AIDS threat concerns EMTs By Mark Crist

Managing Editor

Just thinking about the AIDS virus, most health care workers probably don't worry about the threat. If they do, they can't do their iok their job.

That's especially the case with emergency medical technicians (EMTs), EMTs are constantly placed in situations where they could be exposed to infected fluids, espe-cially in emergencies where blood may be present.

According to Louise Jenness, who oversees ambulance opera-tions for Providence Medical Center, EMTs, like other health care workers, constantly take precauworkers, constantly take precau-tions. In all instances, health care workers conduct themselves in a way that they will reduce exposure to the bare minimum. "If people follow the universal precautions, whether the person is positive or not, you're using protection," she said. "You should treat everybody if they're positive for your own safety and for theirs."

SINCE THE number of AIDS cases have grown, especially in the last five years, the hospital has procedures for treating all patients. The universal precautions Jenness referred to include using sterilized gloves, gowns, masks and eye protectors and resuscitation equip-ment. Precautions apply to blood, semen, vaginal secretions, spinal fluid, amniotic fluid, feces, nasal secretions, spit, sweat, tears, urine and vomit.

"To be perfectly honest, there's a much bigger chance of catching hepatitis than there is AIDS," she said. "There always has been and there always will be. For that reason, anybody that's around blood needs to use universal precautions.

In EMT courses, universal pre cautions are taught, Jenness said. EMTs are trained to be prepared for situations where blood may be present. It's part of the territory.

SINCE AIDS is such a politically sensitive subject, EMTs can't ask patients if they have HIV or if they are at risk. That makes the precautions EMTs take all the more important since they can't inquire about avocuum about exposure.

Like EMTs, Jenness said law en-forcement officials now carry the surgical garb kits which contain a supply of gloves, gowns, masks, goggles and other supplies that reduce exposure.

One of the supplies in the kits is a mouthpiece that works the same way as the standardized resuscitation method, that way if mouth-to-mouth resuscitation is necessary, there are ways responders can protect themselves

IF A PERSON is HIV positive, Jenness says it's a matter of honesty. "If a person is HIV they should come out and say if they have it," she said. "Such is the case when a medical professional has it, they should come out and say-so.

In situations where EMTs get exposed to body fluids, they have to fill out a form. In those circumstances, they can ask a patient if they are willing to be tested, but the patient can say no. If that happens, the EMT will be advised by a doctor on precautions and then be tested over a six month period if they desire.

"Most of us just do our job and not think about it," Jenness said. "It's just important for people to take universal precautions."

Board looks to have study done on JDC

By Mark Crist Managing Editor

A public consulting firm from York has been given the directive from the joint board of the North-east Nebraska Juvenile Detention Program to address problems with the Wayne County Juvenile Detention Center. Council eyes load controls

By Mark Crist Managing Editor

Wayne residents may have the option to help the city save up-wards of $56,000 this summer if they opt to have the city help them out. That message was delivered by City Light Plant Manager Gene Hansen at Tuesday night's city council meeting. Hansen presented the city council with an update of an October 1991 report dealing with load management.

According to Hansen, since the city uses the greatest amount of power during the summer months, a radio-activated system will allow the city to control the time central air conditioners run in the 900 homes in Wayne if residents re-quest the service.

Fire chief blames dust on heaters for Northeast Recycling, Inc. fire last week

By Mark Crist Managing Editor

The state fire marshal's office has determined the cause of a fire at Northeast Recycling, Inc. last Wednesday.

According to Wayne Volunteer Fire Chief Dutch Sitzmann, the fire was caused by sparks from the plant's heating system.

Sitzmann said that since the heaters had not been used since approximately 1986, they had a great deal of foreign matter on them, suspected to be grain dust, which apparently ignited. As a resuit of the foreign matter, the air current carried sparks onto the newsprint, setting the building ablaze.

"We did a good job keeping the fire contained," he said. "It could have been much worse."

