DURING A PERFORMANCE THURSDAY night at the Wayne Music Boosters Soup Supper, Wayne High School students Sara Granberg and Krista Reemer sing "Matchmaker, Matchmaker" from the musical "Fiddler on the Roof." Wayne High will be staging the musical April 3-4. Tickets for the show are now on sale.

Wayne High stages 'Fiddler'

Wayne High School will stage the musical "Fiddler on the Roof" on Friday and Saturday, April 3-4 in the Wayne High School lecture hall.

The setting for this memorable musical is Anatevka, a small peasant town in Czarist Russia.

Tevya, played by Jason Polt, a dairyman, and his wife Golde, played by Kim Imdieke, and their five daughters, Tzeitel (Krista Reemer), Hodel (Kerry McCue), Chava (Sara Granberg), Sprinze (Samantha Thompson), and Bielke (Jennifer Hank) are one of the hard-working families of the Jewish community living as their forefathers did, observing the ways handed down to them, following the dictates of "tradition."

Tevya, a pious man, tries to raise his five daughters according to the ways of the good book. However, the old ways no longer suffice and Tevya and his friends have to become part of the changing world around them.

AFTER A POGROM which takes place at the wedding of one of Tevya's daughters, the community realizes that their old way of life is changed forever and set out to find new lives in new lands, taking with them their few meager possessions and abiding faith in God.

Other leading cast members are Aaron Geiger (Motel, fiancé of Tzeitel), Sam Wilson (Perchik, fiancé of Hodel), Mike Eckhoff (Fyedka, fiancé of Chava), Matt Chapman (Rabbi), J.D. O'Leary (Avrahm), Scott Day (Mendel), Andy Nelsen (Reb Mordcha), Jason Pentico, (Lazar the butcher), Kathy Gulliam (Yente, the matchmaker), and last but not least Jennifer Schmitz as The Fiddler. There are many more names in the cast. Please join us and see who they are and share in one of the great musical comedies of our era.

TICKETS ARE on sale now at the high school. You can contact music director Kathryn Ley or one of the cast members. There is reserved seating; however, you may buy tickets the night of the performance. The high school is recommending that people buy tickets in advance.

The musical is orchestrated by Wayne High students and community musicians. Deneil Parker is the pianist.

"Fiddler on the Roof" is based on Sholem Aleichem stories by special permission of Arnold Perl. The book is by Joseph Stein, music by Jerry Block and lyrics by Sheldon Harnick.

Wayne gets drug grant

Wayne has been selected as one of eight communities included in a federally funded drug prevention grant. One program involved in this grant is a special parenting course.

Individuals from Elgin, Orchard, Pierce, Ponca, Randolph, Verdigr, Walthill and Wayne attended a three day seminar this past week.

"Setting the Limits ... Keeping Your Kids Alcohol and Drug Free," will soon be offered to all parents in Wayne. March 16-18 individuals from Wayne attended a "Training of Trainers" seminar at Wayne State. These people have been trained to teach the six to eight hour course to other Wayne parents.

THOSE FROM Wayne receiving training include: Kathy Mitchell, Dennis Mitchell, Lu Ellingson and Jill Pickinpaugh. They can now present this research based course, which includes role modeling, talking with your children about drugs, setting limits and suggested guidelines for alcohol use after the age of 21.

The "Training of Trainers" seminar is taught by Dave Hunnicut, education director, and Steve McElravy, assistant director at the Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Council of Nebraska in Lincoln. It is one of four programs Wayne is receiving through the Northeast Nebraska Intervention/Prevention Project coordinated by Goldenrod Hills Community Services in Wisner.

Role of kindergarten changing

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

When are 4, 5 and 6-year-olds ready to start school?

That depends on whom you ask. According to a Nebraska law, children 5-years-old or older by Oct. 15 may begin kindergarten. But the decision of when to start a child's formal education is ultimately up to the parents.

