375-2230.

Craft festival

WAYNE — The Wayne County Women of Today will hold their 11th annual Holiday Craft Festival Saturday, Nov. 9 from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Wayne City Auditorium.

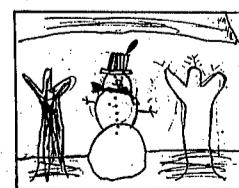

Not issued

AREA — Because the market prices on 1990 corn crop and grain sorghum exceeded the basic loan rates for these crops, no increased deficiency payments, known as Findley payments, will be made in 1991.

The basic loan rates were $1.96 per bushel for corn and $1.86 per bushel for grain sorghum. The national average prices received by producers from September 1990 through August 1991 were $2.28 per bushel for corn and $2.12 per bushel for grain sorghum.

Findley payments are made when the basic support level for a crop is reduced to maintain domestic and export markets for that commodity.

Board extends JDC deadline

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

In a 2-1 vote Tuesday, the Wayne County Commissioners gave the Wayne County Juvenile Detention Center (JDC) until Jan. 1 to correct problems or face closure.

Voting against the extension was Wayne County Commissioner Merlin Beiermann, who said he thinks the facility should be closed.

County commissioners grilled Wayne County Sheriff LeRoy Janssen for about 1 1/2 hours Tuesday over two recent escapes. Janssen, who is administrator of the facility, defended the JDC and received some support from Wayne County Attorney Mike Pieper.

"I don't think you can do two jobs and that includes sheriff and administrator" of the JDC, Commissioner Jerry Pospisil told Janssen during a heated debate.

"... I continue to do this with pride and (do it) the best way I can and I'll continue to do that," Janssen told the commissioners.

AT THEIR Aug. 20 meeting, the commissioners voted 3-0 to give the JDC 60 days to become secure or a six month notice of closure would be sent to the 20 governmental bodies which send juvenile offenders to the facility. The commissioner's vote Tuesday extends the 60 day deadline to Jan. 1. If efforts are not made to make the facility secure by the commissioner's Jan. 7 meeting, the JDC may face closure.

During the meeting, the commissioners said they received a petition from residents calling for the closure of the facility. They said the petition was signed by 26 residents.

Janssen said residents' concern with the facility's safety is at the fault of the media.

During the course of the meeting, the commissioners said they are seeking to have razor wire placed around the roof of the facility. In addition, they want to see a fence placed around it.

According to Janssen, the reason the security measures have not been completed is because contractors are too busy to pay attention to the JDC.

"It's about time that they realize our money is as good as everyone else's," Pospisil said.

IF THE JDC closes, it would mean an increase in the county budget, according to Janssen. The increase in the budget may be something the county cannot afford since budget restrictions are as tight as they have been in years. It could mean that the county would have to call for a countywide bond issue.

In 1988, when the JDC opened, the budget for the Wayne County Jail was set at $50,000. With the JDC, the county is paying between $30,000 and $32,000, Janssen said.

While the commissioners did not directly address the budgetary issue, Beiermann said he is upset that the county has so little control over the JDC. He said with juvenile crime on the rise, he has problems keeping the facility open since federal laws appear to favor the juvenile offender and not the public. Pospisil supported Beiermann's point.

"As long as Wayne County's looking after their (other counties) juveniles, they don't care," Pospisil said.

JANSEN SAID juvenile crime has increased since the facility opened its doors Dec. 7, 1988. He said when the JDC opened, the ratio of boys to girls was 10 to one. Today, that ratio has increased to 10 to three.

"Things are happening too fast for bureaucracy to keep up with it," Janssen said.

In his closing remarks, Janssen likened the JDC to a bridge that's gone out.

"You don't abandon the road if the bridge is out. You work to fix the bridge," he said. "That's what I'm asking for."

Forum focuses on free speech

Is free speech an absolute right, or does the right to say, sing, write or draw what you want end where it bumps up against someone else's sensitivities? Should we limit free speech to acceptable expression? If so, what is acceptable and who decides?

That will be the topic of a forum Sunday, Nov. 10 at the Wayne Public Library. The forum will be held at 3:30 p.m.

Two hundred years after the Bill of Rights was added to the Constitution, a contentious debate is taking place about the meaning of free speech and the boundaries of acceptable expression.

People disagreed about the harm caused by offensive messages and how communities should respond. The question is what we are prepared to tolerate as the price of maintaining our freedom.

THE ISSUE, in many cases, is not whether certain messages or images are offensive — some people agree they are: But what is an appropriate response that is consistent with our commitment to free speech?

Participants in the National Issues Forum Sunday will discuss free speech and censorship and the choices we can make. There is no admission for the event and it's open to the public.

Forum participants will examine three options for community response when faced with offensive messages, according to Dr. Tom Cook, who is helping to organize the forum.

AT THE CENTER of the debate about free speech is the question of what is a proper and acceptable balance between individual rights and the community's need to maintain order and protect itself from threats to its health and safety.

How these conflicting objectives are balanced depends on what we value most, and what we are prepared to tolerate as the price of maintaining our freedoms.

Commission denies Geno's request

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Geno's owner Gene Claussen appears to have one fewer option.

In a meeting with the city planning commission, Claussen pleaded his case to have a clause struck from B-2 zoning laws.

With the planning commission splitting its vote 3-3, Commission Chair George Phelps broke the tie, casting his vote in favor of leaving the ordinance as it appears.

"I think the consensus of the group is that we needed to have more specifics," Phelps said.

The clause in the city ordinance doesn't allow ground floor or basement level multi-family dwellings in the B-2 zone. Despite the planning commission's decision, the matter may still be picked up by the city council.

CLAUSSEN WAS hoping to have the ground floor clause struck from the ordinance so he had another option for restoring the Geno's building at the corner of 2nd and Pearl. Geno's Steakhouse was severely damaged in a fire Sept. 6. The top floor of the structure has been condemned and Claussen said he was looking for options of what he can do with the main floor.

"Whatever happens, the top floor has to be taken off," Claussen told the commission. "The bottom floor has to be gutted out. The outside shell, according to structural engineers, is in good shape.

"One of the options is to put in ground floor apartments. If this passes ... I'd like to put apartments there. ... Basically, I want to find out what my options are. I need to find out if it's possible or not."

AFTER RECEIVING testimony, members of the city planning commission voiced their difficulties with the issue since it potentially had such far reaching affects on the B-2 zone.

"This is a difficult issue because no one wants to see us hurt Mr. Claussen's livelihood," said Commissioner Pat Arneson. "On the other hand, this could have far-reaching affects for the downtown B-2 business district."

