Board votes to close JDC

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

If the official's determination to close the facility stands, the facility will close June 30, 1992.

THE DECISION will force the 20 participating counties to have their juvenile law breakers housed somewhere else.

Before the commissioners cast their votes, Wayne County Sheriff LeRoy Janssen said he thought a study should be done to look at the feasibility of closing the facility. Janssen serves as administrator of the facility.

Janssen said he thinks a study should be made to see "what type of responsibility that we have when we don't have a facility, financial responsibility, as well as the responsibility of our juveniles: What we do with them when we don't have the responsibility."

Despite Janssen's plea, Commissioner Merlin Beiermann was quick to respond.

"That would probably be a good idea but this has proved that it didn't work over here," Beiermann said. "... As far as I'm concerned, it's closed."

COMMISSIONER Jerry Pospishil said he thinks one way or another there's an accident waiting to happen. Pospishil's concerns were supported by Beiermann.

"The facility's not designed for this," Beiermann said. "The rules are too lax. I think the juvenile detention standards need to be changed. That's just my opinion."

Following the meeting, Janssen said it's too early to tell what impact the commissioner's vote to close the JDC means. He said he wasn't surprised at the speed at which the decision was made but he said for the time being, the JDC will operate the best way it can.

"I don't think they fully understand the impact this will have on Wayne County or on northeast Nebraska," he said by telephone. "They have never determined any other alternatives. All they know is that they don't want it in Wayne County."

JANSSEN SAID he remains optimistic about the JDC. He said he wants to see what will happen by June.

"There's a certain responsibility for not having a facility," he said. "We can arrest kids but we'll have to answer the question of where we will put them."

The commissioner's decision to close the JDC follows four escapes since June, with the most recent one occurring Nov. 9.

At a meeting Nov. 5, the commissioners extended the deadline to close the facility to Jan. 1, 1992 with the position that if any more escapes occurred before Jan. 1, they would vote to have the JDC closed.

Commissioners turn away offer

While it may have appeared that the Wayne County Commissioners had their hands full dealing with the Wayne County Juvenile Detention Center, they did discuss other items on Tuesday's agenda.

Two of the items the commissioners discussed dealt with proposed interlocal agreements.

While the county board voted down participating in the NEDEEP program, they took no action on utilizing Norfolk's enhanced 911 system for a small portion of Wayne County, after listening to a report from Norfolk Chief of Police William Mizner.

DESPITE THE VOTE not to participate in the interlocal agreement, the commissioners said they would like to take part in the NEDEP (Northeast Nebraska Drug Enforcement Program) but funding shortages make it impossible for them to do so at this time. This is the second year the commissioners have voted to remain out of the agreement.

The cost to Wayne County would have been $3,500 for one year, running from Sept. 1, 1991 to Aug. 31, 1992.

NEDEP is a continuation grant request for northeast Nebraska. What the program allows counties to do is to coordinate manpower and funding efforts. The program enhances the possibilities of apprehending drug offenders.

WHILE THE county board voted down participating in the NEDEP program, the commissioners are considering partaking in the enhanced 911 program for a portion of Wayne County near Hoskins.

According to Mizner, the enhanced 911 system will allow the dispatcher to immediately identify where a caller is calling from in the event of an emergency. It will allow the dispatcher to send out whatever assistance is necessary to a pinpointed location.

There are two concerns the county board shared, however. One is that the system will force the county to provide street addresses to roads in the affected area, a cost the county board was uncertain the county could bear. The other problem is that it only affects five residences.

The board will take further action at one of its upcoming meetings.

In one other note, Wayne County Attorney Mike Pieper authorized the chairman of the county board, Merlin Beiermann, to execute a contract with Hanna-Keelan Associates for the comprehensive plan and zoning ordinances for Wayne County, although the village boards have not returned their contracts.

Community theatre slates drama festival

Wayne High School's lecture hall will be the site of the Third Annual High School Drama Festival Saturday, Nov. 23. The event will be held from 2-6 p.m. and is being sponsored by the Wayne Community Theatre.

Participating in this year's workshop will be Pierce, Wakefield, Wayne and Winside High Schools.

Two $300 scholarships will be given in the name of Dr. Helen Russell, former head of the theatre department at Wayne State College. The monies will be awarded to the schools in recognition of best overall actor and actress. The schools can then present the scholarship to a deserving senior to be applied as tuition at Wayne State.

THIS YEAR'S festival will feature: Pierce, with "The Infamous Southing System of Professor Maillard", under the direction of Marcy Zierke; Wakefield, "The Undercover Lover", directed by Val Bard; "Jaques or Obedience" from the Wayne group, under the direction of Ted Blenderman, and "Dreamwalk", directed by Lynne Wacker with Winside. Each participating school will be allowed a maximum performance time of 30 minutes, followed by a 15 minute critique period.

Judging this year's workshop will be Ron and Deb Whitt, both of Wayne. Both are involved in directing the Wayne State College speech team, and both are currently working on their doctorate through UN-L.

Performances are slated to begin at approximately 2 p.m. and are open to the public.

Up, up and away (hopefully)

SIXTH AND SEVENTH GRADE students at Allen Consolidated School released approximately 25 hot air balloons (one at a time) on Tuesday afternoon. Students spent last week constructing the balloons, using tissue paper and glue sticks. Instructors Mike Busselman and Marlene Levine said although none of the balloons sailed across the horizon, the experiment was a success in that nearly all of the balloons rose above the school before gusty winds brought them back down. The balloons were filled with hot air travelling through a stove pipe which had been placed on a propane camp stove. Levine said the idea for the experiment came from a workshop she and Busselman attended this past summer which introduced activities incorporating math and science.

Producers express concern over taxes

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Some members either closely related to the agriculture industry or actually involved in it are extremely concerned over the personal property tax crisis facing the state and they want their voices heard.

"There's not much they can do," says Wayne County Extension Agent Rod Patent. "They need to be concerned and make their voice heard. They need to be proactive because their lobbying effort could determine the outcome."

