County board slates hearing to discuss JDC

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

The Wayne County Commissioners have set a public hearing for Tuesday, April 7 at 2 p.m. to discuss the future of the Wayne County Juvenile Detention Center.

At the April 7 meeting, commissioners may determine Wayne County's involvement as hosts of the facility while developing a new interlocal agreement. The commissioners opted not to vote on the issue at Tuesday's special meeting on the advise of Wayne County Attorney Michael Pieper. He suggested that the county board hold a public hearing.

The board's decision to schedule a hearing comes on the heels of a meeting last Friday in Norfolk when commissioners and supervisors from the 23 governing bodies involved in the current agreement voted to set up a new governing board of representatives from counties involved in the interlocal agreement.

IF ESTABLISHED, the new governing board would oversee JDC operations similarly to the way Region IV is governed. They would also hire their own administrator and the Wayne County Sheriff's office would be relocated from its current site, which is inside the JDC.

"I was pleased with the response Friday," said David Lynn, a consultant with David M. Griffith Associates of York, who conducted the study. "We know now what direction people would like to see this go."

If Wayne County approves the measure, the system for governing the Wayne County JDC will be in the hands of the governing board beginning July 1. The regional board would also be responsible for setting up a new juvenile center in the unforeseen future. Lynn said Friday that he expects that time to be three to five years.

ACCORDING TO Lynn, who conducted a study of the Wayne County JDC and presented it Friday, Tuesday's meeting was a necessity so that funds can be reserved through the Juvenile Justice Advisory Committee. That committee meets Friday, April 3 in Lincoln. If that committee approves the funds, the state's crime commission will have the final say, but Lynn believes they will approve the funding.

"We need to have some sort-of long-term plan for juvenile detention in northeast Nebraska," he told the board. "... We need to let the juvenile justice commission know that the Wayne County Board is serious."

The study of the Wayne County JDC was conducted after the Wayne County Board voted 2-1 to withdraw its funding and site support for the JDC in November. If nothing else is done, it will close June 30, 1992.

FOUR YOUNGSTERS WERE IN THIS CAR Tuesday when it went over a five foot embankment in the Dairy Queen parking lot. According to Wayne Police, the youngsters apparently slipped the vehicle into gear and it rolled down a hill into the lot. Fortunately, no one was hurt in the incident.

Accident gives good scare

An accident Tuesday in the Dairy Queen parking lot didn't result in any injuries but it gave four Wayne youngsters a pretty good scare.

The children, ages 6, 3, 2 and 1, were left unattended in a parked vehicle belonging to Joni Woldt of Wayne. The accident occurred Tuesday at 12:40 p.m.

According to Wayne Police reports, the car was shut off and parked in an alley north of Dairy Queen. Wayne Patrolman Marlin Chinn said one of the children apparently slipped the vehicle into gear and it rolled through two residential yards before coming to rest after going over a five foot embankment into the north edge of the Dairy Queen parking lot.

THERE WERE no injuries reported in the incident. According to the report, three children were not using seat belts. Chinn said the 1-year-old was in a car seat and restraints were used.

No charges were filed in the incident. Chinn said that Woldt was cited for not having the vehicle registered.

Damage to the vehicle was limited to the undercarriage, but Chinn said there was no body damage reported.

Schools' faculty add bite to bark

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Teachers in the Wayne Middle School now have a little bite to their bark. That's because they now have a way of enforcing the rules in the student handbook.

Don Koenig, speaking on behalf of the middle school faculty, said teachers were running into problems disciplining students who disobeyed student handbook rules. Because of those problems, the teachers instituted a detention policy effective at the start of the spring semester.

"What we had wasn't working," he said. "So we took the rules already outlined in the student handbook and put some penalties for misbehavior behind them."

UNDER THE former structure, individual teachers disciplined students but were limited in what they could do. Since each teacher had their own form of discipline, there was no continuity in correcting students on broken rules.

Since the start of the new system, students and parents have been informed of the change. The school sent out letters to all middle school parents March 20. When students are held after school for detention, they will be given a form they will have to take home to be signed by the parents and returned to the school.

According to one teacher, parents have overwhelmingly approved of the new program.

"My dad said it's about time," one student, who wished to remain anonymous, said. "If I get in trou-

Life, for the most part, has always been good to Weldon Mortenson, a retired farmer who cared for his family the best he could. But at age 86, things have changed.

Mortenson suffers from a rare disorder doctors have been hesitant to diagnose. He's seen local doctors for his rash-like disorder, he's gone to the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. and he's traveled countless times to Omaha to see skin specialists there. Nothing has worked.

Answers he's received about his condition have been few and far between. The only thing physicians have been able to come up with is that his skin problems are the result of chemical use earlier in life.

"I always thought I was progressive but I never thought I was one to carry a banner," he says. "If I was well today, though, I

IN THE LAST three years, Mortenson has broken out with the rash-like symptoms 24 times. He has used various medications — none of which have worked — and he has had, at least, three blood transfusions because his white blood cell count falls and lowers his immune system to the point he can't fight infections, a condition which fits what specialists have called immune suppression.

He first discovered the rash three years ago after returning from a fishing trip near Pierce. At first, he thought it might be Lyme disease — a disease transmitted to humans from ticks that makes the infected area break out and creates or increases debilitating arthritic-like pain — but doctors told him that wasn't it. At first, timing outbreaks were predictable. Today they're more frequent and more severe.

The outbreaks begin with a raised bump with a white center, similar to a pimple; then they progress and spread. When Mortenson gets sick, he gets nauseated, his arthritic pain increases and he can't eat or sleep. When the condition flares up, he wants to itch it but scratching the affected areas only worsens the condition.

MORTENSON BLAMES his condition on chemicals he used as a farmer.

"I never used to agree with some of these activist groups but I'm starting to see things a little differently, now," he says.

