Election looking good for schools

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Wayne Superintendent Dr. Francis Haun says the number of people running for the school board is a positive sign for the community. He says it shows how interested people are in the operation of their public schools.

"I think people are seeing an opportunity to be a service to their community," Haun says. "This makes our democracy active rather than passive. When you have such high interest in government, you get a good government."

The last time there were 10 candidates running for school board, there were three positions open. In 1982, the last time 10 candidates ran, individuals elected were Cap Peterson, Joyce Reeg and Dr. Arnold Emry.

THIS TIME around, there are 11 candidates vying for three positions, and one is an incumbent. In 1982, the candidates were all non-incumbents.

Candidates seeking positions on the Wayne School Board in 1992 include incumbent Sid Hillier and non-incumbents Karma Magnuson, Mary Temme, Leslie Hausmann, Robert Dyer, John Carollo, Marion Arneson, Phyllis Spethman, Sherri Schmale, Glenda Schluns and Terry Meyer. Schmale and Schluns filed papers Wednesday and Meyer filed Friday. The non-incumbent filing deadline was Friday.

"The Wayne community really wants quality people," he says. "They always have since I've been here. Interest in education is high on the state and national levels and I think what we're seeing here is a little bit of a trickle down effect. It (education) is on people's minds because that's what they're hearing and thinking about."

WHILE HAUN thinks some of the candidates are running for one specific issue, he says others are probably running for the broader spectrum of reasons, with no specific cause other than to serve the public. He says the new members coming onto the board will strengthen the schools.

"I would be surprised if new members split the board," he says. "The board is a policy making body and even if there's a difference of opinion (among board members), they work for a common goal and that's the good of the system."

How done is done?

Allen man seeks post

Tom Olson, 51, has announced his candidacy to seek the 19th District Legislative seat.

Olson, a Democrat from Allen, said he has five major reasons for seeking the post. Among his top reasons is the cost of state government and what he calls a continuous increase in taxes.

"We need some legislators who will say 'no' to government spending," he said. "We keep seeing taxes go up and I don't think the people of Nebraska are going along with that type of policy."

His other goals include finding a way to remove livestock and farm production equipment from the personal property tax rolls in the event the Legislature puts them back on. He also plans to make all farm equipment exempt from sales taxes.

"I THINK both taxes are unfair to farmers," he said. "There's a lot of businesses in the state that should be taxed instead. Just because farmers have inventory and livestock doesn't mean they should be taxed items."

A member of St. Anne Catholic Church in Dixon, Olson works as a regional sales manager for Apache Manufacturing of Norfolk. He is a member of the American Legion of Carroll.

Ag industry vital to Wayne

The importance of the agricultural economy in Northeast Nebraska and the City of Wayne in particular is not lost on leaders in Wayne as we enter National Ag Week, March 15-21.

The farm economy is a crucial part of the national economic base, said Wayne City Administrator Joe Salitros. It is even more crucial to the diversification mix in the Wayne economic base, he said.

"But," Salitros added, "Even more important than the economic impact of the ag industry on the Wayne area is its cultural impact."

Agriculture establishes the rural lifestyle that makes up the good life we all enjoy he said. "The rural flavor of life, friends, neighborliness, hard work and environmental concern is what agriculture contributes to those of us who are not in the production side of things," he said.

Chamber of Commerce President Jim Markham added that spring is a good time to recognize the importance of agriculture to the local economy and the local way of life.

"Without the agricultural producers we are nothing," said Markham, bluntly. "We should tip our city hats to our rural neighbors this week and all throughout the year for the job they do, the quality they produce and the way of life they ensure for all of us."

Decision better than high court ruling: Conway

By Les Mann
Herald Publisher

It may not be perfect but it's better than the existing court ordered system of taxing personal property State Sen. Gerald Conway told Wayne business and government people Friday after the legislature sent the property tax issue to the voters in the form of a constitutional amendment.

Voters will decide on an amendment that would establish the legislature's authority to set or exempt taxes on personal property during the May primary.

A companion measure to the amendment proposed by the legislature will place a tax on farm machinery and equipment and breeding livestock that is being depreciated. It would also tax personal property on its net book value.

BUT THE NEWS is not all bad for farmers, said Conway. As a concession for the tax on farm machinery, the bill permits farmers to receive a full rebate for sales taxes on machinery purchases. Part of that lost revenue to the state will be made up with a new tax of $4 a ton on sales of fertilizers and soil conditioners.

Calling the effort to settle the personal property tax issue "gruelling," Conway said he fought to keep the farm fertilizer tax out of the measure, but voted for the final proposal because "it was still the best deal on the table."

Most farm operators are going to come out alright on the issue, he said because the fertilizer tax will not take effect until April 1. That will mean most fertilizer purchases will be contracted before April 1, he said. Besides that, the sales tax rebate on new and used farm machinery purchases is retroactive to January 1, said Conway.

Conway said he would work in the next session to remove the fertilizer tax.

BESIDES THE farm considerations, the new proposal will eliminate some of the fee the state allows retailers to keep for the collection of sales taxes as well as reduce the amount of state-aid to counties.

Conway said the legislature spent 40 hours in three days of debate on the issue before a last minute swing of three votes brought in the 40 needed to place the amendment on the ballot this May rather than waiting until November.

Very few other issues have been discussed in the session which has 18 working days left, he said. He predicted the remaining days will

Wayne gears up for Chautauqua a week after the Chicken Show

By Les Mann
Herald Publisher

Wayne will be the site of two major regional attractions just a week apart this summer.

Just one week after the Chicken Show in July thousands of visitors are expected to return to Wayne America for a Chautauqua tent show and celebration.

Patterned after the 19th century traveling tent shows which brought thought-provoking orators, lecturers and performers to rural settings across America, the modern revival of Chautauqua provides an excellent opportunity for people to experience history firsthand, said Curt Wilwerding, a member of the Wayne Chautauqua Committee and spokesman for the event.