"Of the people I've talked with, I've told them it's important to contact their state senators or members of the 3-R committee." While the decision of the 3-R committee (Revenue, Revitalization and Restructuring), was expected to be made Wednesday, some individuals want to be heard. The 3-R committee's decision was unavailable at press time.

SOME BUSINESSMEN say they plan to take their inventories out of the state. One example is Logan Valley Implement Manager Gary Pick.

In an interview Tuesday, Pick says he will probably move as much of his inventory to South Dakota, so he won't have to claim it as inventory. He says it's upsetting to him to have to do that because it's the consumer who will be hurt in the long run.

"I'm like them," he says. "I'd like to know what the rules are before I play the game."

Pick says he has talked to a number of beef and pork producers who say they plan to take as much of their inventories out of the state. He says the personal property crunch is already starting to hit Nebraska because businesses don't want to bring their cattle into the state for fear they'll be taxed. He says he's heard of a number of cattle producers who are sending their product to Montana, South Dakota, North Dakota and Wyoming, rather than facing the possibility they'll get hit with taxes in Nebraska.

Patent says some producers along the borders of the state are taking their inventory to Colorado, Kansas, Wyoming, South Dakota, Iowa and Missouri.

SOME PRODUCERS, however, don't believe they'll be hit quite as hard. John Anderson, who has one of the largest dairy opera-

Who to call:

- Sen. Gerald Conway, 375-4156
- Sen. Elroy Hefner, 283-4475
- Sen. Tim Hall, 344-2406
- Sen. Stan Schellpeper, 439-2907
- Sen. Ron Withem, 331-8358

tions in the area, says he believes the people who will be hit the hardest will be producers and implement dealers who have a great deal of machinery.

He adds that people in the finishing business, rather than the breeding portion of the industry, will be hit the hardest because that's where the most capital lies.

"Personal property is not a big factor compared to a lot of farmers' expenses. But given the profit margin we've seen in the last few years, anything negative will hurt."

Anderson, like others, calls the self-assessment plan "ridiculous." He says all personal property tax is a liar's tax.

BOB FUOSS, who primarily works as a grain producer, says he thinks the fairest tax are ones on income and sales. He says it's ridiculous to hit people in the ag industry twice for the same item. He says he doesn't think people in the ag industry should have to pay sales taxes and personal property taxes.

"There are some legislators out there who are working to help the ag industry and there are some who aren't," he says. "I don't want to say who those are who aren't."

"I think the thing that concerns me the most is that this will hit the small producers the hardest," he says. "They'll get discouraged and become tired of fighting. This will cause a terrible burden on everyone."

Patent calls the threat of personal property taxes "psychologically negative." He says if all the personal property goes on the tax rolls come Jan. 1, 1992, he doesn't think it will be so severe that operations can't survive. But he adds that businesses do need to prepare for the potential shock wave, once it hits.

"The economic conditions are such that it definitely will affect purchasing," he says. "Most farmers are very concerned over this."

Is the American family in trouble?

The following article was submitted by Wayne County Home Extension Clubs in observance of Family Life Week, Nov. 24-30.

Is the American family a significantly weaker institution than it was just a few decades ago? To fully understand what's happening to the family, there are several key issues that must be taken into account.

—Marital breakup. America now has the highest family dissolution rate in the world, with the possible exception of Sweden. About 50 percent of today's children will spend a significant proportion of childhood in one-parent homes.

—Changing values. We place greater value on the importance of freedom, autonomy and self-expression than we do on the purposes that extend beyond the self, including family, religion and national ideals.

—Time spent with the family. Partly for economic reasons, adults, both men and women, are spending less time with their children and spouses and more time at work.

—Quality of life for the children. It's getting harder and harder to be a child in America. One out of five children in this country is born into poverty. Teachers report that each year fewer of the children who start school are mentally or emotionally equipped to learn what they're supposed to learn.

WHAT CAN PARENTS DO?

—Make family life a higher priority. We may need to abandon our current view of the family as a barrier to personal fulfillment and begin to see it as a pathway to satisfaction.

—Encourage contact between the generations. Children who spend time with grandparents see older people as kind and loving, with much to teach them. Make sure your children and your parents have ample opportunity to get to know each other.

—Restore family rituals. Shared rituals, like celebrating birthdays or holidays, help bond a family together.

—Bring back the family meal. Historically, families everywhere have been organized around meals. On the deepest personal level, food can be seen as the embodiment of love. Eating together is also an unparalleled opportunity for family discussion of issues both large and small.

—Take marriage seriously. Try harder to make marriage work. This doesn't mean staying in a hostile marriage for the sake of the children. Many troubled couples may be focusing on their conflicts and overlooking the value of shared history, affection and understanding. The qualities that help us to be better spouses and parents also help us to be better people.

—By way of irresponsible media. Movies, and especially television, tend to portray family life as a subject of ridicule and contempt. There's little realistic depiction of the mature and understanding of sexuality, which recognizes the pleasure of sex within a context of love and commitment.

Celebrate Family Life Week — the week of Thanksgiving — with your family.

Congratulations!

A big note of congratulations goes out to the Wayne Care Centre on the state's approval of its application for a new facility.

It's great to hear that some of our senior residents will now have a better place to live. It's great news, not only for the geriatric population, but for the city as a whole.

This type of progress is exactly what the city needs. It offers positive identification that Wayne is moving in the right direction. With the construction of the new facility, it also means that Wayne will be challenged with the opportunity to find a new use of the old building. It will open up avenues of opportunity for the community to pursue.

A big card of thanks also deserves to be given out to all the people who were so instrumental in the application process. Thank you to Gil Haase, Pat Lichty, staff members of the Wayne Care Centre, it's residents, the city, the chamber, along with all others involved.

The news that there will be a new Wayne Care Centre is the type of news we like to hear.