Adding to Arneson's comments, Commissioner Randy Pedersen said he doesn't think the B-2 district should be subjected to residential settings.

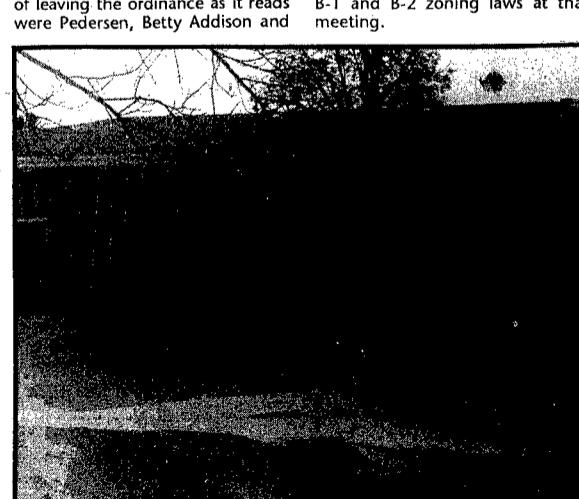

"If housing wasn't such a big issue, we wouldn't be looking at this thing," he said. "We shouldn't look to the future as housing being the only major issue in Wayne."

CASTING THEIR votes in favor of leaving the ordinance as it reads were Pedersen, Betty Addison and Bob Woehler. Voting against leaving the ordinance as it reads were Arneson, Virgil Kardell and Jack Hausmann. Absent from the meeting was Commissioner Sam Schroeder.

In an effort to discuss the matter further, the commission will hold a planning session Nov. 14 with representatives from Hanna:Keelan Associates, the company which is updating the city's zoning regulations and comprehensive plan.

The commission will discuss the B-1 and B-2 zoning laws at that meeting.

Drifts along the city limits

RESIDENTS ALONG THE NORTH EDGE of the city found that last Thursday's snowstorm brought some unwelcome drifts into their yards. That was the case for Dale and Fran Poehlman, who live at 604 Westwood Drive. Drifts from last Thursday's storm were as high as 12 feet in the Poehlmans' yard. In fact, the drifts were so bad, that the Poehlmans can't even get out of their back door, which is under the deck.

Six face charges in JDC escape

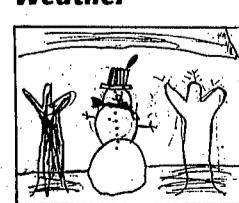

Charges have been filed against the six juveniles who allegedly escaped from the Wayne County Juvenile Detention Center Oct. 11.

Facing escape charges are Chad Thomas Vasa, Mike B. Brown, Royce Clifton Hamilton and John Charles Hamilton. All four were taken back into custody Oct. 12 by Winnebago and Omaha Tribal authorities.

CHARGES have also been filed against two other escapees but names were not available since their arrest warrants have not been returned. According to Wayne County Sheriff LeRoy Janssen, one of the two suspects remains at large.

Escape as a Class IV felony can bring maximum penalty of five years in prison, a $10,000 fine, or both.

Wayne Care Centre event

Fund raiser touches more than pocketbook

The resident council of Wayne Care Centre invites the public to attend their second annual soup and pie supper on Thursday, Nov. 14 from 6 to 8 p.m.

Beef vegetable and chicken noodle soup, pie and a drink will be served at a cost of $2 per person. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

Administrator Pat Lichty said, proceeds from the supper are earmarked for various projects the council hopes to accomplish within the near future.

IN ADDITION to offering tasty soups and pie, Lichty said the supper provides valued social contact between the community and care centre residents.

"These people need the community involvement," said Lichty, adding that they were the community just a generation ago.

"They (the residents) are wonderful, caring people with needs just the same as any other individual. They may be older and because of age may have other impairments, but it doesn't change their personality and the fact that they still need to feel a part of the community."

LICHTY ADDED that the trend over the years has been a general fear of care facilities.

"Folks don't look forward to that time in their lives when they must leave their homes and enter a care center. That's why it is so necessary for the community to come to them and to let them know that they are still valued and treasured."

"Instead of an institution, we want the residents to feel that this is their home."

LICHTY SAID the soup and pie supper also serves as a forum for the care centre to encourage the signing up of volunteers.

"We already have a dedicated staff and several talented volunteers for activities and musical events, Bible studies, communion, etc., but we need additional volunteers to assist with reading, games, bingo and crafts."

"We encourage groups, study clubs, home extension clubs, elementary students and other individuals in the community to visit the centre once a week, once a month, or whenever possible to share their time and talents."

THE SOUP and pie supper is planned by the resident council and being managed by Susie Sieffken, Grace Kanitz, Mandelle Hallstrom and Nila Schuttler and her dietary staff.

The Wayne Care Centre is a skilled nursing facility with 24-hour nursing care. There are presently 85 residents and a capacity of 94.

Three Ways to Prevent Colds

Colds are contagious and can be "spread" from person to person. Unlike bacterial infections, which sometimes can be treated with prescription antibiotic medicines, colds are caused by more than 200 different viruses. Since there is no cure for the common cold, prevention is important. First, avoid persons who have colds or appear to have colds. Second, wash hands before eating to remove cold viruses. And third, avoid touching hands and fingers to the face or in the mouth. Even with these preventive measures, some persons will have colds.

Much can be done to help cope with cold symptoms (sneezing, watery and itchy eyes, sore throat, and an overall feeling of being tired). Ask your pharmacist to suggest one or more nonprescription products that are just right for you and your symptoms.

The Library Card

This column is written to inform the Wayne area as to what types of reading material and other items are available at Wayne Public Library.

Is it too soon to start thinking about summer? The answer is "no" if you are involved with The American Renaissance Chautauqua.

Chautauqua, established in the mid-19th century in America, was to our forefathers what public television is to us today. It brought literature and the value of books to everyone.

On July 16-21, 1992, Chautauqua will be in Wayne and we will have an opportunity to participate in the American Renaissance. Seven American authors will reappear on stage to present a different humanities program each night.

If you are interested in attending, you will hear Nathaniel Hawthorne tell about writing "The Scarlet Letter."

Louisa May Alcott will describe how she came to write "Little Women." She will tell you about other books she wrote under another name when she grew bored with the sort of stories her readers demanded.

Frederick Douglass will show what it was like to grow up a slave in America 150 years ago.

Walt Whitman will recite poetry from "Leaves of Grass."

Margaret Fuller will bring her ideas about women that were 150 years ahead of her time. She was controversial feminist then and some of her ideas may be controversial today.

