Court drops charge

Wayne County Court Judge Stephen Finn has dismissed charges of sexual assault against a Wayne State College student.

The dismissal was made Thursday when a preliminary hearing was held for Vincent Oliver Cesair of Broadview, Ill.

The charges of sexual assault date back to an incident Oct. 27 on the Wayne State campus, which led to allegations that Cesair had sexually assaulted a female student in her dorm room.

THE NAME of the female student is being withheld.

Sources said Judge Finn apparently determined in the hearing that there was not enough evidence to have the matter turned over to the district court.

"As in any other hearing, if there's not probable cause, a judge will dismiss it," Wayne County Attorney Mike Pieper said.

Pieper offered no other comment in the matter.

Roerber added that a few changes have been made this year to the promotion. There will be five $500 drawings with no grand finale. The good news is that customers need not be present to win their prize. Winnings are redeemable only at the participating Chamber Holiday Magic sponsors.

THIS YEAR'S participating Chamber Holiday Magic sponsors are: Arnie's Ford-Mercury, The Black Knight, Carhart Lumber Company, Charlie's Refrigeration, Complete Computer Systems,

State approves request

New care centre on the way

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

The staff of the Wayne Care Centre was tickled pink Thursday.

That's because the Nebraska Department of Health has given the go-ahead for a request by the Boyle Company to replace the existing 94-bed facility long-term care facility in Wayne.

The Boyle Company is the parent company of the Wayne Care Centre.

According to Wayne Care Centre Administrator Pat Lichty, construction of the facility will begin once the ground thaws in the spring.

"We're very excited about this," Lichty said. "Now that the certificate of need has gone through we can proceed to breaking ground. We look forward to working with all of the community to completing the project."

THE NEW facility, which will have 104 beds, will cost an estimated $2.93 million. The use of the money will be $1.8 million for the building; $80,000 for land; $621,200 for fixed equipment; $250,000 for movable equipment; $40,000 for architectural fees; and $90,000 for financing.

The existing Wayne Care Centre was built in 1954 with construction of an addition in 1971. Lichty said while the building is in good shape, changes in state and federal laws have precipitated the need for the new facility. He said fees accompanied with keeping the current facility open have facilitated the development of a new one.

The new facility will be located just east of homes along Providence Road, south of 14th Street. It will be positioned between the homes along Providence Road and the new ESU 1 building, which is scheduled to begin construction sometime next year.

The new care center will have 36 private rooms and 34 semi-private rooms. The size of the rooms will also be larger than the current ones, but the exact sizes are not yet drawn up. The new facility will differ from the present one since the present one, in some instances, has three beds to four beds to a room, depending on the size of the rooms.

LICHTY SAID it will take approximately 10 months to build once developers break ground. He said one thing that's exciting about the new facility is that it will mean more work for people in the Wayne area.

"I've already had people contacting me so they can plan ahead and hire more people," he said. "They all want to hire people locally, so this will be good for Wayne's economy."

Another advantage of the new facility is that dining areas will be large enough so residents can have meals together on a regular basis, rather than having split dining schedules.

THE NEW facility will also all be on one level, so residents won't have to climb stairs or use the elevator to get from floor to floor. The new facility will also have expanded parking, so visitors won't have as far to go to get to the facility.

One of the things that's exciting Lichty and his staff is the fact the physical therapy unit will be much larger than the one the Wayne Care Centre currently has. He said it will allow the residents to have a greater chance to recover from illness and injuries and return home, which is the primary mission of the current care center.

"The families and the residents are excited about it because they can see how it's going to benefit them," Lichty said.

"It will make it easier for us to take care of them because they'll be closer to the nurses stations. It will provide more of a home atmosphere."

Concord woman lives in fear for life

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Susan Ellis' eyes tell her whole story. She's tired of the constant badgering she's taking from her estranged husband and she wants to go on with her life.

She looks worn out but she tries to remain alert at all times. She says she has to. She's afraid for her life.

After 12 years of marriage, Susan Ellis is trying to divorce her husband. She says she's been abused long enough. She wants her husband to leave her alone so she can go on with her life and he can go on with his.

"I told him I want a divorce or I want to be separated for a while," she says. "I'm tired. ...The night I got out of the hospital my Mom told me I looked like I've aged 20 years in the last week. I told her I feel like it."

MS. ELLIS says she and her husband used to fight constantly. She says during the early years of their marriage, they would have shouting matches but after a while, the bickering turned violent.