Support the JDC

Rather than suggest that the Wayne County JDC be closed due to juvenile escapes, let's get behind the detention center and work for a good solution.

The JDC is not a jail for juveniles but a detention center. LeRoy is trying to give this facility and these kids an air of rehabilitation and self-esteem in themselves to go out into the work world after their detention to make good of their lives. Sure kids attempt escapes, they are away from home, away from their parents, they're scared and they're lonely. Most of these kids come from homes not suitable for the raising of kids. But they key word is "juvenile," those persons under the age of 18.

In the eyes of the courts, these kids belong at home going to school and participating in sports, etc. If people don't leave their keys in their cars they don't get stolen. The Wayne County JDC needs the modern updating to assist LeRoy and his staff to house these juveniles while they stay in Wayne. Escapes by the juveniles only add more crimes to their history that they really don't need. I would hope that the Wayne County Commissioners will work with LeRoy and his staff and help the JDC be the effective detention center they need to be.

This facility offers housing for juveniles for over 20 counties in Nebraska so that these juveniles don't have to be housed with adults in other facilities. The City of Wayne and the Wayne County Commissioners need to get behind LeRoy and his staff and help solve this problem with the needed updating of the detention center.

Most of these juveniles deep down are not hard core criminal prospects and LeRoy is trying to impress that upon these kids during their stay in the facility. Escapes do happen on an endeavor that many other counties would not even consider for the youth of this area.

Give LeRoy the help and support he needs, not threats of closing the facility. As a law officer, I have lodged people in jail in every county in northeast and north-central Nebraska and I can assure you these adult jails are no place for juveniles. If you want to give a juvenile an adult criminal mind and atmosphere, just place him in the same facility for adults and he will quickly learn the adult crime trade very quickly.

Remember others

Mark Crist (Mark'n the Spot, Nov. 14) wrote of his shock at the news that Magic Johnson tested

HIV positive, something he will remember the rest of his life. He then suggested that all the money budgeted for defense would be more practically spent on AIDS research.

At the risk of causing the editor another day of shock, let me point out some things more shocking than Magic Johnson with the HIV virus, which Crist said was "a cold slap of reality."

Here are some other cold realities: It is a cold reality that nearly a million citizens of this country are homeless. It is a cold reality that this year some 40-50 million people will die of hunger or hunger related illness. It is a cold reality that while you read this letter more than 100 people, many of them children, will die of starvation.

Where is the shock? Where is the outrage? Where is the media? Maybe these realities do not shock us because they happen every day. Maybe these realities do not shock us because it happens to nameless poor.

If we are going to scrap our defense budget, it seems most practical to use that money where it will do the most people the most good. Let's not forget about the poor, just because we have them with us always.

I long for a day when people will be as shocked by starving poor as they are by an HIV positive basketball player. And I long for a day when people will be shocked by such a prominent role model's promiscuity as by the disease he contracted.

Thank you

A special thank you to all of the parents and family members of students at Wayne Elementary School who were so supportive during National Children's Book Week. We truly went bananas over books.

The children first grade through fourth grade read over 2,000 books during this special week. Also, a big thank you to the tremendous teachers who designed banana trees and helped to make this week such a successful one. Thanks also goes to the fourth grade class that totalled books each day and graphed the reading results for the chart in the lunchroom. Thanks to teacher aides, parent volunteers and anyone else who made this such an exciting week of reading.

We've all gone bananas over books.

Trip promotes ag products

I recently returned from a 10-day trade mission to Taipei, Taiwan; Hong Kong; and Tokyo, Japan. A major reason for visiting the Pacific Rim was to make sure overseas governments and food importers know the quality of Nebraska's agricultural products.

The more we know about foreign trade, the better equipped we'll be to tell the story of Nebraska agriculture and deal with the issues of free and fair trade.

Trade policies are constantly under review by the Western Governors Association and the National Governors Association.

It's common knowledge that Nebraska agriculture and American agriculture is at disadvantage in dealing with other countries because of the subsidies they grant for production and export of their own agricultural products.

I believe if the federal government can't stop unfair trade practices, states need to look at ways of doing it themselves by enhancing their own trade situations. We must insist on a level playing field for Nebraska and American agriculture when it comes to overseas markets.

We have many good things going for us that can help Nebraska agriculture and businesses be strong players in overseas markets.

For example, what started as a courtesy call turned into an exchange of over an hour (almost unprecedented length) when I met with the President of Taiwan Teng-Hui Lee, himself a former provincial governor of Taipei and graduate of Iowa State University.

Our agenda included computer software technology, environmental protection issues and measurement equipment technology areas in which several Nebraska businesses are active.

President Lee indicated that Taiwan faces the exportation of their jobs to Singapore, the Philippines and the Malaysian area and they are looking for more capital to be invested in their country and are looking for more trade opportunities to replace some of those lost jobs.

I explained to him that we were concerned about that also, in terms of the free trade treaties that are being discussed at the present time. We need to be sure that we don't export jobs that we might otherwise be able to hang on to in the United States.

President Lee's background is in agriculture and, since Nebraska has a sister state relationship with the province of Taiwan, our two governments are continuing to look for areas where trade between Nebraska and Taiwan can be expanded. They already buy a great deal of Nebraska wheat.

State government can't make international trade happen for Nebraska agriculture and businesses. But government can help share information with prospective overseas consumers and domestic producers on what their respective markets might be.

A great awareness of trade opportunities can open up new overseas prospects that will strengthen Nebraska's economy, while we work here at home on tough issues like protecting our environmental quality, improving education for the next century and solving our property tax problems.

Rates in place for Baltic States

Mailing Packages
The U.S. Postal Service has a new airlift rate for packages mailed to individuals or families in Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania and U.S.S.R. Postal Service officials say that they are offering the new airlift rate because of the great need for the basic necessities of life among people living in the Baltic-republics and the Soviet Union.

