Ballot sites up in the air

Rural Wayne County could face some problems next November when the public goes to the election polls to cast their ballots.

That was the message from Wayne County Clerk Deb Finn to the Wayne County Commissioners Tuesday when the commissioners met for their first December meeting.

In an effort to get groundwork plans in place for the 1992 elections, Finn told the county board that many of the rural polling sites do not mesh with the Americans With Disabilities Act passed by Congress. Under that act, all polling sites must be 100 percent handicapped accessible.

"All our rural school districts except one fails to meet the requirements," she said. "And that one exception is questionable."

UNDER THE Congressional act, polling sites can be deemed inaccessible if: they don't have paved parking areas, don't have paved walkways, if they have inappropriate curbs, ramps or steep slopes, steps, inappropriate doorway openings, narrow corridors and a myriad of other complications.

What Finn suggested to the commissioners is to have all the county's election officials from the rural precincts attend the Dec. 17 meeting. As a result of the problem the county faces, all the rural election officials will receive letters asking them to attend the second meeting in December.

If polling sites are not made accessible, the county could face lawsuits from the federal government. One thing, Finn said, which may be proposed is to have voting precincts combined but that decision remains to be determined.

IN OTHER matters, the county board:

- Listened to a report from Wayne County Attorney Mike Pieper about the NEDEEP program. The county board reaffirmed its position not to take part in the program due to funding shortages.

- Discussed the salaries for county commissioners' filing fee for the 1992 election. For example, if a first-term commissioner makes $10,000, then the filing fee will be $100. The only commissioner up for re-election in 1992 is Bob Nissen, who currently represents District 2.

- Approved a resolution to take part in the Nebraska Association of County Officials legal counsel regarding lawsuits over improper retirement contributions. By participating in the "united defense" to the lawsuit, Wayne County will join 60 other counties and the result is expected to be a savings of tax dollars.

JOHN BEAN, A PEARL HARBOR survivor, holds the medals he was awarded during his military career.

Wayne man recalls horror of attack on Pearl Harbor

WAYNE RESIDENTS RECALL NEWS OF JAPANESE ATTACK ON PEARL HARBOR. Page 2A

If you ask John Bean where he was at 7:53 a.m. on Sunday, Dec. 7, 1941, he'll tell you he was working aboard the U.S.S. Pruitt, one of the ships ported at Pearl Harbor during the infamous attack by the Japanese.

Bean didn't have to hear of the attack on the radio, he lived through it and his memory of the experience is as clear as if it was yesterday.

"The thing I remember was being topside" of the Pruitt, he says. "We got up that morning around 6 a.m. to clean the ship and the first planes I saw had red circles. We all thought they were off the (aircraft carrier) U.S.S. Enterprise and they were running an exercise. After they started dropping bombs and hitting Ford Island, we realized it was something else."

FORD ISLAND, located in the middle of Pearl Harbor, was the island which had battleship row to its south. It was those battleships which took the hardest hits. Among the ships located along the row were: the California, the Maryland, the Oklahoma, the Tennessee, the West Virginia, the Arizona and the Nevada.

Like other ships at Pearl Harbor on that fateful day, the U.S.S. Pruitt was not prepared for action.

"We were in port undergoing a major overhaul," Bean says. "All of our guns were taken off and set on the pier and all our turbines were out, so we couldn't move. At the time we had one .45 caliber pistol and one clip of ammunition."

THE POSITIONING of the U.S.S. Pruitt allowed Bean to see much of the action. From the stern of the ship, Bean could see the torpedoes dropped from attacking aircraft slice into the water, heading for battleship row. From the Pruitt's location, Bean says he could see the explosions coming from the Tennessee, the West Virginia, the Arizona and the Nevada as clear as day.

"When the Arizona explosion happened there was a lot of debris and smoke. It was loud but you couldn't separate the noise," he recalls.

Fortunately for the U.S.S. Pruitt, a destroyer and mine-laying vessel, no bombs hit it. Bean says the ship had bombs hit on either side

WINTER ICE STORMS MADE FOR SOME pretty sights around the Wayne area Saturday morning but the storms left some without power.

Ice storm causes outages

Residents in The Wayne Herald coverage area at times found themselves without power late Friday and early Saturday as ice and freezing rain caused some electrical outages.

One of the most severely hit areas was around Hoskins and areas southeast of Wayne. According to Wayne County Public Power District Manager Sam Schroeder, some homes were without power from late Friday afternoon to Saturday morning.

The primary cause of the outages was due to ice buildup on lines and on trees. He said once tree limbs, in particular, started to ice over, the weight would pull branches down onto lines, causing loss of electricity.

"Most people around here should feel fortunate compared to people in Burt and Cuming Counties," he said. "There were plenty of problems in the Pender area."

SCHROEDER SAID once crews from the WCPPD completed the task of restoring power, some were sent south to help out counties which needed assistance.

He said crews worked until 11 p.m. Friday when windy conditions made work difficult to continue. He said that's why crews didn't resume working until early the next morning.

In Wayne, much of the southeast quadrant of the city was without power for approximately 1 1/2 hours combined on two separate occasions due to electrical outages. Wayne Assistant Superintendent of Distribution Garry Poutre said work crews kept busy Friday night and a few staff members were on duty through Friday night to Saturday morning.

AREAS CENTRALLY located between Wakefield and Wayne to the north were without power for approximately 12 hours due to fallen trees.

According to Jim Monk of the Nebraska Public Power office in Norfolk, NPPD crews assisted Wakefield crews in restoring power from shortages caused by the ice storm. He said Wayne and Dixon Counties, however, were no where near as bad off as parts of Dakota County and areas around Oakland, Tekamah and Winnebago.

In Wakefield, nine mobile homes and four houses were without power for most of Friday night and much of Saturday, according to Wakefield City Administrator Lowell Johnson.

Apparently, a large tree fell over due to heavy ice conditions, knocking over two electrical poles. Power in the area was shut off between 10:30 p.m. Friday and 1:30 a.m. Saturday and it did not resume until Saturday afternoon.

"Crews were out until 2 a.m. Saturday but the cold became too severe to replace the poles that time of day," Johnson said.

Residents in the nine mobile homes and four houses were invited to stay at St. John's Lutheran Church Friday night.

Council OKs Sunday sales

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Wayne liquor retailers had reason to celebrate a week ago Tuesday when the city council voted 5-3 to change the community's laws to allow for liquor sales on Sundays.

One liquor retailer, speaking in favor of the ordinance, was Cec Vandersnick, manager of The Windmill. He said passing the ordinance would only be fair.

"Pamida has its doors open seven days a week," she said. "What keeps a person from going in there and buying a package of shotgun shells on Sundays? They're just as deadly, if not more, so the way I see it, changing the ordinance would keep the business in Wayne."

"We have the right to sell our product seven days a week, just like anybody else."