The first indication doctors gave him that his condition was chemically related was after he had a second bone marrow test. That test showed foreign chemicals in his blood stream.

According to a published report presented at one of Wayne State College's Chemical Conferences, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and state governments continue to allow the widespread marketing of toxic pesticides, assuming that economic and social benefits outweigh debilitating risks. While laws have stiffened with farm chemical usage, Mortenson attributes his condition to sprays he used on hogs and cattle, and chemicals he used in fields.

While Mortenson says he cannot pinpoint more than one chemical he used in his operations, he does know he used DDT, the same chemical found in Agent Orange. The use of DDT, however, has become almost non-existent, due to stiffer regulations.

OFFICIALS WITH the Nebraska Department of Agriculture's agricultural statistics office say they have little documentation to indicate how Nebraska's laws rank in regulating the use of farm chemicals. But Mortenson says in research he's done, Nebraska ranks at the bottom of states which regulate chemicals used in agricultural production.

While it's possible Mortenson's condition might clear up, that doesn't necessarily mean good news, doctors have told him. He says that if the disorder stops making his skin break out, he could develop leukemia or skin cancer within 10 years.

Photography: Mark Crist

WELDON MORTENSON pulls up his shirt sleeve to show the scars from his disorder. He believes they were caused by improperly using farm chemicals.

Being 86-years-old, he says, developing cancer doesn't concern him. He just wants others to be prepared and he wants to do what he can to stave off the chances of others becoming afflicted with whatever's struck him.

"If I could have seen myself then as I do today, I probably wouldn't have touched the stuff," he says. "When I think about it, I've lived a good life: I just wonder if the chemicals I used were worth it."

"I'd like to do my bit because I'm scared."

Bill helps prevent young smokers

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
Lincoln - Let's consider the case of the cigarette vending machine. It seems simple enough. A guy wants a pack of smokes, so he walks up, gets the appropriate change, plunks in his quarters and he's puffing away.

But what is wrong with this picture? Let's say the guy who buys the cigarettes in the above case is 12 years old.

It can happen all the time with cigarette vending machines, which will sell to anyone indiscriminately. The only requirement is you have the correct change. Granted, that's a tough standard to meet sometimes. But anybody can.

It really doesn't make a lot of sense that we should allow something that society has decided is an addictive, controlled substance—and that medical science and just about everybody else agrees is just downright unhealthy—from a vending machine. I think we all would laugh at the suggestion of distributing beer or liquor from vending machines. Alcohol, too, is a controlled substance.

Now we know just about every kid sneaks behind the barn someday to see what it's like to smoke, and in many cases it's harmless. But apparently a lot of kids become addicted to smoking. Surveys have shown that most adults who smoke today started doing so regularly by the time they were 15 years old or earlier.

And surveys show a lot of kids get their cigarettes from vending machines.

It just doesn't make a lot of sense. We say cigarettes are bad, but we make them available to anyone.

Well, Nebraska has become only the third state in the nation to recognize that dichotomy.

The Legislature last week passed and Governor Nelson signed a bill cutting down on the availability of cigarette machines. The only public places they will now be allowed in are bars and restaurants that have liquor licenses. They will also still be allowed in private, non-public places like employee lounges.

As Legislative Bill 130 was introduced, it would have banned the machines in all public places.

But senators, prodded by the vending-machine lobby, amended the bill to continue to allow them in places with liquor licenses. Maybe they felt sorry for the vendors who have these machines, but some criticized the move as not exactly one of the Legislature's shining moments.

Kids sometimes do go into bars and restaurants that have liquor licenses, especially in small towns. Heck, that place usually doubles as the place they get pop after school, too.

But the bill will have an impact, taking the machines out of laundry rooms, bus terminals, gas stations and a lot of other places. Adults who want to smoke can still get them over the counter. And maybe kids will still get cigarettes, but it's worth it to make them work at it that much harder.

So now vending machine guys are left with hundreds of fairly worthless vending machines, and as businessmen you do feel for them a little. But it was probably time to junk them. They are dinosaurs from an era when we were all a lot less enlightened about the health costs of smoking.

The views expressed in Capitol News are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Nebraska Press Association.

Industry honors area senator

State Senator Elroy Hefner of Coleridge was recognized recently as an Ambassador of Nebraska Agriculture at the Ag Day Breakfast by Governor Nelson and the Department of Agriculture in Lincoln.

"Honoring your dedication to the support and promotion of Nebraska's primary industry and in anticipation of continued service as a spokesperson supporting agriculture and its contribution to our way of life" was inscribed on the award.

Hefner said he was appreciative of receiving the award. Agriculture is our number one industry in Nebraska; it adds a tremendous amount of money to our economy. "As agriculture goes, so goes the economy in our state", he said.

Measures fall by the wayside

One of three bills advance

LINCOLN - The Unicameral recessed last Thursday after debating several key issues including supplemental pay for teachers, financing of campaigns, and solid waste management. Floor debate ended with only LB 1257 being advanced.

LB 1257, the Integrated Solid Waste Management Act, was advanced to Select File, the second stage of legislative debate. The bill establishes a hierarchy for waste management: volume reduction at the source; recycling and reuse and vegetative waste composting; land disposal; incineration with energy resource recovery; and, incineration for volume reduction.

LB 1257 would prohibit dumping or depositing of solid waste at any place other than a licensed facility or landfill. Composting or transfer stations would be regulated though not as stringently as landfills. Additionally, the bill would allow the disposal of some types of waste on personal property which could include some farm wastes, such as dead animals which need to be buried before a rendering truck is available, or debris from dismantled farm buildings.

Local governments would have the option to cooperatively manage solid waste. Regional agreements to management disposal plans with cities and counties in other states would also be encouraged, such as current agreements between South Sioux City, Dakota City, Dakota County, and cities and counties in Iowa.

