Motel group selects Wayne

Simplex Motel Group has announced they will build a motel in Wayne. Construction is scheduled to start March 16, with the opening scheduled for approximately July 15, 1992. Simplex Motel Group operates 32 motels in six states: Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas and Arizona. At this date, it is uncertain what the motel will be called, according to officials in the Norfolk office. According to Bill Roe, vice-president of development for Simplex Motel Group, the motel will contain 41 rooms. Amenities include: a king size bed and a recliner in all single rooms; remote control color TVs; meeting rooms and individual heating and air conditioning units. THE MOTEL will furnish a 24 hour front desk and the ever popular coffee and toast bar in the lobby. Also furnished are free local telephone calls, non-smoking rooms and handicap facilities. The motel will offer discounts to Federal and State government employees, AARP members, military personnel, truck drivers and senior citizens. Roe said that Wayne is typical of what Simplex looks for when deciding on a new location. "The town is vibrant, with an excellent college, a solid industrial base and an enthusiastic, positive business community," he said.

Program's future brightens

By Mark Crst
Managing Editor
The future keeps getting brighter for an organization that recently found roots in Wayne. Rainbow Riding, a horse riding program for disabled people with special needs, just recently received a donation from a late well-wisher from South Sioux City, as well as tremendous support from several local businesses and individuals. According to Nancy Lunzer, riding instructor of Rainbow Riding, Dakota City resident Ann Scoblic just donated two horses left following the death of her mother, Edythe Scoblic. IN ADDITION to the donated Appaloosa and Welsh pony, local support has been more than Lunzer ever expected. "It's been wonderful," Lunzer said. "After the first 50 volunteers signed up — either to donate horses for use or to serve as side-walkers, groomers or leaders — we have continued to have individuals and businesses show interest. "I'm really surprised because coming from a city, people don't know others and they tend not to rally as quickly as people here have. But in this program, people are coming forward and offering everything they can to help." In addition to the horses Scoblic donated, Richard and Julie Frye of rural Wayne have donated paddock and horse care; Chuck and Tami Nichols of Wayne donated several bales of alfalfa hay; and Nutrena Feeds donated two tons of horse grain, enough to feed the horses for a year. "I don't know what's made this so positive," Lunzer said. "It might be because this is a rural area and people are more familiar with horses. It could also be that this is a recreational program that provides the physically challenged one more thing to do." WHILE THE horses are not youngsters, Lunzer thinks they'll do fine. The geriatric animals are estimated to be 32 and 24, old by horse standards. But Scoblic said she was glad she could help the program while providing the horses a few more happy memories to their long lives. "If I hadn't given them away, I probably would have had to put them to sleep," Scoblic said. "To know that they'll be working with kids and everything is a real great feeling. It's a new start for the horses and they'll get a lot of attention and that will be nice for them." Lunzer underscored the need for more horses. She said older horses' experience makes them good candidates to work with inexperienced riders, as many in the program are. "A lot of times, people think their older horses are washed up but that type of animal is exactly what we need," she said. "We need a horse that can stand around and be patient with their riders."

United Way board issues statement on problems

At a recent meeting, the Wayne United Way board issued a statement in response recent problems in the national organization. According to national media reports, United Way of America President William Aramony was paid $463,000 in salary, received generous benefits and traveled in high style. As a result of the situation, United Way organizations across the nation, concerned that contributions would fall, called for Aramony's resignation. He resigned Thursday, Feb. 27.

THE WAYNE United Way wanted to make it's position clear by issuing the statement, officials said. "The local Wayne United Way Board of Directors regrets the circumstances surrounding the national leadership. They are confident any misunderstandings on the national level will be rectified soon. On the local level, the board wishes to assure Wayne area residents and businesses that 92 percent of the monies collected in the last drive and still being collected through payroll deductions, will be distributed to local agencies next month." According to the statement, 7 percent is used for administrative purposes, printing and miscellaneous expenses. Only 1 percent or about $250 is set aside for the national United Way organization. "The money is currently being held back until the local board is satisfied with any and all solutions to the national problems. The Wayne Area United Way thanks everyone that made the last drive a success and encourages support for this year's drive," they said in the issued statement.

IN ADDITION to addressing the national problem, the local United Way welcomed several new people onto the board, including: Sue Beckman, Bob Reeg, David Lutt, Chris King and Lee Morrison. Individuals finishing their terms include Connie Endicott, Jane Ahmann, Jeryl Nelson and Fauneil Bennett. Dale Simmons and Julie Mash also concluded their terms on the board due to change of residence and employment.

Laurel candidate seeks district seat

Shirley Kraemer, 56, of Laurel, has filed to seek the District 19 Legislative seat vacated by the retirement of Elroy Hefner, R-Corlidge. "Nebraska needs more strong voices in the Legislature who are willing to speak up for rural Nebraska," Kraemer said recently in explaining why she has filed for the Legislative post. In addition, Kraemer, a Republican, cited the need for fair taxation, improved health care and concerns with the environment of rural Nebraska, as reasons for running for office. "First we have to stop letting the senators from Omaha decide Nebraska's tax structure," she said. "It is time those folks who sit in their offices in Omaha and draw their check from ConAgra and the rest of those food retailers, remember that it is the folks out in rural Nebraska that give them their food to retail."