Voting against the ordinance were council members Ralph Barclay, Darrel Heier and Pat Prather.

With the new law, liquor retailers will be able to sell beer and wine from 6 a.m. to 1 a.m. The new ordinance will also allow on-sale and off-sale liquor sales from noon to 1 a.m.

BUT DESPITE passing the ordinance to permit Sunday liquor sales, the council also dealt with finding a resolution to the Geno's Steakhouse issue.

Geno's owner Gene Claussen is seeking to have an ordinance changed to allow for ground floor apartments in the B-2 business district. In his first attempt with the city planning commission, the effort fell short 4-3.

"We're not just talking about Geno's but other businesses that are located in the B-2 zone and if we allow this, it will be virtually impossible to repeal," said Councilman Darrel Fuelberth.

Offering a note of support to Fuelberth was Council member Sheryl Lindau.

However, Councilwoman Jane O'Leary said she would like to see other alternatives looked into for the site.

"My feeling is for us to do something positive here for that specific site," she said. "I'd like to see if it's possible to do something that will affect that specific site and not the entire B-2 zone."

In an effort to defeat the ordinance, Fuelberth set a motion to deny the amendment and it was seconded by Lindau. The motion was never voted upon, though, because Barclay made a motion to table the item to an upcoming meeting and his motion passed 6-2 with Fuelberth and Lindau casting the opposing votes.

IN OTHER matters, the council:

- Approved a $50,354 computer upgrade following a presentation by Nancy Braden and Dennis Linstler. The upgrade includes system and software and maintenance and support services.

- Learned of the resignations of Cletus Sharer and Bob Merchant from the civil service commission.

- Approved a special design-

Japan attacks Pearl Harbor

Dec. 7, 1941 — Residents recall fateful day

By LaVon Anderson
Assistant Editor

While Japanese war planes soared seemingly unnoticed in the silent, pre-dawn hours of Dec. 7, 1941—destination Pearl Harbor—American citizens were slowly awakening across the United States.

In the midwest, the crisp clear Sunday morning found many residents preparing for worship while others were busy going about their day-to-day routines.

Midwesterners, like other citizens across the United States, were in the process of piecing their lives together as the country slowly began to emerge from the Great Depression.

Suddenly, as a result of that fateful day in 1941, Americans found themselves in the midst of World War II.

Several residents of Sunnyview Apartments in Wayne recently shared their memories upon hearing the news that the Japanese had bombed Pearl Harbor. While some say their lives were not drastically affected by the news, others say their lives would never be the same.

Dec. 7, 1941 — the day that lives in infamy.

Jean Andersen

"I was Jean Boughn at that time and I was at home in Randolph. The feeling when we heard the news of Pearl Harbor was of shock and disbelief.

"The thought that was uppermost in my mind, I'm sure, was that this meant war and my fiancé and two brothers would have to join all others in fighting for our country."

Jean's fiancé and her brothers were called into service. Her fiancé, who became her husband during the war, served in the European theater and her brothers on ships in the Pacific.

All three men returned safely.

Irene Larsen

"I can remember that day just as plain as it happened yesterday. For some reason we didn't go to church. I went to the henhouse to put oysters, shell out. It was a nice day and I carried outside.

"When I came into the house, my two daughters were in a tither and told me what they had just heard on the radio — that the Japanese had bombed Pearl Harbor. We just sat down and listened to the radio."

Irene, who was 35 years of age in 1941, resided on a farm five miles northwest of Carroll with her husband Myron, two daughters and one son.

"A few days later we received one of those little square cards from Uncle Sam telling us that Myron had been classified 1A. Now it really hit home and we began to think a little deeper.

"We knew we would have to have a farm sale and we fretted about that. It also dawned on me that I would have to find a job. All I knew how to do was teach school.

I had taught four years before Myron and I were married.

Irene recalls listening to the radio day after day to keep abreast of the news from Pearl Harbor. "We all felt like we wanted to dig a hole and crawl in."

Later, for reasons still unknown to Irene, Myron was reclassified and was never called into service.

Although Irene just recently threw away two of the ration books the family received during World War II, she still recalls those years as if they were yesterday.

"We never went without, but we did limit ourselves. Everyone in the family received a ration book, even the kids, and we just threw everything into one pot."

Since 1941, Irene has seen a son, a grandson and a great grandson go off to service. "Don't you think that's about enough?"

Ila McKenzie

"I was residing in Hamill, S.D. at the time and was 27 years old and married. My husband and I worked for a farm family near Hamill and I was in the house when I first heard of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

"At that time, if there was important news in the neighborhood, we received six short rings on the telephone. That's how we got the news of the attack. My husband was out milking and I remember grabbing the baby and running out to tell him."

Ila saw three brothers and three brothers-in-law enter the service during World War II. All returned home safely.

Frances Bak

"I was living in Carroll and heard the news of Pearl Harbor on the radio. I screamed and cried and my first reaction was 'what will become of our people over there and how will we be involved?'"

"It was horrible at Pearl Harbor. Why did Japan do this horrible thing?"

Ruby Jensen

Ruby Jensen was 19 years of age and residing with her parents in Wayne on Dec. 7, 1941. "I remember it was a pretty day and I heard the news of the attack on the radio."

Several of Ruby's cousins and a brother-in-law were called into service and all returned home.

Hoskins' oldest resident marking 100th year

Frank Marten, Hoskins' oldest resident, will observe his 100th birthday on Wednesday, Dec. 11. Friends and relatives are invited to visit him at his home during the day or remember him with cards. Cards and letters will reach him if addressed to Frank Marten, Box 35, Hoskins, Neb., 68740.

Betty Ulrich

"I was living in Chokio, Minn. during the bombing of Pearl Harbor and I really don't remember very much, except that I was married and carrying our first child.

"My husband and I lived with his mother and I was scrubbing walls when I heard the news of the attack on the radio."

Betty had three brothers in the service and all three returned home. "The war didn't change my life much, except when my brothers came back home and I was finally able to see them."

Maurice Lindsay

Maurice Lindsay, 88, who resides at Sunnyview Apartments with his wife Bernice, was doing chores on his farm southwest of Winside when he received the news that Japan had attacked the U.S. naval base at Pearl Harbor.

"I thought I would be called into service, but I wasn't. They wanted the farms to keep going. They might take one man if there were two on the farm, but generally they wanted the farmers where they were."

Maurice remembers the rationing of food and other items during that time. "We just didn't buy anything we didn't have to."

Roberta 'Mom' Welte

"I and a friend had attended a church on Hollywood Blvd. in California when we could hear radios blaring and saying the Japanese had just bombed Pearl Harbor and that California could be next.

"All civilians were urged to go back to their homes and all servicemen back to their bases. We had planned a picnic with some friends from our hometown of Oto, Iowa, but instead we went back to Pacific Palisades where my friend and I were child nurses.