A troupe seven humanities scholars will be in Wayne for five days July 17-21 to portray such greats in American literary history as Walt Whitman, Frederick Douglas and Louisa May Alcott.

Besides the tent performances, which will be held at the Wayne

✓ A traveling tent show featuring humanities scholars portraying famous figures in American history.

✓ Coming to Wayne, July 17-20

✓ Called by Teddy Roosevelt (A Chautauqua performer from the past) "The most American thing in America."

✓ Started in Chautauqua, New York in 1874 and thrived throughout America into the 1930s; became a Great Plains tradition featuring orators such as William Jennings Bryan.

Student teachers experience classroom up close

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Michelle Lindsay is getting her appetite whetted. She's a student teacher at Wayne Elementary.

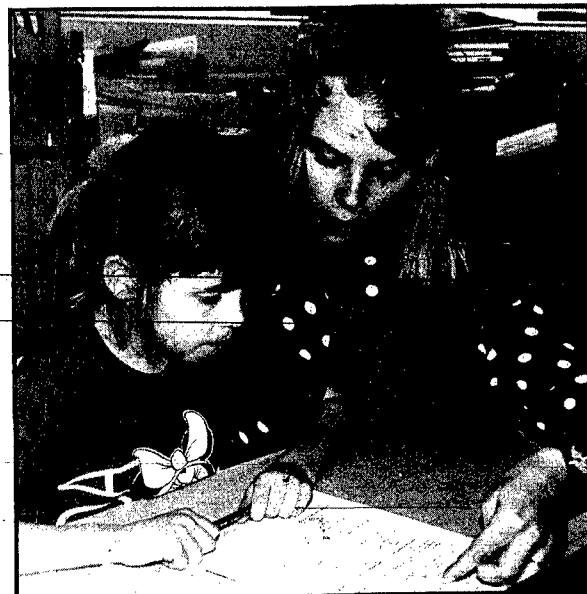

After four years of college, Lindsay, a 22-year-old Wayne State senior from Laurel majoring in elementary education, is experiencing what it's like to be a teacher. She's also finding out how much fun it is to be around children.

The same is true for Darlene Hazen, a 19-year-old sophomore from Verdigris majoring in school counseling. She's getting her first taste of the classroom as part of Wayne State's sophomore experience program.

"Being in the classroom now is a lot like having your own classroom," Lindsay said. "Mrs. Lubberstedt has given me the freedom to experience what the classroom is like. Although all of the second grade teachers get together to go over lesson plans, she's given me the freedom to make her classroom mine."

PATIENCE SEEMS to be the main focus for both Wayne State students. Lindsay, who instructs Nadine Lubberstedt's second grade classes, and Hazen, who serves as an observer in Peg-Lutt's first grade classes, both said patience is a key element.

Lindsay said she's learning patience by working with the students and helping them with problems.

MICHELLE LINDSAY (right) helps second grader Katie Nelson with a question about a test.

For Hazen, it's a matter of learning with a child and she asked me what it means to take God's name in Spain," Lindsay said. "I had to ask her several times to repeat her question because I wasn't sure what she was talking about. The kids are so serious about their questions. They don't try to be funny but sometimes it comes out that way."

"One story Hazen shared dealt with a girl she met at a summer camp, which was the opportunity which allowed her to decide to go into education."

"This girl told me she won a beauty contest and in that she won a summer home and a sports car," Hazen said. "During our sharing time (in Wayne), students will talk about their knowledge of space or of models and what every little piece does. You end up learning things from them."

WHILE THE experience for Hazen has been mostly positive, Lindsay said she sees some things which disturb her. She said on occasion she talks about troubling things with Lubberstedt.

"Kids want hugs and it often surprises you how often they want them," Lindsay said. "Every day you give them a hug or a high five when they're on their way out the door and there's some kids who want an extra hug. Sometimes that's the only affection they get during the day."

While the experience is beneficial to the student-teachers, it is also beneficial to the faculty instructor. Lubberstedt said she's

Senior Center participating in Nutrition March Against Cancer

According to the American Cancer Society, eating habits may put persons at an increased risk for developing certain kinds of cancer. To draw attention to possible cancer-causing habits, the Wayne Senior Center is participating in Nutrition March Against Cancer, March 15-21.

"The Wayne Senior Center is committed to providing healthy meals to the older adults of Wayne," said Coordinator Georgia Janssen.

Janssen added that by promoting and following the nutrition guidelines put forth by the American Cancer Society the senior center can increase awareness about healthy eating practices.

INCLUDED IN THE Cancer Society's guidelines are: 1) watch your weight; 2) trim fat from your diet;

3) eat more high-fiber foods; 4) eat fruits and vegetables rich in Vitamin A and C, and choose more cabbage-family vegetables; 5) limit alcohol intake, if you drink; and 6) eat less salt-cured, smoked, and nitrite-cured foods.

The Wayne Senior Center joins other senior centers, schools, hospitals and restaurants in Nebraska in participating in the observance.

To commemorate the week, an "Eating Smart to Reduce Cancer Risk" tip sheet has been produced by the Nebraska Department on Aging. Persons wishing to receive a copy are asked to call the Wayne Senior Center at 375-1460.

Janssen said residents also are invited to join others at the Wayne Senior Center for a meal during the week of March 15. "You may decide it's a habit for life."

Nationalities are revealed at Klick, Klatter Extension Club

Fifteen members of Klick and Klatter Home Extension Club attended a meeting March 10 in the home of Pauline Lutt and answered roll call by revealing their nationalities.

Vice President Loreene Gildersleeve opened with prayer, followed with the extension creed, flag salute and reading of March poems. Phyllis Beck received the hostess gift.

Marian Jordan led the group in singing "There Are Smiles That Make Us Happy."

STELLA Liska, citizenship chairman, encouraged members to read and study up on candidates in this election year.

Emelia Larsen, safety chairman, read "Tips on How to Avoid Back Injury," and Marvel Corbit, health chairman, reported on "Calcium Intake."

