Police nab suspect

Man faces assault charge

A Wayne State College student was taken into custody by officers from the Wayne Police Department Wednesday after a warrant had been issued for his arrest.

Arrested was Vincent Oliver Cesair of Broadview, Ill. Police arrested him in connection with an Oct. 27 sexual assault on the Wayne State College campus. The arrest warrant was issued Monday.

Cesair was arrested in the lobby of Terrace Hall. He was taken into custody without incident. He was arrested around 7:30 p.m.

It is alleged in the complaint against Cesair that he overcame a female student Oct. 27 around 2 a.m. in the student's dorm room and sexually assaulted her.

ACCORDING TO police reports, the Wayne Police Department was notified of the alleged assault at 4:37 a.m. Sunday, Oct. 27 after the victim had been taken to Providence Medical Center. The victim's name is being withheld.

Cesair appeared before Wayne County Judge Stephen Finn Thursday for his arraignment. Appointed as his attorney is Mark Johnson of Norfolk.

Bond in the matter has been set at $25,000. Cesair is being housed in the Thurston County Jail in Pender.

First degree sexual assault is a Class II felony, punishable by up to 50 years or as few as one year in prison.

New law requires change

Come December, in-patients at Providence Medical Center (PMC) in Wayne will be asked one more question.

On Dec. 1, PMC will be required by law to ask and have documented whether all in-patients 19 years of age and older have advance directives. The new law stems from the Self Determination Act and the Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990.

An advanced directive is a written statement which reliably documents that you have made a particular health care decision or have appointed another person to make that decision on your behalf. The two most common forms of advance directives are a living will and durable power of attorney for health care.

"It's one more thing for patients that we have to administer," PMC Administrator Marcille Thomas said. "It's a procedure that we must follow. We will be monitored and it must be documented."

ACCORDING TO a proposed plan, it will be the policy of Providence Medical Center to honor patients' preferences regarding medically indicated treatments whenever possible. Providence will respect the individual rights of the patient to make informed decisions regarding medical care, including the decision to discontinue treatment to the extent permitted by state and federal law.

The law requires that all hospitals, which provide medicare and medicaid services, inform patients about medical options. Thomas said this does not mean the hospital supports the euthanasia form of medical practice but, rather, it allows patients to make decisions regarding medical care in extreme conditions.

According to PMC information, examples of extreme conditions include irreversible brain damage or brain disease, permanent coma, which leaves a patient unconscious without hope of recovery, or terminal illness.

The hospital will also honor patients' wishes in living wills and wishes of people who have Durable Power of Attorney for patients who are unable to make the decision, Thomas said.

WHILE IT IS still unclear what all will be included with the packet patients receive about their directives, Thomas said she wants to offer the community informa-

Program begins new year

Each year Goldenrod Hills Community Services sponsors the Toys for Tots program. The agency became involved in the program 11 years ago and this year, Wayne County will once again be involved in it.

Individuals in the community may adopt children who will benefit from the Toys for Tots program, and then these individuals will be responsible for purchasing a gift for that particular child. The adoption tree will once again be located at Pamida.

CHRISTINE Stuthman, Family Services Coordinator with Goldenrod Hills, will be responsible for the children adopted in Wayne, Cedar and Dixon counties.

Last year, 202 children were adopted in these counties and the total number receiving gifts in the 12 counties which Goldenrod Hills serves, was 1,535 children. Goldenrod Hills hopes to reach 2,000 needy children this year.

Goldenrod Hills receives referrals for the Toys for Tots program from their own files, the Department of Social Services, churches and other organizations.

For more information, call the Wayne office at 375-4960 or the Wisner office at 529-3513.

Stark pleads not guilty to two counts

A Yankton, S.D. man who allegedly sexually assaulted a child in a Wayne Park pled not guilty to two charges before the Wayne County District Court.

Kenneth D. Stark, 41, appeared Wednesday before District Judge Richard P. Garden to make his plea. Stark is charged with first degree sexual assault, a Class II felony, and sexual assault of a child, a Class IV felony.

During his hearing, Stark's attorney, Stuart Mills of Pender, made a motion to reduce his client's $25,000 bond but the motion was declined by the court and his bond was continued.

A trial in the case has been set for Feb. 10.