"We could see the lights scanning the beach all night. The next day I gave up my job as a child nurse and took a test to become an airplane mechanic."

Roberta attended post school in Santa Ana, Calif. and was sent to the Sacramento Air Base where she served as an airplane mechanic for five years, specializing in turbo-superchargers for the P 38 war planes.

She also served as head hostess for the United Service Organization (USO).

Anemia and Nutrition

Proper nutrition is essential in the prevention of anemia - a general term which refers to a shortage of red blood cells or a reduction in the hemoglobin (pigment in blood that carries oxygen). At least three types of anemia are closely related to the foods we eat.

Iron deficiency anemia results when there is not enough of the mineral iron present in the body to make hemoglobin in sufficient quantities. A diet lacking in dark green vegetables and organ meats is one important cause for this type of anemia. Folic acid anemia is caused by an insufficient amount of folic acid in the diet resulting from poor nutrition or excessive alcohol intake. Folic acid is needed for hemoglobin production. Pernicious anemia is caused by the body's inability to absorb vitamin B-12, a vitamin also needed for hemoglobin production.

Be heard!

ATTENTION WAYNE CITIZENS: The time is now to have your voice heard.

That will be the case Thursday night when the city's planning steering committee will hold quadrant meetings at four locations in Wayne. The meetings will be held at Carhart Lumber Company, the Wayne Care Centre, Providence Medical Centre and the Wayne Elementary School from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m.

These meetings will allow for citizen input to the updating of the city's zoning ordinances and comprehensive plan. The meetings will also allow all of us the chance to learn a little bit more about the community in which we live, while making suggestions on ways we can improve our community.

In recent months, we have heard of concerns and complaints about the city's current zoning laws. If we want to make changes to those laws to encourage future development in Wayne, it is vital that everyone make an effort to get to these meetings. Ignorance in these matters is not bliss.

While some Wayne residents did much to improve our already strong community when the START process was held in 1990, these meetings will allow for total citizen input to make Wayne an even better place to live.

Without citizen input, efforts to update the ordinances and comprehensive plan will be futile and decisions will be made whether or not they are ones we all support.

Let's attend these meetings and express what our visions of the city are for now and for the future.

Solution not an easy one to make

After many months of deliberations and with a great deal of input from Nebraskans, the Revenue Restructuring and Revitalization Committee has recommended a solution to our property tax crisis. Like the problem itself, which did not happen overnight, the solution has not come easily.

We believe this plan has the least negative impact on the farm sector and individual property tax payers. We've looked for something that is fair, but there is no way to solve the problem that does not involve somebody paying taxes. The key is to keep the burden on individual tax payers from becoming any heavier.

The Supreme Court has told us we can't tax businesses while exempting other personal property in areas like agriculture. This Administration and the Legislature don't want to tax agriculture to any extent greater than it's currently taxed, but the Supreme Court has left us little room to maneuver.

The problem we're faced with is that if businesses are let off the hook on personal property, as agriculture has been over the years because of various exemptions, someone has to make up the difference. We cannot let the actions of the Supreme Court, and our inability to deal with the need to resolve this issue fairly, place a greater property tax burden on real property owners like middle income Nebraskans and homeowners.

The plan of the 3-R Committee would return previously exempted farm machinery and breeding livestock to the tax rolls. Personal property would be taxed according to depreciated value claimed on federal income tax, as opposed to actual value.

Statewide, the plan would reduce residential property taxes by about $30 million, increase business property taxes by $32 million and agricultural taxes by $5 million.

Additionally, Nebraskans will be given the opportunity to vote on

One Nebraska Journal by Gov. Ben Nelson

Local governments would be subject to a budget lid of some type.

Inventory held for resale purposes would not be taxed. Elements of the 3-R Committee's plan stink, to be sure. However, of all the options weighed, it stinks the least.

Throughout the process of designing a plan, there were many disagreements and nobody really liked any of the plans. However, the alternative is to put everything back on the tax rolls; with no guarantee of property tax relief from the broadened tax base that would result.

The task before us has been, and will continue to be, to provide quality government at all levels and finance it with a revenue system that is fair and equitable and stable.

There is no Hollywood ending to this story. We have a constitutional gun to our heads and the time for action has arrived.

Letters

Good group

We would like to express our gratitude for the prompt and efficient response by the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department to a building fire in the early morning hours last Saturday.

We appreciate the understanding and support of the families and employers of these dedicated volunteers. We appreciate the many hours of training, equipment maintenance and actual fire-fighting these volunteers perform, not to overlook all the cleanup after each episode. We also appreciate that each fire fight can be hazardous to the firefighters as well.

We feel our community is well served by our volunteer fire department and they deserve congratulations on a job well done.

An opportunity

Why can't my ad ever be put on the front page? ...Well now it can!

Starting with the next issue of The Wayne Herald, you will be able to use the newspaper's premium space for your promotional message. Anybody may purchase this space ... businesses, organizations, groups or individuals.

As you can see by today's issue, the front page ads will be available in two very prominent locations at the TOP left and right of the page. Actual size of each corner space is about 4 1/4 inches wide and 1 1/2 inches deep.

In between the ads will be an index of special features found elsewhere in each issue of the newspaper.

Some guidelines for using this space:

1. Space will be limited to the dimension shown. Space may be used as "teaser" space. For example, you may decide to briefly announce a promotion on the front page and elaborate about it more on an inside page.

2. Ad space will be reserved on a first-come basis. It may or may not be available when you want to use it.

3. Both ad spaces may be purchased in the same issue by the same entity but the two spaces may not be combined and must stay in the two locations shown. Based on demand these ad spaces will be available in both weekly issues of The Wayne Herald dated Monday and Thursday.

4. Cluttered designs or wordiness should be avoided in these front page ads.

This relatively new advertising idea has proven very popular in newspapers in other parts of the country and we're anxious to see how it goes over here. Don't hesitate to contact The Wayne Herald for information on rates or answers to any other questions you might have about this program.

While this concept of front page advertising may break some traditional "rules" of journalism, we believe it can be done in a tasteful manner for the newspaper's decorum and still be tremendously eye-catching (effective) for the advertiser.

If the ads become popular, we'll keep the feature going. ...If interest wanes, we'll return to our regular front page format.

Support for bill; opposing finance reform

Transportation Conference

I voted in favor of final passage of the highway-mass transit conference report when it came before the House of Representatives in the final hours of the first session of the 102nd Congress, but I did so reluctantly. The bill does authorize $7.2 billion for completing the 44,000 mile Interstate Highway System, $16 billion for the nation's bridges, and could create as many as two million jobs in six years. Without the passage of the bill now, Nebraska's road-building program would come to a complete standstill.