On one occasion, she was stabbed in the thigh. On other occasions she says she would end up with black eyes. She claims her husband beat the children. On two occasions, she says he raped her.

"Sometimes I'm confused," she says. "Sometimes I'm angry. Sometimes I don't know what to do. ...I feel nervous. I wish all this would get over with."

In the last year, she decided enough was enough. She was tired of the abuse. She was concerned for her children's and her own safety. And she was tired of not only things she would hear about her husband's exploits, but of the drinking binges she says he would go on.

ACCORDING TO the Dixon County Sheriff's office, Kenneth Ellis, 31, faces seven criminal charges, all related to incidents where he has allegedly disturbed his wife.

Orthotron II may aid Wildcat athletics

Wayne State researching isokinetics

The following was written by Wayne State Exercise Science Wellness students Mark Kaprelian and Kyle McCormick

The Human Performance Lab at Wayne State College made a major improvement recently by purchasing an Orthotron II isokinetic strength and endurance testing machine. The Orthotron II machine purchase was made possible through funding by the Wayne State Administration who feel that Fitness and Wellness are an important aspect of a sound lifestyle.

The Orthotron II consists of various tests that focus on the knee, ankle, hip, shoulder, elbow and forearm. The Orthotron is linked together with an IBM compatible computer which allows for graphic analysis of the testing being performed.

The IBM also stores this data in its data base. When the printouts are complete the material is analyzed by the practicum students at Wayne State. Carla McWilliams and Kathy Schweers are the practicum students researching the first testing of the machine at WSC.

The isokinetic exercise consists of maximal resistance over the full range of motion which cannot be achieved by lifting free weights. This resistance over the full range of motion allows for greater overloads of muscle tissue than previously possible before isokinetic exercises. This overload principle is the basis for strength and endurance improvements.

This isokinetic exercise is important because it allows a specific exerciser to train at or close to actual speed of the sports skill he is working to improve. This again is not possible by lifting free weights, because this is a slow resistance movement. Another important aspect of the Orthotron is its capability of the rehabilitation of injury. The Orthotron has this capability of setting the resistance at a level compatible to the extent of the injury.

Wayne State head football coach Dennis Wagner and his staff are planning on setting up a strength program solely with the use of isokinetics. This test will consist of six WSC football players using strictly the isokinetic program.

The program will consist of five days a week work on the Orthotron for six weeks. Each exercise session will include a total of 40 minutes per athlete. There will be a bout of 20 to 30 seconds of continuous exercise at the resistance speed of the 40 yard dash time, followed by a one minute recovery. This will continue for a five-minute period on each leg. Then the feet are tested where the foot is measured against the same resistance for 20-30 seconds. Again this is a five-minute exercise for each foot. This simulates training for the 40-yard dash but by weightlifting.

Included in the exercise bouts will be both extension flexion of the knee and ankle joints. At the completion of the six week period the study hopes to reduce each player's 40 yard dash time.

The Orthotron can also be used to test off-season and pre-season testing of leg and arm strength for potential in season muscle injury. A strength training program can be organized to head off a muscle injury.

The Orthotron will also analyze when the injured leg is equal to the strength of the uninjured leg.

WAYNE STATE FOOTBALL player Mike Kennedy works out on the newly purchased Orthotron II machine in the HPLS Laboratory under the watchful eye of practicum student Carla McWilliams. The isokinetic machine was funded by the Wayne State Administration. The Orthotron II will be used to improve muscle strength, power and speed through quadracep and hamstring work on the resistance machine.

WSC spikers close out year with 31-10 record

The Wayne State volleyball team may have ended their season on a sour note with losses to Norfolk Community College in four games and to Morningside at home on Tuesday in three games, but that is trivial compared to what the Wildcats accomplished in the 1991 season.

The Wildcats were defeated 15-6, 15-12, 15-2 by Morningside—a team which WSC had beaten earlier in the season. "We just weren't communicating very well on the floor," Clark said. "Things happened in the Norfolk game which had an effect on our play against Morningside the next night."

Shelly Lueders closed out her career as a Wildcat Tuesday by notching her 500th career kill spike. She finished with six kills on the night along with 20 blocks. Cori Weinfurter had six kills as well on a 21-21 hitting performance.

Tracy Kuester finished with six kills and Kristi Jaminet had four on a night in which Clark said her setters had trouble getting the ball to the hitters. Shannon Dunning had 15 set assists on 45 attempts.