Legislative bills which are not advanced are often submitted as interim studies. Interim study resolutions are proposals to examine an issue following the adjournment of the legislature. The legislature uses the interim study as a tool to seek public input, examine needs, and prepare legislation. Senators and committees may propose interim study resolutions. Study resolutions are referred to legislative committees that are responsible for the subject area. The committee's findings are then reported to the Legislature.

As Chairman of the Government, Military, and Veterans Affairs Committee I will be responsible for conducting any study referred to my committee. For example, the effect of unrestricted public access

Laurel youth get into recycling

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Sixth graders in the Laurel-Concord Schools are discovering what it's like to do something for their community. In return, their community is doing something for them.

After a visit from Brad Jones of Northeast Recycling, Inc. of Wayne, the youngsters decided to set up a program whereby Laurel community members could drop off recyclable materials at a local drop spot, open 24 hours a day.

The drop spot will be located at Gary's Foodtown in downtown Laurel. It will start Monday, April 6. A truck trailer for the program has been donated by Dennis Christensen. It will be used to collect recyclables for three months.

"It's created an awareness I don't think they had taken time to consider before," Grace Ronhovde, one of the schools' two sixth grade teachers said. "Just being aware that the community has needs that they can help with has let them know that they're not isolated people. The community supports them and they support the community."

THE RECYCLING program is something the sixth graders have adapted from a program set up through the Close Up Foundation, funded by the Burger King Corporation. The program is called "CAAP in Action. The Environment."

Sixth grade teachers are also complimentary of the Laurel city administration. They said City Manager Harley Reinhold was instrumental in helping them with it.

"Not only are we doing something for the environment, but we're also benefitting Laurel by saving money by decreasing the amount of trash hauled to and dumped at the Jackson landfill," Reinhold said in a published article last week. He added that it is estimated that a quarter of the solid waste collected is recyclable.

"This project can show that one little town can make a difference," said Chad Jorgensen, a sixth grader. "It's about time we started to do something."

OTHER SIXTH grade students said they're behind the effort. Jorgensen's comments were supported by classmates Jennifer Mainquist.

"This gives us a great experience by helping our environment," Mainquist said. "When we clean up the land, we clean up our health." The teachers said they are glad the program has been so successful.

"Before, they really had no reason to know why to be responsible with the environment," Sue Koch, a sixth grade teacher, said. "Now, that's changed. None of us are in isolation from pollution. I wanted to see the kids develop a civic awareness and they have."

Local gardner presents slide show

Gail Korn, owner of Garden Perennials, presented a slide program on Friday evening, March 27, to the Elkhorn Valley Iris Society in Norfolk.

The program entitled "Great Perennials for Nebraska" gave iris growers ideas of perennial flowers to use in their gardens for bloom throughout the season.

Korn also gave a program to the Greater Omaha Iris Society in Omaha on March 9.

Diaper Rash Prevention and Treatment

The most common skin rash affecting infants is diaper rash, or diaper dermatitis. According to a recent article in Pharmacy Times, 16 percent of all infants get diaper rash at some point, usually between ages 6 and 12 months. Excessive skin wetness from contact with urine and feces causes the area to become irritated and inflamed. Prevention of diaper rash is best accomplished by keeping the diaper area of the infant's skin as clean and dry as possible. A gentle, fragrance-free detergent bar or cleanser is recommended by many physicians. A bland ointment such as zinc oxide applied before the next fresh diaper may help protect the skin. A light application of 0.5% hydrocortisone cream (available without prescription) may reduce skin irritation and inflammation.

Viewpoint Logical choice

While the Wayne County Commissioners have scheduled a public hearing next Tuesday to allow for public comment on the juvenile Detention Center, we would like to endorse our support for one of three alternatives.

Under Alternative 1, the county board would relinquish some of the responsibility of the JDC to a regional governing board composed of representatives from all or some of the counties in the interlocal agreement. This governing board would fund and operate a regional facility, for the time being in Wayne, with plans of finding another site sometime in the future.

Establishing a regional governing board is good for several reasons:

- ✓ It creates a broader governance where all counties may have their say.
- ✓ It makes the administration of the facility accountable to a group of elected officials, which hasn't been the case since the JDC first opened in late 1988.
- ✓ It provides Wayne County with funds for providing the facility. This will help the county with its continuing budget problems.
- ✓ It removes the sheriff's office from its current location — inside the JDC — to a more equitable one, perhaps with the Wayne Police Department, which already provides the sheriff's office with dispatching services.

The first alternative is by far the best of the three. The second alternative — which leaves the JDC under the same system of operation — provides negligible benefits: The county would find itself with the same problems five years from now as it faces today. The third alternative — closing the facility for juvenile operations — is not only a detriment to Wayne County, since the county would have to come up with approximately $60,000 it doesn't have, but it would put northeast Nebraska in a bind; a situation we believe would create a rift between our neighboring counties and Wayne County.

We support establishing a regional board and we encourage the Wayne County Commissioners to follow this path.

More work, please

At this time, we'd like to applaud the Nebraska Department of Roads for so quickly patching up a stretch of Highway 35 between Winside and Hoskins. While we appreciate your efforts, there's another project which desperately needs doing, this time it's not in Wayne County, however.

Highway 9 between the Wakefield and the Emerson turnoffs is dangerous and it's getting worse by the day. The road needs patchwork desperately if it is to remain usable.

While we understand it is due for extensive repairs, and perhaps replacement, in the near future, it can no longer go unattended. Some type of patchwork must be done.

The stretch of Highway 9 we're referring to is not only hard on vehicles, it is dangerous to boot. It has become a boon to travelers who shop in Wakefield and Emerson and anyone who commutes to and from work in Sioux City. Many motorists avoid the road, usually by heading north to Highway 20. This added traffic on Highways 16 and 20 only wears those roads down that much faster.