For family well-being, Loreene Gildersleeve read an Irma Bombeck article on nurturing and caring.

Dorothy Aurich reported on the Earth Day tour to Omaha on April 22 and passed out stickers for recycling bins. She also read "Hugs Instead of Drugs."

Ruth Fleer announced that a sympathy card had been sent to Joyce Niemann and a get well card to Angie Denesia. Thank you notes were acknowledged from Emelia Larsen, Angie Denesia and Joyce Niemann.

A REVISED constitution report was given by Marcella Larson and accepted by the group.

Pauline Lutt gave a report on the children and television monitoring project, and Marian Jordan presented the lesson, entitled "Living Trusts and Living Wills."

The next Klick and Klatter meeting is scheduled April 14 at 2 p.m. with Irene Victor as hostess.

Landscaping topic at Mom's Group

WAYNE - Landscaping will be the topic for the Thursday, March 19 meeting of Mom's Group. Brent Pedersen from Bluebird Nursery and Gardenland in Clarkson will be guest speaker.

All area mothers are invited to attend the meeting from 9:30 to 11 a.m. in the social room of Redeemer Lutheran Church in Wayne.

Babysitting is provided in the downstairs fellowship hall of the church and children should be checked in at 9:15 a.m. There is a $2 charge per child ($1 for each additional child), and a $3 charge per child under age two. Infants and nursing babies are welcome to attend the meeting. Mothers are asked to furnish toys for their children to play with.

Persons wishing additional information about Mom's Group are asked to call Maria Austin, 375-3417.

Guest attends T and C

WAYNE - Leona Hammer was a guest at the March 12 meeting of T and C Club in the home of Majorie Bennett. The group played 500 with Leona Hammer and Alta Baier receiving high.

Gladys Gilbert will be the April 9 club hostess at 2 p.m.

Program focuses on Shirley Temple

WAYNE - Bette Ream presented a program on Shirley Temple at the March 10 meeting of Minerva Club in the home of Hollis Frese. Norma Koeber presided at the business meeting.

Ream reviewed the book, "The Shirley Temple Story," and an article from the 1990 McCall's magazine, entitled "Return to Prague," focusing on Temple's ambassadorship to Czechoslovakia.

Mildred Jones reviewed the book, "The Education of Little Tree," at last month's Minerva meeting. The title of the book was incorrectly reported in The Wayne Herald.

The next Minerva meeting will be a brown bag lunch on March 23 at the regular time in the home of Beth Morris. Program leader will be Inez Olds.

April 4 conference in Norfolk to focus on women's health issues

Dave Okerlund, a nationally acclaimed speaker from Cortland, Neb., will keynote the first annual conference on "Health Issues for Women" on April 4 at Northeast Community College in Norfolk.

Okerlund is known for his inspirational message and keen sense of humor.

CONFERENCE participants will have the chance to attend four workshops from among 12 offered.

Presenters will be Paul Rupprecht, pharmacist at Schuyler Memorial Hospital, "Using Prescription and Non-Prescription Drugs"; Monica McCarthy, counsellor at Odessa III, "Communications Within Your Family"; and Dr. Mohammad Zahra, M.D., radiation oncologist, Norfolk, "Cancers That Concern Women."

Participants in Cathie Lear's workshop will have the chance to practice Bio-feedback relaxation techniques. Laurie Steele, R.N., Northeast Area Agency on Aging, will discuss osteoporosis prevention and coping skills.

Other topics to be covered include "Feeding Kids — Dealing With Your Picky Eaters," presented by Charlotte Kern, R.D., Cooperative Extension, Omaha; "Enjoying the Taste of Healthy Eating," presented by Linda Wetzel, R.D., Nutritional Advantage, Norfolk; "Reducing and Coping With PMS/Menopause," presented by Diane Eggerling, Physicians Assistant, Wausa; "Your Self-Esteem and It's Effect on Your Family," presented by David Tague, Plainview; "Making Life's Transitions Easier," presented by Noreen Pavlik, Verdigre author; "The Exercise Connection to Health," presented by Sandy Wolfe, Jazzercise owner and instructor; and "Nutrition During Pregnancy and Early Infancy," presented by Darlene Martin, Cooperative Extension.

THE ONE-DAY conference is a cooperative effort of the Northeast Nebraska Medical Auxiliary, Cooperative Extension and Northeast Community College.

Pre-registrations and a check for $15 should be sent to Northeast Community College prior to March 27.

Persons wishing additional information about the conference are asked to call their local County Extension Office or 644-0469.

St. Paul's Women of the ELCA meet for annual birthday party

St. Paul's Women of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America (ELCA) met for their annual birthday party on March 11 at the church with 27 members present.

Group 1 hosted the event, with chairmen Marilyn Carhart, Mable Petersen and Lillian Granquist. Table decorations and lunch were carried out in the St. Patrick's Day theme.

Madge Brufat was in charge of the program and led the group in celebrating the fifth birthday of Women of the ELCA. She was assisted by Cleve Willers, Leslie Hausmann and Joyce Gettman.

President Cleve Willers closed with a reading, entitled "Celebrate the Feast."

PRIOR TO the meeting, Gene Hansen from the Wayne municipal utilities department spoke on load management to reduce the electrical load during peak times. Hansen said the department is planning to offer consumers control switches for use on central air conditioners.

President Willers opened the business meeting with a devotional study. A letter was read from the Children's Quilt Project thanking the congregation for the quilts sent to them.

A letter also was read from the Martin Luther Home Enterprises, Inc., informing the group that they will no longer be able to provide a pickup service due to the rising costs associated with transportation of donated items. They still welcome donations at their stores in Hastings, Omaha and Beatrice.

Christian action reported sending five get well and five sympathy cards. It was announced that Group 1 will have the Lohrberg wedding on March 21.

Members were reminded of church cleaning days on March 30 at 7 p.m. and March 31 at 9 a.m.