Incidentally, WSC's loss to Norfolk Community College on Monday in Norfolk did not count on the record since they are a junior college. "We just didn't go to play against Norfolk," Clark said. "We had scrimmaged them just five days earlier and we beat them five straight games but then we go over there and lose in four."

The 31-10 record amassed by the Wildcats broke the school record. "Overall it was a great year for us," Clark said. "We accomplished a lot of things that we set out to do including a new school record for victories in a season. I got a lot out of my kids and with the exception of the final week, they all played very hard all season. They are a good, solid team."

Clark will now turn her attention to getting the best recruits possible to build on next year's team. "We are already farther along in recruiting then we were a year ago," Clark said. "We are having a try-out on Saturday, Nov. 23 open to anyone that is a senior in high school or at college that wants to try out for the team for next year."

Wrestling Open House Nov. 22

WAYNE-There will be an Open House for the Wayne wrestling team on Friday, Nov. 22 at 8 p.m. in the high school gym. The Open House consist of introductions of the Wayne wrestling team for the 1991-92 season, a demonstration of the sport of wrestling and an explanation of the sport, such as how to score points. Everyone is welcome to attend to gain a better understanding of wrestling on the high school level.

Prior to the Open House there will be a Wrestling Club meeting at 7 p.m., room 101 of the high school.

Life

The first incident was Sept. 15, in which he allegedly set fire to Ms. Ellis' residence in Concord. Then, on Oct. 25, he allegedly assaulted his wife after picking her up on a road south of Concord. From the first two incidents, Ellis faces charges of false imprisonment, terroristic threats, criminal mischief, first degree assault and arson.

But Ellis, a 31-year-old native of Allen, was able to post bond Nov. 9 after the initial charges had been filed.

On Tuesday, Nov. 13, he again allegedly showed up on his wife's doorstep. He was picked up later that night and charged with speeding, driving under the influence of alcohol, and violation of a protection order.

MS. ELLIS says she just wants life to return to normal. She says she wants to stop feeling like she has to look over her shoulder all the time.

She adds that if things don't change soon, she may have to pack everything up and leave. She says if there's no other way to get away from the situation, she's ready to try to run from it and start a new life somewhere else.

"I want him to leave me alone," she says. "There's lots of other people (he can be with). I just want him to sign the papers for divorce so he can go on with his life and I can go on with mine."

Authorities nab man

The Dixon County Sheriff's Department responded to a domestic disturbance call at the home of Susan Ellis of Concord Tuesday night after her estranged husband was allegedly disturbing her peace.

Mr. Ellis, who turned himself in to the Dixon County Sheriff Oct. 25 after a warrant had been issued for his arrest for allegedly assaulting his wife, had been released Nov. 9 after posting 10 percent of his $35,000 bond.

He had also been sought by the authorities after allegedly setting fire to his estranged wife's residence in Concord on Sept. 15.

ACCORDING TO Don Taylor, a deputy sheriff for Dixon County, the Dixon County sheriff's office responded to the call Tuesday, but upon arrival in Concord was unable to locate Mr. Ellis.

Later, a vehicle matching the description of the one driven by Ellis was picked up for speeding. After the arrest, Ellis was charged with speeding, driving under the influence of alcohol and violation of a protection order. The protection order had been made by Mrs. Ellis on Oct. 25.

After Tuesday's arrest, the Dixon County Attorney's office set a second bond at $50,000 or 10 percent of that amount.

Survey finds business community supports tax session

Overwhelming support for a constitutional amendment to permit taxation of personal property differently than real property, and for a special legislative session to extend the deadline for reporting inventories, were expressed by 1,108 business people who attended 29 Legislative Forums across the Nebraska the past two weeks.

Eighty-nine percent of those attending the statewide forums, sponsored by the Nebraska Chamber of Commerce & Industry and the hosting local chambers of commerce, indicated they would support a constitutional amendment, and 85 percent indicated they want the legislature and the governor to call a special session to avoid reporting inventories on Jan. 1.

At the Forum held in Wayne, which was attended by 25 persons, 75 percent supported the constitutional amendment, and 85 percent supported having a special legislative session.

Jack Swartz, president of the State Chamber, stated, "We found there is great frustration and concern among members of the business community across Nebraska with the fact their inventories are going back on the tax rolls at the beginning of 1992. These people want the governor and the legislature to take action between now and Jan. 1, to ensure that chaos is not created within our business climate," Swartz said.

Swartz indicated 33 of Nebraska's 49 state senators participated in the 29 forums. Most of the state senators attending the forums expressed the opinion that they did not support taxing inventories and they believed action would be taken during the 1992 regular session to avoid this tax.