HE SAID IT is also believed there might have been some rust on the overhead heating system which loosened when the heaters

Candidate for district award Ahmann recipient of first-ever 'Rotarian of Year' honor_

By LaVon Anderson Assistant Editor

The Wayne Rotary Club has chosen Jane Ahmann to receive its first-ever "Rotarian of the Year" award.

Ahmann, who was cited for her dedi-Anmann, who was cited for her dedi-cation to the club and the many service projects it performs, received the honor from President Ralph Barclay during a meeting earlier this month. As Wayne's "Rotarian of the Year,"

Ahmann is now a candidate for the Cad-wallader Award which recognizes the top Rotarian in the district. Announcement of the Cadwallader Award recipient will be made at the district convention slated May 1-3 in Columbus.

In addition, Ahmann will be given $100 which will in turn be contributed towards the Paul Harris Fellowship. Paul Harris founded the Rotary Club in 1905 and the fellowship is used to assist people around the world.

THE WAYNE Rotary Club was orga-nized five years ago and Ahmann, who was the first woman invited to join, has been a member the past four and a half years

During that time, she has served as treasurer for two years and is presently serving her second year as chairman of serving her second year as chainman or community service. "I felt honored, really, very honored," said Ahmann upon learning that she was selected from the approximately 30 members to receive the "Rotarian of the Very" * honors. Year

"I felt there were other members of the club who were as deserving of the award. I'm just really thrilled and I hope I do well at district."

AHMANN explained that the Wayne Rotary Club is a civic organization dedicated to helping the community in any way it can. One of the projects the club is currently involved in and which Ahmann helped spearhead as chairman of com-munity service involves Rotary Club members serving as mentors for students involved in the At-Risk program at Wayne-Carroll High School.

WAYNE ROTARY CLUB names Jane Ahmann "Rotarian of the Year."

The At-Risk program identifies students who may be at risk academically and, through a grant, provides a part-time staff member who works with the students tutorially.

In conjunction with the program, Wayne Rotary Club members agreed to assist in providing community support to the students by serving as one-on-one friends and advisers.

There are presently 17 students in-volved in the program in grades nine through 12.

"I really wanted the Rotary Club to get involved in this because I thought it was an excellent and worthwhile program," said Ahmann.

AHMANN ALSO was instrumental in establishing a Rotary Club scholarship fund to assist students in the Wayne area. This is the first year the scholarship will be presented to a graduating senior. A portion of the funds for the scholar-ship came from a Christmas tour of homer concerned by the Potary Club and homes sponsored by the Rotary Club and chaired by Ahmann in 1990. Approxi-mately $1,200 was raised during the event which the Rotary Club plans to sponsor again in 1992. This is also the first year the Wayne.

THERE ARE many, many other projects the Wayne Rotary Club is involved in," pointed out Ahmann, including donations to the Wayne Food Pantry and Toys for Tots program, along with several-other organizations such as the Community Care Hospice Group and Haven House.

In addition, the Wayne Rotary has participated in the Adopt-a-Highway program and assisted the City of Wayne in putting up flags and with city-wide cleanup.

Rotary members have also sponsored the Cystic Fibrosis Walk-a-Thon for two years and hosted a spaghetti feed for last year's BRAN (Bicycle Ride Across Nebraska) riders when they came through

Wayne. "We really do try to assist anyone who comes to us for help," stresses Ahmann, "either monetarily or physically." Ahmann credits Rotary members for

The Rotary Club also is planning to sponsor a soup and pie luncheon on Sat-urday, Feb. 15 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Wayne Woman's Club room.

"THE ROTARY Club is for anyone who likes to be involved in their community," said Ahmann, adding with a smile, "we also have a good time."

Rotary Club members believe in the Four-Way Rotary Test, which asks the questions, "Is it the truth?," "Is it fair to all concerned?," "Will it build goodwill and better friendships?," "Will it be beneficial to all concerned?" "Those four questions really impressed me when making my decision to join the Wayne Rotary," says Ahmann. In addition to being active in the Wayne Rotary Club, Ahmann is a mem-ber of PEO, serves on the United Way board, and assists each year with the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce banquet banquet.

"The Rotary Club is for anyone_who_likes_to_be_involved in their community."