This conference agreement contains earmarked funds for the Newcastle-Vermillion Bridge, the Heartland Expressway, and the West Dodge Road Extension, and that is only due to the efforts of Nebraska's House delegation. There's not much else for Nebraska. There were simply too few votes in the House among small states to defeat the conference report and tell the conferees to go back to the negotiating table.

The six-year, $151 billion highway and transit bill that emerged from a House-Senate conference committee on Tuesday evening is, by most indicators, worse for Nebraska than the bill that was passed by the House of Representatives on Oct. 23. When I voted in favor of the House version of the bill in October, I said that I preferred the Senate version and hoped for major changes and improvements during the conference.

This conference agreement gives Nebraska a smaller share of total highway funds than either the House bill or the Senate bill. Under the bill passed by the House in October, Nebraska would have received $920.4 million in highway funds over six years. Under the Senate bill, we would have received $999.7 million over five years. The conference agreement gives Nebraska $912.5 million over the six-year life of the bill. Low population states like Nebraska typically must be protected by their Senate conferees since the populous states have so many members of the House. The Senate let us down. Clearly, other states were protected by their conferees.

There were one billion dollars in Senate add-on's in the conference, and apparently none of them came to Nebraska. Funds for demonstration projects have been reduced, our share from the Highway Trust Fund has been reduced, and we receive a very small share of the $31.5 billion that goes to mass transit.

Keeping in Touch
By Cong. Doug Bereuter

While Nebraska will be receiving $20 million for demonstration projects such as the Newcastle-Vermillion Bridge and the Heartland Expressway, the state will predictably fare very badly in the distribution of mass transit funds. And, most of those funds go to the large urban centers of the country. The conference agreement also extends an existing 2.5 cent gasoline tax for four years.

Finance Reform

I voted against final passage of H.R. 3750, the House Campaign Finance Reform Bill, on Monday, because it contains a public financing provision that could cost the American taxpayers over $270 million in one election cycle. I am very disappointed that the House Majority leadership used its supermajority to stifle the opportunity to have an open amendatory process on the House floor. This Majority leadership campaign finance reform package came to us with only one amendment, the Michel substitute, made in order. The House could have constructed a first-rate campaign finance reform bill on the floor in an open process if additional amendments had been allowed. What a shame that partisan concern instead gave us a gag rule!

I voted for the Michel substitute, which he described as a far more responsive measure. The Michel substitute required all candidates to raise at least 50 percent of their funds from people in the district in which they are running. It also made an effort to equalize the influence between individuals and PACs by limiting a maximum PAC contribution to $1,000, a reduction from the current $5,000. Also, the substitute would have ended the use of soft money in Federal campaigns by requiring that only funds raised under Federal rules be used to influence Federal elections.

I have a number of concerns regarding H.R. 3750, and I think that many Nebraskans will have the same concerns when they carefully examine its provisions. Public opinion polls show that more than 70 percent of Americans oppose public financing of congressional campaigns. Under the measure passed by the House, if all candidates qualify for the full $200,000 matching payment, the costs in an election cycle will be $174 million. The postage rate discount subsidy is $111,900 per candidate, and there are 870 candidates. That would bring the cost of the postage subsidy to $97 million.

Thus, total costs to the taxpayers for the public financing provision alone could be over $270 million. While all of this money comes from the Treasury, the mechanism for funding is intentionally unclear because the Democratic majority knows that most Americans strongly oppose public financing for election campaigns.

In addition, there is absolutely no requirement in H.R. 3750 that any campaign funds come from constituents. And, the bill fails to limit the amount that may be contributed by individual Political Action Committees (PACs). Instead, it only imposes a $200,000 limit on the total that may be received from PACs, and the average amount received from PACs in 1990 was $209,581. With $200,000 of matching payment money, $111,900 of postage subsidy money, and $200,000 of PAC money, a candidate could run a $500,000 campaign using just PAC and taxpayers' money.

While proponents of H.R. 3750 claim that it bans leadership PACs, soft money and bundling, these provisions fall short of accomplishing necessary reforms in these areas. The measure allows candidates to control party committees which could solicit and contribute funds just like the current leadership PACs. H.R. 3750 also does not close the current Federal Election Commission Act soft money loopholes. Even Common Cause has stated that the bill fails to effectively deal with soft money abuses. Furthermore, the provisions which proponents claim will restrict bundling are practically meaningless and easily circumvented, since "representative of a candidate" and "professional fundraisers" are excluded from the definition of "conduit or intermediary."

It is possible that sufficient changes will be made by the House-Senate conference committee that I will be able to vote for the conference report.

Town supports war effort but delivers goods to wrong unit

Fifty years ago this December, a big mix-up occurred. Ten days after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, North Platte residents learned that their own boys of Company D, Nebraska National Guard, would be passing through. The townspeople gathered cookies, cakes, gum, cigarettes, magazines, and more and waited for the train bearing their troops to arrive.

Finally, Company D rolled into the Union Pacific station — but it was Company D from Kansas! After a moment of stunned silence, somebody said, "Well, what are we waiting for?", and the goodies and warm wishes were distributed to the Kansas boys.

Rae Wilson, whose brother was the commander of Nebraska's Company D, urged her fellow citizens to meet every troop train that came through North Platte. On Christmas Day, 1941, the North Platte Canteen officially opened for business. By the time its doors closed five years later, the canteen would serve more than 6 million servicemen.

The effort required to staff the canteen and feed the troops was staggering. Between three and five thousand service personnel came through the canteen each day. It took 185 pounds of cooked meat, 185 loaves of bread, 28 birthday cakes, 26 pounds of butter, 36 quarts of pickles, 73 dozen cup cakes, 260 dozen cookies, 123 dozen hard-cooked eggs, 1,150 doughnuts, 6 bushels of apples, 600 sacks of popcorn, 4 gallons of baked beans, 23 quarts of cream and 825 bottles of milk to serve one day's visitors.

Towns in Nebraska and eastern Colorado were placed on the honor roll for contributing volunteers, food, and money to the cause. One third of the town of Wellfleet, population 178, came along one day to serve. In addition to all that food, these patriots brought along $267 in cash!

There wasn't time for more than a hasty "thank you" when the "ALL ABOARD" sounded. Workers offered a cheery, "Come back soon! God bless!" as troops boarded the trains that would take them to an uncertain destiny.

In times of rationed foodstuffs and rationed gas, service at the canteen required real sacrifice. Families gave up the food from their own tables to fill the stomach and lift the spirits of soldiers passing through.

The stacks of mail received daily from former canteen visitors were more than enough compensation for Nebraskans who were simply doing their part. Fifty years later, veterans look back fondly on the few warm moments they spent at the canteen in North Platte, called by one serviceman "the world capitol of generosity."