Over 70 percent of the persons statewide completing the chamber's opinionnaire said that of the several tax alternatives discussed, they would most support an increase in the state sales tax to replace any needed revenue lost by local government. No other tax alternatives received a majority of votes. At the Wayne meeting, 46 percent supported an increase in the state sales tax rate.

The Nebraska Chamber of Commerce & Industry is Nebraska's largest statewide business association, comprised of large and small business firms and organizations, trade associations, and local chambers of commerce.

Public comment sought on state's housing plan

The Department of Economic Development recently announced the completion of a draft plan for affordable housing, part of a federal mandate issued by Congress through the National Affordable Housing Act. The act requires state and larger local governments that receive HUD money to have a housing strategy. Work on Nebraska's draft plan, called the Nebraska Comprehensive Housing Affordability Strategy (CHAS) began in February when Governor Ben Nelson asked representatives of federal, state, and local governmental agencies and the university system to work together on the plan.

The "Committee of 100" included individuals representing public and private housing interest groups with statewide representation. This group was guided through a one-day strategic planning process by the UNO Center for Public Affairs Research. The result was a call for the state to get more involved, to develop a state housing policy, to coordinate delivery of existing programs and to provide leadership, incentives and financial assistance to ensure the provision of affordable and supportive housing for Nebraskans.

This extensive participation process involved all groups normally viewed as players in the affordable housing field. These players, in fact, reflect the coordination and cooperation required to accomplish the strategies presented and to generally do affordable housing projects.

During the 1991 Nebraska legislature session, a section was added to the Nebraska Fair Housing Act requiring DED to develop the CHAS. Nebraska's CHAS incorporates the separate CHAS's prepared by Omaha, Lincoln, and South Sioux City.

"Preparation of the CHAS not only meets federal and state mandates, but addresses the increasing demand for affordable housing across Nebraska," said Steve Buttress, director of Nebraska Department of Economic Development. "A 1989 legislative committee report noted that Nebraska had no housing policy or lead agency in state statutes or administrative documents. This plan speaks to the need for housing policy. Therefore, we are very interested in hearing from the providers of affordable housing and the public about the state's CHAS," Buttress said.

The act also provides new federal dollars for affordable housing. Two of the major programs, called HOPE and HOME, will provide monies to encourage more home ownership and increase the assistant available to cities and states to produce more affordable housing. The CHAS proposes strategies for the state to effectively use these new financial resources.

The HOPE program, Home Ownership and Opportunity for People Everywhere, will provide grants to public agencies and non-profit groups who can help lower income people homeowners. Under the HOME program, funds for various activities have been authorized for states and cities to assist with producing more affordable housing. The HOME program is a housing block grant program which will bring an additional $6 million for the state and Lincoln and Omaha for affordable housing programs or to assist the homeless.

Feed is topic of meeting Nov. 21

A meeting designed to answer cattle feeders' questions about the use of corn by-products for feed is scheduled Nov. 21 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Nov. 21 near the beef feedlot at the University of Nebraska Agricultural Research and Development Center in Mead.

Rick Stock, University feedlot specialist, said the topics will include ongoing feedlot research with wet corn gluten feed, as well as nutritional description and economic evaluation of corn by-products.

Lunch will be provided by the Minnesota Corn Processors.

Group gears up for another season

Does the thought of another season of mindless television turn you off? Then turn on to a year of the Wayne Community Theatre.

The 1991-92 season started last weekend when the community theatre put on its performance of "Greater Tuna" at the Black Knight. Another event planned this month is the high school one act festival on Nov. 23 at Wayne High School, featuring four area schools.

The workshop will be held from 2-6 p.m. and all performances are open to the public at no charge. At this high school festival, two $300 scholarships will be given in the name of Dr. Helen Russell, former head of the theatre department at Wayne State College.

AGAIN THIS year, the Wayne Community Theatre will be putting on a free Christmas Story Hour at the Wayne City Auditorium. The event, slated for a Sunday afternoon (TBA) in December, is a fun day for kids while giving parents a chance to catch up on holiday shopping.

With thoughts turning to spring, the Wayne Community Theatre offers "The Dining Room," a thoughtful glimpse at the ways that humans, from children to adult, struggle with their loves, needs and self-centered natures.

But before that, you won't want to miss An Old-Fashioned Melodrama during the Wayne Country Store Days in June.

Membership information about the Wayne Community Theatre is available by contacting Dave Headley at 375-3160 or Brenda Corder at 375-4770.