Henry David Thoreau attempted to wake up his neighbors to a simpler life when he wrote "Walden Pond."

Hermon Melville will tell sea stories and muse about human nature.

After each presentation, the audience will have an opportunity to question the "author" about his life, his works, his times. It will be a bit of living history for us.

The library is compiling a bibliography of books by these authors and you might be interested in reading about them or reading their books to familiarize yourself before Chautauqua comes to town.

The following is a list of books currently in the library by some of these authors. More books about these people will be acquired by the library in the future. We hope to have a more complete bibliography at a later date.

Books by Louisa May Alcott include "Behind a Mask" in adult fiction, "Little Women," "Little Men," "Jo's Boys," "Rose in Bloom," "Under the Lilacs" in juvenile fiction.

Frederick Douglass: "Frederick Douglass" by William S. McFeely, a recent biography.

Walt Whitman: "Complete Poetry and Collected Prose" in one volume, "Walt Whitman" by G.R. Carpenter, a biography.

Henry David Thoreau: one volume which contains "A Week on the Concord and Merrimack Rivers"; "The Maine Woods," "Cape Cod," "Thoreau's Walden" by Henry Bugbee Kane.

Herman Melville: one volume which contains "Pierre"; "Israel Potter"; "The Piazza Tales"; "The Confidence-Man"; "Billy Budd, Sailor." One volume containing "Redburn," "White-Jacket," "Moby-Dick." One volume of "Typee," "Omoo," "Mardi."

Nathaniel Hawthorne: one volume containing his novels, "The Scarlet Letter," "The House of the Seven Gables," "Blithedale Romance," "Fanshawe," "The Marble Faun." One volume containing tales and sketches: "Twice Told Tales," "Mosses From the Old Manse," "The Snow," "A Wonderbook for Girls and Boys," "Tanglewood Tales."

Visit the library and become prepared to join the American Renaissance!

New laws take effect

Additives must be tested

Contrary to some reports, new food additives must undergo rigorous testing before authorized for use in food, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln food specialist points out.

Julie Albrecht said "it is important to assess the risk that can arise from use of a new additive before it is used in food. Very sophisticated procedures are used to determine the safety of new additives. Many common foods would not pass some of the tests applied to food additives."

Food additives are either Generally Recognized As Safe (GRAS) or are extensively tested before allowed for food use, according to Albrecht. In 1958, the Food and Drug Administration food additive amendment identified a number of additives that have been in use and were shown to be safe for their intended functions and were classified as GRAS. Salt, sugar, baking powder and vitamin A and D are some of the additives on the GRAS list.

An additive is defined as any substance in which the intended use results in that substance becoming a component of the food product and affects the characteristic of that product, Albrecht said. For example, salt is a common additive which is added to crackers to enhance flavor. Pectin is added to jams and jellies to obtain a specific consistency. Jams and jellies can be made without pectin, but the resulting product may not be consistent from one batch to another.

Major categories of food additives are coloring, flavoring, preserving, emulsifying and thickening. One additive which has been discussed recently is monosodium glutamate or MSG. Albrecht said this additive is considered a flavor enhancer.

According to the International Food Information Council in Washington, D.C., monosodium glutamate is the sodium salt of glutamic acid. This amino acid is one of the most abundant and important components of proteins. It also is produced by the human body and is an essential part of metabolism. Glutamate occurs naturally in protein-containing foods such as meat, fish, milk and many vegetables, but only enhances flavors when it appears in its "free" glutamate form, not bound together with other amino acids in protein.

"Free" glutamate levels in foods vary greatly, but are high in tomatoes, mushrooms and parmesan cheese. These foods have been known for their distinctive flavoring for many centuries. When MSG is added to foods, it provides a similar flavoring function as the "free" glutamate that occurs naturally in these foods, Albrecht said.

While MSG works well with a variety of foods including meats, poultry, seafood and many vegetables as well as to enhance flavor of some soups, stews and meat-based sauces, the specialist said it does little for sweet foods such as cakes, sweet doughs or confectionery items.

During the early part of this century, MSG was extracted from seaweed and other plant sources to be used in foods much like other spices or extracts. Today, MSG is made from starch, corn, sugar or molasses from sugar cane or sugar beets. It is produced by a fermentation process similar to that used for making products such as beer, vinegar and yogurt.

The human body does not treat glutamate which is added to foods any differently than the naturally occurring glutamate found in food, according to the International Food Information Council. Contrary to some beliefs, MSG contains only one-third the amount of sodium as salt and is used at much lower levels. In fact, MSG can be used in many foods to reduce the total amount of sodium by 20 to 40 percent while maintaining an acceptable flavor. MSG generally is added to foods before or during cooking at the rate of about half a teaspoon per pound of meat or four to six servings of vegetables. Once the proper amount is used, adding more contributes little to food flavor, although it is not a safety concern.

MSG added to foods for flavor represents only small fraction of the total amount consumed in the average daily diet. The average person consumes about 10 grams of bound glutamate and one gram of free glutamate from daily meals. In contrast, the added intake in the United States of glutamate from MSG usually is less than one gram per day, Council reports indicate. The human body creates about 50 grams of free glutamate daily for use as a vital component of metabolism.

MSG is considered to be one of the most extensively researched substances in the food supply. International scientific evaluations have been undertaken over many years. Governments worldwide and international organizations support the safety of MSG as used in foods. The Food and Drug Administration classified MSG as GRAS for its intended use.

It is possible that some people might be sensitive to MSG, just as they may be to other foods and food ingredients. Based on FDA investigations, there is some evidence that mild reactions to MSG may occur in a small proportion of the population, but it is "not aware of any scientific evidence that established that monosodium glutamate causes particularly adverse reactions, or that reactions to low doses of monosodium glutamate occur and are life threatening."

If individuals experience hypersensitivity reactions to added MSG, Albrecht said, it would be expected that they would experience similar symptoms from foods containing comparable quantities of "free" glutamate, such as tomatoes and mushrooms. Although such reactions are sometimes associated with Chinese food, there are few reports of reactions to Italian foods such as pizza or spaghetti that often have higher amounts of "free" glutamate. Even infants, including prematures, have been shown to metabolize glutamate as efficiently as adults and, therefore, do not display any special susceptibility to elevated oral intakes of glutamate, according to a report by the European Community's Scientific Committee for Food in July 1991.

By FDA regulation, all foods with MSG added must list ingredients on the label as monosodium glutamate. When glutamate is a natural component of other foods or ingredients such as tomatoes and parmesan cheese, it is not listed separately on the label. The FDA concluded that there was no health reason to require that MSG be listed separately on the label when it is a component of other foods and ingredients.