Stark was allegedly in a Wayne park Aug. 24 and was approached by four youngsters. He allegedly offered the children money and in return allegedly sexually assaulted a child. The names of the children have not been disclosed.

The Yankton man was arrested

Oct. 2 by the Yankton Police Department and the Yankton County Sheriff's office, which were assisting the Wayne Police Department in the matter.

IN ANOTHER matter, a sentence was handed down against a youth who pled guilty in October to charges that he escaped from the Wayne County Juvenile Detention Center.

Senators voice thoughts on special session

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

While District 17 Sen. Gerald Conway is waiting to see a report from Nebraska's 3-R committee, District 19 Sen. Elroy Hefner said he supports another special session before the first of the year.

Hefner, R-Coleridge, said it is in Nebraska's best interest to hold another special session, so the legislature can extend the assessment deadline to June 1, rather than the Jan. 1 deadline which is currently in place.

"The concern I have with extending the assessment date is that why should we wait until later to assess what we may have to assess come Jan. 1," Conway, R-Wayne, said in a telephone interview.

"The concern that I have is if the Supreme Court throws out LB 829, then counties will have to assess property that dates back to Jan. 1 (if the deadline is extended). If LB 829 is thrown out, we will have to move back to Jan. 1 and reconstruct what the schedules should have had on them."

HEFNER SAID he doesn't think the Supreme Court will be so quick to strike down LB 829. He said not having a special session would be more costly than having one.

"I feel that there isn't any use to force counties to spend between $2 and $3 million to assess properties when we may not use that assessment," he said.

"If we can get this delayed, it will buy us the time we need," Hefner added. "... I believe LB 829 is unconstitutional because when you levy a depreciation tax, it's almost the same as a property tax. If they (the Nebraska "Supreme Court") knows we're working on this, they'll give us the time we need."

THE COLERIDGE senator's philosophy does not differ much from other senators'. As of last Monday, there were around 22 to 23 signatures from senators calling for a second special session in 1991.

Hefner, who said he has signed the petition calling for a second special session, said the governor would like to have between 25-30 signatures before he calls for the session to work on the property tax crisis.

Conway said he hasn't seen the petition calling for a special session. He said he's heard the effort was futile.

"The votes necessary are not guaranteed, so the legislature is not wholeheartedly in favor of the proposal," Conway said.

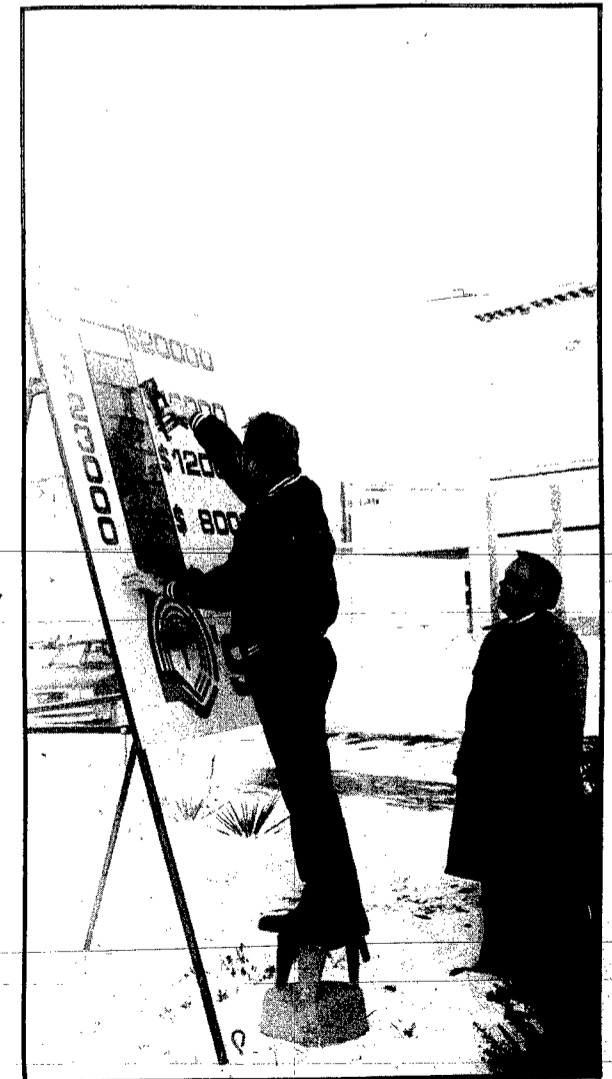

Hefner said he thinks as soon as the governor returns from his trip abroad, he doesn't think it will take much to get the additional signatures necessary.