Thanks Wayne

It has been a little over a year now since our troops were victorious in the Gulf War. And I am reminded of the warm memories our children and I made during our stay with my parents, Merle and Donna Ring, while my husband was serving in Operation Desert Storm.

Alex, now 5-years-old, and Melissa, 2, fondly remember the many friends they made while in the Wayne area: Alex's kind preschool teacher, Mrs. Otte; the friendly staff at WSC's "kiddie kollege"; the nice ladies at State National Bank; Alex's friends at Farm Bureau; the list could go on and on. There's really nothing to compare to growing up in a rural community. While I'd prefer our stay to have been due to other circumstances, I'm grateful my children had a taste of my childhood roots.

I would also like to express my appreciation to Providence Medical Center for the excellent care they provided Melissa during her illness. Dr. Martin and the excellent hospital staff helped make an extremely difficult week — the same week ground war broke out in the Gulf — more bearable. I know we would not have received the same friendly care and attention at one of the hospitals here in the metropolitan area.

All in all, there's nothing quite like Wayne, America. I'm proud to claim you as my hometown.

Clarifying comments

After organizing a Community Development Conference March 21 for municipal officials in northeast Nebraska which they almost unanimously rated as outstanding, it was really very disappointing to see your editorial criticism of my comments. However, it may only be because of a misunderstanding.

My comments you questioned were related to the $3.6 billion in rescissions (proposed reductions in Congressionally approved appropriations) which President George Bush had just announced the previous day. Those proposed reductions were said to be on pork barrel items or legitimate "nice-to-do" earmarked funds which the administration should be limited for this year to reduce the size of the deficit. The two line item rescissions for the 1st District are two water research projects for the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and other Big Eight schools, which I too, would certainly like to see started like the senators or congressmen who added them,

Newspaper times 'are a changing'

Way back in January, when we took over management of your newspaper in Wayne, we promised to make some changes.

To date, most of the change has been less than dramatic. But, hold onto your hat, within a few weeks the look, feel and content of your paper will be noticeably different.

Since changes to date have been in the iceberg variety — not a lot visible on the surface, but a considerable goings on underneath.

I thought it would be appropriate to keep you up to date on our plans and what we have done to date.

First, did anyone notice any difference in the ink in the last couple of weeks? I'll bet not. We've been running tests on several different varieties of soy-based ink. We will be converting to 100 percent soy based ink within a couple of weeks. Readers may notice cleaner hands when they get through handling their paper in coming weeks.

The switch to soy ink is our way of thumbing our nose at petroleum producers like Kahdafi and Saddam while tipping our hats in a tangible way, to local farmers — hundreds of whom grow soybeans that may ultimately end up in your newspaper. Besides supporting our local ag producers, the soy inks, because they have no petroleum content, are better environmentally as well. You'll be reading more about this in the future.

Speaking of the environment, I'll bet no one noticed recently when we began printing your paper on recycled newsprint. Another behind the scenes change we have implemented has been to order recycled newsprint whenever it is available from our suppliers. Since January about 25 percent of the newsprint tonnage used by the Wayne Herald has been recycled fiber.

Not only does recycling make sense in the saving of trees and other resources, it also saves valuable landfill space. The newspaper will be pledging its support to the City of Wayne and other interests, which has established recycling programs as one of the priorities for the community.

I sometimes get the impression that our young people are way ahead of us older folks in attitudes about recycling.

Conducting a recent tour of the newspaper plant for Wayne second graders, I told the youngsters what the newspaper was doing in terms of using recycled newsprint and assisting recycling efforts. I said it was important for all of us to make efforts toward recycling.

"WE KNOW!" the youngsters said.

They call it preaching to the choir.

As far as other changes go, we will be asking readers to take part in selecting a new look for the paper. Samples of possible new type styles and logos will be printed in ballot form in coming weeks and you will be invited to vote on your preference.

By Les Mann

We truly believe this is your newspaper and we want you to be a part of the decision making process.

Wayne State College students and faculty are completing a survey of residents seeking information about what you want in your newspaper. The results of that survey will be included in considering changes.

We have set a goal of May 1 for having the new look and new format ready for introduction. I publicly announce that now so we have a deadline to strive for. Hold us to it.

While we're on the subject of your newspaper, remember to use the advertisements and thank the advertisers for their support. Most people don't realize it, but it is the advertising in the paper which pays the salaries of the people who work to put together your newspaper each week. It is the advertising which pays for the newsprint and ink. It is advertising that covers most other expenses as well.

Please thank the advertisers and support their businesses ... we certainly do.

NEBRASKA TIMELINE

The political road to statehood in Nebraska was filled with many a bump, rut, and unexpected turn. The actual roads in the Nebraska's early days were equally torturous.

The first session of the territorial legislature passed acts establishing territorial roads. The term "roads" appropriately appears in quotation marks; these glorified trails were a far cry from what we'd consider a road. The road commissioners appointed in 1855 were empowered "to employ a surveyor" on the road from Omaha City to the head of Cedar Island on the Platte "if they deem it necessary." No provision for paying anyone involved in the project was made.

Costs of the road from Nebraska City to Grand Island were considered, and were "to be paid by the respective counties through which said road shall pass."

The second session of the territorial lawmakers say passage of an act which delegated responsibilities for "opening, making, and keeping in repair all Territorial roads," to the counties. The law also specified that public roads were to be forty feet wide and all bridges at least sixteen feet wide.

In order to finance these roads, counties were authorized to collect "a poll-tax of two days' labor" from each "able-bodied male citizen between the ages of twenty-one and sixty years." Counties were to be divided into road districts and the county officials were to appoint a supervisor of roads in each district. This supervisor was responsible for collecting two days of labor from each resident. Substitutes could be hired. Persons providing neither labor nor a substitute were to pay $1.50 for each day of labor owed to the county.