The new airlift rate is calculated by adding a $1 per-pound surcharge to the existing surface rate.
I will provide ground transportation from all points within the United States to the New Jersey International and Bulk Mail Center, and airlift service from there to the Baltic republics and the Soviet Union. Previously, the choice for mailing packages was between expensive but slower surface parcel post rates and airmail rates that are about three times as much. The Postal Service says that the new airlift rate offers savings of about 50 percent over airmail rates.

Conversation provides source of entertainment

After four months as a new father, I have been able to define everything my son says to me (either that or I'm faking it as well as I can).
You see, there are times when he talks to me about the philosophies of life. Then there are those occasions when he discusses his day. While his English is no quite clear yet, he certainly keeps Mom and Dad entertained.
"Aahh-cooooo," he'll say to me, opening up the dialogue for more intense conversation.
After smiling at him I'll say "really?"
With that response, he'll usually reply "bbbbbppppp," ressing his lips together like he's blowing a trumpet for the Wayne High School band.

Mark'n the Spot
by Mark Crist
ONE THING I've noticed about my son's pronunciation of things is that he's very clear about what he's saying. I've been working with him on saying "Mommy" or "Daddy" and even "Ma Ma" or "Da Da" but all I get is "bbbbbppp", followed by a strange look, like he's trying to figure out what I'm saying and why I'm saying it.

SOMETIMES, if I'm holding him close enough to me he'll roll his head and smack his nose first into my shoulder. This means one of two things: either he thinks I'm being silly because I'm smiling at him or he's tired of this line of conversation and he wants to change the topic.
"Aaaaak," he'll say. "Ayeek eek abook oolok."
(Pardon me if the punctuation isn't correct and if the spelling is a little off but I'm doing the best that I can.)
In responding to him, I'll usually say something like "what?" or "is that so?" in my highest pitched baby voice.
The funny thing about our conversation is that the other day I was in Phida and I saw another young father with his child, speaking the same way. Then I thought to myself, "do I do that?"
Upon returning home, I realized I did it.
"Aahh gggkghkghk," Bryce replied after I asked him if I talked to him in a funny fashion.

Bankruptcy
When an airline declares bankruptcy consumers holding tickets face the risk of being stranded and unable to recover any of their money. Before deregulation, the Civil Aeronautics Board required the airline industry to provide passage to consumers holding tickets on bankrupt airlines.
I am cosponsoring the Airline Bankruptcy Passenger Protection Act. This bill would give the airlines the opportunity to develop a plan, within 180 days of enactment of the law, to protect consumers holding tickets on bankrupt airlines.

Keeping in Touch
By Cong. Doug Bereuter

The bill requires the Secretary of Transportation to implement the plan, or one of his own, should he disapprove the industry's plan. All carriers operating aircraft capable of seating 60 or more people would be required to participate.
The problems encountered by Midway Airlines have caused many Nebraskans to think about this dilemma, though it appears arrangements have been made for many Midway ticket holders to be accommodated on other airlines. With a plan in place, future ticket holders could have less concern about this problem.

NEBRASKA TIMELINE

Today's fat-conscious eaters eschew saturated fats of all kinds, be they vegetable or animal. Not so 60 years ago, when farmers, home economists, and agriculture college faculty got together to "boost the use of Nebraska lard."
"Promotion of a greater use of Nebraska lard is the objective of a group of livestock producers and University of Nebraska college of agriculture faculty representatives who met Thursday afternoon for preliminary organization of their campaign. Research and publicity committees were appointed at this meeting.
"Meeting in the interest of Nebraska farmers, those in charge of the meeting said that the lard problem is at the present time the most important one in the state and the situation is getting worse instead of better. The surplus of lard, they said, is holding down the price of hogs, and 28 percent of the revenue of Nebraska farms comes from hogs. An average of a ton of lard a year is produced on each farm in a year.
"Foreign markets are practically gone and are not likely to come back soon, it was brought out at the meeting. Several countries, which formerly took a total of 60 million pounds of lard have retaliated against the United States tariffs by setting up a tariff on lard.

"Lard is retailing at 7 to 10 cents a pound while its substitutes are selling at 20 to 25 cents a pound. Substitutes are no better for shortening than lard, experts said.
"Prof. W. J. Loeffel of the college's animal husbandry department is chairman of the research committee and W. H. Brokaw, director of the agricultural extension service, was named to head the publicity committee.
"Loeffel and his committee will establish facts about the use of lard as food and the possibilities of producing hogs yielding less lard. They will start work immediately to compare lard and substitutes and to gather recipes for the use of lard in foods. Brokaw and his publicity workers will cooperate with newspapers, teachers, and organization to increase the use of lard. This group plans to get in touch with all the home economics teachers and home economics extension workers of the state and also to distribute the facts established by the research committee."

Puttin' Up With Pete

By Kevin Peterson

The Nebraska State Volleyball Tournament concluded Saturday at Pershing Auditorium in Lincoln and with it the end of the fall sports season for all schools in Nebraska with the exception of the state football finals.

First, no matter what happened in Lincoln at the state volleyball tournament, you have to tip your hat to Paul Giesselmann and the Winside Wildcats volleyball team for a great season.

Winside did a great job of playing Charades in Lincoln and if you don't know what I'm talking about then I'll spell it out for you. The Wildcats had a great year and played some of the best teams in Northeast Nebraska and came away with victories but in Lincoln it was like they were playing Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde and unfortunately, Mr. Hyde showed up against Lewiston and was defeated soundly.

That one match, although dismal in performance, should not take away from the success these girls enjoyed for the past two seasons. If any of the players or fans still feel let down by what happened in Lincoln, just remember, there are 56 other D-1 schools in the state that would have given anything just to be in Winside's shoes to be at state.

The Wildcats close out the year at 20-4 and Giesselmann's record for the past two years is a combined 40-7—incredible! Giesselmann is a complete class act and has brought Winside volleyball to the near brink of excellence from that of mediocrity.