BOTH SENATORS said they have had implement dealers, businesses and agricultural producers contact them to say they are worried. They also said the three groups favor extending the Jan. 1 deadline.

"This will be real hard on Main Street Nebraska, especially in rural Nebraska," Hefner said. "It could be the final straw that breaks the camel's back."

Conway said he is certain that assessing all personal property will be detrimental to the state's economic environment. He said he thinks a major urban-rural battle is shaping up.

"The one thing that people in urban areas don't realize is that if personal property is placed entirely back on the tax rolls, there would be a short-term gain for them but because it would impact businesses so hard, it would mean people would no longer be able to get raises because companies wouldn't have the money," he said. "So the short-term gain would be negligible."

Making progress

WAYNE UNITED WAY BOARD member Dale Simmons keeps a watchful eye on Dan Rose as Rose tacks on the eighth marker to the Wayne United Way board. The drive, thus far, has netted $18,000. A story about the United Way effort is in today's Wayne Herald.

At annual Fall Achievement Home extension women recognized

Approximately 50 persons attended the 1991 Fall Achievement program sponsored by Wayne County Home Extension Clubs on Nov. 4 in the First United Methodist Church social room in Carroll.

Shirley Pospishil, county council chairman, welcomed the group and extended regrets on behalf of Lynda Cruickshank, Wayne County extension agent, who was unable to attend due to the national extension agents meeting in Phoenix. Mrs. Pospishil introduced Myrna DuBois, Stanton County extension agent, who assisted with the awards.

THE EVENING'S speaker, Addie Scheve of Norfolk, was introduced by Marj Porter, achievement committee chairman.

Mrs. Scheve is a freelance writer, photographer, homemaker, Nebraska 1980 Mother of the Year and past state president of the Nebraska Council of Home Extension Clubs (NCHC).

During her program, she showed slides of trees and compared them to people and life. Mrs. Scheve told how simple eloquence trees tell stories of hope, courage, struggle and pain, strength, love and more.

"Trees come in all sizes and shapes. Each tree is unique and so are we — God made us all."

MRS. DuBOIS recognized the 1991 council and gave each a certificate and small wooden apple.

She compared the council to the fruit of the trees. "During the year they work together and by the end of the year we see a lot of the 'fruits' of their labor unfolded in community services and club programs given."

Mrs. Pospishil installed the 1992 council and compared the anatomy of the home extension council to the anatomy of trees. Council officers are Terri Headley, chairman; Susie Siefken, vice chairman; Dorothy Aurich, secretary; and Cynthia Puntney, treasurer.

The county fair booth plaque was presented to Star Home Extension Club.

MEMBERSHIP recognition was given by Mrs. DuBois and included Marvel Corbit (Klick and Klatter), 60 year member; Eleanor Wittler (Highlands), 50 year member; Peg Kinney (Serve All), 45 year member; Lofamaye Langenberg (Highlands), 40 year member; Elaine Ehlers and Arlene Fleer (A-Teen), Glee Gustafson (Serve All) and JoAnn Owens, Jaquelyn Owens and Dorothy Rees (Star), 35 year members; Virginia Leonard (Serve All) and Joyce Harmeier (Star), 30 year members; and Loreene Gildersleeve and Joyce Niemann (Klick and Klatter), Edna Hansen (Serve All) and Doris Harmer (Star), 25 year members.

Three new members were recognized, including Blanche Anderson (A-Teen), Erma Barker (Homemakers T 'n T), and Deb Harmeier (Star).

Recognized for 100 percent participation at the county fair were Scattered Neighbors and 3 M's. Star received honorable mention for over 50 percent participation. Klick and Klatter and Town and Country had 100 percent attendance at the Spring Event.

EACH CLUB gave a brief review of their accomplishments for 1991, and the program closed with the extension club song accompanied by JoAnn Hokamp.

Serving on the program committee were Marj Porter (3 M's), Cynthia Puntney (Star) and Sharon Olson (Town and Country).