1992 Nebraska Teacher Achievement Awards

Every year the Peter Kiewit Foundation recognizes 20 teachers across the state of Nebraska who have demonstrated excellence in classroom teaching.

The Nebraska Teacher Achievement Awards honor teachers who have developed and implemented innovative curriculum practices or have been exceptionally successful in motivating their students to achieve.

All full-time classroom teachers of grades K-12 in Nebraska schools are eligible to apply or be nominated. Winners receive two prizes which together total $5,000:

- A $3,000 cash prize which they may use to expand their winning program, purchase educational equipment for their school, or create new learning opportunities for their students; and
- A $2,000 supplemental cash award which they may use for the same purpose as above or to enhance their professional credentials or teaching abilities.

Completed applications must be mailed to the Peter Kiewit Foundation no later than February 1, 1992. An independent panel of distinguished judges will make the selections and the winners will be announced in the Spring.

CITY OF WAYNE ELECTRIC

Albert and Edna chose electric heat and electric water heating for a lot of reasons.

They chose electricity because it's clean.
They chose it because it's safe.
They chose it because electric rates have stayed low.

But mostly, they chose electric heat because it comes from readily available energy sources.

With electricity, there's an abundant supply of energy.

Edna wishes the same could be said about Albert.

Criticism unjust

The Wayne Herald received some criticism last week for its reporting of a sexual assault on the Wayne State College campus. It is the second reported sexual assault this year.

News reporting of this assault, which appears to be either acquaintance or date-related, fell under criticism by college officials, in part, because charges had not been pressed at the time the story was reported.

One of the administration's concerns is that reporting the sexual assaults might tarnish the college's image. We respect that view but there are other things we must point out.

The Wayne Herald has an obligation to report news to its readers. Since the alleged sexual assault had already been reported in other media, it would seem blind for the newspaper not to report it.

Sexual assault is a crime. It is unrealistic to operate under the precept that if the problem's ignored it will go away. To blame the media for reporting the instance is unjust.

In all these cases, readers should realize The Wayne Herald simply serves as the news "messenger" -- not the news "maker." It is a negative news "maker" that is causing the real problem in this particular instance.

We believe the college needs to take a more active role in responding to instances of sexual assault. Instead of approaching the problem like it doesn't exist, or avoiding the issue for whatever reasons, the college should take a proactive stand to see that the problem doesn't occur. To admit the problem occurs will create greater self-awareness of it so that a resolution can be reached. It will also ease tensions among the college's female population.

Good choice

While concerns around the Wayne County Juvenile Detention Center merit consideration, the Wayne County Commissioner's 2-1 vote Tuesday to extend the time given for the facility to be made secure is only fair.

Sixty days was not enough time for the facility to be made secure. It became apparent at Tuesday's meeting that time is the main factor in making the facility more secure.

The biggest problem the JDC faces now is whether the time they've been allotted is enough. Since winter weather is now becoming a factor, it's questionable if the additional fencing can be complete by Jan. 1. The JDC will also have to keep juveniles from escaping in the meantime, so Janssen and the JDC staff have a lot of weight on their shoulders.

In his discussion with the commissioners, Janssen made it clear that he cares about the facility's future. He, like the community, wants to see it succeed but administrative efforts must be made in full if that is to occur.

The commissioners did the right thing in allowing the facility more time to take corrective measures. But come Jan. 1, if those measures have not been taken, the county board cannot blink again. The work must be completed.

Rural areas need lure

We agree with the rural economic development specialist who recently said Nebraska needs to implement incentives to lure industry to its smaller towns and help businesses already in smaller towns expand.

For more than 20 years Bob Shively has worked with development leaders in rural Nebraska communities. Currently he is economic development director for Peru State College.

Though Shively's proposal makes obvious sense to use, a number of senators represent our state's more urban areas are finding fault with it.

We must mobilize our forces to insure the proposal is thoughtfully considered.

Exon, Bush disagree over issue

President Bush and Sen. J.J. Exon disagreed last week on the integrity of Congress.

Bush, in a nationally televised speech last Thursday blasted Congress as "a privileged class of rulers" who "exempt themselves from the very laws they write for others."

Exon said the president's remarks were more of "the continual criticism from the president for almost everything we do. I suggest it is time to put away the political spears."

Most members of Congress, Exon said, are "honest and upright people, trying to do what's best."

Exon, who told area constituents that phone calls and mail for confirmation of former Judge Bork to the Supreme Court were 10 to 1 in favor of Bork's nomination, said he was going to go against that landslide of public opinion.

Hardly the way an "honest and upright" member of Congress should vote, especially when he is elected to mirror the public.

American Indians have bigger problems

Some native American Indians have taken umbrage over the use of Indian-related nicknames as mascots for athletic teams at the high school, college and professional level.

But the uproar has led to demonstrations in some parts of the country and has caused at least one state tribal representative to voice indignation.

...There are too many more serious problems facing the American Indian in Nebraska to waste time and energy on the Indian mascot issue.

Writing about nothing has its advantages as column points out

Do you ever have those weeks when you're completely speechless? That was my case this week. I have nothing to say.

Maybe it was because of last week's storm. The winter weather moved in and struck all of us so hard that it left me speechless.

I doubt that was it. I've never been one to whine about cold weather. In fact, if I collected $2 million and could live out the rest of my life anywhere in the world it would probably be Alaska. I like winter weather. There's nothing more refreshing than when that first cold burst of wind strikes me in the face and freezes up my lungs.

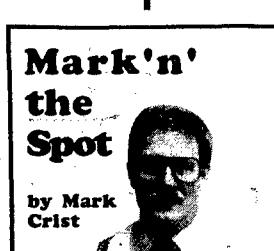

PERICAPS MY dilemma stems from the fact there's not much to talk about.

President Bush's summer cabin

in Maine was destroyed by a hurricane and all he and the Mrs. had to say about it was "worse things have happened."

(It must be nice to be that rich.) I don't want to rehash the Senate Confirmation Hearings of Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas since he has been confirmed and sworn in to office. That's old news.

Of course there is the continuing debate over whether sports teams should use mascot names that are offensive to some segments of the population. This is one I don't quite understand. I always took pride in the mascot names of the schools I attended but none of the teams' names were offensive (except maybe for Denver University's, which was the Pioneers).