Oh, there are those that say a coach is only as good as his players and to some extent that is true but Giesselmann's continual drive to always keep improving no matter who his squad has just defeated marks him as a great coach.

I've been to many Winside contests the last couple of years and have admired the way he has gotten the most out of his players. A mark of a good coach is the way he prepares off the court and Giesselmann has spent many hours watching film and studying ways he can make his team better.

For instance, there are not a whole lot of teams in Nebraska that bring a player in for four rotations before taking her out to put someone else in that better fits into the Wildcats game plan for two rotations.

Wendy Rabe put on a phenomenal display of power hitting this year and she's also a good server so Giesselmann would bring Rabe in to play the front row and to serve and then when she was not in the game Christi Thurstensen came in to play back row and she did a great for the Wildcats.

Jacobsen closes out career

Jenny Jacobsen closed out her high school volleyball career in Lincoln and it was a career full of success as she virtually shattered every school hitting record kept. Jacobsen is one of those rare pure athletes that don't come around very often and she leaves Winside volleyball with many memories and is a vital reason why Winside volleyball is on the map.

Jacobsen is undoubtedly bound for college volleyball and though the season is complete the volleyball wars will continue as colleges will vie for the privilege to have Jacobsen in their school colors.

Patty Oberle played her final match in a high school uniform as well and although she didn't put up the numbers that the power hitters like Jacobsen, Rabe and Holly Holdorf did, she was an integral part of the team cohesiveness that Winside possessed. Oberle was one of those athletes that could make a big play when you needed it most such as a spike or an ace serve.

Holly Holdorf, Chris Colwell and Kari Pichler will carry the torch on to next year's team after starting all year for Giesselmann's Wildcats this season. Holdorf will be the top notch spiker for Winside after recording over 100 kills this year. She was one of the most improved players in the area this season and if she continues to develop she could be one of the premiere players in Northeast Nebraska.

Colwell is perhaps the most improved player on Winside's team this year. Again, she had a role that wasn't glorified to the extent of leading the team in statistics but may times her play was crucial to the outcome of a match. A prime example of this is the district final in Randolph against Wausa. Colwell was a vital reason why Winside made a return trip to Lincoln and her continued improvement next year will keep Winside among the best in the area.

Pichler among state's best

Now we get to the spark plug of the Wildcats in Kari Pichler. What else can you say about a sophomore setter that is at least one of the top three setters in all of D-1 and may be one of the top-10 setters in the state already—and is still getting better.

Pichler is very mature despite her sophomore age. She is court smart and has the ability to make the right decisions in a split second. Whether or not she realized it the Winside success was on her shoulders this year and she responded admirably and will undoubtedly continue to do so for the next two seasons.

Obviously a team improves with practice and Winside competed in practice against other varsity players on the team that didn't play a whole lot this year but their contributions were monumental in Winside's 20-4 record.

Christi Mundil, Catherine Bussey, Stacy Bowers and Yolande Sievers—you had a fantastic season!

Thanks to Wayne athletes

The annual fall sports award night was held recently at Wayne High for all the fall athletes and cheerleaders. The Blue Devil letterwinners received their letters and all athletes were recognized.

I'd like to take this time to thank the Wayne Booster Club for the plaque they gave me for appreciation of my sports coverage. Booster Club President Kyle Dahl presented me with the award and I'd just like to thank all those responsible.

I thoroughly enjoy my job of covering high school athletics for Wayne as well as other area high schools and to be recognized for doing a good job at something I love to do makes my job even more rewarding—Thanks again!

WSC hoop tip-off

There will be a gathering at the Wayne Vets Club at 8 p.m. Wednesday for a social hour followed by a program at 9 p.m. which introduces the WSC men's and women's basketball teams for the 1991-92 season. The gathering is open to the public. Guest speaker will be Joe VanGoor who is the sports director at WNAX in Yankton, S.D.

Wildcats lose to Lewiston at state

Winside spikers end year

The Winside Wildcats volleyball team had their season ended last Friday night in Pershing Auditorium in Lincoln as Lewiston defeated the Wildcats 15-4, 15-7 in first round action of the Nebraska State Volleyball Tournament in D-1.

Paul Giesselmann's Winside squad never got untracked against the two-time state runners-up. "We just didn't show up to play volleyball," Giesselmann said. "I don't understand it. If I knew the answers to questions like that I could write a book and make a ton of money."

Giesselmann felt after watching the remainder of the state tournament that if his squad would have played up to their potential they were as good as any team there.

"No matter what level of volleyball you play it all starts with passing the ball and we didn't have a good night of passing at all," Giesselmann said. "In fact, 13 of Lewiston's 30 points on the night came on ace serves and that was inexcusable."

Winside was 26-27 in team serving which is over 95 percent. Jenny Jacobsen was 5-5 while Kari Pichler, Wendy Rabe, Patty Oberle and Chris Colwell were each 4-4.

Pichler had just seven set assists in the match which shows that Winside's passing game—normally a strength, was not evident in the match. Rabe led the team in hitting with four kill spikes while Jacobsen and Holdorf had three kills each.

Jacobsen and Rabe each led the team in blocking with two apiece. "After watching game films it came down to mental mistakes on our part and not blocking at the net very well," Giesselmann said. "We knew what Lewiston was going to do but we just didn't stop it."

Winside closes out the volleyball season at 20-4 and a combined 40-7 over the past two state volleyball qualifying seasons. "That one bad match should not blacken what this team has accomplished this year," Giesselmann said. "They had a great season and it's these girls who have put Winside on the map for volleyball."

Although final stats for all teams have not been compiled as of yet, it seems that the Wildcats may own the new D-1 record for kill spikes in a season with 539—breaking the old mark of 512 set by Potter-Dix in 1988.

"That state record is ours unless somebody else this season did better," Giesselmann said. "That is a record our girls, fans and coaches can be very proud of."