The silver offering will go to the Wayne County Home Extension Council Health Fund.

"200 by 2000." That's how school board member Tom Kestenholz of Waverly Community Schools in Michigan characterizes the growing movement around the country to increase the number of days U. S. students spend in the classroom each year. To make the U.S. more competitive, school board members, governors, legislators, and educators are mounting campaigns in their local districts and states to gradually add more days to the calendar so that by the year 2000, the target year for accomplishing the national educational goals, students will spend 200 days in the classroom.

Currently U. S. students spend an average of 180 days in school, fewer than in most industrialized nations. Students in Japan are in school 243 days a year; students in West Germany, 226 to 240 days; and students in South Korea, 220 days.

But too few calendar days aren't the end of the problem: the amount of home study time falls short in the U. S. as well. Japanese high school students spend 61 hours a week in school or doing homework assignments, while Americans spend an average of just 30 hours a week in such activities.

Local drive is going well

As the business drive of the Wayne United Way drive in 1991 has come to its conclusion, the drive has netted $18,000, just $5,000 short of the $23,000 goal.

Board member Diane Mundahl offered her time representing United Way by giving presentations to Wayne area businesses. She also provided information on exactly how the funds are distributed and she helped encourage payroll deductions, which many are finding how easy and convenient it is.

The residential drive is also nearing completion, according to United Way board members Ann Barclay and Evelyn McDermott.

Volunteers have handed in nearly all of their packets, which will again be raising the mark toward the $23,000 United Way goal.

"Donations from the residential drive have been very good and we hope to complete the drive by next week," Barclay said.

Winside girls qualify for state volleyball tourney

The Winside Wildcats qualified for the state volleyball tournament for the second consecutive year after defeating Wausa in the district finals Thursday night in Randolph, 15-11, 15-6.

Paul Giesselmann's troops will take a 20-3 record into Pershing Auditorium on Friday for first round state tournament action. At press time it was not determined which of the eight seeds Winside would be or who the opponent would be.

The state tournament seeds teams on records so the Wildcats are likely to have a fourth seed at the best since there are three teams known for sure that have qualified with less losses.

In the first game of the district final with Wausa the Wildcats never trailed despite winning by just four points. Winside led 10-4 before Wausa closed the gap to 10-9. Winside then built the lead back to four at 13-9 before Wausa scored twice.

In the second game Wausa jumped out to a quick 3-1 lead and led 6-5 before Winside answered a wake-up call and scored the next 10 points to win going away.

"The girls are really playing well right now," Giesselmann said. "We have a lot of balance which I think is the key to our success. We can beat teams a lot of different ways and with a lot of different players which makes us tough to defense."

The Wildcats were 45-49 in the serving department for 92 percent. Kari Pichler was 10-10 with two aces while Holly Holdorf was 9-9 with three aces. Jenny Jacobsen was 11-12 with one ace and Wendy Rabe was 5-5 with one ace.

Pichler had 16 set assists to lead the Wildcats while Chris Colwell notched seven. "Chris really played an excellent game," Giesselmann said. "She had to set the ball more because Kari had to do a lot of digging off Wausa's serves."

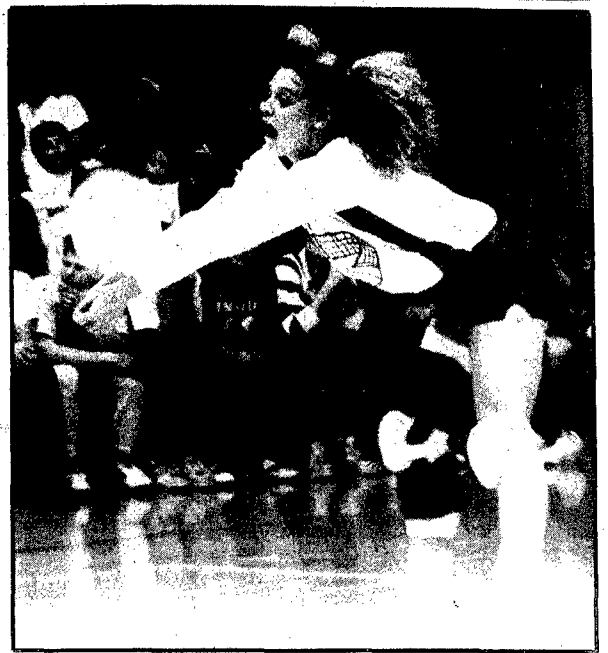

Pichler finished with eight digs to lead Winside. Jacobsen was the top hitter for the Wildcats with 11 kill spikes on 16-17 attempts while Rabe was 13-14 with nine kills. Holdorf was 12-14 with five kill spikes.