This county-based system produced roads of a sort. By 1904, Nebraska had designated public roads totalling 79,642 miles, but only seventeen miles were improved with stone. Six miles were surfaced with sand/clay. It would take the pressure of the automobile—and state and federal assistance, to create a statewide system of passable roads.

but the President is suggesting that they at least should be deferred for this year.

I simply said to the people gathered in Wayne on Saturday that I would support the President's proposed rescissions for fiscal and deficit reasons unless those specific rescissions items were way off base. If we are serious about reducing our deficit, as we must be, then a congressman or senator cannot automatically spring to the defense of any or all deferrable expenditures in his district or state.

That is what I said and meant. My comments related only and specifically to the $3.6 billion package of proposed rescissions. I believe the attitude I expressed is exactly what people should expect from their representatives in Congress if we are to reduce the huge deficit which is slowing our economic recovery.

Grateful for help

The Greenwood Cemetery Association is always grateful for monies directed to the cemetery by ways of memorials or donations for trees, perpetual care, etc.

Often we are asked who owns the cemetery. The cemetery is owned by those who own gravesites in it. We are not supported by any outside funds. Our only income is from the selling of grave sites, the opening and closing of graves and interest from the perpetual care fund which comes from 1/3 of the purchase price of the grave site.

The board met recently and discussed what they thought would be the best way to raise funds to be able to build a building to house the grave digger.

The group thought the public would prefer to give a donation to the cemetery, rather than have a soup supper or pancake breakfast.

Inquiries can be directed to Allene Sievers at 375-1846 or Mylet Bargholz at 375-3246. Donations can also be sent to Mylet Bargholz, secretary/treasurer, RR 1, Box 50, Wakefield, Neb. 68784.

'Tis the season for spring cleaning

It's spring and just because the grass is starting to turn and the buds are beginning to pop out on the trees, it can only mean one thing: spring cleaning.

Spring cleaning has been around ever since the first caveman bopped the first cavewoman over the head with a club. While it's much more civilized today, with the woman bopping the man over the head with a club, spring cleaning is still prevalent.

The only thing I've noticed about spring cleaning is that it's something that shouldn't be done just in the spring. It should be done every week. That way there's less pain when you get bopped on the head with the club. By the way, I forgot to mention that clubs are more sophisticated today, they're either called baseball bats or golf woods.

BACK TO MY original point (whatever it was). If you clean out the refrigerator only once a year, you notice how many canned goods there are in there with expiration dates so old they've fossilized. The only redeeming value about having canned goods with expiration dates that date back to the time George Washington was elected president is that it keeps the rodents and other pests away from the garbage when you throw the stuff away. That's probably the only advantage to doing spring cleaning once a year.

I've found that the refrigerator is usually the best place to start. If you do it right, it takes all day and once you're finished, you have an excuse why nothing else got done.

Once the fridge is finished, it's time to dust the running boards around your home. That's something that usually occurs a week later. If there's more than one person in your household, then there's two projects the next week — dusting off the running boards and cleaning windows.

I hate dusting. Once you finish dusting, you notice that you haven't actually cleaned anything, you've just rearranged the dust particles into more convenient piles and filled the air with the other particles. The air is so bad, in fact, that it looks like the Denver or Los Angeles skyline after a day of heavy traffic. Not only will Ginzu knife not cut through it, you can see every individual dirt particle dancing in the sunlight laughing at you.

WINDOW CLEANING is a chore that's best left to people with good cleaning skills and the ability to see through finger marks on their glasses. If you don't wear glasses, I strongly recommend that you either buy a pair or put one of those construction masks over your eyes to enable you to protect your eyes. These eyewear materials are not so you keep your eyes unexposed to the ammonia in the window cleaner, it's so the dirt, grime and other foreign matter doesn't get in your eye and give you sleepy seeds. Also, if you wear glasses or goggles and they get smeared, the streaks on the windows after you're done cleaning won't look as bad.

The final step in cleaning the house is spring carpet shampooing. This step should occur in the final step so that the weather is warm enough that you can open all the windows when you're done to get the moisture out of the house. If you do it too early, your carpets will squish from leftover soapy water for an indefinite period of time and your carpets will mildew to the floor, creating an odor that's strong enough to knock out Mike Tyson (not that he isn't doing a good enough job on his own, anyway). I didn't mention this earlier, but in cleaning the carpet, it is highly recommended that you vacuum it first.

So there you have it, the major steps to spring cleaning. If it sounds like a lot of work, it is. But don't worry, you'll only be doing it again in another year or two ... or three ... or four ... or whenever the thought hits you again.

Shopping in Wayne just makes cents

College Professor Jim Paige agrees that shopping in Wayne "Just Makes Cents." Paige said he especially likes the friendliness of the Wayne merchants.

"I like the service I get when I buy goods in Wayne." For college personnel and students service is the important factor that attracts customers, he said.

"I think you can find just about everything you need here too." Providing a little lesson in economics, the professor said if more people make a greater effort to shop in Wayne and keep their dollars here, it will mean stores here will be able to provide better variety and everyone will benefit from the economic boost.

Professor Paige joins in the community-wide effort to encourage hometown shopping right along with Tom Boddett who we hear on the radio as part of the Chamber of Commerce promotion.

Amendments on table Boards consider changes

Recent zoning change requests and a "housing crisis" in Wayne have prompted the city Planning Commission and City Council to consider updates in the city zoning rules, according to city planning officer Don Seifken.

Addressing Tuesday night's public hearing before city council on the proposed zoning changes, Seifken said it has been several years since regulations were updated.

Specific changes proposed by the Planning Commission establish allowances for housing units in some business zones and expands other uses allowed in business zones under conditional use guidelines.