Giesselmann also wanted to thank the fan support his team received throughout the year. "It was like everywhere we went we had the home court advantage because of our following," Giesselmann said. "The girls and coaches really appreciated that."

HOLLY HOLDORF RETURNS a Lewiston serve in first game action. Winside finished with a 20-4 record.

WINSIDE TEAMMATES CHRIS Colwell and Jenny Jacobsen combine to block a Lewiston spike attempt during state tournament action in Lincoln last Friday.

Wayne State drops season finale against Northern State

By Kevin Peterson
Sports Editor

The roller-coaster year of the Wayne State Wildcats football team came to a close Sunday night in Minneapolis, Minn., as the Wildcats dropped a 35-33 decision to Northern State of Aberdeen, S.D., in the Metrodome Classic.

Take away the big play and the Wildcats win the game. "It's that simple," WSC coach Dennis Wagner said. "Northern State scored four touchdowns on plays over 60 yards. The big play killed us on defense and offensively we were very inconsistent."

Lamont Rainey got WSC off to a good start with a 14-yard touchdown run in the first quarter but Northern State tied the game in the first period on a 60-yard scoring strike from Kip Kieso to Brent Sheehan.

The same combination hooked up for a 69-yard touchdown pass early in the second period to give Northern State a 13-7 lead before Blain Branscum booted 23-yard field goal.

Lee Harper then scored on a 70-yard scoring pass from Troy Mott to five WSC a 17-13 lead but Theron Aych then caught a 75-yard scoring pass from Kieso just 40 seconds later to give Northern State a 21-17 lead. The Wildcats did have the halftime advantage as Mott scored from one-yard out with just under two minutes remaining in the first half for a 24-21 lead.

Northern State then grabbed the lead early in the third quarter on a 38-yard touchdown pass from Kieso to Mark Costello. Later in the third quarter the Wildcats blocked a punt through the endzone to close within two at 28-26.

Northern State however scored on a three-yard run by Costello with under three minutes to go in the game to lead 35-26. The Wildcats didn't give up however, as Adam Valencia caught a 12-yard pass from Mott with 27 seconds remaining to make the score 35-33.

Wayne State tried the on-sides kick but Northern State recovered and ran out the clock. "We just battled inconsistency on offense all night," Wagner said. "Troy was real inconsistent at quarterback despite having good numbers and the offensive line played inconsistent in the second half which led to six quarterback sacks of Mott," Wagner said.

The loss left WSC with a 3-7 record. "We have to work on building a consistent program," Wagner said. "We had a 7-4 record last year but things just didn't go our way this season. We have to turn that around and that is our challenge as coaches and players for next season."

The Wildcats established many offensive records this season but Wagner said they would trade all of those records in for three or four more victories. Rainey led WSC in rushing with 80 yards on 20 carries while Mott was 25-45 and two interceptions for 356 yards.

Mott and Northern State quarterback Kieso combined for 800 aerial yards in the contest. Marlon Goolsby had eight receptions for 78 yards while Harper had six catches for 119 yards. Bill Blondin had six receptions for 93 yards and Valencia had two catches for 18 yards. Mario Gonzalez had two receptions for 38 yards and Rainey had one catch for 10 yards.

Defensively the Wildcats were led by Jeff Lutt with 12 tackles including seven solos and two quarterback sacks. Bob Sterba and Jerry Kleidosty each had nine tackles while Terry Bear had seven including an interception. John Lanier had four tackles and two quarterback sacks and Cory Reeder had four tackles and one quarterback sack.

Brad Otis also had a quarterback sack and Joel Ott intercepted a pass. Mike Thorrell finished with three tackles including one for a five-yard loss.

YOUR BRAIN — USE IT — OR LOSE IT! The headline somewhat exaggerates the situation, but the fact is that if the brain is not stimulated enough, it can lose much of its marvelous capacities that make the human species unique. Yes, there are physical problems that can interfere with efficient brain performance. But aside from those instances, one's brain power can be diminished simply by not challenging it enough.

We all know that learning becomes easier during the learning process. Somehow, even the most daunting, unfamiliar material becomes easier to absorb as we study, and the learning process itself becomes more efficient. One classic example is the late writer, publisher, and editor, Izzy Stone, who began to study classical Greek well into his 70s. He told an interviewer that he had great respect for his brain and expected that it would be "grateful" for the challenge.

A resident in a nursing facility I visited recently told me that she's delighted that management has arranged for people like her who cannot get around easily, to get transport to and from extension courses at the local university. "I feel I'm doing something I not only enjoy, but which is good for me," she said.

KEEPING SOCIAL SECURITY SAFE: Howard B. Deets, Executive Director of the American Association of Retired Persons, raises a very important question in the administration's proposal to expand the country's private pension programs. While the proposal seems to have merit by improving pension coverage in small businesses, it doesn't deal with pension portability, namely, permitting workers to preserve their pensions when they move from job to job. In the current state of the economy, Americans are moving around in the job market more than they have in years, largely because of actual or anticipated layoffs. Many may wind up with their retirement benefits earned on the last job legally unpayable because he or she is now with a new employer.

Deets also reminds us that millions of Americans are currently unable to participate in private pension programs. This makes it even more imperative that we do everything we can to preserve the Social Security system which, for so many, stands between hope and hopelessness.

SUGGESTION: What do you think of the idea of having seeing eye dogs who are too old for their duties "assigned" to senior home facilities? These wonderful animals have all been well trained to interact with human beings and would be perfect companions for the residents. I'd appreciate your comments. Wayne High sends nine to state

Each year over 2,000 of the best high school musicians in the state audition for the Nebraska All-State Band, chorus, jazz band and orchestra sponsored by the Nebraska Music Educators Association.

Selection as a member of these groups is one of the highest musical honors attainable in Nebraska high schools. Among the members to be participating in this year's all state band are Jason Pentico, first trumpet; Lori Eckhoff, flute, Shawn Powell, tuba and Lizz Claussen, trumpet (first alternate).