"I tell the parent that if they're uncomfortable with sending a child to school when they're five, to do what they think is best," says Wayne Elementary Principal Dave Lutt.

Under the law, elementary educators cannot advise parents when a child can start school. In addition, public schools cannot screen children prior to being enrolled. The law, however, does not apply to parochial schools.

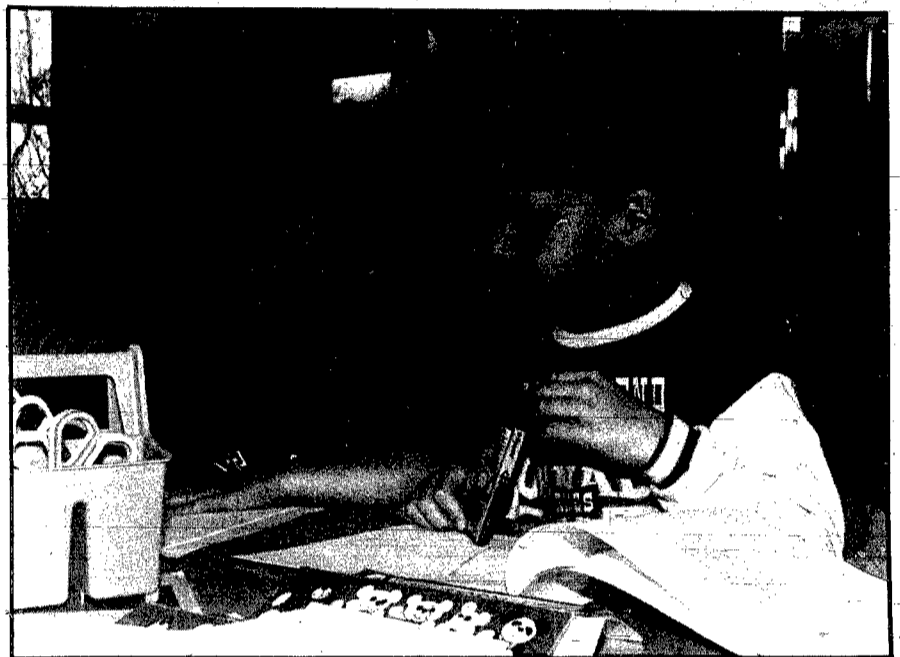

MARILYN MUDGE, an interim assistant professor at Wayne State, suggests that a 5-year-old is probably ready for school.

"A good kindergarten meets a variety of needs levels," she says. "Kindergarten children are given a lot of choices to do a lot of things. One way we know they learn is by watching others. If we give them a chance to see what others are doing, they'll try the same things."

A child's education begins early in life, Mudge says. At three months, baby squeaks are the first attempts at using language. As the child gets older, the noises and scribbles children make are their first attempts at communication. It's a simple matter of progression.

That's one reason why schools have kindergarten round-up, Ley says. During that time some children get their first exposure to school. For others, exposure begins if they're in pre-school.

Both Lutt and Mudge recommend having children in a pre-school. "The big thing we see is that some children have not spent much time away from their parents," Lutt says. "Pre-school is an excellent way to break a child away from parents. Leaving the child with a relative or in a day care is another way. If that happens in a child's early years, they're not as likely to have that emotional breakdown their first few days of school."

WAYNE KINDERGARTNERS Keith Dickes and Ben Alleman (from right) share notes during a recent writing project. Wayne Elementary kindergartners were taking part in. This is just one example of things incoming kindergartners can look forward to doing.

ACCORDING TO published reports, most recent reports on the status of American education calls for children to be exposed to day care and pre-school settings prior to starting kindergarten. That's one reason why the federal government has increased funds for the Head Start program. Just recently, Wayne was one of the recipients of a Head Start. Lutt says eventually, the schools will be required to offer pre-school programs.