Medicare has expanded its coverage to include outpatient diagnosis and treatment of mental conditions by clinical psychologists and clinical social workers, but with several conditions. The psychologists and social workers must meet Federal licensing requirements and must agree to accept payment at Medicare-approved levels. Medicare pays the standard 80 percent of approved charges for diagnostic services of clinical psychologists and clinical social workers, but only 50 percent of the approved charges for treatment. The remainder of unreimbursed charges are the patient's responsibility.

Dennis Wilbur earns Coach of the Year Award

All-Area gridiron team honors top 23

By Kevin Peterson
Sports Editor

The Wayne Herald All-Area Football Team was released today, honoring the area's top players as viewed by the Wayne Herald sports staff. Those earning the award will receive a certificate. The area coaches had nothing to do with the selections.

Wakefield led the way this year with nine representatives following an 8-2 season and state play-off appearance. Wayne followed with seven and Winside landed four on the annual squad. Allen rounded out the all-area selections with three.

The following lists each of the players with a brief synopsis of the player as viewed by the Wayne Herald sports staff.

Anthony Brown—This Wakefield running back closed out his career for the Trojans on the gridiron by gaining over 1000 yards rushing for the second straight year. Brown dazzled defenses with his running ability and what made him more of a threat was when he returned punts and kickoffs. He also was a leader on a very stingy defense.

Thad Nixon—Wakefield had the premiere complimenting backfield in the area this year and one of the most potent in all of Northeast Nebraska with Brown and Thad Nixon. Nixon rushed for over 700 yards on the season and was equally a threat on special teams as he averaged over 25 yards a kickoff return and over 13 yards per punt return.

Marcus Tappe—Tappe had a very good season in his senior campaign as the Trojan signal caller. Tappe completed nearly 50 percent of his passes for over 650 yards and five touchdowns. More importantly however, was Tappe's ability to lead his team down the field when they needed it the most.

Scott Johnson—Johnson had a great year for the Trojans manning the lines on both sides of the ball. Johnson was one of the spiritual leaders on the Wakefield squad keeping his teammates fired up.

Ben Dutton—When you speak of good defensive players one of the first people that comes to mind is Ben Dutton. Dutton had a phenomenal year leading the Trojans' defense which gave up just over 12 points per game. Dutton finished the year with 127 tackles which led the Wakefield team. Brown was second with 100. Dutton had eight tackles for losses and one interception.

Matt Stanton—Stanton was the area's top kickoff and field goal kicker and was a very consistent performer for Dennis Wilbur's troops on both sides of the line. The senior finished with nearly 40 tackles on the year from the defensive line. Seven of those tackles were for losses and he had one fumble recovery and one interception as well.

Bill Rusk—Rusk was one of the many factors which led to Wakefield's success this year. Following the loss of several key players due to graduation last year, Rusk stepped up and filled in admirably as a leader. Defensively he had 32 tackles but 13 of those were for over 60 yards of losses. Rusk also had two fumble recoveries.

Aron Utecht—Utecht was one of those players who could come up with the big defensive play when you needed one. The senior finished with nearly 50 tackles on the year including eight for 47 yards of losses. Utecht also recovered three fumbles as he was always around the ball. He also had one interception.

Jon Johnson—Johnson was a very consistent player for the Trojans on both sides of the ball. You could say that Johnson was very good at catching this year because on offense he averaged over 27 yards every time he caught a pass and led the Trojan receivers in total yards with 218. On defense he was good at catching the opposition as he totalled 30 tackles on the year with seven for losses.

Regg Carnes—Carnes led the Wayne offense from his quarterback position this year. He was under tremendous pressure from opposing defenses all season long but did an admirable job. Defensively the junior did a very fine job of leading the defensive backs.

Jason Fink—As senior linebacker, Fink enjoyed a very productive year in leading Wayne in tackles for the second straight season. Fink is one of those players who was always around the ball and it didn't matter if he was double teamed or not, he still managed to get in on the play.

Matt Metz—Metz was asked to step in for Lonnie Ehrhard's line after the team was decimated on both sides of the line due to graduation last season. Metz, however, did a very good job for the Blue Devils and as the season progressed, he turned into one of Wayne's most consistent performers.

Mike Zach—Speaking of consistent performers, Zach had a very good year on both sides of the line for the Blue Devils despite a less than great record. On offense, the Blue Devils often ran on his side because he did a good job of opening up holes and on defense, he was very consistent performer all season.

Jim Murphy—Murphy had a fine season for the Blue Devils both as a running back and as a defensive back. Murphy was one of those players the opposition hated to see break into the open because once he did there would be no catching him with his great speed. He was also one of Wayne's spiritual leaders as he remained fired up from the time the game started until the final gun sounded.

Kyle Bensen—Bensen stepped into a Wayne football uniform for the first time ever this season after transferring from Wyoming in the middle of last year. The senior running back and defensive back found himself the focus of many opposition as they keyed on him and tackled him on offense whether he had the ball or not. Defensively, however, Bensen had a very fine year and as many of the opposition found, he could really put a pop on you.

Bobby Barnes—Barnes is another player who found himself being focused on. The junior receiver often drew the opposition's best defensive back because of the threat he possessed of making a great catch and then running after the catch. Barnes, however, made the most of his situation and had a good season on both sides of the ball.

Kevin Crosgrove—Crosgrove closed out his career in an Allen football uniform and with him closed several record books as Crosgrove shattered every defensive record kept by the Eagles. The four-year starter has sought division 1 attention for his accolades on the field and he earned first-team all-state defense by the Omaha World Herald for Class D-1. He was also named the captain of that defensive team.

Bren Mattes—There were many times this season where the Allen defense would have Crosgrove and Mattes as the top two tacklers and then the list would drop off drastically. Mattes had a very fine year from his defensive end position and proved to be a very consistent performer on both sides of the ball for Mike Bussellman.

Curtis Oswald—Oswald possesses an immense amount of athletic ability which was witnessed by qualifying for the state track meet in the hurdles as a freshman last season. The sophomore signal-caller proved to be a double threat for opposition with his ability to run the ball as well as pass.

Jason Krueger—Krueger was one of those unusual running backs that played in all of Class D-1 this year as he weighed more than many teams' defensive linemen. Krueger displayed powerful leg drive and could gain yardage after being hit. He also played defense for Randy Geier's Wildcats and put on a few hits of his own.

Cory Jensen—Three years ago Cory Jensen was asked to fill the vacant spot left by Tim Jacobsen after graduation. Since that time Jensen has been one of the area's most consistent performers. His ability to run the ball effectively as well as throw the ball on a rope made him the primary focus for many defenses.

John Hancock—Hancock enjoyed a phenomenal year from his receiver position on offense. He was Jensen's top receiver and often drew the assignment of being guarded by the top defensive back from other teams but Hancock somehow would come down with the big catches, many of them circus catches.