County spelling champs

A PHOTO WHICH appeared in the Thursday, March 12 edition of The Wayne Herald incorrectly identified the winners of the Wayne County rural spelling contest which took place March 6 on the Wayne State College campus. First place winner, seated, was Wendy Spahr, daughter of Doug and Connie Spahr and a student at District 15. Wendy spelled "copyright" correctly to capture the top speller award and will now represent Wayne County at the midwest spelling contest slated April 4 in Omaha. Runner-up was Mindy Anderson, standing at left, daughter of Jerry and Edith Anderson and a student at District 25. Third place winner, standing at right, was Carmen Beckmann, daughter of Marlin and Ruth Beckmann and also a student at District 25.

County Fairgrounds, a full schedule of related events including nature walks, arts and crafts fair, quiz bowls, dramatic readings, gospelings, historical parade, local talent showcase, meals, dances and more.

"It will be a full and exciting five days," said Wilwerding. He said many people perceive the Chautauqua as something just for college scholars. "It is not just that," he said, "it will be entertaining and educational for the entire family," he added.

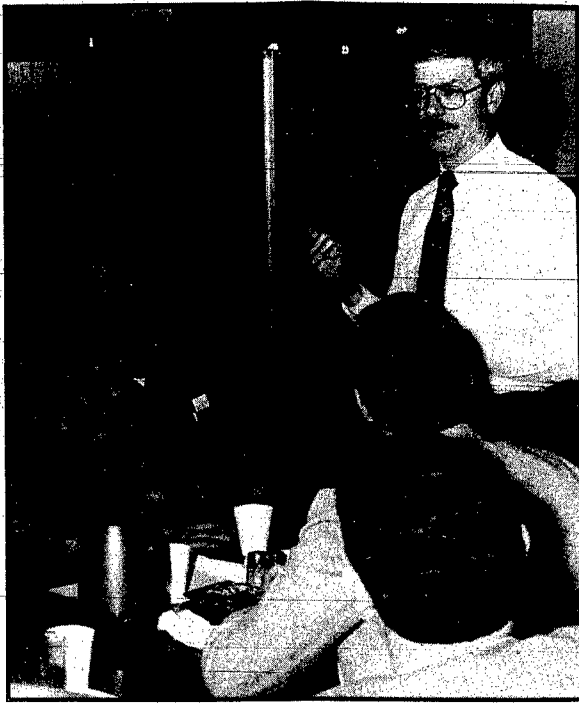

Only two cities in the state are selected to host the Great Plains Chautauqua each year. Besides Wayne the other Nebraska town on the travel tent circuit is Sidney. After Wayne, the Chautauquans move to Pierre, S.D.

Wilwerding said the event should provide another economic boost for the community this summer since it traditionally attracts tourists from a wide area.

Characters on schedule to be a part of the show in Wayne include Douglas, who will be portrayed by Charles Everett Pace, an African-American studies professor at Purdue University; Miss Alcott, portrayed by English professor Anne Bail Howard of the University of Nevada-Reno; Whitman, portrayed by English professor Carol Peterson of Doane College in Crete, Neb.; Nathaniel Hawthorne, portrayed by Douglas Watson, a literature professor at Oklahoma Baptist University; Henry David Thoreau, portrayed by Kevin Radaker who teaches English at Anderson University; Margaret Fuller, played by Laurie James who has written three books about Fuller, and Herman Melville, portrayed by George Fein of the University of North Dakota.

The Wayne Chautauqua Committee has been meeting for over six months organizing and planning for the event. The group meets regularly at the Wayne Chamber of Commerce office. Those interested in additional information, or participation with the committee should contact the chamber office.

STATE SENATOR GERALD CONWAY of Wayne speaks to some local businessmen about the only solution to resolving the tax crisis — a public vote.

be hectic and other crucial issues will be discussed.

ACKNOWLEDGING that the personal property tax problem was brought on by railroad lawsuits that proved the state assessment system unconstitutional, Conway said he believes the new proposal fairly treats all sectors of the state's economy.

He said under it, railroads would pay their fair share along with the farmers and other business people. He said if the banks of high-paid lawyers hired by the railroads want to contest the new proposal in court, there has been talk in the legislature about passing tough new railroad safety restrictions.

Conway was quick to explain that the effort to correct the tax situation was not a tax increase but a redistribution of the tax load.

He said he thinks the proposal is one that most of the voters will find acceptable.

Disabled American Veterans schedule election of officers

Wayne County Chapter #28 of the Disabled American Veterans (DAV) will elect officers for the coming year during a meeting scheduled April 14 at the Wayne Vet's Club.

The March 10 DAV meeting was held in the home of Chris and Verona Bargholz. Chaplain Duane Dolph gave the opening prayer and Commander Elmer Wacker presided at the business meeting. A memorial service was conducted for Gilbert O. Krie.

Chris Bargholz reported on the 1991 bingo party program at the Norfolk Veterans Home and announced the schedule for 1992, including April 6, Sept. 21 and Dec. 8, all at 2 p.m.

The group voted to contribute $100 towards the new bus program at the Norfolk Veterans Home to replace the present bus. The bus is used to transport members of the Norfolk Veterans Home to various area activities.

William Stanton and Dean Nordby reported on various changes in veterans benefits and admissions and care at the VA Medical Center.

picked up things from Lindsay and Lindsay said she's picked up things from Lubberstedt.

"Student teachers are a big benefit because it provides the kids a team atmosphere, where they're getting attention from two teachers instead of one," Lubberstedt said. "It also allows the home teacher to see things from another viewpoint. We share ideas and there's a good flow of information running between us."

Both Wayne State students said the experience has been positive. While Hazen's visit breaks after spring break (she'll return for two weeks after the college semester ends), Lindsay said she's grateful for the opportunity.

"The experience has been a good one," she said. "I have a wonderful class and a wonderful, cooperative teacher. I couldn't ask for a better classroom setting."

First ducks, pheasants and now... chickens

First there was Ducks Unlimited, then Pheasants Forever organized and now there's talk of creating a Chickens Indefinite organization.