Participating in the orchestra will be Jennifer Schmitz on violin.

Guest conductor for the group will be Lieutenant Colonel Allan Bonner, commander of the United States Air Force Band in Washington, D.C. The all-state band will rehearse Thursday, Nov. 21 through Saturday, Nov. 23 at the University of Nebraska-Kearney. A final concert will be held on Saturday, Nov. 23 at 6 p.m. in the basketball arena of the health and sports complex.

Youth partaking in the choral group will be among 450 Nebraska all-state students. Families sought as hosts

Both urban and rural families are needed as host families for exchange students from Costa Rica for 1992, according to William Caldwell, assistant director of 4-H and youth development at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Caldwell said the youths will arrive in July, 1992, attend one semester of high school and return to Costa Rica at the end of February, 1993. Host families provide the student with room and board and the opportunity to experience the American culture as well as family and community life in Nebraska.

Host family application forms are available at local extension offices or through Caldwell at the 4-H Department, 114 Ag Hall, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Lincoln, Neb. 68583-0700. Applications are currently being accepted and both single and two parent families are encouraged to apply.

SINNERS POOR and NEEDY

The first years of the Pilgrims stay in the New World were ones of fear and starvation.

During harvest, the Colonists gathered together to give thanks to God. They prayed for a happier tomorrow.

When you weather difficult times, remember to join with friends in church. Show your gratitude to God this Thanksgiving.

"They shall not fear any longer, or be dismayed."

Event this weekend

Science workshops on tap

Science and math will be the prime interest for hundreds of Nebraska students and their teachers on Saturday, Nov. 23 at Wayne State College.

The Nebraska Junior Academy of Sciences will be sponsoring 70 scientific workshops featuring regional experts whose purpose is promoting interest in science and math and serve as positive role models for students. Students are encouraged to get ideas for future science fair and research projects and be informed on career possibilities. The workshops also include some special curriculum ideas such as AIMS, for teachers in a variety of areas. These workshops represent a growing coordination between education, business, and the community.

This year's featured speaker will be Dr. Mike Voorhies, curator of vertebrate paleontology at the Nebraska State Museum. Dr. Voorhies will present "Ashfall fossil beds: Nebraska wildlife 10 million years ago," a special program on some of the unique fossils found recently in Nebraska that ranks the state number one in fossil mammal records. The program begins at 9 a.m. in Ramsey Theater.

Incorporating mathematics into science is a key goal for this year's workshops. A variety of math related activities have been added to this year's program.

This year as usual, then will be some special guests. Many award winning and master teachers have donated their time to improve the interest in science and math to area students. This format will serve area youth with a "Mentor For A Day" and is designed to keep students in the science and math fields.

This year a variety of workshops in the area of chemistry will be offered including food science. Chemists from Sioux Bee Honey, Waldhaum's, Wayne State, Northeast Community College, University of Nebraska, and the Department of Agriculture will be available to the students for small group hands-on experiments. These workshops will provide expensive equipment that is not available in a typical classroom. Other polymer workshops sponsored by DuPont will provide students and teachers with material on modern polymers.

This year several workshops will be offered in the area of biology that would cost prohibiting without sponsors. Some of these include electrophoresis, dissection, parasitology, sharks, and microscopy. These workshops can only be offered because over $1,000 worth of materials were donated by Nebraska Scientific, Carolina Biological, Delta Biological, Hofer, Fisher, Science Kit, G.W. Brown microscopes, Lab Aides, and Sargent Welch. Other biology workshops include areas such as veterinary science, botany, embryology, microbiology, genetics, nature, and taxidermy.

A variety of different science areas will also be featured such as astronomy, IBM computers, automated technology, electronics, physics, photography, and telecommunication.

Because of the number of students who attended last year the number of offerings has increased to 70 workshops. Other workshops include fossils, robots, Macintosh computers, orienteering, genetics, weird science, bubbleology, trick physics, fitness physiology, remote toys, hot air balloons, and scientific construction.

Two special workshops for elementary and secondary teachers will be offered. AIMS (Activities Integrating Math and Science) will give curriculum ideas to teachers on ways to improve instruction through activities. Estes Rocketry will provide curriculum for both elementary and secondary teachers at no cost.

All area schools are invited to attend. For more information contact Ed Brogie at Laurel-Concord School 256-3731 or Dr. Mary Ettle at Wayne State College 375-2200.

Surprise: It wasn't a girl

When Sue first announced that we were to be grandparents, I told her the baby would probably be a girl. We had a girl first, the Bainter's had a girl first, and both families had more females. We like girls, even if the years between 12 and 20 tend to be very trying.

The heart rate was always fast, another positive sign. They didn't have a late ultra sound, so no radiologist had had a chance to see what sex it was. I had been looking at pink, lace items, and they had the name Kaitlyn picked out.

Nature needed a little push so the doctor sent them to the hospital Friday morning. I had several patients to see, so I didn't have time to worry. At noon, Kay Burrell thought we should call the Columbus Hospital. But I resisted temptation.

I finally gave in and called at 5 p.m. The nurse said we were halfway there. Looked as though it could be a long evening.

After supper, I headed for the hospital, arriving about 8 p.m. At the nursery window were Monte, Kay, and a friend of mine who was head of surgery here. "Oh shoot, she had to have a section," I thought to myself. But, no, Marlene was just working late and admiring the baby.

By Pat Meierhenry

"Come see him," Kay smiled. "Him?" I thought, "I came, expecting to see her." She and Monte both informed me that the baby had arrived, at a 5:45 p.m. and that it was a boy.

Well, that was two surprises: 45 minutes from "halfway there" to delivery, and blue ribbons instead of pink. I gazed into the nursery at our first grandchild who was, of course, slumbering angelically, oblivious to all of us.

Since Monte had always loved the name Mark, I said, "So, this must be Mark", and he smiled again and said, "No, he doesn't look like a Mark. Nicholas, maybe, but not Mark." Surprise number three.