Shirley Kraemer

DURING HER experiences the last 15 years as a nursing home administrator, social worker and family counselor, Kraemer has been a close observer of the health care issues in Nebraska. "We talk about freedom in America," she said. "One of the most important freedoms is freedom from fear. We need better health care. When the closest hospital and health care professionals are an hour away, it is no wonder that our citizens are concerned about health care." Additionally, Kraemer said she does not like the idea of government involvement but believes it is imperative that the health care needs of Nebraskans be addressed. Kraemer said her interest in the environment is a result of her part ownership in Logan Valley Con-

Wayne Kiwanis gives funds to child board

The Wayne Kiwanis Club has donated funds to be used for further training of home day care providers. The funds are available through the Wayne Child Care Board. There will be a child care providers' conference at the Sioux City Convention Center Saturday, March 28. The donated funds may be used for this purpose, according to Bonna Barner, a member of the child board.

"ANY PROVIDER attending the conference can be reimbursed their $15 registration fee upon showing a certificate of attendance," Barner said. She added that there will be a CPR class for day care providers in the near future, but dates are yet to be set. The Kiwanis donation can also be used to defer the cost of the CPR class, she said. For more information, contact Barner at 375-2198 or Mary Kranz at 375-5243.

Fire causes damage to payloader Wednesday; no injuries reported

A fire Wednesday caused approximately $2,000 damage to a payloader at the Pflueger Feed Yards eight miles south and 2 3/4 east of Wayne. Responding to the call was the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department. According to Fire Chief Dutch Sitzmann, the fire was caused by a combination of electrical grease and grain dust. He said the payloader was used for feeding purposes but at the time of the fire, it was being used to clean a feed yard.

NO INJURIES were reported as a result of the blaze. Damage to the payloader was primarily to the engine area. Sitzmann said people at the scene had the fire under control, using buckets of water, by the time fire fighters arrived. He said the fire department then extinguished the blaze. The Wayne fire chief added that the department was dispatched around 12:26 p.m. Wednesday and they returned around 1:40 p.m.

Three file papers for election on boards

Two more candidates have filed to seek election to the Wayne District 17 school board and one more candidate has filed to be on the Winside Village Board. Filing for election to the Wayne school board are Leslie Hausmann, Wayne, and Robert Dyer, Wayne. Seeking election to the Winside Village Board is Brenda Dee Seeman. She filed election papers March 6. DEADLINE FOR non-incumbents filing for office is Friday, March 13. For the Wayne District 17 board, there are three positions open for election with one incumbent filing. Incumbents Ken Dahl and Neil Sandahl decided not to run again. In the event there are more than six filings for the District 17 board, candidates will be placed on the primary ballot; however, if there are six or fewer candidates running, all candidates will be carried over to the general election in November.

Telephone greetings were received from Don Nettleton of Kansas and Brenda Nettleton of Fremont.

MR. AND Mrs. Ed Oswald of Marysville, Kan. came Saturday and spent the weekend with her mother in honor of the occasion of her birthday.

They hosted a supper at the Black Knight on Saturday evening for Bessie Nettleton, Roberta Oswald of Wayne, and Gene and Nancy Nettleton of Wakefield.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Oswald of White Cloud, Kan. and Dan Oswald came Friday to the Curtis Marotz home at Winside and joined their family for dinner Sunday in the Bessie Nettleton home. They returned to Kansas on Monday.

American Heart Association residential drive continues

Marian Simpson, a spokesman for the Wayne County Affiliate of the American Heart Association (AHA), said the residential drive continues in Wayne and residents are encouraged to give generously if an AHA volunteer calls at their home.

Simpson said some volunteers are late getting started due to the fact that they did not receive their envelopes in the first mailing and the envelopes had to be mailed again.

JUMP ROPE for Heart, a nationally and state sponsored activity, will be held in Wayne on Saturday, March 21. This year's jumpers are encouraged to bring their envelopes and money with them on the day they jump. They can return the money if they are unable to participate.

Simpson said collecting money from all the jumpers after the event has taken so long in past years that prizes were not distributed until near the end of the school year. "We hope this will make the process easier for everyone."

Simpson added that envelopes will be ready a week to 10 days prior to the event and everyone's cooperation is necessary to exceed last year's total of approximately $2,000.

Assisting with this year's Jump Rope for Heart will be the Shape Club from Wayne State College.

"We have to remember that the land was here before we were and will be here after we are gone," she said. "Future generations will judge us by how we take care of this trust."

A NATIVE of Laurel, Kraemer began work on her bachelor of science degree at age 39. She has since earned a masters degree in educational counseling from Wayne State College.

Kraemer's record of community service includes membership in Rotary, Kiwanis and the American Association of University Women. She has also served on the advisory board for Providence Medical Center in Wayne, and she has received awards for service to the Camp Fire Girls, Boy Scouts and Women's Clubs. She has also worked as a GED instructor, to help adults obtain their high school diploma.

Kraemer and her husband Marlen, have seven children and 14 grandchildren, most of whom reside in the area.

Program works on accuracy

Improving the accuracy of pesticide equipment is the focus of a spray clinic on March 25 at Heese Produce, Pender. Accurate application means reduced pesticide costs, excellent pest control and reduced environmental impact.

In a field survey, 140 private and commercial applicators were analyzed to determine their calibration accuracy. From these observations, only one of every three cooperators applied pesticides within 5 percent of their intended rate. Most of these errors could be traced to incorrect calibration. Of the private applicators, one-fourth over-applied pesticides by more than 5 percent, this misapplication cost averaged $570 per application. These observations point to the fact that improper calibration will cost applicators money!