She is also active at St. Mary's Church in Wayne, where she is a member of the liturgy and stewardship committees, serves as a Eucharistic minister and is a member of St. Mary's Guild. She has also served on the parish council.

SHE AND her husband, Mark, have sided in Wayne the past five and a half years, where jane is assistant manager at Surber's Clothing and Mark is general manager of Wayne Radio KTCH.

They are the parents of three grown children, including son John and his wife, De, who reside in Lincoln and are the parents of three children. Mark, Trisha and Alex

Sex, lives and candidates Why, we ask ourselves, must Americans be forced to hear about the private sex lives and indiscretions of presidential candi-dates?

Does this information really bear on the candidate's fitness for office or is the release of this information just, as media critics suggest, an exercise in prurient interests? Several candidate's campaigns in recent years have been threat-

Several candidate's campaigns in recent years have been threat-ened by allegations of past moral transgressions. The current moral spotlight is on Gov. Bill Clinton, the supposed Democrat front-runner. He is alleged to have carried on an extra-marital af-fair or affairs with other women in the past. It is an allegation Clinton refuses to discuss, saying a candidate's private life should be private. What any candidate, his wife and/or anyone else do behind closed doors should not be discussed in public, Clinton supporters claim. On the defensive, the candidate and his people have chosen to attack the messenger, claiming the media is digging where it shouldn't.

The closed-door lives of most Americans are and should remain private: Our right to privacy is one of the basic tenets of the American system.

However, a candidate for the most powerful job in the world gives up most of the privacy rights the rest of us hold dear.

For instance, health issues are no longer a private matter for the candidate, they bear directly on his or her fitness for office and are discussed openly. Personal finances become public and tell voters something about the character and soundness of the candi-date. Personal opinions on issues which most of us would prefer want voters to the vest are should openly by candidates who want voters to trust their judgement and character. If these private matters bear on the voters decision about the fitness or unfitness of a particular candidate, why shouldn't his mere character with particular candidate, why shouldn't his moral character with respect to marital fidelity be an issue too?

Candidates want us to believe they will live up to the oath they take on inauguration day. Why shouldn't we know how they have treated other important oaths they have taken-like the one they took on their wedding day? It is important for voters to know that a candidate might think as little of the presidential oath as he did of his marriage oath.

Whether or not a candidate's marital infidelity would make him unfit for office is a decision the individual voter would have to make.

But we believe it is perfectly fit and proper for that voter to have all the information available about the moral character of the candidate.

Otherwise the voter cannot make a truly informed decision.

With the president After a mediocre performance trying to open new markets for U.S. products in the Orient, President Bush needed a home run to reverse his slide in the election polls. Tuesday night's State of the Union message may not have been a home run, but it certainly was a solid triple. And he'll make it home if Congress will support but a few of the new proposals presented last night. Crucial among those, we believe, was the call for a presiden-tial line item veto. Most everything he said, just makes sense.

And futhermore...

There are two sides to every politician's opinion, his and the wrong one.

Write us a letter, it's therapeutic Make a columnist's day

Personal columnists and essayists are a conceited lot.

They blithely and routinely commit to paper their thoughts and opinions as though anyone else gives a hoot. They compose for posterity their personal views on issues, anecdotes about per-sonal experiences and their own events. (Compose, that's the root word of compost isn't it?)

Columnists and essayists have a certain degree of commonality with artists. They all produce their works thinking, hoping, believing that others might in some small way appreciate the effort.

Like an artist with a canvas, the essayist tries to take a view and provide a new perspective on what others might see to be ordinary, unexciting, even dull human existence.

There are some great artists who are masterful at making us see the things around us from a new perspective. There are also some great essayists, especially contemporary ones, who do the same thing with ink on paper. A couple of my favorites among the current crop of popular and at times unpopular essayists is Tom Bodett and Garrison Keillor. Mike Royko and Dave Barry also come to mind as having a talent to make you laugh and think and maybe ven get mad, all at the same time

They each have a talent for taking an ordinary life experience or opinion that a majority of us share, and turning it into a story or anecdote that makes us laugh, or think.