"By the time children go to kindergarten, it's incredible what they know," Mudge says. "They know sentence structure, they know numbers and they're aware of the tenses of verbs, although they don't always use those tenses correctly."

"There's not a kid around who can't read the word Coke or McDonald's. If you give them experiences and talk with them about things, it helps them learn through progression."

Round-ups:

The kindergarten round-ups in Wayne and Carroll are planned in April.

The 1 1/2 hour long program in Carroll is April 1 at 9 a.m.

In Wayne, the round-up will be April 3. Students with the last names beginning with A-K are to register at 9 a.m. Children with the last names of L-Z are to register at 1 p.m.

SOME EXAMPLES Mudge cites is by using every day experiences to enhance a child's education. For instance, you can ask the child to get out the forks for the dinner table for each person who will be eating. If there's four people eating, the child will count out a fork for Mommy, Daddy, a sibling and themselves. Then you ask the child how many forks that is and the child will count them out—four. The same can be done with plates. You can ask the child what shape a plate is and the child can tell you round. The same is true with colors and textures.

In the Wayne schools, 12 to 15 youngsters' parents held them back for a year prior to starting kindergarten because the parent felt the child wasn't ready, Lutt says of data compiled over the last three years.

"I say parents should send their child to kindergarten if he or she meets the requirements," Mudge says. "Kindergarten is the place where the student gets ready for school. We have teachers who accept kids at their own levels."

...Parents need to let the child know that it's OK for them to make squiggles while other classmates are writing words. Schools and parents should encourage the child's growth."

Entry forms in today's Herald

Entry blanks for the annual Wayne Lions Club amateur talent contest appear in today's edition of The Wayne Herald.

The contest is slated for Sunday, April 5 at 1:30 p.m. in the Ley Theatre on the Wayne State College campus in the Brandenburg Education Building.

Show features Wayne woman

By Mark Crist

...Vicky Skokan is a survivor. That's because she's a fighter.

Skokan, who works in the business office at Wayne State, is one of a number of people to be featured on an upcoming program on KTIV. "Profiles in Survival" airs April 17 from 8-10 p.m. Skokan is featured because she survived a battle with cancer.

"The first words any cancer patient will tell you is 'why the hell me?'" she says. "I was had (upon learning she had cancer). All I can remember is how terrible I was to Dr. Bob. I was limp. When you learn you have cancer, you just go into shock."

Skokan had cancer of the tonsils, a rare disease for a woman to have. In fact, her cancer was so rare that the physicians who treated her in Sioux City and the ear, nose and throat specialist who visits Providence Medical Center, had never treated it before.

IT WAS NOV. 15, 1986, the night before Skokan was scheduled to go to Minneapolis, Minn. to take part in a college function. Around 3 a.m., she woke up and found that she was bleeding from the mouth. One of her tonsils had unknowingly burst and she had no idea what was wrong. She said she hadn't had any pain in her throat and at no point in her life can she remember having tonsillitis.

A month later, she decided to see Dr. Bob Benthack, her family's physician, to have him determine what to do with a lump on her neck she had for the year previous. She was then advised to visit the ear, nose and throat specialist who visited Providence Medical Center. Less than a month later, the specialist removed her remaining tonsil and the lump in her neck.

While the lump was benign, the tonsil wasn't. "They gave me all the hope they could but they weren't sure hope would be enough," she says.

Wayne High participates in program

Wayne High School has announced that it will participate in the 1991-92 National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) which will provide the country with information on the mathematics, reading and writing performance of American youth.

Nationwide, approximately 2,400 schools and 150,000 students will participate in the assessment, which is based on random sampling procedures. NAEP, which first began assessing nationally representative samples of 9-, 13- and 17-year-old students in 1969, has issued more than 200 "report cards" chronicling trends over time in 11 subject areas.

The reports, which do not identify participating students, schools, school districts or states, represent the yield from the only ongoing project to monitor what America's elementary, middle-school and high school students know and can do. Recent assessments also have included fourth, eighth and 12th grade students.