"(The new guidelines would) make options available for review of each case on its own merits," said Seifken. He explained that under the proposal a process would be available to allow for consideration of exceptional uses within a zone through a public hearing process.

FOLLOWING TUESDAY'S hearing, council agreed to meet with the Planning Commission to review the proposed changes during a special session Monday, April 6 at 7:30 p.m.

During the hearing, Roy Coryell encouraged council to act quickly on the zoning changes. He said because of Wayne's zoning laws the community lost out for the location of a Goldenrod Hills Community Action pre-school program.

"We're passing up a lot of business because we're moving so slow," said Coryell. "Let's get moving."

Mayor Bob Carhart said that is exactly what Wayne is doing in proposing the zoning changes and that changes take time because of the requirement for public hearings and both planning commission and council approval.

SEVERAL COUNCIL members raised objection to one factor of the proposed changes which would make all drive-in business establishments seek special permits and follow an approval process no matter what business zone they choose to locate in.

"I don't think you want to throw a roadblock up simply if they want to have a drive-up window," said Councilwoman Sheryl Lindau.

Councilman Darrell Fuelberth said he thought there ought to be at least one business district in the community where drive-in businesses were designated as permitted establishments.

Councilwoman Jane O'Leary said she thought it seemed "a little negative" to have businesses come to town and not have any designated place where they could locate without holding a public hearing and appearing before the Planning Commission.

IN A RELATED zoning matter, Gene Claussen appeared before Council to provide an update on the planned razing of the old Geno's Steakhouse building and the construction of a new apartment building at the site at Second and Pearl.

Claussen's restaurant and hotel burned there last year and he said questions over what was permitted under the city's zoning laws have delayed the demolition and construction plans.

"We could have gotten started on this a lot sooner if I had known sooner what I could and could not do there," Claussen said.

He plans to construct a nine-unit, one-story apartment building at the site as soon as funding is approved.

City Administrator Joe Salitros explained that it would be four to six weeks before approval was granted on financing for the project which would include funds through the Department of Economic Development. He said moving ahead with demolition work before the funding is approved for the whole package could jeopardize the overall funding.

Councilman Ralph Barclay said the city has heard comments from citizens wondering when the sidewalks and parking places around the burned building site would be available for use again.

"It will be 30 days at least before we can start," said Claussen.

City council establishes areas for sidewalk repairs

Wayne City Council has approved a sidewalk improvement district plan which calls for replacing or providing new sidewalks on 21 blocks in the southeast quadrant of the city.

The creation of the improvement district extends for a second year, a popular effort to upgrade the sidewalk conditions throughout the city.

An informational meeting will be held April 14 at City Hall to discuss the sidewalk plan for the 1992 construction year. Anyone throughout the city may attend the meeting.

As was the case last year, sidewalk repair projects, whether they are in the specific area of the identified district or not, may be eligible for city assistance with cost share on the replacement if the property owner goes through the city to have the work done.

People interested in sidewalk improvement projects should contact city hall.

City Administrator Joe Salitros said several property owners participated in the 50 percent shared cost plan last year and the payoffs from their projects in conjunction with the seed money the city provides would fund this year's improvement efforts.

Council sets some goals

✓For every tree that gets cut down in Wayne, a new tree should be planted.

✓A feasibility study should be done on a new multi-purpose community center for Wayne and the concept should be endorsed by the city.

✓An environmental awareness plan for the city should include recycling programs and tree management plans.

✓Tax delinquent properties should be used for future community development.

These and many more one-year and five-year goals have been established for Wayne by the City Council.

The new goals were identified following a weekend retreat the council members attended last weekend. Council announced the goals at its meeting Tuesday night.

A total of 23 new and expanded goal items were identified during the seven hour session which was held Saturday, according to City Administrator Joe Salitros.

Salitros said the council retreats provide an opportunity for the city leaders to focus on plans for the future away from the day to day business of running the city.

The council's vision for the immediate future of Wayne includes many beautification and development plans.

Besides those identified above, the goals for the one-year plan include:

--Adopt a policy to selectively acquire delinquent tax properties and to provide for some incentive to private entrepreneurs for the purpose of removing dilapidated buildings from land which could be used for future community development.

--Develop a housing plan utilizing the expertise and recommendations of Councilmembers, S.T.A.R.T. Housing Task Force, the Planning Commission, and the Housing Authority, among other interested groups.

--Develop a criteria for terrace parking.

--Continue to expand recreation programs, taking into consideration the recommendations of the S.T.A.R.T. Program, Recreation Study Committee and the Recreation Commission.

--Assist the community with a feasibility study to determine the need for and support the concept of a multi-purpose community center.

--Evaluate and negotiate with the Nebraska Department of Roads necessary widening of Highway 35 through the city.

--Complete the update of the City Comprehensive Plan, which includes the feasibility of development of bike trails, a lake park and beautification of the central business district and entrances to the city.

--Complete a storm sewer drainage plan.

--Support promotional efforts by the Wayne Chamber of Commerce.

--Continue an annual review of policy relative to city rates, fees and charges.

--Continue annual recognition of volunteer members of City Boards and Commissions.

--Establish a policy of having a smoke/tobacco-free City Hall.

Several other goals were listed for the city to be achieved by 1994. They are:

--Recodification of the City Code and ordinances in order to update and become consistent with changes in federal and state laws and good operating practices.

--Phase-out city involvement in apartment and commercial rental units.

Goals identified for completion by 1996 include:

--Through annexation, square off the corporate boundaries of the city and unincorporated islands within the city.

--Acquire additional land for industrial/economic development.

The goal set for achievement by 1997 was:

--Acquire property for the development of a 20 to 40-acre park.

Council approved these goals officially at its Tuesday night meeting by a 7-0 vote.