If you haven't had much of an opportunity to read much of their works, I encourage you to go to your library and check them out. In the case of Bodett and Keillor, you don't have to even read. Those two have committed many of their essays on small town life to audio tapes that can be popped into the car stereo for those long stretches of drive time some of us must en-dure in traveling from one end of the state to the other. Or they can If you haven't had much of an the state to the other. Or they can help make the minutes pass more quickly in a headphone cassette player for those long stretches of exercise time some of us must endure while trying to get rid of those extra pounds gained over the holidays. (Make that the last 20 years of holidays.)

I once heard Bodett marvel at the thought that anyone would be interested in his views. But, he said even though he can't imagine anyone being interested he con-tinues to conceitedly write his im-pressions and find gullible publish-ers who disseminate them.

Those of us who don't have the Those of us who don't nave the talent that people like Bodett have, end up publishing our views on our own, but we still wonder at the thought that anyone cares.

One of the joys that has kept after proving I was better suited to some other line of work (like buffalo chip collection), has been the therapeutic affect of sitting down weekly and just sounding off.

Once in awhile I tend to go a little bit overboard, (off the deep end as it were) in this space, hence the name for the column. When that happens I implore my readers (both of them) to take up a pen and throw me a literary life preserver. Put your views on paper and send them to me to help set me straight. You'll be sur-prised how good it makes you feel and how many people will read and appreciate your views as well.

I would like to add my com-ments to those of Mark Crist about Dr. Haun. It was my privilege to teach English in the Wayne-Carroll school system under the leadership of Dr. Haun. It was a pleasure to have a superintendent who was knowledgeable and supportive in the subject area in which I taught. He was a person whose opinions I valued

Of course, there were always those times when a blizzard would those times when a blizzard would rage outside and we would anx-iously await the closing of school which did not come, or the tem-peratures would soar into the 90s and he would leave his air-condi-tioned office and stroll through the ballware and decide it was not too hallways and decide it was not too hot to continue school. It was then. I would wonder if he saw and he had a decision, unpopular or not, he would stick to it and shoulder the responsibility for whatever repercussions that might occur.

In those days, when derision of the public schools is common, more schools need the leadership of a person like Dr. Haun. It was my privilege to know you, Dr. Haun. JoAnn Rouse

Albert Bierstadt, one of the most highly-regarded painters of the American West, visited Ne-braska in 1863. He stopped at the Oak Grove ranch near the Oregon Oak Grove ranch near the Oregon Trail in present-day Nuckolls County, the guest of rancher E.C. Comstock. While visiting, Bierstadt went on a buffalo hunt. Mr. Comstock's account of the hunt ap-peared in A.T. Andreas's 1882 His-

He desired to see an enraged buffalo, so that he could better paint the picture of one charging in his glgantic fury. Ac-companied by a writer for the New York Evening Post and George and E.C. Comstock, he proceeded to a grove about a mile west of Supe-rior, where they found buffalo. "They succeeded in getting a large bull separated from the herd, when they shot him after the artist

The bull struck the temporary table at which Bierstadt had been sitting, shattering it and strewing the artist's utensils far and wide but did not check his speed toward the fleeing artist, who, frightened nearly out of his wits, was making the best time of his

Bierstadt was in immediate danger, for had the gun missed fire or the aim been less accurate, in a moment more he would have been gored to death."

When Bierstadt-had-gained sufficient breath to speak, he said, 'That's enough; no more buffalo for me

Checks and balances; what works

Last week was the deadline for bill introduction and the beginning of committee hearings. Nearly 80 bills introduced this session address the issue of taxes. Many of these bills were submitted in order to be tested in the crucible known as the Unicameral floor. It is from these various positions that we must strike a balance.

The resolution of the personal property tax crisis must reassure Nebraskans and investors that our economy is supported by a stable and equitable tax system. The performance of our economy has successfully kept more of our workers and students in the state. We can afford to change our tax policies in a way that will not main-tain this momentum. The invest ment tax credit I propose in LB 1054 has been receiving favorable responses. Its objective is to sup-port the concept of investment and modernization in light of a potential change in tax policy.