Jason Magwire—Magwire has to be considered the most improved player in the area. The senior did not even play football last season but came back to lead the Wildcats on defense this year. Magwire possessed good speed and was able to string out many option plays by the opposition before making the tackle.

There you have it, the 1991 Wayne Herald All-Area Football Team. The Area Coach of the Year Award goes to Dennis Wilbur of Wakefield who led his team to the state playoffs despite losing nearly all of his linemen on offense and defense after last season's graduation.

The Player of the Year Award was very difficult to pick this season and after careful consideration for all the fine players in the area it was decided to split the award three ways between Anthony Brown of Wakefield, Jason Fink of Wayne and Kevin Crosgrove of Allen.

As always there are players who deserve recognition but did not earn all-area honors. Those earning honorable mention status include Cam Shelton, Marcus Stueckrath, Brady Frahm and Trevor Topp from Winside; Larry Johnson, T.J. Preston, Brandon Benson, Joe Kucera, Dalton Rhodes and Pat Jepson of Wakefield; Steve Sullivan of Allen and John Murphy, Jack Swinney and Chad Paysen of Wayne.

Wayne State men earn first win of cage season at Southwest St.

The Wayne State men's basketball team notched their first victory of the season in Marshall, Minn. last week with a 74-71 win over Southwest State. The 1-2 Wildcats led by a single point at the intermission at 34-33.

The Wildcats trailed 6-0 early but Carlos Moore hit a jumper from the inside and Steve Dunbar hit a couple of free throws to draw the Wildcats to within two before Doug Kuzak scored following a steal to tie the game.

The two teams traded leads back and forth until the Wildcats built a seven-point advantage at 34-27 on a seven point run which broke a 27-27 tie. The host team however, scored the final six points of the half to close within one at the break.

In the first six minutes of the second half Southwest State built a five point lead on WSC at 48-43 but a basket by Moore and a three-point play the old fashioned way by Keith Whitfield tied the game up at 48.

WSC then went on a 23-14 scoring run to lead by nine at 71-62 with 2:29 remaining in regulation. Southwest State staged a late rally but WSC hung on to earn victory number one.

"This was a very good win for our program on the road like this," WSC coach Mike Brewen said. "Last year we didn't win our first road game until late January." Brewen said his squad was disappointed in losing to Missouri Western in the Tip-Off Classic in Mankato, Minn., recently but got the job done against Southwest State.

"We trailed 62-61 to Southwest State and then we went on a 10-0 run," Brewen said. "We had chances to blow that game open but we blew some opportunities which allowed Southwest State to draw a little closer."

Brewen also said, however, that the nine point lead with five minutes to go in regulation was the first time this year his squad had led at this point in the game and there is a different strategy involved when you are leading instead of trailing.

"Coming into our first three games our biggest concern was how we would do on the inside but we've actually dominated inside," Brewen said. "David Allen can hold his own with anybody but we weren't sure how some of our other kids would do inside but so far they are doing well."

Dunbar led the Wildcats in the scoring column with 16 points while Moore poured in 14. Kuzak finished in double figures with 12 and Billy Patterson netted 10. Whitfield finished with eight points and David Allen scored six. Kevin Thurman finished with five points and Omar Clark rounded out the scoring with three.

WSC hauled down 36 rebounds for the game led by Allen with 11 caroms. The Wildcats committed 13 turnovers while forcing Southwest State into 21. WSC was 24-35 from the foul line while the host team was 7-9. Allen led WSC in assists with four and Moore led the team in steals with four.

High school winter sports season set

WAYNE—This week marks the initial contests for boys and girls high school basketball as well as wrestling in the state of Nebraska. Wayne Herald area teams Allen, Wakefield, Winside and Wayne will be in action.

Allen starts off the season Thursday night with a girls and boys game at home against Winside. Friday night the Allen boys travel to play Coleridge. Wakefield's season begins Thursday with a home game for the girls and the boys against Pender. Friday the boys host Bancroft-Rosalie.

Winside as already mentioned travels to play Allen in both girls and boys action on Thursday and both teams travel to play Wynot on Friday. The Wayne boys will host Battle Creek on Friday for the season opener while the girls open Saturday in Pierce.

The Wayne wrestling team begins the season on Thursday at Schuyler in dual action before traveling to compete in the Blair Invitational on Saturday.

Wayne Junior High wrestlers compete

WAYNE—Don Koenig's junior high wrestling team competed in double dual action at Stanton recently against Stanton and Winside. No team scores were kept.

Travis Koester wrestled three times on the day and won twice while Tyler Endicott went 1-1. Jeremy Meyer won twice in as many showings while Andy Rise went 1-1. Chad Billheimer wrestled once and won. Endicott and Meyer recorded pins for the Blue Devils.

Wayne will host Schuyler and Winside in double dual action on Tuesday beginning at 5:45.

Wildcats lose home opener to Morningside after leading by 13

The Wayne State men's basketball team opened up the home portion of their schedule Tuesday night in Rice Auditorium against Morningside College of Sioux City.

Mike Brewen's Wildcats opened up a 40-31 lead at the intermission and led 53-40 with 13:59 remaining in the game but then the Wildcats suffered through a cold streak in which they didn't score a single point for 10:48.

That spell allowed Morningside back into the game and the visiting Chiefs went on to post a 66-61 win sending WSC to a 1-3 mark while they remained undefeated on the year in three outings.

"Out of our four games so far this year we have let two of them just slip away," Brewen said. "We should have won against Missouri Western and Morningside."

Brewen said one of the factors that has led WSC to a 1-3 mark instead of a possible 3-1 mark is the poor outside shooting his team is suffering. "We just aren't hitting our shots," Brewen said. "We have good open outside shots but they are just not falling right now."

The 10-minute plus stand in which the Wildcats did not score in the second half was due to a couple of factors according to Brewen. "Morningside extended its defensive pressure and we couldn't get that pressure relieved," Brewen said. "We just got a little too cautious with our lead and we can't afford to do that."

The Wildcats had several chances to stretch their lead in the second half but turnovers, fouls and missed shots both in the paint and from the outside took its toll.

David Allen and Billy Patterson led WSC in the scoring column with 16 points apiece while Carlos Moore scored nine and Steve Dunbar added seven. Doug Kuszak scored six and Keith Whitfield netted five. Omar Clark rounded out the scoring with two.

Jason Huff led Morningside with 23 and was the only Chiefs player in double figures. WSC won the battle of the boards, 49-42 as Allen led the Wildcats with 16 carsoms including 10 offensive rebounds. Dunbar pulled down eight rebounds from his guard position while Moore, Patterson and Whitfield each had five rebounds.

The Wildcats shot just 37.5 percent from the floor and was just 6-15 from the free throw line while Morningside hit 43 percent of its shots from the floor and connected on 13-29 free throws.

WSC had 21 turnovers while Morningside suffered 22. Patterson led WSC in steals with six and Moore notched WSC's only blocked shot. WSC was 1-12 from three-point range while the visitors connected on 5-19.