Rabe led the team in blocks with two while Jacobsen, Pichler and Oberle each had one. "We went into the district final and treated it just like any other match," Giesselmann said. "We didn't spend a lot of time dwelling on the importance that this match had over any other."

Giesselmann also said he was pleased with the fact his squad kept their poise when Wausa managed to get some serve aces which is the strong part of their game.

"I want to thank our fans for their support," Giesselmann said. "They have been tremendous for us all year long and that is important to our girls."

JENNY JACOBSEN RETURNS a Wausa serve during district finals on Thursday night in Randolph.

Wakefield fell 8-15, 10-15 to Wisner-Pilger in the sub-district finals. The Lady Gators improved their record to a perfect 21-0 with the win. "We had a little trouble serving in the Wisner match," Wakefield coach Paul Eaton said. "We were below our goal of 90 percent in serving."

The Trojans led Wisner 9-1 in the second game before falling 10-15. Heather Gustafson was 9-10 in serving with one ace and Eaton was 8-9 with one ace. Otte was 26-29 in setting while Miller was 14-15 with four assists. Sarah Salmon led the team in hitting with a 14-14 outing and five kill spikes while Fallesen was 11-12 with five kills. CITY OF WAYNE ELECTRIC

Albert and Edna chose electric heat and electric water heating for a lot of reasons.

They chose electricity because it's clean.

They chose it because it's safe.

They chose it because electric rates have stayed low.

But mostly, they chose electric heat because it comes from readily available energy sources.

With electricity, there's an abundant supply of energy.

Edna wishes the same could be said about Albert.

Trick roping is the topic of program

In 1894, Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show introduced trick roping to the world. A program, "Trick Ropers in the Wild West," which looks at this tradition, will be presented by Joan Wells at the John G. Neihardt Center in Bancroft, Sunday, Nov. 17 at 2 p.m.
Wells, today's Women's World Champion Trick Roper and member of the Cowgirl Hall of Fame, brings the color and history of the Old West alive in her program on the vanishing folk art of trick roping. South of the border in Old Mexico, the charros created rope spinning - making intricate flower designs with ropes. Vincente Oropeza introduced his skills to Buffalo Bill's Show, and gave American cowboys a different perspective on trick and fancy roping. Wells traces the evolution of trick roping through the heyday of Will Rogers and the Ziegfeld Follies in the first decades of this century, as she demonstrates many of the roping tricks.
This program is free and open to the public. For more information, contact the Neihardt Center at (402)648-3388.

Women's group hears concerns

At a meeting Thursday night at Wayne State College, representatives with the Nebraska Commission for the Status of Women and Citizen Action sought input to people's concerns over health care.

Representing the Nebraska Commission for the Status of Women were Rose Miley, Mary Harding, Carol McShane and Jean Karlen.

Throughout the course of the meeting, some of those in attendance said they believed they were being poorly treated by medical professionals.

One woman, who came from Norfolk to attend the meeting, said as recently as a month ago, she went into a Norfolk hospital and was denied service because she didn't have medical insurance. She said she was bleeding from her bowels.

According to statistics provided at the meeting, the Norfolk woman is among a minority that is quickly becoming the majority. The problem of receiving health insurance is something the commissioners in attendance said they want to resolve through legislative efforts.

"The U.S. is the only industrialized nation without some kind of national health care plan," Harding said. "Germany and Canada are two nations that offer health care to everyone."

According to statistics the commissioners provided, there are 37 million Americans with no health insurance and 50 million Americans are underinsured. Their statistics also indicated that people living in rural areas are more likely to have illnesses and less likely to use health care services. According to their data, 15 million women in America have no health insurance.

Their data was compiled from a number of sources.

"In particular, health seems to be one of the big issues women and their families face," Miley said.