I have also introduced legislaers the option to pay their real es-tate taxes on a monthly basis or semi-annually, as they do now. This option may be helpful for many taxpayers so that they can budget for the tax burden across the year. This bill, LB 1119, would also require lending institutions, which had established an escrow account with a borrower for the purpose of guaranteeing the payment of real estate taxes, to make monthly payments-of these taxes. Local governments would benefit from a more regular cash flow. And citi-zens would, receive additional property tax relief because local property tax relief because local governments would be receiving the interest earned rather than the financial institutions. All new bills introduced this session have been referenced to committee and are being sched-uled for public hearings. The intro-duction of a bill ensures that a public hearing will be held, offering you and others an opportunity to express your viewpoint. One way to share your opinion on these is sues is to participate at these pub-lic hearings.

If you wish to testify on particu-lar bills, my office staff will be happy to provide you with the dates of committee hearings. Or if there is any information you be-lieve I should see as I develop my position on legislation be sure to contact me. As always, call me at 471-2716 if 1 can be of assistance or contact my legislative office.

Probe continues after break-ins

By Mark Crist Managing Editor

The Dixon County Sheriff's Department and the Wakefield Police Department are continuing their investigation into two break-ins over the weekend.

According to Dixon County Deputy Sheriff Roger Peterson, the break-ins occurred at Farmers Union Coop Exchange and the Salmon Well Company. The inci-dents are believed to have occurred late Saturday night or early Sunday morning. Officials think they are related.

The Dixon County Sheriff's Of-fice was contacted by the Wake-field Police Department Sunday around 10:30 a.m. to assist in the investigation.

Wayne State women defeated by Fort Hays

The Wayne State women's bas-ketball team butted heads with the defending NAIA national-champions in Fort Hays State, Tuesday night in Rice Auditorium and Mike Barry's troops fell just two points shy of defeating the Tigers in losing, 64-63. "We felt going into the game it was going to be a closely fought contest," Barry said. "We felt we matched up with them pretty well and both teams came into the game with the same record."

The game got off to a slow start ine game got off to a slow start as both teams had managed just 12 points, 12 minutes into the contest. "Both teams were playing a tough physical defense," Barry said. "I didn't think we played a good first half offensively." WSC trailed 25:22 at the inter

Then things began to click for Then things began to click for the host team as they put to-gether a stretch where they out-scored Fort Hays St., 24-8 the rest of the way. "We hit a couple shots and started taking the ball to the hoop more on the drive," Barry said. "We weren't having a lot of success with our outside shooting sourcess with our outside shooting so we looked for the drive and to draw some fouls to score points from the foul line in order to get back into the game." The Wildcats clawed their way back to within six points at the 1:10 mark before Mary Schnitzler sank a 3-pointer to cut the gap in half at 64-61. Following a turnover by the Tigers Schnitzler attempted another 3-pointer, but this one failed, but was rebounded by teammate Jodi-Otjen who was fouled on her shot attempt.

Otjen made both free throws to make it a one point game at 64-63 with 22 seconds left. Fort Hays suffered another turnover as Chamberlin recorded a steal but the Wildcats turned the ball back over with 10 seconds left.

Chamberlin was forced to foul to stop the clock and with the foul, she was forced to exit the game with her fifth foul. The Tigers-missed the front end of their one-and-one and WSC had one final shot but Schnitzler's jumper drew iron. Like every close contest a team can look back at one point in the game and say what if? At the 7:15 mark of the second half Schnitzler attempted a 3-pointer. The ball hit the basket and bounced high if it were going over the backboard.

Referee Mary Kapitan blew her whistle inadvertently which stopped play. The ball didn't go over the backboard but bounced back through the hoop for what should have been a 3-point Kapitan did not award WSC the points but gave them the ball un-derneath its own basket. It turned out that WSC gained one point out of the possession on a free throw so in essence, they lost two points.