"One of our team goals is to finish each game with a two-to-one ratio in assists to turnovers," Brewen said. "In the first half we had 10 assists and six turnovers which isn't bad, but in the second we had one assist and 15 turnovers."

The Wildcats will host Wisconsin-Parkside on Friday night in Rice Auditorium before hosting Northwestern College of Orange City, Ia., on Saturday.

Lisa Chamberlin pours in 26 in rout

WSC women pound Chadron St.

The Wayne State women's basketball team blasted visiting Chadron State 84-51 Monday night in Rice Auditorium to improve to 2-1. Mike Barry's Wildcats responded very positively following the whipping they received by the University of South Dakota at the Dakotadome last week in Vermillion, 84-47.

Lisa Chamberlin proved to be an uncontrollable force for the Lady Eagles of Chadron State as she poured in 26 points for the Wildcats. Chamberlin was the only Wayne State player in double figures because of the balanced attack that saw 13 of the 14 girls who played score.

Kristy Twait followed with nine points while Kairi Backer and Tawnya Bakke scored eight apiece. Mary Schnitzler and Cyndi Savage each scored six points and Lynn Nohr netted five.

Heather Rotherham and Cheri VanAuker scored four points apiece while Jodi Otjen, Dana Olmsted, Linda Heller and Amy Rueger netted two apiece. The Wildcats led Chadron State 44-29 at the intermission but opened the second half with a 14-0 run that built the lead to 29 at 58-29.

The Wildcats out-rebounded the visitors 47-42 but the story was in the offensive boards as WSC hauled down 23 from the offensive end while Chadron State managed just 15.

Otjen led the Wildcats with nine rebounds while Bakke and VanAuker pulled down six carsoms apiece. Heller finished with five rebounds. WSC was 12-23 from the foul line and shot over 44 percent from the field while Chadron State was 16-27 from the charity stripe while hitting 34 percent of their field goal attempts.

WSC had 28 turnovers but forced the opponent into 41 turnovers. The Wildcats had 24 steals in the game compared to 11 for the Lady Eagles. Olmsted led the way with four steals while Rueger, Bakke and Otjen had three steals apiece.

The news was not all good for WSC in Vermillion just before Thanksgiving as Barry's troops were defeated soundly. "I just don't understand why we can't shoot the ball that well in that gym," Barry said of the Dakotadome. "USD has a very good team with a lot of veterans and some really good guards."

Wayne State, however, was not blessed with great shooting in that contest as they hit just 7 of 34 attempts in the first half and was 0-6 from the free throw line. The

Wayne Herald football contest winners given

WAYNE-William McQuistan of Pender won the Wayne Herald Football Contest last week, edging Lynette Hedell of West Point. McQuistan was the only entrant to miss just one game and Hedell was the only entrant to miss two so it was the first time that the tie-breaker wasn't needed for either first or second place.

Jeanette Thomas of Bellevue won the weekly contest two weeks ago while Keith Zimmer of Lincoln placed runner-up. Thomas won by the tie-breaker. Dean Rickett of Ponca and Margaret Schramm of Wayne tied for the win, but were beaten on the tie-breaker.

WSC choirs plan concert

The annual Christmas Concert presented by WSC choral groups will be giving two performances this weekend, on Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon, Dec. 7-8 at 7:30 p.m. and 3 p.m., respectively. Missy Eckhoff, Brett Fuelberth, Heather Thompson and Ben Wilson, all of Wayne, will be performing with the Wayne State College choir.

The concerts are free and open to the public. Performances will be held in the Peterson Fine Arts Building's Ramsey Theatre.

Performing groups will include A Touch of Brass, an area brass ensemble led by Keith Krueger, and the concert choir and madrigal singers. The Osmond High School choir, one of northeast Nebraska's finest groups under the direction of Sharen Luhr, a graduate of Wayne State College, is the guest choral group for this year. Other out-of-town performers include Gene Eller, organist from Humphrey and Doyle Anderson of Hartington, who will narrate.

New to the performances this year will be the use of Schulmerich handbells, rung by members of the madrigal singers, rehearsed by Brett Fuelberth.

The traditional "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's "Messiah" will close the program.

According to Cornell Runestad, WSC choral director, there will be a number of carols which will be sung by choirs and audience.

of it, but neither one came in contact with the Pruitt.

The one thing he vividly remembers about the attack was when the injured started coming in. During the two-wave attack, the Japanese forces utilized 353 planes, losing only 29 aircraft. Aboard the U.S.S. Arizona alone, 1,177 men were lost. Total U.S. losses mounted to 2,403 military personnel and civilians.

DURING HIS career in the Navy, Bean was assigned to the U.S.S. Lexington, an aircraft carrier which was retired from service just three weeks ago. He was also a crew member of other vessels during and after the war. Before retiring in 1969, he was the skipper of the U.S.S. Falcon, a minesweeper.

As a crewmember of the U.S.S. Lexington during World War II, he was involved in 11 different engagements. In 1944 he received the purple heart for a shrapnel injury to his shoulder, which was the result of a kamikaze attack.

"In the Philippine Sea battle (in which Bean was wounded), when the kamikaze came in, I had a friend with headphones on who was a secondary control officer aboard the Lexington," he says. "Just before the plane hit, he hid behind a piece of tin and he was the only one left uninjured. Many men were killed from the concussion of the aircraft. I remember vividly that the flames spread along the side of the ship like a blowtorch and fried everyone along that side. There were 167 casualties and some were never found."

BEAN SAYS, however, that the strongest memory he has of the war was the attack on Pearl Harbor.

"When the wounded started coming in, it was almost unbelievable," he says. "Many were covered in oil. Some of them made it and some of them didn't. I saw a lot more of that before the war ended but that sticks in my mind as being quite terrible."

Today, Bean and his wife Helen live in Wayne. They have five children, six grandchildren and one great-grandchild. A 1937 graduate of Wakefield High School, he joined the Navy in 1938 and was assigned to Pearl Harbor in 1939. He and Helen moved back to Wayne in 1989.

HELPING HANDS

The Rod Brogren family hosted the Nov. 24 meeting of Helping Hands 4-H Club with two leaders, four parents and 10 members present.

A reorganizational meeting was conducted with election of officers, including Ryon Brogren, president; Beth Bloomfield, vice president; Jenni Fleer, secretary; Chad Evans, treasurer; Mary Muhs, news reporter; and Becky Fleer, historian.

The club selected four goals and made plans for a Christmas party on Saturday, Dec. 14 at 7:30 p.m. in the Larry Wagner home. Mary Muhs, news reporter.

Tips for the holiday season

If the holiday season has gone from being fun to becoming a big hassle, maybe it is time to consider cutting back and slowing down.