Most applicators use some type of calibration methods, but complain that the procedure is time consuming and requires the use of cumbersome equations.

Northeast, WSC among sponsors of program

Individuals seeking information on employment opportunities with northeast Nebraska firms should attend the Employment Opportunities Expo on March 17, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Activities Center at Northeast Community College.

The expo will feature northeast Nebraska firms, organizations, and educational institutions who will provide information on area employment opportunities to the general public as well as prospective high school and college graduates.

According to Joe C. Ferguson, co-chairman of the event, people will be able to visit with company representatives to find out what jobs are available, what the job requirements are and what the employee can expect for compensation and benefits.

Several northeast Nebraska towns will also have booths at the Sixth graders attend Norfolk choral clinic

On Saturday, Feb. 29 Kathryn Ley sponsored 10 sixth grade students at the first biannual "Sing around Nebraska" choral clinic held at the Norfolk Junior High School. The 10 students were selected based on their music aptitude scores. There were five sites throughout the state which held clinics.

The purpose of the clinic is to provide students with an exciting and quality choral experience with other students from their festival areas, to provide an opportunity for honor music students who are ready for more challenging music to work with a guest choral clinician, and to provide music teachers an opportunity to observe and learn from the clinician working with the students and to share with other teachers.

The students rehearsed all day and performed the music in a concert at 4 p.m., which was open to the public.

Conference in Neligh Program shapes leaders

Developing the leaders of tomorrow is the focus of the upcoming Northeast Nebraska Youth Leadership Conference, scheduled for March 24, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Neligh American Legion Hall.

"Youth are the future of our communities. They are our future leaders and our future business owners and operators," said Joe C. Ferguson of Northeast Community College, and chairman of the Northeast Nebraska Rural Development Group. "Northeast Nebraska is investing in its youth in hopes that they will assume those important roles, and insure the area's continued success."

Several hundred northeast Nebraska high school students are expected to attend the conference. Lieutenant Governor Maxine Moul, Dr. Ed Nelson, Dr. Robin Anderson and Ferguson are scheduled to speak to the students on various leadership and economic development issues. Also addressing the group will be students from several northeast Nebraska schools who have gained recognition for their efforts in community leadership and revitalization as well as business start ups.

"We need to let our youth know that there are opportunities for them here in Nebraska," Ferguson said. "For too long we, as parents and teachers have told our youth that they must leave the area if they want to succeed and that just isn't so."

He cited the low cost of living, the quality of life and the numerous career opportunities as factors that make northeast Nebraska an attractive location to live, work and raise a family.

Sponsors for the conference include Northeast Community College, Northeast Nebraska Rural Development Group, Wayne State College, Antelope County Resource Center, ESU #1, ESU #8, Neligh American Legion, Neligh VFW, Pepsi Cola, K & N Energy and N.P.P.D.

For more information or to register, contact Ferguson at 644-0587.

Survey addresses cancer

Residents of Wayne and 17 other counties will be surveyed during the month of March as part of a new research project sponsored by the Nebraska Department of Health.

The telephone survey of 1,200 Nebraska families will ask participants about their health awareness, risk behaviors and ability to access health care. The survey is part of the "Harvest for a Lifetime" cancer control project for Nebraska farm families.

The goal of the program is to identify and remove barriers to the prevention and early detection of several cancers, according to Joleen TenHulzen Huneke, administrator of the state Cancer Control Program. The types of cancer targeted by the effort are those affecting the blood (leukemias), lymphatic system (lymphomas) and skin, lip and oral cavity.

Farmers have been shown to be at greater risk than the general population for cancers of the stomach, prostate, skin, lip and brain, and for lymphomas and leukemias. While the causes for some of these cancers have not been conclusively identified, leukemias, lymphomas and cancers of the skin and lip have been linked to environmental and occupational factors, Huneke said.

The survey is the first phase of the three-year study. After the results are evaluated, educational materials about the prevention and early detection of cancer will be pilot-tested in several rural Nebraska communities.

When the study is completed, it will serve as a model for the development and implementation of a statewide cancer control project for farm and ranch families, Huneke said.

State offers help

State Tax Commissioner Berri Balka would like to advise Nebraskans that the Nebraska Department of Revenue can offer them help with their state tax matters.

"This time of year, as the April 15 filing deadline approaches, some people may not be aware of their options when it comes to asking questions about their Nebraska tax liabilities," Balka said. "The Department of Revenue is prepared to help Nebraskans with their tax questions."

Balka said individuals with questions about filing their tax returns may call the Taxpayer Assistance number, toll-free at 1-800-742-7474.

He added, if an individual believes that the Department has acted unfairly in a tax matter, they may want to contact the Taxpayer Rights Advocate program in the Tax Commissioner's office at 402/471-5604.

Wayne State men shake first half blues to record home victory over Quincy

By Kevin Peterson
Sports Editor

Mike Brewen's Wayne State Wildcats closed out the home portion of their schedule Wednesday night against Quincy College out of Illinois. The Wildcats had played the Hawks in Quincy back on Jan. 29 and had to come from 11 behind at the six minute mark to post an 82-80 victory.

Wednesday's contest in Rice Auditorium had some similarities to that January outing as Wayne State was forced to do an about face after the intermission when they found themselves staring at an 11-point deficit at 40-29.