NAEP is mandated by Congress, directed and funded by the National Center for Education Statistics at the U.S. Department of Education, and currently administered by Educational Testing Service of Princeton, N.J. Data are collected by Westat, Incorporated, of Rockville, Md.

AFTER A MONTH of radiation treatment (she was scheduled to only receive 15 treatments), doctors told her after her 13th session that she had to have 15 more. She finished treatments by March 20, 1987.

Despite the fact that cancer of the tonsil may not seem like a life threatening disorder, doctors gave her little chance to live due to her age and the fear that the disease had spread.

"Dr. L.B. McNealy told me I had to look at it in a positive fashion," Skokan says. "But it was a disease they had never worked with."

Despite the diagnosis, Vicky kept working until the last two weeks of treatments. She says at that point, she was too tired to continue working.

Today, completely recovered, she says 98 percent of beating cancer is maintaining a positive attitude. Five years after her bout, she's just starting to be able to talk about it.

"I can get real emotional," she says.

Due to her treatments, she has lost her sense of taste and there are certain foods she can't eat. In addition, she has no saliva glands and she has to drink water on a regular basis. But she's alive.

"They call me their miracle patient," she says.

Wayne man on Stater

Berry is a senior journalism major and art minor. Berry is also a 2nd Lieutenant in the Army National Guard.

The Wayne Stater is the student-run college newspaper that has grown in audience and advertising revenue since the fall of 1991, according to faculty advisor, Maureen Williams.

"The newspaper is a workshop of the journalism curriculum and has two main goals for the semester," Williams says. "They include opening the program up to other academic disciplines and viewpoints, and trying to increase quality control of the paper."

The Wayne Stater has a circulation of 4,100 throughout the campus, area businesses and subscribers.

Nebraska state arboretum honoring three persons

Three Nebraskans will be recognized for their contributions to tree planting and the environment March 28 at the Nebraska Statewide Arboretum's annual awards ceremony, Art Ode, arboretum director, announced.

The awards will be presented at a noon luncheon at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln East Campus Union.

Those receiving awards are:

•Mrs. Gilbert McMillion of Lincoln, who will receive The Tree Planters State Award in memory of her husband Gilbert McMillion, former biology professor and arboretum curator at Union College in Lincoln. This award is given for an outstanding administrative contribution to tree planting.

•Marvin Bichel of Wakefield, former biology professor and arboretum curator at Nebraska Wesleyan University in Lincoln, who will receive the Johnny Applesseed

Award. This award is given to a person who exemplifies the gentle nature and determined spirit of the pioneer tree planter.

•Lola Leu of Hayes Center, who will receive the President's Citation in recognition of her long-time support of the Statewide Arboretum, and for her service as a master flower show judge and Blue Star Chairwoman of the Federated Garden Clubs of Nebraska.

The Nebraska Statewide Arboretum is a membership organization dedicated to establishing arboreta across Nebraska, and to environmental education and community beautification. For more information on the luncheon or membership, call (402) 472-2971 on weekdays. The Statewide Arboretum is part of the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources with offices in Thompson Library on the UNL East Campus.

Softball team edges USD

The Wayne State women's softball team came from behind to defeat the University of South Dakota, 7-6 at the College Field in Wayne, Friday afternoon in the first game of a double-header.

The Wildcats went into the bottom of the seventh inning down by two at 6-4 before they rallied, scoring the winning run with bases loaded and two out. Dee Henningsen scored the winning run when USD's pitcher threw a wild pitch.

WSC tied the game on a wild pitch just two batters earlier. Michele Reinhardt was at the plate when the wild pitch that scored Henningsen occurred.

The Wildcats finished with seven runs on 11 hits, but Dan Pollard's crew committed five errors and left 10 on base while USD had six runs on eight hits and one error. Kelly Sheaff was credited with the pitching victory after going the distance.