"It's okay to let go of that Norman Rockwell image—or whatever image of the 'perfect holiday' you are holding on to," according to Herbert G. Lingren, Extension Family Life Specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. "We all have this fantasy picture of how people should celebrate—but it isn't necessarily relevant to the way we live our lives."

Holidays can be especially difficult for singles and for "blended" families. Arranging visits back home or sending children to see their non-custodial parent can be stressful. "Compromise" and "simplify" should be your goals. It also helps to be flexible about family traditions.

"Traditions are important because they are markers, the memorable moments of later life, but they should not be etched in stone," Lingren said. "You can modify traditions, or create your own, to fit the patterns of your family's daily life."

For many working families, holiday stress is mainly financial.

"You feel like you have to give gifts to everyone in your family and you just cannot afford it," Lingren said. "Chances are good that other members of your family feel the same way. Talk to them about gift-giving and agree on a plan to make things easier on everyone."

Family members may agree to draw names to shorten their shopping list, but gifts for the children only, release everyone from the obligation to buy or let people buy only for their immediate family.

No matter what the holiday budget may allow, most people do not have the time to do a lot of shopping. Here are some suggestions:

• Give everyone the same basic gift, but make it unique and festive. Colorful soaps in a basket, homemade peanut brittle or special cookies in a nifty tin can make thoughtful gifts with a personal touch.

• Use mail order catalogs. Shop at leisure from your desk at lunch break.

• Send Nebraska produced gifts. Look for items such as meat or salad dressing. Be creative with the variety of things available and send the bundles off to relatives or friends in other states.

One family found that as much as they longed to, they simply could not afford to go back to Nebraska for the holidays after moving east. Rather than feeling lonely, they invited other "displaced" co-workers to join them. Everyone brought a dish and they had a house full of new friends. The tradition has continued.

"If you are going to be alone during the holiday season, invite someone else who will also be alone," Lingren said. "Think about making someone else happier—and you will feel better as well."

For people who have lost loved ones during the year, the holidays can be painful.

"Do not try to ignore those feelings," Lingren said. "It helps to talk about it with close friends and other family members. They are probably feeling the same way. Recall warm memories of the missing loved one."

If the loss is recent, it might help to change the holiday's routine. Try a different location or have a different menu. Most importantly, remember that the holiday season should be a happy time. This is the time of the year to relax and enjoy being with our friends and family and not the time to deal with the stress of doing too much.

Wayne students make time capsule

Students at Wayne High School are selecting some of their favorite items to be included in a geography time capsule, which other students will open in the year 2001.

Among the artifacts under consideration are a tape jacket, a shoe, a T-shirt from the chicken show, covers of newspapers, pictures, information about Wayne and interviews from a local car dealer, Wayne Mayor Bob Carhart, School Superintendent Dr. Francis Haun and Wayne State College President Dr. Donald Mash.

This project is part of the school's celebration of National Geography Awareness Week, which this year stresses exploration. Using the theme "Geography: New Worlds to Explore," students throughout the United States are observing the week by exploring their past, probing their neighborhoods and interviewing modern-day explorers, among other activities.

The week, mandated by Congress, supports and celebrates the resurgence of geography.

Geography, one of the five subjects included in the National Education Goals, is beginning to make a comeback in the school curriculum in the U.S. today.

Other activities that are happening in the world studies class include: getting the USA Today newspaper and a visit from Jan Dinsmore from Wayne State College. During Dinsmore's visit, she will be presenting a slide show from a recent trip to the most populous nation in the world followed by a presentation from a student from China to tell the class what the nation is really like.

To conclude the week, the students will have their time capsule buried at First National Bank in Wayne on Friday.

It's here!

Peace is elusive. More than the absence of war, peace is a serenity that only God can bestow.

If conflict is tearing your life to shreds, join the company of serene church-goers. God offers peace to the faithful.

Winter to be long?

Walt Vahkamp tells me that if your first snow storm disappears before the next one, they will all do so the rest of the winter. I hope that's right. What about ice storms? If November is a sample of what winter will be, it's going to be a long one.

It seems strange to see snow and ice on trees and bushes that still have their leaves. I'm afraid there has been a lot of permanent damage done.

I announced last week that if Norfolk Catholic could beat Battle Creek 28-6, Nebraska could beat Oklahoma and Miami! But I really didn't want to go back to Florida and play them on their home turf.

I knew I would be making home visits yesterday afternoon. I didn't mind. I get too nervous when it's on TV. In fact, I didn't even have it on the car radio at first. When I did tune in, it was 14-0, favor of the Sooners.

I went to a drug store to pick up a prescription for one of my patients and remarked to the pharmacist, "We didn't want to go to Miami anyway."

He looked at me over his glasses and surmised, "You haven't been listening the last five minutes. They are a different team since the half." He then brought me up to date.

We speculated as to what went on in the locker room at half-time, and figured that Dr. Tom probably said a few "dad-gummit's."

I took the medicine to the home of a patient I had seen that morning. He is very sick, and taking very strong medicine. During the visit, he had been light-headed and sleepy. Now I could not believe it was the same guy! He was yelling at the TV? There was more animation in his face than I had ever seen.

I drove on to the hospital to meet with another patient and his family to explain the Hospice program. His son, a former UNL student, could not concentrate on what I was saying. This patient, too, changed from a pale, sick bedfast person to an interested, lively Husker fan.

I was on my way to the last visit as Oklahoma made four failed passes in the last minute and a half. On the fourth, Kent Pavelka yelled "Incomplete, incomplete, incomplete!" and I felt tears in my eyes. Between the tears and the rain, McCant dropped to his knee and they counted the seconds down. It was over, and we had won, and a freshman from Omaha with two earrings in his left ear was the hero! On to Miami!

Frosty day

FOLLOWING FRIDAY'S ice storm, the sun's light created some pretty impressions for the camera's eye. Such was the case along Walnut Street.

VERDEL'S RECIPE OF THE WEEK

For further information contact Verdel Lutt, assistant meat cutter- Pac'N'Save.

SIRLOIN TIP ROAST

- 1 3-4 lb. sirloin tip roast
- 2 T. oil purpose flour
- 2 T. shortening
- 1/2 cup pineapple juice
- 1 T. instant minced onion
- 1 T. lemon juice
- 1 tsp. Italian salad dressing mix
- 1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce

Sprinkle meat with flour and brown slowly on both sides in hot shortening in roasting pan. Season with 2 tps. salt. Combine remaining ingredients and 1/8 tsp. pepper; pour over meat. Cover; roast at 325° for 2 1/2 to 3 hrs.

Q. Why is iron from meat so important?
A. Meat is one of our best food sources of iron in the form of heme iron. Heme is the essential protein core for hemoglobin and is a more biologically available form of iron than non-heme iron. In addition heme-iron enhances the absorption of non-heme iron from other foods.