I GUESS I could discuss the zillions of dollars the federal government wastes on sending out mail while the rest of us face a postal rate hike in the next three years. The only problem with discussing that is that it would result in one of two things: Either the government

Supporting roads amendment

Bereuter Amendment

I have long believed that the formula which determines how the Highway Trust Fund should be allocated to states should include a factor that reflects the wear and tear of severe weather on roads. Last week I successfully amended the Surface Transportation Infrastructure Act to require the Secretary of Transportation to make a study of the effects of climatic conditions on the costs of highway construction and maintenance.

The study would take into account such climatic conditions as freezing, thawing and precipitation and their association with increased highway design costs and decreased service life in different regions of the country. My amendment also would require the Secretary of Transportation to issue a report and make recommendations by September 30, 1993.

The Federal Highway Administration and the American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials have recognized the need for special pavement design for highways which experience hard freezes and spring thaws. Such climatic conditions result in increased construction and maintenance costs and decreased service life of the highways. Proper design of highways in certain regions require considerable stronger pavements that may have a shorter service life than in other regions. In some regions, climatic conditions affect the thickness of asphaltic concrete by up to 30 percent from the best climatic conditions to the worst.

The formula should reflect climatic changes and their impact on the maintenance and construction costs of highways. The freeze/thaw cycle takes its toll on our roads in the northern and Great Plains states, and we are hurt by the failure to consider that impact.

Original Draft

The first draft of the Declaration of Independence of the Republic of Czechoslovakia, which has been held by the Library of Congress since 1951, was returned to President Vaclav Havel in a special ceremony on October 23. I was especially pleased to attend that ceremony at the Library of Congress in Washington. Others who attended included the Speaker and Minority Leader of the House, the Majority and Minority Leaders of the Senate, and the Librarian of Congress.

The decision to return the historical document to the new government of Czechoslovakia was made jointly with the bi-partisan leadership of the Congress. This document is to the people of Czechoslovakia what Thomas Jefferson's original draft of our Declaration of Independence is to citizens of the United States. The ceremony, which was attended by visitors from Czechoslovakia and by Czech and Slovak leaders in America, was an impressive and moving experience.

provision was made that it would eventually be transferred to its final resting place in the Archives of the National Museum in Prague.

In 1980 Dr. Jaroslav Cisar, the former private secretary to Masaryk and the individual who left the Republic of Czechoslovakia in 1950 with the manuscript in his briefcase, wrote to the Library of Congress to express his concern about the document's future. At that time he made an outright gift of the declaration to the Library of Congress.

The decision to return the historical document to the new government of Czechoslovakia was made jointly with the bi-partisan leadership of the Congress. This document is to the people of Czechoslovakia what Thomas Jefferson's original draft of our Declaration of Independence is to citizens of the United States. One big clap

Let's give the Wayne city officials a big clap for deciding not to call off Halloween trick or treating until another time because of other interests. How many parents sat at home with crying kids because they could trick or treat in '91, unless they wanted to go out in blizzard conditions? How many trick or treaters did you have that weren't big kids? Wayne America is supposed to be a place safe to raise our children in — was this safe?

I am proud of our neighboring towns that took the safety of their children first, before their own interests. I would also like to say a big thank you to Will Davis of Sav-Mor Pharmacy for giving the kids bags of treats on Saturday — that helped. It's more than we can say to the City of Wayne officials.

Unfriendly thoughts

Railroad employee had suspicions

Nebraskans are famous for their outgoing friendliness and their willingness to be helpful. There are occasions, however, when a bit of unfriendly suspicion is wise, as a Utica railroad employee learned in the fall of 1915:

"A mail sack containing letters and probably valuable registered mail, a package of express money orders and $2.75 in money were taken from the Burlington depot here early this morning.

"Two strangers were at the depot from about two o'clock this morning until after four o'clock. The stolen letter sack was thrown off train No. 43, which goes through here at 3:30 a.m. The strangers went with night operator Charles Peachman to pick up the mail and helped him carry it to the depot and deposit it in the mail cart which stood just outside the waiting room door.

"The strangers spent part of the time they were at the depot in the private office where the express money orders and the money drawer are kept.

"Shortly after four o'clock the two men told Peachman that they wanted to go to York. Peachman went with them to the home of Oscar Craige, the auto liveryman, and got Craige out of bed to take them to York, but after they had started there they changed their minds and decided to go to Seward. After they got there they told Craige they wanted to go on to Lincoln. Craige took them to Lincoln and set them down in front of a Lincoln hotel. He says they arrived in Lincoln shortly after six o'clock and that they entered the hotel. He came home immediately.

"Whether or not these men had anything to do with the robbery is not known. A railroad hand car was stolen from the tool house at Waco last night and was found this morning just west of the depot here. On it was a pair of men's gloves.

"Neither bank in Utica was expecting any shipments of currency, although one bank received a valuable letter on a previous mail. It is probable that the robbers expected to get this. The two men who were at the depot during the night left part of a box of cigars and a small quantity of liquor.

"Inquiry at the hotel named by the Utica driver elicited the information that no men answering the description given registered during the morning. It is thought that the men may have stepped inside the door and then left the building after the driver disappeared. The police department, and sheriff's force are at work on the case."

Wayne closes out gridiron campaign

A new bowl game was formed Monday afternoon as Wayne played Pierce in the season finale for both teams in the "Ice Bowl" at Memorial Field in Wayne. The contest was played after being postponed due to the blizzard that hit the area late last week. Snow and ice greeted both teams as they entered the field to play on the frozen surface. Pierce jumped out to a 13-0 lead in the first quarter but had to hold on to defeat the stubborn Blue Devils, 21-12—leaving Wayne with a 2-7 season mark and Pierce with a 7-2 mark and a hopeful playoff bid.

The visiting Bluejays scored at the 7:36 mark of the first quarter on a 31-yard run by fullback Ryan Collison. On the ensuing kickoff Wayne failed to cover the ball and Pierce set up shop in Wayne territory.

Thirty-three seconds later Chad Toelle took off on a 29-yard scamper which hit paydirt and a 13-0 lead on the host team. Wayne quarterback Regg Carnes scored from one yard out with 4:55 left in the first half to close the gap to 13-6 at the break.

In the third quarter Jason Brandt recovered a Toelle fumble and several plays later Carnes hit Bobby Barnes on a 15-yard scoring strike but the two-point conversion attempt failed leaving Wayne trailing by one point at 13-12.

Pierce then used a ball control offense which drove them the length of the field and the Bluejays quarterback Matt Moeller scored on a one-yard dive and the two-point conversion was good which accounted for the final margin of 21-12.

"Our kids gave a tremendous effort and I'm real proud of them,"

Wayne coach Lonnie Ehrhardt said. "We weren't playing for any playoff spot but we were playing for pride and they showed that."