With tongues in beak, the Wayne Chicken Show committee has discussed forming a new organization to promote chicken habitat and sell chicken art at an annual banquet.

"We could have great fun with this," said Jane O'Leary, who heads the Chicken Show committee. "The raffle prize could be a 10-gauge chicken hook."

Roger Polt, also a member of the Chicken Committee suggested another chicken organization could be CAD (Chickens Against Drivers). The discussion was held at Wednesday night's meeting of the Chicken Show Committee. Organization continues for the annual chicken show, set this year for July 10 and 11.

All presentations will take place at the Wayne Public Library, located at 410 Main Street, Wayne, Nebraska, from 7:30 to 9:30. The Program Director will open the program and introduce the scholar. The scholar will give a 30-40 minute presentation on the book. Following the scholar's presentation, there will be a 10 minute break for coffee. The group will divide into smaller groups of about 8-10 each. The small groups will discuss the book and the scholar's presentation. There will not be discussion leaders assigned to guide the groups, unless larger than expected numbers attend. Then volunteers may be asked for to lead the next program. The scholar will provide a set of suggested discussion questions for use by the small groups. The small group discussions will last for about 30 minutes. The large group will then reconvene for 20 minutes. The scholar will answer questions raised by the discussion groups. The scholar will make any closing remarks regarding the book. The scholar will submit a written evaluation of the program to the program director.

Local director honored

On March 6 and 7, the Nebraska State Bandmasters Association held their annual convention and clinic on the UNL campus in Lincoln.

At the convention, Brad Weber, band director at Wayne High School, was elected as the state Class B representative for the Bandmasters Association. Along with this, he is currently serving on the executive board appointed NSBA Marching Band Committee.

In the past, Weber has served as an elected official on the Bandmasters Executive Board in the position of secretary and is a past recipient of an NSBA scholarship for graduate studies.

Corrections

Wrong school

In the library article in the Thursday, March 12 edition of The Wayne Herald, Dr. Elaine Kruse, who will be the featured presenter for the Louisa May Alcott discussion, was misidentified as an instructor at Wayne State College. She works at Nebraska Wesleyan University. The Herald apologizes for the mistake.

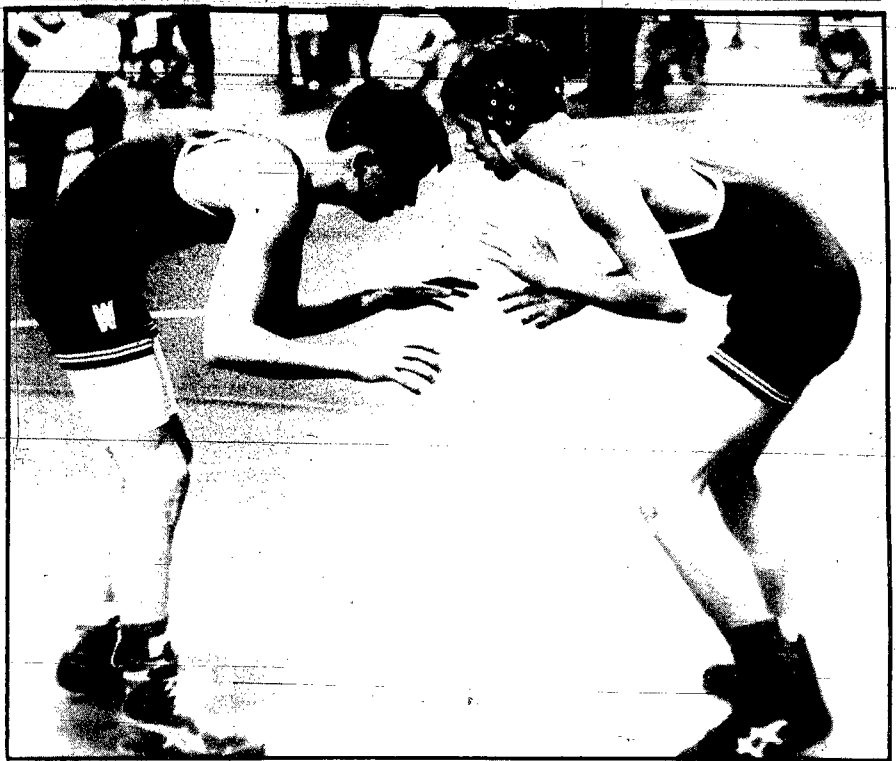

No purchase

In the Monday, March 9 edition of The Wayne Herald, Maxine Olson was incorrectly identified as the buyer of a new vehicle in the Wayne County Courthouse news. The individual buying a new car was Maxine Schwanke. The Herald apologizes for the mistake.

Refund rules loosened

Rules governing who can receive federal dairy refund payments have been relaxed to allow for changes in dairy operations' ownership in cases when herd size or production doesn't increase, the U.S. Department of Agriculture announced. The deadline to apply for a refund is March 16.

Doug Jose, farm management specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, said the refunds are of a special 5 cents per hundred-weight budget-reconciliation assessment on last year's milk production. Dairymen are eligible for a refund if their output didn't increase from 1990 to 1991, he explained.

The assessment increased to 11.25 cents per hundredweight for 1992 output. Producers will be able to apply for a refund on that assessment in 1993, Jose said.

Under the original rules, some operations would have been considered new and thus ineligible for a refund because a person was added or removed from ownership. Now such operations are eligible for refunds, provided production didn't increase and the person added or removed didn't also add to or remove cows from the operation.

However, there are two exceptions to the no-addition-or-subtraction rule; the first states that minor children of an owner who are involved in 4-H, FFA or other educational projects can be added along with a small number of cows. The second says that two individual owners who are married during the refund period can combine their herds without the pooled herd being considered a new operation.

A transfer of milk marketing history will be allowed if all the dairy cattle and equipment are transferred to a family member. However, transfer of land that provides feed no longer is needed as part of the transfer of milk marketing history.