Reinhardt proved to be the big stick for the Wildcats after hitting a pair of doubles and a single while Henningsen and Marti Hunt each laced a pair of singles. Jenny Reuland smacked a double while Jill Gengler, Alex Ross and Carla Gilbertson each singled.

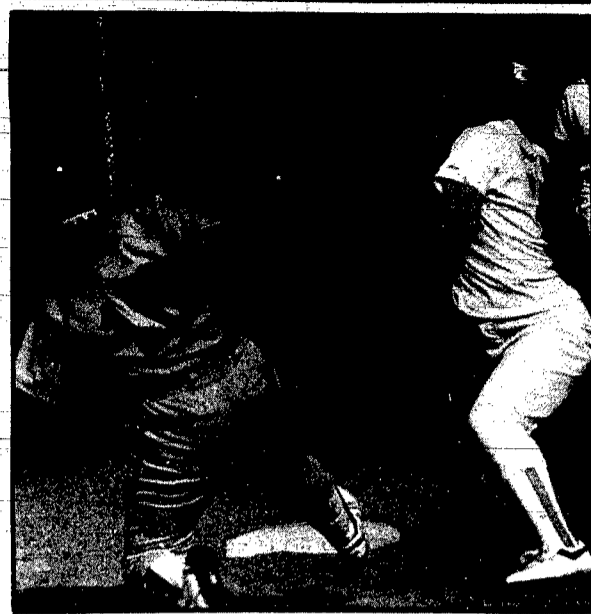

The 9-7 Wildcats had just one lead in the game and that was the game winner as USD had earlier built a 4-0 advantage.

Winside to hold summer rec meeting

There will be a meeting of the Winside Summer Recreation Committee on Tuesday in the high school library at 7:30 p.m. All parents of youth involved in summer activities are encouraged to attend.

At the last meeting the resignation of Mike Miller as committee president was accepted and Teri Bowers was selected to fill the vacancy. Terry Thies was selected as vice president.

Age for youth to play T-Ball this year will be those going into first and second grade. Those going into third grade can play baseball or softball. Applications are being taken for a softball coach for girls ages 14-16 and 18. Contact Bowers if interested at 286-4845.

Special Olympics athletes fare well

The Wayne Area IV basketball competition for Special Olympics was held at the Fremont Senior High School last week with three Wayne representatives doing very well.

Kali Corbit, Heath Corbit and Marla Carmichael participated in the skills division which involved four different categories: field goal shooting, speed passing, dribbling and rebounding.

Kali earned first place honors in her category after a composite score of 42 while Heath, also earned top honors in his category with a 43. Marla earned runner-up honors following her composite score of 36.

These three Special Olympic athletes have qualified with their showing in Fremont, for the State Special Olympic Meet held at Creighton University in Omaha in May.

The state meet will attract 2500 participants as well as 2500 volunteers and will take place May 20-24. The three are coached by Kecia Corbit.

Sports Medicine Center announces plans to double time of Dr. Brown

The Sports Medicine Center, an Omaha-based medical practice that conducts orthopedic clinics at Providence Medical Center and serves Wayne State College sports teams, has announced plans to double the clinic time of David E. Brown, M.D.

Dr. Brown, a board-certified orthopedic surgeon, has served as team orthopedist for Wayne State athletics since 1988 and has staffed the Providence clinic one day a month since 1990. The new schedule will bring him to Wayne every other week.

"Our experience in Wayne—both in the community and at the college, has been positive in every respect," Dr. Brown said. "The response of patients and the medical community here in Wayne tells us that we're in the right place with services that definitely are needed.

Increasing my time here will enable us to build on the close working relationships we have with Providence Medical Center, Wayne area physicians and Wayne State coaches, athletes and students," he concluded.

Randall D. Neumann, M.D., also of the Sports Medicine Center and a veteran of two years at the Providence clinic, will staff a new clinic in Norfolk every other week. The new clinic is located in the Norfolk Medical Group building at 900 Norfolk Avenue.