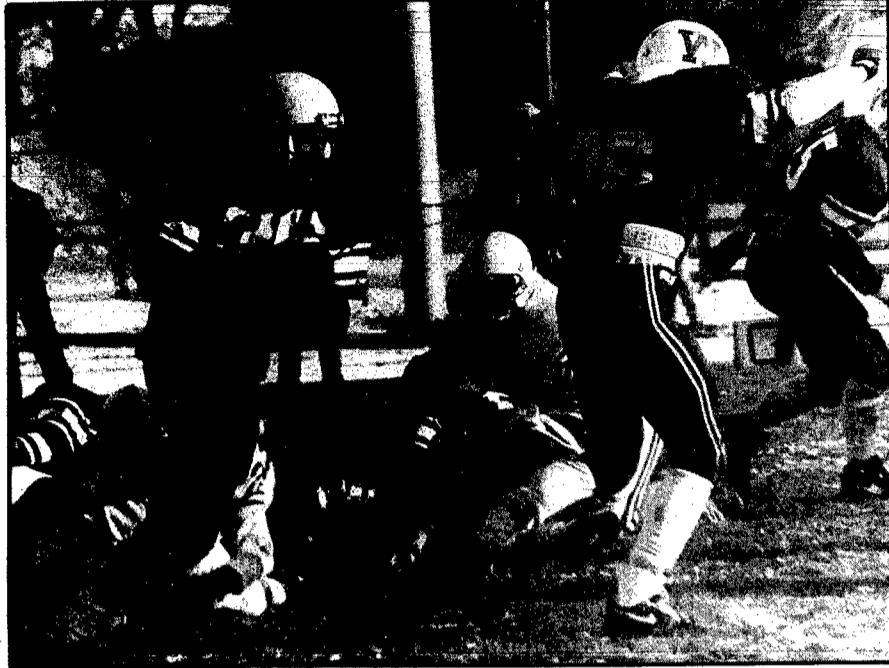

Wayne had 10 first downs in the game while Pierce had 11. The Blue Devils ran for 84 yards compared to 205 for the Bluejays. Carnes was 5-14 with one interception for 31 yards while Moeller was 8-14 for 63 yards.

Wayne was penalized three times for 25 yards while Pierce was whistled for eight flags and 51 yards. Jim Murphy led Wayne's rushing attack with 42 yards while Kyle Bensen gained 24. Carnes ran for 18 yards.

Barnes caught two passes for 23 yards and touchdown and John Murphy caught two passes for 13 yards. Toelle led Pierce in rushing with 130 yards on 19 carries while Collison had 71 yards on 10 attempts.

Moeller was 8-14 for 63 yards through the air. Defensively, Wayne was led by Jason Fink and Mike Zach with 11 tackles each while Jason Brandt had eight and Dwaine Junck, seven. Bensen finished with six tackles while Carnes and Chad Paysen had four each.

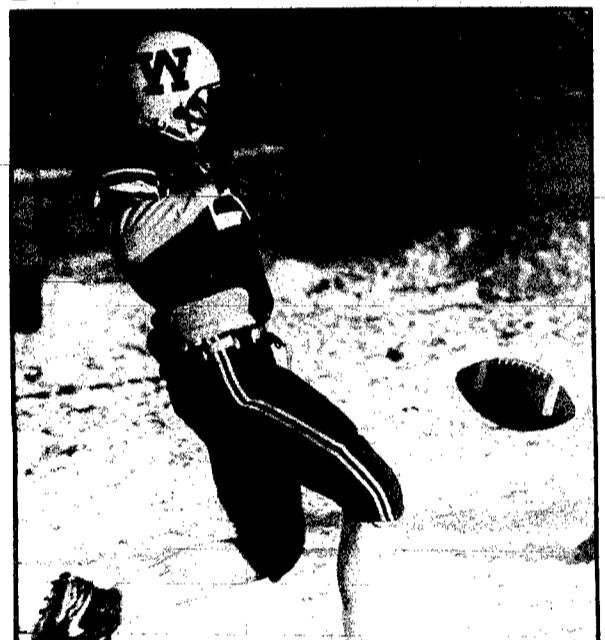

"Our record wasn't that good this year but when you consider that four of the teams we played won at least six games and seven of the teams we played won at least four games it tells you our schedule wasn't that easy," Ehrhardt said.

WSC game with Peru State cancelled

WAYNE-A winter storm cancelled the WSC vs. Peru State game Saturday and Sunday. The Wildcats were originally slated to play the nationally ranked Bobcats in a 1:30 p.m. clash Saturday at Memorial Field in Parent's Day but the blizzard that hit Nebraska pushed the game back to Sunday at 2 p.m.

Saturday night, however, it was decided the game would be cancelled when Wayne State athletic director Pete Chapman could not guarantee that Memorial Field would be 100 percent ice and snow free which is what Peru State asked for.

The Wildcats will now shift focus to Saturday's contest with Chadron State at Memorial Field. The "Incredible Edible Egg Bowl" will also be "Parent's Day."

"I'm sure Chadron State will be a little ornery coming up here to lick their wounds after losing to Kearney," WSC coach Dennis Wagner said. "The weather conditions weren't conducive to their offense last week. I'm sure they'll be ready against us. This will be a big game for them—an opportunity to play the other division II team in the state and prove they can compete. The key to the game will be shutting down quarterback Steward Perez on offense."

Allen junior high spikers win

ALLEN-The Allen seventh and eighth grade volleyball teams traveled to Wakefield recently for final action of the year. Both teams won their respective matches which meant that both enjoyed undefeated seasons. Incidentally, the Allen junior high seventh and eighth grade volleyball teams have gone undefeated for seven straight years.

Echtenkamp wins football contest

WAYNE-Neva Echtenkamp of Wakefield won the Wayne Herald Football Contest last week in a tie-breaker over Lynette Hedell of West Point who earned runner-up honors.

Both entries had perfect cards but Echtenkamp was just one point off the Wayne-Pierce score which earned her top honors.

WSC spikers break win record

WAYNE-The Wayne State volleyball team traveled to St. Louis, Mo., over the weekend to play in the Missouri-St. Louis Invitational. The Wildcats came away from the tournament placing fifth of the nine NCAA Division II teams.

More importantly however, was during the process of the tournament the Wildcats broke the single season win mark held by Marilyn State's 1986 squad which went 29-12.