Senior Doug Kuzsak, junior David Allen and freshman Billy Patterson stepped up their intensity a notch in the second half and propelled the Wildcats to a 77-69 victory. The three-some combined for 40 of WSC's 48, second half points.

The whole Wildcat team became the minister of defense in the final 20 minutes as they held the prolific scoring Hawks to 29 points after allowing 40 points in the first half.

"We played about as poor a first half as we had all year," Brewen said. "We looked completely in disarray out there." The Wildcats, unfortunately, suffered some additional problems in the first half that led to the dismissal of seniors Steve Dunbar and Ricky Watson from the team.

"We talked everything over at halftime and we knew we had to play a completely different half of basketball in the second 20 minutes if we were going to have any chance of winning the game,"

Brewen said: "I would say our second half was about as good as any half we've played this season."

Quincy guard Todd Sigel knocked down a jump shot 20 seconds into the second half to put the Hawks up by 13—the largest deficit of the contest. WSC began chipping away at Quincy's lead and they managed to trim it to one point at 52-51 with 9:33 left in the game.

—A little over two minutes later, however, the Wildcats took the lead when Kuzsak drained a 3-pointer to give WSC a 58-56 advantage. The visitors regained the lead at 60-58 but Patterson tied the game up on the ensuing possession on two free throws.

Quincy once again grabbed the lead at 62-60 but Kuzsak answered with a lay-up on WSC's next ball possession. Allen gave the 'Cats a 64-62 lead at the 4:02 mark and it proved to be an insurmountable lead as Quincy never regained the advantage.

"I thought that our seniors John Schott and Kuzsak really responded in a positive way after our first half problems," Brewen said. "David Allen also provided an important leadership role for us in the second half."

The Wildcats improved to 11-16 while Quincy fell to 8-20 but Brewen didn't feel Quincy's record was a true indicator of how good a team they have. "Just their athletic ability is enough to make them a dangerous team," Brewen said. "We came in thinking that since we beat them out there, that it would be easier at home but it wasn't."

Kuzsak scored 27 points to lead the Wildcats while Allen poured in 19. Patterson tallied 17 and Schott scored six while Dunbar, Watson, Omar Clark and Kevin Thurman netted two apiece.

Nobie Gooden and Todd Sigel scored 20 points apiece to lead Quincy while Lavaughn Williams tallied 10. WSC held a 40-33 advantage on the boards over the Hawks as Allen literally dominated with 24 caroms.

The 'Cats dished out 17 assists while suffering 16 turnovers as Davy Summers led the way with five assists while Patterson and Allen dished out four assists apiece. Kuzsak had three assists. Summers and Patterson also led the Wildcats in the steal category with four and three respectively.

Quincy had 18 turnovers and 11 team assists. The visitors were 7-12 from the charity stripe while WSC was 16-29. Kuzsak's 27 points, incidentally, was two shy of his career best and moved him to within five points of passing Carl Johnson in the all-time scoring column for WSC at 13th place.

DOUG KUSZAK LOOKS to drive the baseline against Quincy. Kuzsak, in his final home game, scored 27 points.

WSC's Frear to coach in Finland

WAYNE-Wayne State College defensive line coach Scott Frear recently announced he will serve as head coach of the Arctic Circle Stars in the Finnish Professional Football League this summer.

The Arctic Circle Stars, based in Rovaniemi, Finland, are professional football's most northern team—located just three miles from the Arctic Circle. The Stars finished 0-7 playing a limited schedule last summer during their first season in the league.

Frear's responsibilities include coordinating the offensive and defensive systems. His overseas contract runs from May 1 to August 9, and Frear plans on returning to Wayne State for the opening of fall camp.

Frear, 29, has been the WSC defensive line coach for the past three seasons, and also runs the Wildcat junior varsity program. He served as assistant coach at John Marshall High School in Rochester, Minn., for six years prior to joining the Wildcats.

Frear, a member of WSC's Honors Program, sports a 3.8 grade point average in exercise science and wellness.

Volleyball team inks recruits

Betty Boldt of Stanton, Laura Pfister of Elkhorn, Kristen Miller of Wakefield and Danielle Fallesen of Wayne, recently signed letters of intent to continue their academic and athletic careers at Wayne State.

Boldt, 5-11, was a standout middle hitter at Stanton High School and Northeast Community College in Norfolk. "Betty will be a strong middle hitter for us and a good leader on the court," says third-year Wayne State volleyball coach Nancy Clark. "She will allow us to have a strong and versatile offensive attack. Betty will also be a strong blocker with an aggressive style of play."

Pfister, a 5-9 outside hitter, was an honorable mention all-conference selection at Elkhorn High School. She made the 1991 Roncalli all-tournament team, and also earned the 1990 Hustler of the Year award.

"Laura is a strong outside player who has a very strong hit and block," Clark said. "She will add some quality depth to the team, and is a good all-around player with good defensive and back-row skills."

Miller, a 5-6 setter, earned first-team all-conference and all-area honors at Wakefield High. She was a two-time honorable mention all-state and Norfolk Daily News Top 12 selection.

"Kristen is an enthusiastic player with a good leadership quality," Clark said. "She will help us not only in the setting position, but she has great serving skills as well."

Fallesen, a 5-9 outside hitter transferred from Wayne to Wakefield for her senior season. "Danielle is an excellent jumper and will help us in the middle position by giving us depth," Clark said. "She is very quick side to side and should help us with blocking."

Danielle Fallesen

The Wildcats are coming off the finest season, 31-10 in school history, and lost four players to graduation. Wayne State College competes as independent Division II members of the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA-II).