On to the new mother's room, where Sue was picking at a late supper tray. Sometime this past summer, Monte had informed us that he weighed 10-13 at birth. I had gasped. Horrors, if we had known that, we would not have let Sue marry you. Baby Boy Bainter was 8-4, just what his mother weighed.

On Saturday, Grandpa and I returned to hold and admire. I did not get hold of great Grandma until midnight. When she finally answered the phone, I said, "It's about time you got home." She'd been square dancing.

So, he was a "normal newborn"; a miracle we all take for granted. What a relief. What pure, simple pleasure.

It seems his name is Thomas. Thomas David, for Monte's father. He even looks like Dave Bainter, only prettier. He's a keeper.

Your Medicap pharmacist

IT'S THE LAW

It is confusing. Some prescriptions can be filled as needed for 18 months. Others for 12 months. Yet some can only be filled a certain number of times, provided they fall within the 18 month or 12 month period. Still others cannot be refilled at all. If you have any questions concerning your refills, ask your Pharmacist. No prescription can ever be refilled "forever" without your Doctor giving the OK on a regular basis. The reasons: For your own good, and it's the law.

Corps of Engineers seeks support of local bodies

U. S. Army Corps of Engineers is seeking state, county and city partners to take part in jointly financed studies of the potential for privatization of water, wastewater and solid waste facilities.

The studies will be performed in 1992. They are intended to help communities which are having difficulty assembling the financial and technical resources to meet environmental compliance requirements.

These studies will examine opportunities for the private sector to invest in the development and provision of these environmental services. Also, the studies will determine which privatization opportunities are sound investments and relatively low risk for both the public and private sectors.

The cost of each 1992 study, to be financed on a 50-50 basis, is not to exceed $200,000. The non-federal contribution is to be provided through in-kind services.

Additional details are available from the crops division and district offices or from corps headquarters. Inquiries may be addressed to HQUSACE (CECW-PE), 20

Massachusetts Ave., NW Washington, D.C. 20314-1000. Contact within the Omaha District is Richard Gorton, 215 N. 17th St., CEMRO-PD-M, Omaha, NE 68102-4978; telephone (402)221-4598.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETING

Regular meeting of the Wakefield Board of Education was held Nov. 11. Kristen Miller and Scott Johnson, representing the National Honor Society, asked the board to grant permission for the chapter to attend the Elizabethan dinner at Wayne State campus on Dec. 15. The board approved the request.

The board was told by Principal Joe Coble that the secondary parent-teacher conferences were attended by 85% of the parents. He also reported on some high school curriculum projects being funded by federal Carl Perkins grants and said that some of the teachers involved would be making reports at future board meetings.

Superintendent Derwin Hartman reported on his progress with a new School District 60R map.

Board Member Jim Clark gave a progress report on the five to 10-year planning committee and said they would meet again Dec. 2. Sandy Otte reviewed specifications for a new bus. Tentative plans are to review the completed specs, following the board's input, at the December meeting and plan to advertise for bids before the January meeting.

Per pupil costs were compared by Superintendent Hartman. He stated past financial reports indicate that per pupil cost increased from 1989-90 to the 1990-91 school year by $115 per student.

A discussion was held on interruptible and uninterruptible gas service for the school from Peoples Natural Gas during the five heating months. Following discussion the board voted to remain on interruptible service due to the better rates.

Official speaks in area

Rick Noyes attended an informational meeting on the Rural Enterprise Assistance Project (REAP) on Thursday, Nov. 14 in Madison. Noyes, director of the Northeast Nebraska Economic Development District, brought economic development representatives from communities in northeast Nebraska together to hear staff from the Center for Rural Affairs explain their innovative project.

Noyes said, "this project encourages intercommunity cooperation 'bottom-up' development and sustainable development."

REAP brings revolving loan fund money and business training to the local community. This money is combined with community money in a 3:1 match. Existing or start-up businesses join together to form an association from which they borrow money ($100 to $5,000) receive training and network ideas with other members.

Carol Haschke, Community Development Coordinator, from Cedar Rapids, reported on the successful operations of the pilot project REAP has conducted in the Cedar Valley area. A video tape of members describing their affiliation with the project was shown.

"I think this project would make an excellent economic development project for our District. I have a video tape and fliers about the program and would like any interested individuals or groups to view the tape," said Noyes.

It is important that the community respond to this program as soon as possible, due to limited REAP resources. Noyes is anxious to have others view the tape and discuss the possibility of bringing this program to communities in northeast Nebraska. Call 1-800-247-8482.

Paycheck contributions to Social Security by workers and employers not only fund retirement benefits but also provide family protection in event of a worker's disability or death. Of the 38 million Americans who receive monthly Social Security benefits, 27 million are retirees and their spouses and five million are widows who are covered by a spouse's earnings record. In addition, three million workers are eligible for benefits because of long-term disabilities. Social Security also helps to support three million children of deceased or disabled workers.

Author James Michener upon turning 84 observed that he hadn't closed the book on his prolific career. "I am working very diligently," he told an interviewer. "The only change in my life is that I take a nap in the afternoon." Michener's definition of work included teaching a creative writing class at Eckerd College in St. Petersburg, Florida, and lecturing at the University of Texas.

Diabetes: Facts and Figures

November is National Diabetes Month. Diabetes affects 10 to 12 million Americans and is a major health problem resulting in a variety of complications. Here are a few interesting facts and figures about this condition:

1. Diabetes is the third-leading cause of death in the United States.
2. Diabetics under the age of 45 are eight times more likely to die of diabetes than are non-diabetics in the same age group.
3. Diabetics spend about seven times more for their medicines (oral medicines and insulin) than do non-diabetics.
4. Eighty to 90 percent of diabetics do not need insulin injections. In the most common form of diabetes (Type II), insulin is produced but cannot be utilized effectively by the body. Many, if not most, diabetics who have this diabetes type can be controlled with dietary changes alone.