Chamberlin led WSC in scoring with 17 points and Otjen poured in 13 while Dana Olmsted added 11. Schnitzler was held to six points.

Olmsted led the Wildcats with six steals while Schnitzler and Backer had three assists apiece to share team honors. WSC will now go on the road to face the lone two teams that have beaten them in Rice Auditorium this season in Doane and Fort Hays St. on Saturday and Sunday respectively.

DANA OLMSTED PUTS a shot up off the glass for two of her 11 points against Fort Hays. The basket followed a turnover caused by Olmsted who led the Wildcats with six steals. The one-point loss by WSC left them with an 11-8 record. Fort Hays was only the second team to de-feat WSC on its home floor this season.

Last second shot gives Wayne boost in OT

The Wayne girls basketball team scored their fourth win of the season Saturday night in Wayne, with a 56-51 overtime victory over conference foe O'Neill. The 4-9 Blue Devils jumped out to an 11-4 lead after the first quarter but O'Neill had that mar-gin trimmed to just three by half-time at 22-19. In the third quarter the visitors got hot and scored 19 points while holding Wayne to seven.

The Blue Devils, trailing by nine at the end of the third period at 38-29, retaliated in the fourth quarter with their own scoring run of 19-10 to force the overtime period.

Wayne trailed by three points with time running out in regulation when Susie Ensz beat the buzzer with a three-point field goal. In the three-minute overtime period Wayne got two quick buckets from Liz Reeg and then hit four of five free throws as Danielle Nelson and Ensz had two each.

O'Neill got down by four in the overtime and had to start fouling the Blue Devils in order to get more possessions of the ball. "We jumped out to a big lead in the first quarter but then we let up," Wayne coach Marlene Uhing said. "We just went flat, especially in the third quarter." Uhing said that O'Neill's Amy Brodersen was the biggest factor her team had to stop. "She's a nice her team had to stop. "She's a nice player," Uhing said. "She scored 24 points and seven came in the third quarter when they had their 19-7 run on us. We tried different defenses on her but sometimes we didn't get enough help to cover her and she would score."

The Wayne mentor said she was proud of her team's fourth quarter performance. Reeg proved to be an unstoppable force for the Blue Devils as she led Wayne with 30 points. Erin Pick was also in double figures with 10 while Nelson fin-

"Liz is really playing good bas-ketball right now," Uhing said. "In the last three games she's made some shots with people right in her face and not only has she made some of those tough shots, she's drawn the foul and com pleted the three point play. She's really been consistent for us and we need that."

Uhing was also pleased with her team's half court offense against Tekamah. "We looked to get the ball inside to Erin and we did a good job of that," Uhing said. "Erin also did a good job of hitting the shots after making some good post moves."

Wakefield Trojans down Ponca in clash of titans

There was a clash of titans Tuesday night in Wakefield as the Ponca Indians invaded Trojan turf in hopes of sending the host team to their fifth loss on the season, but Brad Hoskins' crew had other ideas and when the dust had settled, it was Wakefield coming out on top of a 550 for all of a 65-60 final.

The 12-4 Trojans sprinted to a 16-4 lead in the first quarter only to have Ponca close out the period with an 11-0 run to make it a one point game heading into the sec-

New Year's Health Resolutions

Here are five important things we can do to improve our health during the new year. 1. Exercise every day. Exercise helps us keep fit and burn calories at the same time. Exercise often helps relieve tension and promotes the loss of excess weight. Walking, bicycling, gardening, or swimming are activities in which most of us can participate. 2. Eat wisely. good nutrition means eating less fat and eating more foods that are high in fiber content. 3. Minimize the effects of excess stress. This may re-quire organizing your time, controlling your emotions, sharing important thoughts and concerns with trusted friends. and finding the time to do something for others who need help. 4. Receive reguhealth checkups, lar which are important in preventing health prob-lems and detecting problems that may get worse if left unattended. 5. Avoid the use of unhealthy substances such as tobacco and alcohol.

increase overall agricultural prices, lose said.

Seed, fertilizer costs to increase

Initial projects of 5 to 10 percent increases in seed costs have been scaled backed because of better than expected crop yields in 1991, Jose said.