Like the Wayne clinic, the Norfolk facility will focus on prevention, diagnosis, medical treatment and outpatient surgery for sports-related injuries.

The success of the Wayne clinic provided the impetus for the new Norfolk outreach effort, according to Sports Medicine Center administrator Patrick Fahey.

"We feel very much at home in Wayne," Fahey said. "Clinic days are busy here, with Dr. Brown seeing patients in the morning, performing outpatient surgery in the afternoon and spending as much time as is needed with Wayne State athletes.

"Our goal in opening the Norfolk clinic," he explained, "is to make these kinds of health care services as accessible and convenient for residents of Norfolk and surrounding communities as they are for Wayne area residents."

Doris Marotz, club president, opened the meeting with members singing "Happy Little Club." The secretary and treasurer reports were given. Lajeanne Marotz, reading leader, reported on personal property tax.

Veryl Jackson, thrust committee, gave a report and handed out information on recycling. Lura Stoakes, health and safety leader, read an article on broccoli and cancer. The county tour to Omaha April 22 and an August club tour were discussed.

A letter from the Center Circle Club was read. An invitation was read from the Hoskins Highland Women's Club 55th anniversary on June 11 at Mrs. Arnold Wittler's home.

Money makers was five cents if going on the county tour, 10 cents if not. Verna Miller gave the lesson, "Working With an Attorney."

The next meeting will be Wednesday, April 15 at the Stop Inn with Veryl Jackson hostess.

SCHOLARSHIP MEETING

A meeting of the Winside Scholarship Foundation will be held Monday, March 30 in the Winside Stop Inn at 7:30 p.m. All current and potential new members are invited to attend. Committee chairmen need to have their committee members list updated.

Anyone wanting to become a "lifetime charter member" of the Foundation has until March 31 to do so by making a $100 or more contribution. To date over $10,500 has been donated to the foundation, which makes scholarships to Winside graduates to further their education.

MILLER BENEFIT

AAL Branch 1960 will host a co-ed volleyball tournament on Saturday, March 28 and Sunday, March 29 for Mrs. Kyle (Tabitha) Miller. This benefit will help pay medical costs incurred for a blood disorder. Any teams interested in entering the tournament should contact Joni Jaeger at 286-4553 or Tami Hoffman at 286-4573. Cost is $25 per team.

There will be a concession stand at the volleyball tournament. Anyone who would like to help in the stand should call Donna Marotz at 565-4449. The tournament will be held in the Winside high school gym.

SWIM LESSONS

The Winside summer recreation committee will again be offering summer swimming lesson at the Norfolk YMCA for youth ages 3 and up. Lessons will be June 29 through July 9, Monday through Thursday. Transportation will be provided. Letters with all details will be given to school children in the near future. Anyone with questions can contact Mrs. Gloria Lessman at 286-4260.

SENIOR CITIZENS

Twenty-three Winside area senior citizens met last Monday for a St. Patrick's Day party of games and cards. Barb Leapley was hostess. The next meeting will be today (Monday) in the American Legion Hall at 2 p.m. All area seniors are invited to attend.

WEBELOS

The Webebo Cub Scouts met Tuesday at St. Paul's Lutheran Church and worked on their religious badge with Pastor Jeffrey Lee. Zeke Brummels served treats. They will meet there against next week. Jeremy Jaeger will bring treats.

Drug Awareness Day

Winside residents invited to program

Leigh Fuhrman, counselor at Winside School, invites parents and other residents of the community to attend a morning lecture featuring Bill Essex of Indiana on Tuesday, March 24, which has been designated Drug Awareness Day in Winside.

Essex, a former undercover narcotics agent and advisor to President Bush's White House Commission for a Drug Free America, will be speaking to students in grades six through 12.