"He does everything perfect!"

Norman Soden had cataracts. He had "Single-Stitch" Cataract Surgery.

"I had my driver's test a few weeks ago and passed it real easy. If I hadn't had cataract surgery I never would have passed. After cataract surgery it seemed like the headlights and street lights were all regular colors. Before they were all kind of dull. I couldn't believe how well I could see and what I had been missing out on. I'm really satisfied. I like Dr. Feidler's way of doing things. There's virtually no pain. I think he's a good surgeon. He's strictly business. He tells you everything you need to know. If you need cataract surgery, there's nothing to be afraid of. Come to Dr. Feidler's. The office staff is real nice and they do all they can for you and that's just like Dr. Feidler, too. He does everything perfect!"

The Library Card

This column is written twice a month to inform the Wayne area as to what types of reading material and other items are available at Wayne Public Library.

We have come to the sixth author in our series of Chautauqua authors. Margaret Fuller was a woman writer espousing ideas well before those ideas were accepted by Americans. Those ideas are more acceptable today, even though they are still causing arguments and much discussion between men and women.

Fuller's premise was that all souls are equal before God. Women had the same rights as men to grow, to learn to use their intellects. Everyone would benefit from such activities.

This was at a time when the occupations open to women were governess, companion, nun, shop saleslady, factory worker, midwife, nurse, dressmaker, lacemaker, laundress, prostitute. Most girls received lessons at home, had a year or so at a local grammar school and a year at a finishing school.

Fuller's response to her year at a finishing school in Groton, Conn. was, "I was now in the hands of teachers who had not, since they came on earth, put to themselves one intelligent question as to their business there."

She had a basis for her judgement. She could read by the age of four. At six she was reading Virgil and Ovid. At eight her favorite author was Shakespeare. At 13 she was learning Greek, Tacitus and translating Cicero. She completed the one year of finishing school with the statement, "I am not beautiful, so I will be ugly and brilliant."

Her writing life began with her friendship with Ralph Waldo Emerson, who introduced her to Bronson Alcott. She was hired by Alcott to teach languages in his experimental school in Boston. His teaching methods were so innovative that parents withdrew their children, forcing Alcott to close the school.

Fuller's early works include a defense of the German writer Goethe. This was considered at the time a shocking action for a woman because Americans seldom, if ever, read Goethe's books.

She wrote "Summer on the Lakes" which was the result of a trip in 1843 to Chicago and the Great Lakes region. She became the first woman journalist on one of the nation's largest newspapers, The New York Daily Tribune, edited by Horace Greeley. She was an observer and correspondent for the paper in 1846-47, touring Europe and reporting on the political struggle in Italy at the time.

It was during her return to the States in 1850 on a merchant vessel that she lost her life in gale winds just off the shores of Long Island, N.Y., when the ship struck a sand bar and broke apart.

Margaret Fuller said of herself, "A woman of tact and brilliance, like me, has an undue advantage in conversation with men. They are astonished at our instincts. They do not see where we got our knowledge, and, while they tramp on in their clumsy way, we wheel and fly, and dart hither and thither, and seize with energy all the weak points, like Saladin in the desert."

Could our feminists today welcome Margaret and enlist her in their cause, or would she be scornful of them as she was of men in her time?

The library is planning a "Let's Talk About It" series, a book discussion program featuring four different scholars. The first program will be on Thoreau's "Walden" on Monday, March 30 at 7:30 p.m. with scholar Sayre Anderson. Pick up your copy of "Walden" at the library now to read for this. More information will follow. This is a great way to get ready for this summer's Chautauqua.

Agricultural leases can be beneficial for both parties

In many cases, a lease for agricultural assets can be a win-win situation for both the lessee and the lessor, said Ray Massey, farm management specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Too often parties to a lease approach negotiations as adversaries. That is a mistake, Massey said, because often there is room between the maximum amount the lessee is willing to pay and the minimum amount the lessor will accept that allows a profit for both parties.

He said those levels are determined by the discount and marginal tax rates of each party. Discount rate is the rate of return expected on investments or, on the other hand, the interest rate that would have to be paid to borrow money, he explained.

"The concept of discount rates is similar to opportunity costs or the time value of money. It involves what money invested today will be worth in the future," the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialist said.

The goal of lease negotiation should be to arrive at a breakeven point for both parties, Massey continued. That point will be the payment the lessor is willing to accept instead of using the asset himself, and the amount the lessee is willing to pay before deciding that ownership is better, he said.

As the lessee's discount rate rises, the maximum price the lessee should be willing to pay also rises. This leaves much more room to negotiate a mutually beneficial price than when both parties' rates are similar, he said.

Typically lessees have higher discount rates than lessors, Massey said. This widens the gap in which prices can be set. Lessees' often have higher discount rates because they are young, are a greater credit risk or have a lower net worth. Also, younger operators often have excess capacity in some areas of their enterprise, such as idle machinery. Massey said this should make them willing to accept lower profits in one area so that the total assets can be more fully used, such as by adding more land.

In practice, deciding on fair prices can be complicated, he said. Landlords have a slightly easier time because they have an idea of the value of the asset. In a simplified example, if the discount rate is 10 percent and the land in question is worth $1,000 per acre, the landlord's breakeven price would be $100 per year.