Producers who were denied a refund under the original rule, or who qualify under the no-increased-production clause should contact their local U.S. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office. The deadline for filing a refund request is Monday, March 16.

Researcher studies pigs

How much water does it take to keep a pig happy?

With costs of swine production rising, producers can't afford to overlook the cost of water use in finishing pig management, said Mike Brumm, University of Nebraska swine researcher at the Northeast Research and Extension Center, Concord. Providing pigs with adequate water without wasting a lot of excess water should be a goal, he said.

"What the producers should be concerned about is the amount of water that doesn't go through the pig on the way to the pit, in addition to water availability to the pig," the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources researcher said.

In the first research of its kind, Brumm and Vern Mayrose, Purdue University swine researcher, studied the effects of water flow rates on finishing pig performance. They wanted to determine the minimum flow rate of nipple drinkers before pig performance is affected. The studies were conducted during summer months with no sprinkler cooling of the pigs.

The research indicates that the nipple flow rate should be more than one cup but possibly less than four cups per minute, Brumm said.

Group size should be restricted to no more than 15 head per nipple, he said.

At the slowest flow rate of one cup per minute, in small groups with one nipple drinker per 11 or fewer pigs, the animals compensated by spending more time at the nipple and average daily gain was affected very little, Brumm said.

However, behavioral changes were quite noticeable when the flow rate was restricted to one cup per minute, Brumm said. Aggressive acts and dominance-related incidents increased.

When the flow rate was increased to four cups per minute, aggressive behavior decreased, particularly in the smaller groups. However, at a flow of four cups per minute, a noticeable amount of water was wasted.

In the first four weeks of the experiment, with groups of 16 to 22 pigs per nipple drinker and a flow rate of one cup per minute, average daily gain decreased, but there was minimal long-term performance difference. The researchers concluded that the number of pigs per drinker may be more critical in the early weeks as the social group is forming.

Some swine producers provide up to four quarts of water per minute through nipple drinkers, which is excessive, Brumm said. Many producers simply haven't known how much water is adequate because researchers hadn't previously studied the question.

This research should give producers a better idea about how much water pigs need to perform well, Brumm said. Providing only as much water as pigs need could reduce waste and save some money.

Producers who purchase water through rural water districts pay about $1 per 1,000 gallons of water, Brumm estimated. Disposing of manure from a waste story pit costs about 1 cent per gallon.

Brumm and Mayrose conducted the research as members of the North Central Region's swine management committee. Their findings will be presented at the Midwestern Section of American Society of Animal Science's annual meeting March 23-25 in Des Moines, Iowa. The research was funded by IANR's Agricultural Research Division and Purdue's Agricultural Experiment Station.

High-energy diet best for lowering stress from the cold in feedlot cattle

Switching from high-energy diets to high-roughage diets to minimize cold stress in feedlot cattle is a common practice, but recent University of Nebraska research shows the opposite works best.

Beef Specialist Terry Mader and Research Technologist Jim Dahlquist found that feeding cattle a high-energy diet by increasing the amount of corn in the ration more effectively minimizes weather cold stress than increasing the roughage, or hay, in a diet. Their findings are based on two studies conducted over a two-year period at NU's Northeast Research and Extension Center near Concord.

Mader said the common belief was that since hay takes longer to digest than corn, the heat generated during digestion would help reduce cold stress during cold weather.

"Actually, the opposite is true," Mader said. "Cold stress is minimized by increasing energy intake, not by increasing the amount of roughage."

Corn increases the steer's metabolism after digestion more than hay because it contains more starch and sugar, Mader said. Hay may increase the heat in the rumen during digestion but does little to increase metabolism.

The Institute of Agricultural and Natural Resources team studied the effects of high-energy and high-roughage diets on cattle in wind protected and unprotected feedlots.

Cattle without wind protection benefited most when switched from higher roughage (15 percent hay) to the higher energy (7.5 percent hay) diets during periods of cold stress. The switch had less impact on cattle in protected feedlots where wind chill is less of a factor, Mader said.

In general, cattle in protected areas that were fed a constant high-energy diet performed best in the studies, Mader said.

"Feedlot cattle adapt to their environment rather well," Mader said. "Normally, cattle do not experience significant discomfort until temperatures decrease to zero degrees F., as long as the steer's hair stays dry and winds are relatively calm. Diet changes may need to be made as wind chills approach zero."

Mader and Dahlquist will present their finds at the Midwestern Section of the American Society of Animal Science annual meeting March 23-25 in Des Moines, Iowa. Their research was conducted in cooperation with IANR's Agricultural Research Division.

STATE OF NEBRASKA

WHEREAS, Nebraska agriculture is recognized as the most important single industry to the state's economy; and

WHEREAS, Nebraska's cultural heritage is founded on a strong rural background, the values of which continue to be the basis of our society today; and

WHEREAS, the economic growth of manufacturing, retail sales, and service industries in the state are dependent upon a healthy agricultural community; and

WHEREAS, Nebraska agriculturists are exhibiting the strength, durability and innovation shared by their pioneer forefathers in meeting the challenges and opportunities of today's agricultural economy; and

WHEREAS, it is appropriate for all Nebraska citizens to recognize the significance and appreciate the importance of agriculture's relationship to our state economy and general well-being;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, E. Benjamin Nelson, Governor of the State of Nebraska, under the authority vested in me by Law and in accordance with the established custom, DO HEREBY PROCLAIM the week of March 15th through the 21st, 1992 as throughout the State of Nebraska, and urge all citizens to take due note of the observance.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the Great Seal of the State of Nebraska to be affixed this tenth day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ninety-two.