Nancy Clark's squad cracked the 30-win barrier in their match for fifth place honors in which they defeated Indianapolis University, 15-5, 15-3, 15-3. The Wildcats also defeated Southwest Baptist at the tournament, 15-5, 16-14, 10-15, 15-13 but Clark's crew fell to Wisconsin-Parkside, 12-15, 3-15, 15-9, 9-15 and to Northeast Missouri State, 16-14, 10-15, 10-15, 15-11, 12-15.

Monday night the Wildcats traveled to play Dordt College and came away with their 31st win of the year with a 10-15, 15-3, 15-10, 15-7 victory. Shelly Lueders led the team in kill spikes with 16 while Tracy Kuester and Kristi Jaminet had eight apiece.

Lueders also led WSC in blocks with 11 while Jaminet had seven. Lueders was 24-25 in serving with two aces and Shannon Dunning was 15-15 with one ace. Kuester was 19-21 in serve reception and Cori Weinfurter was 12-14 while Kuester led the team in digs with 14. Dunning and Weinfurter had 13 and 12 digs respectively.

Dunning led the squad in setting with 16 assists while Amy Newton had 12. The Wildcats will close out their season on Tuesday with a home match with Northeast Community College of Norfolk.

Trojans earn state playoff bid

The Wakefield Trojans football team got their final game of the regular season played Monday afternoon in Stanton after delays from an early winter storm which hit the area last Thursday and Friday.

Dennis Wilbur's crew went into the contest knowing that if they win they would have an inside shot at a home field position in the first round of the C-1 state playoffs which begin Saturday.

The Trojans then hit Stanton with another kind of blizzard—63 points including 37 in the second period as Wakefield won 63-6, ending the regular season with an 8-1 mark.

Wakefield led the host team 7-6 after one quarter of play but then a blitzkrieg of scoring in the second quarter led to a 44-6 half-time advantage. The Trojans led 57-6 after three.

Wakefield had 24 first downs and ran for 385 yards while Marcus Tappé connected on 3-4 pass attempts for 105 yards. Stanton had 74 yards rushing and 42 yards passing which left Wakefield with a 490-116 total yard advantage.

Eleven different players ran the Ileridge—one of three teams to defeat Winside this season. "This was the third time we played them this year and we just adjusted accordingly to what worked the second time we played them which worked for us," Giesselman said.

Winside ended the Coleridge volleyball season with a 15-8, 15-11 victory. Kari Pichler connected on 12 of 13 serves while Patty Oberle was 9-9 and Holly Holdorf was 7-7.

Pichler had 18 set assists from her setting post and Jenny Jacobsen led a balanced hitting attack with nine kill spikes on 19-22 attempts. Wendy Rabe had seven kills and Holdorf and Oberle had four kills each. Rabe had three blocks to lead the team.

"We did a good job of hitting the ball to locations instead of just hitting it over the net," Giesselman said.

In the second match the Wildcats finished off Allen's fine season with a 15-7, 14-16, 15-7 win. "I have to give Allen a lot of credit," Giesselman said. "They never gave up. The second game was tied at 14 for six rotations before they won the game."

Jacobsen was 16-16 in serving while Rabe was 15-15 and Oberle was 11-11. Pichler had a phenomenal night in setting with 31 assists and the well balanced hitting attack of Winside led to a .443 kill percentage which is outstanding.

Jacobsen and Holdorf each were 20-22 in hitting with 12 kill spikes while Rabe was 14-16 with 11 kills and Oberle was 17-17 with five kills. Jacobsen and Rabe were dominating at the net on defense as well with nine and seven blocks respectively.

"Kari Pichler had a great night setting the ball for us," Giesselman said. "She was four shy of the state record for one match against Allen. I believe our success in sub-districts had to do with our good balance. We have three girls on our team with over 100 kill spikes this year which is very unusual."

the exact fate of Wakefield's state play-off opponent or where it would be but the Trojans automatically qualified with the victory over the Mustangs.

Blue Devils lose to Tekamah in districts

Wayne spikers end season

The Wayne girls volleyball team had their season ended Monday night at Norfolk Community College in district play against Tekamah-Herman, 3-15, 15-3, 7-15.

Wayne finished the year with a 11-10 mark that was marred with inconsistency according to head coach Marlene Uhing. "I think our district game with Tekamah was pretty typical of our season," Uhing said. "We played very inconsistent. We'd play well and then bad in the same match."

Jenny Thompson and Liz Reeg led the Blue Devils in serving against Tekamah with six points apiece with Reeg earning two serve aces and Thompson, one.

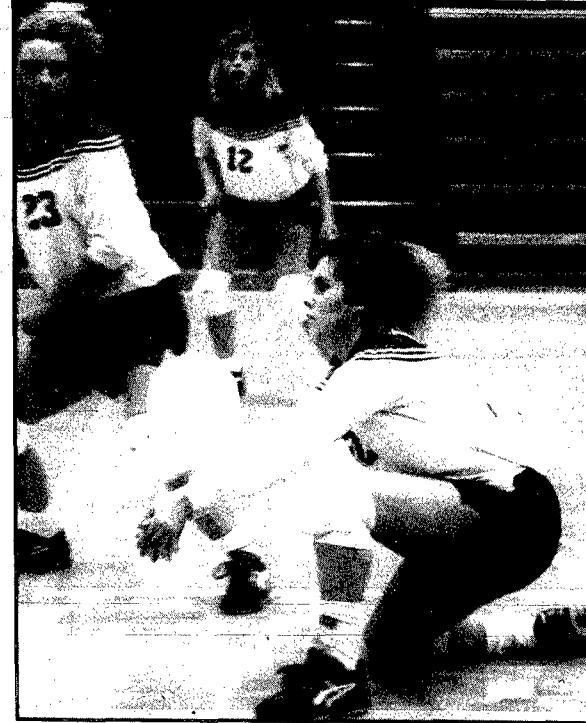

Wayne was 41-48 in serving for the match for 85 percent which is below what Uhing feels her team has to serve in order to be successful. Danielle Nelson led the team in setting with 12 assists and Reeg was the leading hitter with five kill spikes while Erin Pick had four. Pick also had two ace blocks.

This will be the first season since

Uhing has been in Wayne that she will return every player to the team next year. "We have all the ingredients to be a good volleyball team next season," Uhing said. "We have all our players back and if they improve like they should we could have a good team."

Uhing also noted that she was pleased with the play she got from her bench this season especially that from Teresa Witkowski who did a fine job of coming off the bench to play any position due to her valuable experience.

"We started a freshman in Jenny Thompson but having a girl like Teresa who could come off the bench to play at any position made us a better team," Uhing said.

Chadron State quarterback Steward Perez is ranked fifth in the country in total offense with 255.3 yards per game and he is ranked 10th in pass efficiency with a 152.4 rating.