Workshop addresses OSHA laws

A two-day workshop, entitled "Who's Afraid of OSHA? (Occupational Safety and Health Act), that focuses on meeting OSHA HazMat requirements will be held on Tuesday and Thursday, April 7 and 9 at Northeast Community College.

The workshop will be held from 1 to 4:30 p.m. each day in room 110 of the College's Science Building.

Identifying and improving the management and awareness of hazardous materials will be stressed in this workshop.

The workshop will consist of two parts.

Dave Hampton, hazardous material inspector for the Norfolk Fire Division, will instruct "Managing Hazardous Materials with Records, Reporting, and Training." Hampton has been employed in municipal fire and rescue service for 22 years, 15 as the city fire marshal.

Steve Sovereign of the Norfolk Fire Department, and also safety director of Lutheran Hospital in Norfolk, will instruct "Hazardous Communications Reporting and Written Programs." Sovereign has also developed HazMat OSHA compliance plans and conducted a number of HazMat training programs.

Cost of the workshop is $15.

For more information, or to register, contact Northeast Community College, (402) 644-0600.

The workshop is being sponsored by the Norfolk Fire Division and Northeast Community College.

Kraemer heads public meetings for RC&D's

Shirley Kraemer, Laurel, has been appointed to serve as public meeting chairperson for the Northeast Nebraska Resource Conservation and Development district which represents Cedar, Dixon, Knox, Pierce, and Antelope counties.

"Public meetings will be held in all communities," Kraemer announced. "The purpose is to inform even the smallest communities as to the aim of RC&D's. RC&D's are the unifying of counties into districts for the purpose of applying for grant monies. Supported by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the U.S. Soil Conservation Services, other governmental agencies, counties, communities, foundation, and private monies, the Northeast Nebraska RC&D will carry out county-wide projects to improve the economy and human resources within their borders.

According to Kraemer, every county, most communities, area NRD's and the organized tribes of Santee are represented at monthly meetings. The new RC&D has 20 elected board members with a total of 30-35 council members. Anyone may become a council member representing an organized association. A full board and council meeting has been set for April 9 at Osmond. The public is encouraged to attend.

All informational public meetings scheduled to be held in April and May will be announced in local newspapers as to time, dates, and places. Council members presently serving on the public meetings committee are Norman Kuhl, Bloomfield; Monte Miller, Newcasttle; Norm Lorenz, Osmond; Shirley Kraemer, Laurel; Dennis Johnson, Plainview; and Sandy Hatter, Center.

WSC professor will serve as visitor at UNL

Dr. Russell Rasmussen, professor of chemistry at Wayne State College, will serve as a visiting professor of chemistry at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln in July and August.

In the spring of 1991, Rasmussen was presented the First Tier Teacher Excellence Award by the Nebraska State College Board of Trustees.

Rasmussen, who came to Wayne State in 1969, earned his bachelor's degree and Ph.D. from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Students qualify for citizen bee

Thirty-one high school students qualified Saturday for the Nebraska State Citizen Bee April 25 at the state capitol.

From the students competing at the regional site in Norfolk, Keith Schutte of Laurel-Concord High School placed first. Taking second place was Larry Osborne, Laurel-Concord. Third place went to Claire Rasmussen of Wayne.

The Citizen Bee is a civic education program and national academic competition of the Close Up Foundation. It is based on U.S. political and cultural history, government, geography, economics and current events.

The top two competitors at the state finals will be eligible to compete in the national finals in Washington, D.C. in June.

ble at school I'm in more trouble at home."

TEACHERS WHO spoke to the Wayne Herald said they've seen students cutting back on bad language in the halls and students have reduced running in the halls.

"It's hard for us to take care of discipline at the students' home but before parents weren't aware," Koenig said. "Now, every time something goes on, the parents know about it. The key to the change is communication."

If a student gets in trouble and has to stay after school, they have to report on time. If a student is more than five minutes late, they automatically serve an additional 30 minutes the next day. Students must also bring with them homework or a library book and whatever supplies they need. If they don't bring homework or a book, copywork will be provided by the teacher on duty. Also, when students are in detention, they will not be allowed to talk, make distracting noises, chew gum, go to the bathroom, leave the room or draw.

Move requires planning

We bought Sue a bed of her own when she moved to Omaha. I remember it well because we told her to put it on my Mastercard and Nebraska Furniture Mart doesn't take Mastercard.

After she and Monte were married, the bedroom in their house at Vermillion was so small, they didn't set up Monte's water bed. (You know the kind — flat wood sides.)

But after they moved to Columbus, her bed went into the guest room. Last fall, that room became the baby's room, and the spring and mattress went to their garage.

The Big Farmer and I began planning a move off the farm about a year ago. We both started putting out feelers for jobs, and talking about what we would like to live in, and where we would like to live. We had always planned to retire to Lincoln, but didn't make enough money farming to be able to retire.

In April, Mike had a job offer and we spotted a house we were interested in that would be for sale in a year. But you don't just quit farming. It takes a little time to get things planned.

In June, a friend who had already made the move to the Big City called to tell me about a job with Hospice of Tabitha. It called for someone with "experience and common sense." I had both of those. I started there in July and became what is popularly known as a "commuter." I know some families have done this for years. But I think it was usually the husband who leaves early Monday morning and comes home on Friday evening.

At first, I lived with my mom, bless her heart. She made breakfast every morning and packed my lunch; she even did my laundry.

Before I got totally spoiled, I moved into an apartment. I feel as if I have switched roles with my kids. It's near Wesleyan; and now I'm the one who comes home with laundry. I had to borrow the bed in Sue's and Monte's garage.

I'm discovering this has become a typical situation, especially after the kids are raised, and probably due to the economy, in part.

The Farm Journal featured a story about a farm wife who was a teacher and could not find a school nearby, so moved the kids with her and left the farmer on the farm.