Attest:

Secretary of State

Governor

Larry Sitzman, Director, NE Department of Ag

Saluting Nebraska ag producers and processors

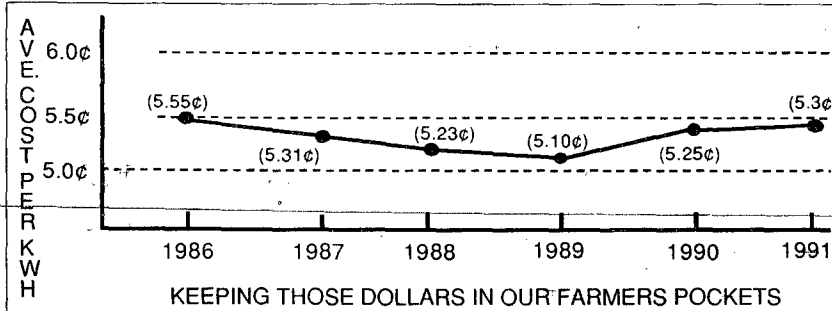

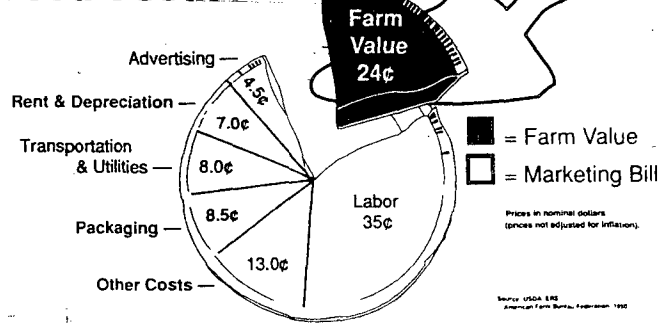

As director of the Nebraska department of Agriculture, it is with great pride that I salute Nebraska producers and processors as suppliers of wholesome and safe food and agricultural products for a growing world.

Our position as international providers is the result of the efforts of families working on farms and ranches which in many instances have been a part of their heritage for generations. Each step in the processing chain also relies on dedicated individuals to ensure the high quality products that consumers around the world have come to expect.

Nebraska is recognized as a dependable supplier of ag commodities and currently ranks fourth in the nation with total ag exports totaling $2.59 billion. We are consistently a top ag exporting state because of our natural resources, which allow us to produce this abundance.

Whether it is our quality meats, grains, value added or industrial use products, Nebraskans can be proud of their role in providing these products to the community of mankind. Let us not forget to say thanks to these dedicated individuals for the bounty we enjoy each day. Please join me in honoring Nebraska's number one industry during National Agriculture Week.

Forage production lists boost during 1991

Nebraska's forage production was worth $900 million in 1991, about the same amount as wheat, milo and soybean production combined, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln forage specialist reports.

Forage production included hay, corn, sorghum, other silages and the grazing value of grasslands based on rental rates, said Bruce Anderson.

"Forage value often fluctuates in the same direction as other agricultural commodities, but tends to remain similar in total value relative to soybeans, wheat and milo," he said.

Hay alone accounted for $422 million of production, nearly twice that of either wheat or milo, the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialist pointed out.

The forage industry produces more than three-fourths of the feed consumed by Nebraska's 2 million beef cows and heifers, 1.5 million calves, 5 million feeder cattle, and thousands of sheep, dairy cattle and horses, he pointed out.

Five Reasons Why Farm Credit Services Is Your Best Ag Lending Source...

1. Experience

You'll find ag lending professionals at Farm Credit Services...experienced, competent credit officers who specialize in ag lending. At Farm Credit, you do business with someone who knows your operation and ag lending!

2. Flexibility

At Farm Credit Services, your loan is customized to fit your individual needs and financial goals. Choose from fixed, adjustable and variable rate loans from the Production Credit Association (PCA) or Federal Land Bank Association (FLBA) with terms from one to 30 years.

3. Service

Time is money, and Farm Credit Services will work with you at one of our convenient office locations. Or, if you'd rather meet over your kitchen table at your ranch or farm, we'll arrange a meeting at your convenience!

4. Competitive Rates

Interest rates are at historically-low levels. You can lock in a competitive fixed rate now while keeping the option to convert to an even lower rate if this downward trend continues.

5. Confidentiality

Many ag operators don't want their financial records shared among multiple lenders. At Farm Credit Services you receive confidential service. And with our lending capacity, you won't have a "correspondent lender" reviewing your financial statements or records.

Conference dates slated

The second annual Child Care Provider's Conference will be held Saturday, March 28 at the Sioux City Convention Center.

The conference will run from 8:15 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. Sue Brown, an Extension Home Economist with University of Nebraska, will be the keynote speaker. Numerous workshops will be presented on topics of particular interest to home day care providers, day care center staff, pre-school staff, home economists and parents. The cost of registration, which includes lunch, is $15 before March 18, and $20 after March 18. Registration forms can be obtained by contact the Cooperative Extension Office, P.O. Box 245, Walthill, 68067, or call 846-5656.

This conference is a cooperative effort of the University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension, South Dakota State University Cooperative Extension, Iowa State University of Cooperative Extension, Child Care Resource Center of Siouxland, Lincoln Family Service Child Care Food Program, Nebraska Department of Social Services and area Child Care Providers.

Workshop set for 4-H'ers with cow/calf projects

A workshop designed for 4-H'ers enrolled in the cow/calf breeding project are encouraged to attend a workshop on March 24 at the Northeast Research and Extension Center near Concord. The workshop will begin at 7 p.m.

Dr. James Gosey, Extension Beef Specialist from the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, will be the featured speaker. The program will center on cow/calf production, with special focus on selection, body condition and breeding.

Dr. Ken Liska, a Wayne veterinarian, will also address herd health. Both presenters will be open for questions after their presentations.

There is no registration fee for the workshop, but pre-registration is desired. Please call the Wayne County office at 375-3310 by March 20 to pre-register.

This session offers an excellent opportunity for 4-H'ers, as well as their parents, to improve their information on cow/calf management.

City takes part in severe weather week

WAYNE - As part of the "Nebraska Severe Weather Awareness Week", March 16-22, the City of Wayne will take part in a tornado warning drill.