While the commissioners with the organization said they didn't plan to release any information about their trip through Nebraska, they did say that the majority of the complaints about health care in the state deals with Medicaid and Medicare. They also said that they favor Sen. Bob Kerrey's, D-Nebr., proposal for a nationwide health plan.

The meeting in Wayne stems from a survey the commission conducted through shoppers in each of the towns they visited across Nebraska.

"The one thing we have learned, not only through the survey, but in our visits, is that people are coming out of the woodwork and they don't want any more health care patchwork," McShane said. "This is going to be a real election issue."

The Nebraska Commission for the Status of Women is dedicated to women having the opportunity and freedom to fulfill the roles they choose to pursue in today's society. In addition to that theme, the commission is active in advocating health and environmental issues.

Law

tion about the new requirement. The hospital will only be required to ask in-patients if they have advanced directives.

According to the hospital's definition, an advance directive is understood to mean a written declaration by a competent adult expressing preferences or instructions regarding treatment. The advance directive may include: a Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care, a living will or any reasonable valid written or oral statement by a patient of his or her treatment preferences.

A recent ruling from the Nebraska Attorney General's office said that there is nothing in the Nebraska laws which prohibit a person from writing a living will to state his or her wishes in the event of a terminal illness, so PMC is obligated to follow federal laws.

"In order to deal with difficult end-of-life decisions, this hospital's policies and procedures are designed to respect and preserve the patient's rights to make choices regarding all stages of any illness," according to information provided by PMC. "This policy helps when patients and family members may be asked to make difficult decisions about the type of medical care being delivered."

Darwin Robinson Baker was sentenced by Garden to no less than 20 months and no more than three years in the Nebraska Department of Correctional Services complex. Garden also ordered that Baker undergo substance abuse treatment.

Baker was also among six youth who allegedly escaped from the Wayne County Juvenile Detention Center Oct. 11.

A second youth, who was allegedly involved in both escapes did not appear before the district court since he is still at large following the Oct. 11 escape.

Authorities are continuing to search for Bernard Paul Jackson, who allegedly escaped from the Wayne County JDC Oct. 11. He pled guilty in October to charges that he escaped July 27 with Baker.

Farmers must abide by plans or risk payments

Since government payments accounted for nearly 30 percent of net farm income in Nebraska in 1990, it is important for farmers to either implement government-mandated conservation plans and not convert wetlands to cropland or risk losing these benefits, according to a University of Nebraska agricultural economist.

Nearly half of Nebraska's more than 20 million acres of cropland require conservation plans and more than 25 percent of the farms have acres identified as wetlands, said Richard Clark who is located at the NU West Central Research and Extension Center here.

Conservation plans for land defined as highly erodible must be in place by Jan. 1, 1995 as required by the 1985 Food Security Act and the 1990 Food, Agriculture, Conservation and Trade Act. Since Dec. 23, 1985, it has not been possible to convert wetlands to cropland without jeopardizing farm program benefits.

Sixty-eight percent of Nebraska farms have conservation plans, according to estimates from the Nebraska State Office of the Soil Conservation Service. Twenty-seven percent of Nebraska farms have wetlands as identified by SCS. An estimated 1.4 million acres have been enrolled in the Conservation Program since it began in 1986.

About 9.4 million acres in Nebraska have been defined as highly erodible cropland fields and about 300,000 acres are identified as wetlands, Clark said.

Identification of highly erodible land and wetland has been confined mostly to cropland and in some cases, land adjoining cropland.

Since a substantial amount of land is defined as erodible and as wetland, Nebraska farmers have a lot to lose by not developing appropriate conservation plans, Clark indicated.

"Nebraska farm operators have a substantial stake in the commodity programs alone," he said. "Given the pervasiveness of highly erodible land and wetlands in Nebraska, it is imperative that producers pay attention to the Highly Erodeable Land (HEL) plans and wetlands."

Clark encourages producers to implement conservation plans early to determine if they will work. If conservation plans do not work or if cropping plans change, conservation plans also can be changed, he said.

By implementing conservation plans early, producers have less chance of losing all government benefits if they make an honest mistake if they wait until after Jan. 1, 1995, Clark pointed out.

He said producers should contact the Soil Conservation Service before altering land that might be considered a wetland.