Essex has also authored several books, is a featured speaker at the annual PRIDE International Convention, is a founding member of Americans for Substance Abuse

Prevention and Partners Against Drug Abuse, has made numerous television appearances, and is the founder of a national association for education service called ESSEX (Every Student Should Expect Excellence).

ESSEX WILL be speaking in the high school gym from 8:40 to 10:40 a.m. on the topic, "Peers, Parents and Heros."

Following this session, there will be a short break before students divide into individual group workshops of their choice.

After lunch, the Woodbury County K-9 dogs from Sioux City will demonstrate their talents.

The remainder of the afternoon will be spent watching drug awareness videos and discussing the activities and information.

STUDENTS in grades one through five will hear Scott Ellis of Lincoln present a program in the morning on "Doctor Zooker, Drug and Alcohol, Dog and Pony."

Elaine Rump, school nurse, has been working with the elementary youth using games and models to discuss drugs and alcohol prevention.

The March 24 program is Winside's kick off for National Drug Awareness Month in April.

'Ag in the Classroom'
Scholarships Available from the Lower Elkhorn NRD

For the past eight years, Nebraska's Ag in the Classroom Program has sponsored summer workshops for elementary and secondary teachers. This summer the three graduate credit-hour workshops will be held in Holdrege. The Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District is now accepting applications from educators in the 15 county Northeast Nebraska district for full tuition scholarships.

Teachers may attend the workshop in Holdrege beginning June 14. The field experiences and classroom experiences will be covered in two weeks, then students will return on July 14 for individual presentations.

The workshops provide teachers with innovative and creative ways to incorporate the food and fiber system into their curriculum. Through field experiences, classroom demonstrations, presentations and experiments, the participants gain first-hand knowledge of the system from source to consumer.

Teachers who would like to apply for the full tuition scholarships should contact the Lower Elkhorn NRD in Norfolk at 371-7313 for an application form. The application deadline is April 10.

For more information on the Ag in the Classroom Program, contact the program coordinator, Ellen Hellerich, in Lincoln at 421-4400 or the Lower Elkhorn NRD.

CARDS OF THANKS

WE WOULD like to thank everyone for the expressions of sympathy and caring upon the loss of our wife, mother and sister. We are truly grateful. The entire family of Bernadine Schmolz. M23

WE WANT to thank all the kind people who remembered us with cards on our 40th anniversary. Your thoughtfulness helped make our anniversary a special day. Arvid and Willadene Malmberg. M23

THANK YOU to all my friends and relatives for all the beautiful flowers, cards and visits while I was in the hospital. Thank you to Pastor Lee, and Pastor Fale for their prayers and visits. A special thank you to the Lutheran Hospital's doctors and nurses for their excellent and loving care. God bless you all. -Erv Jaeger. M23

WORDS cannot express the sorrow and emptiness we feel at the loss of our mother, sister, grandmother and great grandmother, but the outpouring of love from many friends and family has been tremendous. We, the family, want to thank everyone who let us know how much Marian was loved. We will miss her greatly, but our good memories and those of her friends will comfort us in time. Gone from our sight but never our memories. Gone from our touch but never our hearts. The family of Marian Hoffman, Bob, Marlene, Pam, Mike, Tom, Brenda, Ben, Missy and Jake. M23

THE FAMILY of Esther Peterson thanks all who have been such a help to hear: to Pastor Duane Marburger and members of Concordia Lutheran Church, Concord, and to Pastor Kenneth Marquardt, Laurel, for ministering to her. To family and friends who so faithfully visited her. To Dr. Dave Felber, Sister Gertrude and Providence Medical Center staff, Wayne, for their excellent care, to the staff of Hillcrest Care Center, Laurel, for their special care. M23

I WOULD like to thank the Logan Creek chapter of Pheasants Forever for the print I won at the annual banquet. Tom D. Anderson. M23

THANKS TO everyone for the cards, visits, calls and food brought in after my ankle surgery. It was all very much appreciated. Don Frink. M23