The drill will consist of a mock tornado watch shortly after 10 a.m., followed by a mock warning at approximately 10:30 a.m. In the event of an actual severe weather risk, the city will cancel the drill.

Tornado sirens will sound for approximately 60 seconds Wednesday, March 18 at 10:30 a.m.

A tornado signal is a steady, three-minute tone.

City of Wayne announces plans for cost-sharing in alleyways

As in the past, the City of Wayne will pay one-half the cost of either road gravel or crushed rock, plus the necessary grading and filling for alleys, according to Vern Schulz, superintendent of public works.

All that is required for alley improvements is for a property owner to pick up a petition at the city clerk's office, 306 Pearl St., and circulate it throughout their block for signatures. After the petition is returned to the city clerk, the city will begin the necessary blading, filling and replacement of material.

Half the cost for the alley improvement will be billed to the residents signing the petition. The cost to be divided between the residents will run at $110 for crushed rock and $45 for road gravel for a one block distance.

In keeping with city policy, the city will not participate in improvements to closed or dead end alleys other than routine maintenance. Improvements will be made only on through or open alleys for a full block distance, Schulz said.

LADIES AID AND LWML

Ladies Aid and LWML of St. Paul's Lutheran Church met March 11 with eight members, two guests, Mrs. Dean Owens and Mrs. Russell Hall, and Pastor Chris Roepke present. Ivy Junck served as devotions leader and hostess for the meeting. Scripture reading was taken from Isaiah 53:3-6, and a Lenten prayer were read in unison. A hymn, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross" was sung. A poem,

"Consolation," written by Dorothy Gross was read.

The dishes purchased with memorial monies are now in place. The food and craft sale on March 8 was a success and it was voted to sponsor it again next year.

A get well card was sent to D.J. Dunklau. He was hospitalized with pneumonia. Norma Peterson is recuperating at her home following knee surgery. Ivy Junck and Ann Hofeldt visited her at her home. Edith Cook visited Elna Peterson and Arthur, both are living at the Wayne Care Centre.

The spring workshop will be held April 21 at Immanuel in Laurel. Nancy Junck, Christian growth leader, read "Shut-Ins," "Where Are You, God" and a Lenten litany. Pastor Roepke was in charge of the Bible study, taken from 1 Cor. 1:4-7. The topic was on Paul's writings concerning God's love for us and His grace. The meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer and the common table prayer.

Viola Junck will be the April hostess.

A-TEEN CLUB

The A-Teen Home Extension Club met with Mrs. Lindy Anderson on Wednesday with 11 members and one guest, Karen Mattee, present. Mrs. Walter Fleer, president, opened the meeting and led in reciting the Flag Salute and Club Collect. For-roll call, members told of how they made use of the lesson on household waste management. Mrs. Louis Gosch read the report of the previous meeting and gave the treasurer's report.

Mrs. Gosch was honored with the birthday song and the anniversary song was sung for Mrs. James Robinson. The group also sang "Danny Boy," commemorating St. Patrick's Day.

An invitation was received for the club to attend the observance of the 65th anniversary of the Highland Women's Extension Club in June. Mrs. Harold Wittler will be the club's environment leader. Cultural arts and the county tour were discussed. Members were reminded of "Bake and Take" days, March 27 and 28.

Material on "Living Trusts and Alternatives for Living Wills" was distributed and will be discussed at a later meeting. Mrs. Wm. Thoendel received the hostess prize. The remainder of the afternoon was spent playing cards with prizes going to Karen Mattee, Mrs. Harold Wittler, Mrs. James Robinson and Lindy Anderson.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Wm. Thoendel on April 8.

20TH CENTURY CLUB

Six members of the 20th Century Club met at Petals and Paints in Norfolk on Tuesday for a craft lesson and worked with decorating sweatshirts.

Mrs. George Carstens, president, conducted a short business meeting. Cheer cards were sent and plans were finalized for their tour on Monday, April 13, when they plan to go to Elgin and tour the Plantation House. They also plan to tour the Blackburn Manufacturing Co. at Neligh.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Rechtermann and Mrs. Bill Fenske spent the March 6 weekend visiting relatives in Missouri. They were Friday overnight guests in the Mr. and Mrs. John Rechtermann home at La-Plata, Mo. They also visited the ladies' mother and brother, Mrs. Anna Buelter and the Emanuel Buelters at St. Louis, Mo. En route home Sunday they were overnight guests of Joe Rechtermann at Bellevue.

Mrs. James Nelson entertained for Bethany's fifth birthday March 6. Guests were Jamie Sellin, Monica Marquardt, Philip Schmiel and Brian Walker.

Pork producers hold area meeting

The Northeast Pork Producers will sponsor an area meeting at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, March 30 at the Steele's Outback in Emerson.

Guest speakers will be Mike Brumm of Northeast Research Center, Concord, with topics of "record-keeping" and "price trends" and Dr. James Albrecht of Emerson Tri-County Vets on "local animal health update." Area hog producers and interested persons are invited to attend.

Training of trainers seminar scheduled at Wayne State

March 16-18 are the dates set for the "Training of Trainers" seminar, which will be held at Wayne State College. This seminar is part of a federally funded drug prevention grant that is coordinated by Goldenrod Hills in Wisner.

Communities involved in the grant are sending two to four people through this seminar, which will certify them to teach a special parenting course when they return home. The course is titled "Setting The Limits ... Keeping Your Kids Alcohol and Drug Free." It is a research based course which includes role modeling, talking with your children about drugs, setting limits and suggested guidelines for alcohol use after the age of 21.

The "Training of Trainers" seminar is taught by Dave Hunnicutt, Education Director and Steve McElravy, Assistant Director at the Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Council of Nebraska in Lincoln. Trish Frevert, Drug Free Project Coordinator at Goldenrod Hills and two Head Start teachers from the Norfolk Center will attend the seminar.

This is just one of the four programs available to communities that are a part of the Northeast Nebraska Intervention/Prevention Project. If you would like any further information, please contact Corrie Kieley at Goldenrod Hills.