The Eagles offense is rated fourth in total offense averaging 453 yards per contest and wide receiver Jay Rhodes is eighth in yards receiving per game with a 101.1 per game average.

Winside youngsters study safety

WINSIDE KINDERGARTNERS and first graders receive hugs from the Safety Bear during a recent visit to the school by Troopers Gary Kinney and Don Melster (Safety Bear) of the Nebraska State Patrol. Youngsters in the kindergarten class at Winside studied safety — at home, at school and in the community — during the month of October and culminated the unit with a visit by the state troopers. The officers talked about Halloween safety with the kindergartners and their guests, the first grade class. Officer Kinney also discussed his uniform and gear, bike safety, walking safely, swimming and talking to strangers. Other activities undertaken by the youngsters during the month included a tour of the fire station, films, stories, making safety books and composing their own list of safety rules. Kindergarten teacher is Mrs. Barb Kollath and first grade teacher is Mrs. Elaine Jager.

Safety tips suggested

Winter driving hazardous

Winter driving can present many hazards to a motorist, not the least of which is the possibility of being stranded in a vehicle during dangerously cold weather.

The Nebraska State Patrol advises travelers to make certain their cars are in good running conditions and have proper tires and a full tank of gas. Studded snow tires are permitted in Nebraska from Nov. 1 to April 1.

The most effective way to survive a storm is to avoid it. Monitor weather conditions and forecasts through the media and weather radio stations. Check on road conditions through the state patrol's winter road conditions phone line.

The area number for weather and road conditions is 370-3464.

The recorded message will describe the degree of snow cover on Nebraska roads. "Winter driving conditions" mean dry to 25 percent snow or ice-covered roads. "Partly covered" means 25-50 percent covered roads and "mostly covered" means roads are more than 50 percent covered. "All covered" means 100 percent covered.

If traveling is a must, let someone know your planned routine. If possible, travel with someone.

When on the road, adjust your speed to the road conditions. If the weather becomes worse than predicted, take refuge. If you become stranded, stay in your car. It provides shelter and is easier to spot than a person alone in the snow.

If stranded, stay active to stimulate circulation, but do not over exert yourself. You should remain awake at all times to signal for help.

Run your engine as little as possible to stay warm. Keep your downwind window slightly open and keep your exhaust pipes clear of snow so exhaust gases are not trapped in the car.

If stranded, a number of items carried with you in a winter survival kit can not only make you more comfortable, but may save your life. The patrol has compiled a list of several items to make up a winter survival kit.

The full survival kit includes:

warm clothing (scarf, mittens, hat, wool socks, snowmobile suit), extra footwear, newspapers, soap, extra coffee cans, jumper cables, rubber gloves and goggles, sand or kitty litter, tow chain or cable, hand ax, fire extinguisher, plastic sheeting, flares or reflectors, fuses, citizen band radio to call for help and a transistor radio to monitor weather conditions.

City lists street snow laws

Thursday's snowfall and winter-like conditions brought out the city's snow clearing equipment in full-force for the first time in several months.

The City of Wayne is responsible for snow removal and ice control on about 35 miles of streets and 12 miles of alleys, plus three cul-de-sacs.

When it becomes necessary, the city will declare a "snow emergency" based on either the current weather conditions (snow, sleet or freezing rain) or a forecast by the area weather bureaus.

Five hours after the declaration of a snow emergency (announced on KTCH radio), no car can be parked on any of the streets in Wayne. This will allow city crews to clean the streets full width.

Parking will be prohibited on any

It is unlawful for property owners to allow snow, sleet, mud or ice to accumulate on any sidewalk abutting their lot. The sidewalks should be cleaned off within 24 hours after the storm. If not removed, the city could hire personnel to remove it and then bill the property owner. The ordinance will be strictly enforced.

In the business district, snow must be thrown into the street at least a foot from the curb as soon as possible to permit removal by street crews.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK'S SENIOR CITIZEN CORNER

GUILT-EDGED CARING: A letter from a woman who describes herself as a 62-year-old widow, expresses some doubts about a decision she made not to approach her doctor about chemotherapy for her terminally ill older sister.

(Incidentally, there was no Living Will that would have indicated her sister's intentions of not undergoing extraordinary measures to extend her life. This made the decision more difficult. Fortunately, her sister's longtime personal physician wrote a letter affirming his patient's often repeated statement that if there were no chance for recovery, she didn't want anything done just to prolong her existence.)

The reader writes: "I thought I did the right thing (because) she was already suffering and I didn't feel she should have to suffer more from the chemotherapy if it wasn't going to save her ... (Now) I heard from one of our relatives that I cheated my sister out of a chance that something could be discovered that would save her life. I feel very guilty if that a cure was found, I wouldn't have let my sister live long enough for it ... I wonder what other people have done and if they feel guilty about not allowing certain treatments for their loved ones ..."

I don't know how many of you will rely to this letter, but I'd like to go on record as saying that the last thing any grieving person needs is to have someone who didn't have to make these heartbreaking decisions heap guilt on those who did.

Please write me with your comments c/o King Features Weekly Service, 235 East 45th Street, New York, N.Y. 10017.

P.S. If you are interested in the matters raised in the letter, there are some facts you should be aware of:

* Not every state recognizes the validity of Living Wills.

* So far, only 41 states and the District of Columbia do.

* The Patient Self-Determination Act, requiring health care facilities to inform patients, on admission, of their rights to create a Living Will, has been passed, and should give this subject more visibility.

* Prentice Hall Press has published an important fact-filled book called "The Essential Guide to a Living Will: How to Protect Your Right to Refuse Medical Treatment," by B.D. Colen. It offers the kind of information people need to make informed decisions for themselves as well as for those who have entrusted them to make such decisions on their behalf.

In 1979, 50 seniors in Pinellas County, Florida, turned out for a half-day of athletic competition. It not only became an annual event but has expanded into a nine-day festival for seniors called Good Life Celebration. The latest festival attracted 30,000 people. More than 2,500 participated in sports, including 26 softball teams. About 65 percent of the athletes were over age 65. Along with 15 types of sports competition, the festival features live-theater performances, exhibits, recreational activities, a wellness fair and social events.

Longtime news correspondent and TV commentator Eric Sevareid shared some of his thoughts about aging in a speech to a national convention of senior citizens: "We are at 85 the same person we were at 25. We possess the same personality. We all privately think of ourselves as about 15 years younger than our chronological age. So I am 62 — I think."

Remember When? 1933 — Katherine Hepburn won an Oscar as best actress for her role in "Morning Glory."