The tenant's task is more complex because variable costs and returns must be included in the equation. Calculations also are less complex for land, which rarely depreciates during the course of a lease, than for property such as buildings or livestock that loses value over time, Massey said.

Swine farrowing house management is topic of workshop April 16-17

A workshop designed for inexperienced or new swine farrowing house employees and managers will be held April 16 and 17 in Norfolk, according to a workshop organizer.

The "Swine Farrowing Management Workshop" is scheduled at Northeast Technical Community College (NTCC) in room 109 of the Agriculture and Allied Health Building, said Duane Reese, University of Nebraska-Lincoln swine specialist.

Reese said the workshop will address effects of environment on newborn and weaned pigs, feeding sows and pigs, managing the weaned pig, saving the lives of more baby pigs and keeping records.

Other workshop topics are obstetrics and the farrowing process, health considerations for the farrowing house and "hands on" pig processing, he said.

Enrollment is limited to the first 25 applicants, Reese pointed out. There will be a registration fee of $20. The fee does not lunch either day.

Besides Reese, the workshop will be presented by Mike Brumm, swine specialist at the NU Northeast Research and Extension Center, Concord; Barbara Straw, DVM, UNL swine veterinarian; and Neal Pohlman, agricultural program instructor at NTCC, Norfolk.

The workshop is sponsored by NU Cooperative Extension and NTCC.

Program and registration information can be obtained from local extension offices, Reese said.

Evergreens, fruit trees at risk

Temperature swings take toll

Nebraska's temperature swings this winter have taken their toll on fruit trees and evergreens, University of Nebraska-Lincoln specialists report.

While apple and pear trees generally suffer less than other fruit-bearing trees in such weather conditions, cherry, plum and peach trees could be seriously damaged by this year's unpredictable weather, said Don Steinegger, UNL horticulturalist.

This winter, trees have had about 10 to 35 percent of their buds killed depending on the type of tree involved and its location in the state, Steinegger said.

Temperatures do not have to become very cold to damage or kill trees if a cold spell is preceded by warm weather, he said.

According to Steinegger, trees change themselves chemically to prepare for winter as temperatures drop and days shorten. This process begins to reverse itself when temperatures rise.

When temperatures fall quickly, the tree is unprepared and water in tree cells can freeze which kills cells, he said. Water also can freeze between cells which causes them to dry out and eventually die.

If foliage is damaged, the tree's injuries may be temporary, Steinegger said. When tree buds are killed, the damage can be permanent.

Evergreens, also, have been damaged by this season's unusual weather. Some evergreens near roads turn brown and are damaged by salt the road crews use to make slick streets safe while others suffer from winter dehydration. Most damaged evergreens, however, are victims of low temperatures, Steinegger said.

Mike Kuhns, UNL forester, said last year's Halloween snowstorm caught evergreens unprepared and caused needles to turn brown and die.

Needles that have turned brown will not recover, Kuhns said, but buds will form new needles next year if they haven't been damaged.

The Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialists offered these tips to help trees withstand fluctuating temperatures during winter:

•Take care of trees year-round. Healthy trees suffer less damage from poor weather than unhealthy ones. Trees under stress from transplanting or summer drought are most susceptible, Kuhns said.

•Avoid pruning or fertilizing trees in the fall. This encourages growth which slows down the chemical changes trees make to prepare for winter. A sudden drop in temperature, like the one Nebraska experienced last fall, could injure trees in this situation.

•Plant trees that can tolerate Nebraska's climate.

Region IV commemorates special month

Local advocates are celebrating the implementation of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) with an educational effort during March—which has been declared Developmental Disabilities Awareness Month by Nebraska Governor Ben Nelson.

Kay Cattle of Wayne, Region IV Developmental Disability Council Chairperson, is coordinating local educational efforts. Materials with this year's theme "Creating a New View of the World" are being distributed throughout the area to increase awareness of the impact of the ADA.

"The Americans with Disabilities Act has been the most significant piece of civil rights legislation passed in this country in the last 25 years," says Tim Shaw, Executive Director of Nebraska Advocacy Services. "People have been denied access to work and to places of public accommodation just because they happen to have a disability."

Shaw says the ADA is challenging both physical and attitudinal barriers and bringing people together. Advocates like John McClain from the Meyer Rehabilitation Institute agree with Shaw. McClain says this will lead to profound changes in society.

"We now have the opportunity to interact with people with developmental disabilities in every sector of our society," says McClain. "I really think we are entering into a new era and have the opportunity to break down some of the attitudes that can be so destructive and isolating to people with disabilities."

Mary Gordon, Staff Director of the Governor's Planning Council on Development Disabilities says removing these barriers is creating a sense of empowerment for people with disabilities.

"When accommodations were made for people with developmental disabilities in the past, it is often viewed as a philanthropic effort—a good thing to do," Gordon says. "The ADA moves away from those attitudes and clearly states that people have a right to employment, to attend public meetings and to enjoy theaters and restaurants. Accommodations must be made for them."

There has been considerable legislative effort in Nebraska this session of the Unicameral to conform, state law to the regulations of the ADA. If passed, LB 1015 will repeal outdated building codes and allow the Fire Marshall's office to establish regulations that conform to the ADA. Another bill being considered, LB 1084, will amend Nebraska's Fair Employment Practices Act to provide the same protections included in Title I of the ADA.