Costs for herbicides and insecticides should remain stable in 1992, Jose said. Demand for agricultural chemicals is down, but not enough to put much downward pressure on prices, he said. Any lower demand, he said, should be offset by higher development costs for chemical producers.

Fuel prices should be stable in 1992 after last year's rice fluctua-tions, Jose said. The only significant variable, he said, could come from the break-up of the Soviet Union where fuel output might decline and cause the former Soviet republics to import fuel.

Low interest rates should help all producers in 1992, Jose said. For each percent point interest rates drop, producers of irrigated corn should see a $1-2 an acre savings on interest costs while cattle feed ers should see a $2-3 a head interest cost reduction, he said.

Big Farmer quiet on bowl day

The

It's Super Bowl Sunday, and I haven't heard a peep from the Big Farmer for two hours I don't even know who's playing! I think it's time to watch basketball.

I've been looking at the latest Nebraska Farmer at the kitchen table. I see they were forecasting below normal temps for this pe riod, and heavy precipitation. I don't mind a bit that they were wrong, and have been enjoying the mild weather.

Can you stand a few more statistics? There is a letter from Grand Island that quotes the Nebraska Ag. statistical service and says that in 1980 the value of farm and ranch real estate in our fair state was $30,290 million. In 1988 that value had decreased to 55 percent of the 1980 number, $16,565 million. Taxes on this real estate in 1980 were $231.8 million. In 1988 they were 312 mil-lion, an increase of 35 percent. Index of prices received by the farmer had increased one point. The price of cars had doubled.

Real estate debt of $3,041 million on those assets valued at $30,290 million in 1980 was about 10 percent of the value of the property. In 1988 this figure had grown to 19 percent ($3,153 mil-

you of the upcoming TV special, "O Pioneers."

I didn't learn about Nebraska author Willa Cather until I was an adult. And then I still didn't read her books. Which is a real shame because they should have been part of my required reading in high school. Even Garrison Keillor did a special from Red Cloud last year. "O Pioneers" is about the wheat farms in western Nebraska and the Swedish, and Czech, and French, and German immigrants who set-tled them. It was filmed in Nebraska last summer. Jessica Lange plays the lead.

I finally read the book last I finally read the book last week. It made me cry. I think the movie will make us cry, also. But don't let that keep you from watching it. Cather is quite a storyteller. The reviews say the film is true to the book, which is unusual. It's this Sunday eve. I think now I'll dia out my copy

I think now I'll dig out my copy of "My Antonia". I'll spare you an-other review, though. And I'll give you a rest from statistics, too. If the groundhog predicts six more weeks of winter, and it's more of what we've been having, I'm ready!

major livestock products manufacturer whose facilities span an eight-state region. Because we now share GTA Feeds' resources and experience of more than three decades, we're able to offer more services and greater value with every bag of feed.

Take a look at the new Norco advantages:

▼ Feed that Reflects the Latest in Nutrition-With the addition of GTA's staff of highly-qualified swine, cattle and dairy nutritionists, we will continue to provide feed and supplements that keep pace with advances in the science of livestock nutrition.

▼ Lab Analysis-No need to guess about the nutritional value of your forage or grain. With the additional resources of GTA Feeds, we can now offer expanded, more sophisticated analyses of your grain and feedstuffs

▼ Management Consulting—Programs such as SwineSource provide invaluable information to help you manage your operation more efficiently and economically. In addition, GTA Feeds feed consultants possess the computer capabilities for ration facilities offered by Harvest States Cooperative, GTA Feeds' parent company.

▼ Stability--GTA Feeds brings to Norco a history of stability based on dedicated service to producers from Wisconsin to the Pacific. With the affiliation of Harvest States Cooperative, GTA Feeds and Norco are part of one of the country's largest farmerowned cooperatives committed to livestock and agriculture for the long term.

Norco is now better than ever because it's fortified with the services, expertise and stability of GTA Feeds. Look into the new Norco and you'll find everything it takes for a better bottom line.