"We've already felt the impact of the ADA in our organization," says Mike Leibowitz, Deputy Director of Meyer Rehabilitation Institute. "We recently set up a voice activated computer for one of our genetic counselors who is blind so she can do computer searches and things of that nature. We will definitely have a new view of the world in the work place as employers are required to make 'reasonable accommodations' for people with disabilities."

Bruce Buehler, Director of Meyer Rehabilitation Institute, says successful implementation of the ADA hinges on putting the person first. "We need to realize that the problem is not the person, but that the person has a problem that can usually be worked around."

Buehler says he's encouraged by the changes he's seen in the attitudes of Nebraskans in just the last year. "I go to meeting and people think of accessibility before they confirm a site. These are the types of changes in thinking that will help to create a new view of the world for both people with and without disabilities."

Allen gives blood bank some help

The Siouxland Blood Bank has acknowledged a list of donors during a recent visit in Allen at the Fire Hall.

Over an unspecified period of time, Susan VonMinden has donated four gallons. During the visit Shawna Hohenstein and Heather Sachau were first time donors.

In all, 33 individuals volunteered to donate and 32 pints of blood were collected.

BLUE AND GOLD BANQUET

The eighth annual Boy Scout Court of Honor and Cub Scout Blue and Gold Banquet was held in Winside Sunday in the elementary school for a 6:30 carry-in supper where approximately 110 attended. Theme for the evening was "Ready and Prepared".

Rev. Marvin Coffey gave the invocation and benediction.

Opening ceremonies included the presentation of the colors by troupe 179 and pack 179 with Shaun Magwire, Color Guard commander, presiding.

Tyson Fausone, Wolf/Bear Denner gave the welcome before entertainment was presented by the boys. The Wildcat Patrol demonstrated first aid while the Webelos and Wolf/Bear Scouts presented skits on first aid and fire prevention.

A candle lighting ceremony was presented by Scout Master Joni Jaeger while presenting the boys with their awards.

Den 4 Wolf cub scouts, Jared Jaeger, Tyson Fausone and David Obermeyer each received the Bob Cat Badge, Service year pin, Progress Towards Rank and a derby car. Each boy presented their parents with the Bob Cat pin.

Bear Cub Scout James Gubbels received a red bead, Wolf arrow, service star and derby car.

Webelo Cub Scouts receiving awards were: Doug Aulner, Engineer and Readyman. Pins, Arrow of Light pin and badge, Service Star and Derby Car. Zeke Brummels received, Engineer, Readyman, Aquanet and Arrow of Light pins, Arrow of Light Badge, Service Star, and derby car.

Jeremy Jaeger the Readyman, Athlete, Sportsman and Arrow of Light pins, Service Star, Arrow of Light Badge, Basketball and Physical Fitness belt loops, and derby car.

Sam Schrant the Readyman, Athlete, and Arrow of Light Pins, Service Star, Arrow of Light Badge and Physical Fitness and Basketball belt loops and derby car.

Each boy presented their parents with a gift.

Randy Gubbels was presented with a Den leaders patch. He leads the Wolf and Bear Cub Scouts.

Kurt Schrant and Tim Aulner, Wildcat Patrol leaders presented awards to these boys.

Receiving Second Rank and Service Star Awards, Joshua Jaeger, Dereck VanHouten, Brian Fuoss and Shaun Magwire.

Each presented their parents with their 2nd rank.

Joshua Jaeger received a boy scout flash light for top uniform inspection.

Jerry Quick received a service Star, Perfect Attendance pin and a boy scout belt.

Adrian Boelter received a boy scout badge.

The scouts did all the decorating for the banquet and each den had a display of merit pins and merit badges that they learned about. The ceremony closed with the retiring of the colors and taps was played by Joshua Jaeger and Shaun Magwire.

Dinner hosts were Wanda Bock and Rita Magwire.

SUMMER RECREATION

Approximately 15 parents attended the Tuesday summer recreation committee meeting with Teri Bowers, vice president, presiding. Kathy Jensen gave the secretary report and Judy Jacobsen, the treasurer report.

The group decided to have a co-ed volleyball tournament and a slave auction during this summer's Old Settlers celebration in June.

Shannon Holdorf will be the girls softball coach this summer while Mace Kant, Richard Behmer and Doug Shelton will coach the boys.

Also discussed were baton and swimming lessons for the summer. A batting cage will be put up at the ball diamond.

Another meeting will be held tomorrow (Tuesday) in the high school library at 6:45 p.m. More parents are asked to attend because a decision will be made whether or not to have age break downs on the summer ball teams.

AMERICAN LEGION

Commander Randy Miller conducted the Tuesday Roy Reed

American Legion Post 252 meeting with 15 members and one guest, Dist. 3 Commander Gene Twiford of Laurel.

The District Convention will be Saturday, March 14 at 9 a.m. in West Point. Also that day, the Winside Post will hold a smoker for men and women, starting at 7 p.m. The annual Legion birthday party will be held today (Monday) for a 6:30 p.m. potluck supper.

The Legionnaires will serve pancakes at the Norfolk Veterans Home on March 16. Other items discussed included coat racks, cement work and the youth summer program.

The next meeting will be Tuesday, April 7 at 8 p.m. Following this meeting, the group was served grilled hot dogs.

LIBRARY BOARD

April 5-11 will be National Library Week with the Winside Library Board making plans for an open house on Saturday, April 11 and hosting a free coffee at the Winside Stop Inn that morning. During the week, treats will be given to children stopping at the library.

Rita Magwire, vice president, conducted the March 2 meeting. The secretary and treasurer reports were given. There were 486 items loaded in February, with 279 being childrens and 207 adult.

A copy of the 1990 Winside history book is available for loan at the library.

The next meeting will be Monday, April 6 at 7:30 p.m.

GIRL SCOUTS

Twelve Winside Girl Scouts met Wednesday in the fire hall. They had a picture taken for the Wayne paper. March 8 is scheduled to be Girl Scout Sunday and each Winside church will hold their own service. Earth Day in Wayne will be March 12. The girls will attend, leaving at 6:15 p.m.

Cookie money is due Wednesday, March 11 after school. Heather Aulner served treats. Jennifer Peterson will bring them next week.

Amy Hancock, reporter.

WILDCATS

The Wildcat Patrol Boy Scouts met Feb. 29 and worked on their skit for the Sunday banquet. On March 2 they met and worked on CPR on an Anne. The boys will meet again Monday, March 16 and March 30, returning to their regular Thursday evening meetings in April.

Joshua Jaeger, Scribe.

WEBELOS

The Webelo Cub Scouts met Tuesday at St. Paul's Lutheran Church with Pastor Jeffrey Lee to work on their religion badge. Sam Schrant served treats. The Wolf/Bear Scouts also attended. They will meet with them until this badge is completed. The next meeting will be tomorrow (Tuesday) at the church. Doug Aulner will bring treats.

SENIOR CITIZENS

Twenty-five Winside area senior citizens met last Monday in the Legion Hall. Mrs. Alice Dietz of Norfolk was a guest and presented a program on "Amazing Grace." Cards were played afterwards. Hostesses were Betty Miller and Mary Brogren. The next meeting will be today (Monday) at 2 p.m. All area seniors are invited to attend.

VISITORS

The third grade class at Winside's Elementary School, taught by Mrs. Marilyn Leighton, were visited by Mr. and Mrs. Otto Field of Winside on Feb. 28. The Fields were invited to the class by Heather Rabe after the class had finished reading a story about musical instruments, one of which was an accordion. Mr. Field, who has played an accordion for many years, showed his to the students, as well as playing a number of songs for them.

SCHOOL CALENDAR

Monday, March 9: Board of Education meeting, 7:30 p.m.

Thursday, March 12: End of third nine weeks; County Government Day.

Friday, March 13: ACT registration deadline; student council dance, multi-purpose room.

Saturday, March 14: Wayne State scholarship applications due.

Local artist wins national fine arts award for work

Wayne native Mary J. Ziegler has been selected as a 1992 Liquitex Excellence in Art University Award recipient from Wayne State College. This national award is given to graduate and undergraduate collegiate artists in recognition of achievement and excellence in the fine art discipline of painting. Nearly 200 students nationwide received this distinction. Award recipients receive a limited edition Liquitex Excellence in Art University award made of custom-poured acrylic and a selection of Liquitex art materials. In addition, they are eligible to participate in the Liquitex Excellence in Art Student Grant Program which offers students more than $60,000 in cash and art material grants.

First responders attend SIDS workshop in Winside

Approximately 32 emergency medical technicians (EMTs) and firemen from at least eight communities attended a Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS) workshop held March 3 in Winside.

The workshop was sponsored by the Winside Fire Department and Rescue Squad, Northeast Community College, the Nebraska SIDS Foundation and the Nebraska Department of Health.

Lecturer for the evening was Valerie Ciciulla, coordinator for the SIDS Foundation at the University of Nebraska Medical Center.

Ciciulla reported that between 8,000 and 10,000 SIDS deaths occur each year in the United States, including approximately 40 in Nebraska. Two to three SIDS deaths will occur in about every 1,000 births.

Ciciulla added that there is no way to determine possible SIDS babies, no warning signs and no known survivors, and that the average age of SIDS babies is between birth and one year. Statistics also show there are more male than female deaths.

Ciciulla related her own tragic experience of losing a child to SIDS. She also discussed how to console family members and how to cope with the stresses as first responders.

Each workshop participant received a packet of SIDS information.

Local man gets award

Farmers National Company has announced that Jerry Zimmer, FNC Farm Manager from Wayne was recently recognized for his outstanding performance in insurance sales for 1991.

Zimmer received the award at a regional planning meeting held in Lincoln. He attended the meeting along with farm managers from a number of Midwestern territories.

Jim Farrell, Vice President of Business Development for FNC, said, "Jerry Zimmer's efforts are part of an outstanding year at Farmers National company." Rich Hickman, Regional Vice President, presented the plaque to Zimmer.

Weeds in alfalfa fields require attention now

Since alfalfa fields may turn green earlier due to the mild winter, weeds should be controlled now to prevent them from being a problem at first cutting, said Bruce Anderson, a forage specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

"Winter annual weeds like pennycress, downy brome or cheatgrass, mustards and shepherd's purse can lower yields, reduce quality and palatability, and slow hay dry down," Anderson said. "Not much can be done once the alfalfa starts growing, so fields should be treated now."

He said several herbicides are effective for dormant treatments, including Karmex, Lexone, Sencor, Velpar and Sinbar.

"They all do a good job of controlling mustard and pennycress," Anderson said. "Karmex has enough residual soil activity to help control summer annual grasses, such as foxtail and barnyardgrass, but the others are a little better at controlling downy brome."

However, Anderson stressed the need to treat before alfalfa greens up. If shoots are sprayed after fields turn green, alfalfa growth could be set back two to three weeks, he said.