There is a Presbyterian minister in Seward whose wife lives in Bancroft and comes to Seward on weekends.

A nurse friend who has been working on an adolescent psych unit at Lincoln General maintains her home in Lincoln while her husband is a school administrator in Alliance.

Another nurse working at Bryan stayed in Lincoln when her husband's office was moved from Lincoln to Chicago. It wasn't too many years ago that the wife of the director of the Northeast Station at Concord taught in Tarkio, Mo., while he stayed in Wayne. Incidentally, they are now retired near Lincoln.

So this is my ninth month on the road. It's been a good winter for it, except for the Halloween blizzard and Monday morning, March 9, when I drove in blizzard conditions as far as Humphrey. (That's another story.)

One more month should about do it. We're kind of gotten into a routine. Ann keeps the house clean. I get home sometime Friday p.m., head to the grocery store on Saturday, cook for lots of left-overs and do a bit of baking, wash and iron, go to church, and try to clean out closets in spare time.

The one problem is that of the bed. I miss my water bed. Even though Sue's is not very old, and is very comfortable, Mike gets to sleep in the water bed.

I tell him it's not too rough not having to hurry home to cook supper, and he says it's great not to have to hurry home for supper. But I will be very glad to get that water bed to Lincoln.

Three cheers for youth

A NUMBER OF WAYNE YOUNGSTERS participated in a cheerleading clinic Saturday, sponsored by the Wayne High School Cheerleaders, at Wayne Elementary. As Kris DeNaeyer helps Stacy Kardell learn how to do a jump, youngsters were also learning cheering chants and body movements (left), just like Michelle Murray and Samantha King. The event is held annually for elementary-school age children.

The Library Card

This column is written twice a month to inform the Wayne area as to what types of reading material and other items are available at Wayne Public Library.

April 5-11 has been designated National Library Week by the American Library Association. The theme chosen for this year's observance is "Your Right to Know: Librarians Make it Happen."

We came across some interesting facts and figures about the nation's libraries which may interest you.

Did you know that...

—There are more libraries in the nation than there are McDonalds?

—There are 3,438 academic libraries; 8,968 public libraries; 92,538 school libraries; and 11,275 special libraries.

—Sixty-six percent of adults age 18 and older (more than 122 million Americans) report using the public library last year.

—More children participate in library summer reading programs (an estimated 700,000 plus) than in Little League baseball.

—Libraries are one of the few places where a child's request for information is considered as important as an adult's.

—Research shows the public library is the most important institution in helping children retain learning skills during the summer months.

Your public library is the place to go when you want to know. We'll make an effort to help you find answers to your questions.

One question we cannot answer with any certainty is "How many books do I have checked out?" Our circulation is handled in such a way that the books checked out in any one day are represented by a book card which has the author's name and book's title on it. Your name is not visible on the book card. The date due and your library card number are stamped on the book card. As you can see, it is a difficult question to answer if we have to go through a large number of book cards for you. Could a solution be for you to keep a list of the books that you have checked out?

A reminder that our library hours September through May are Monday through Friday from 1 to 9 p.m., Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m.

If you return a book which is overdue and you know there will be a fine, please bring the book to the desk and take care of the fine right then. Fines have a sinister way of adding up to more money than you imagined. If we ask you to take care of your accumulated fines, we hope you will do so and not delay. Remember, that the overdue book you are holding may inconvenience someone who is waiting for the book you have.

If you have been in the library in the evening hours recently, you may have seen groups of young men and women hard at work on barcoding our juvenile books. The Delta Sigma Pi professional fraternity at Wayne State College volunteered to assist us in getting a tedious, time-consuming job done. We really appreciate the time and effort all of them put in. We thank them for their help.

We would also like to thank members of the 3 M's Home Extension Club who donated the 1992 Newbery Award winning book "Shiloh" (Naylor) in honor of International Children's Book Day, April 2.

Board rejects bid on facility

The Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District board of directors rejected a bid for the district's new office complex at the March meeting last Thursday.

The only bid received for the complex was from J.H. Hesper Company, Inc. of Norfolk. The board rejected the $872,483 base bid because it was too high and not according to specifications.

The Lower Elkhorn NRD will readvertise for bids, and the bid opening will be at 4 p.m. on April 14 at the NRD office in Norfolk.

The board established a building sinking fund in 1988. The fund currently contains $640,000. The NRD owns 10.8 acres including the LENRD Wayside Area north of Norfolk on Highway 81. The building will house the eight LENRD office staff members, two Nebraska Department of Water Resources employees, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln Conservation and Survey Division staff person and a part-time secretary.

Action was taken on several water quality items during the meeting. The board approved $5,650 to fund the Nitrogen-Irrigation Demonstration Project in Pierce County for the sixth year. The project is conducted by soils specialist Charles Shapiro and irrigation specialist William Kranz from the Northeast Research and Extension Center in Concord.

The project objectives include demonstration of efficient utilization of all sources of nitrogen and irrigation water so as to reduce potential nitrate contamination of the groundwater, development and popularization of best management practices associated with efficient fertilizer and irrigation water management, demonstration calibration of anhydrous ammonia applicators and demonstration of the use of chlorophyll meters for fine-tuning nitrogen management. The board approved an additional $1,000 for smaller nitrogen management demonstrations in other parts of the district.

The board passed a motion to develop a district Well Head Protection Program. According to LENRD water resources manager, Rick Wozniak, "The program will be designed to reduce the threat to the quality of public drinking water supplies that use groundwater as a source." Wozniak said that this will be accomplished by helping communities and other public water entities identify and manage recharge areas to specific wells or well fields.

In other action, the board voted to support the formation and authorization of two proposed Resource Conservation and Development Groups (RC&Ds).

RC&Ds are established for rural economic development and are active in resource conservation. The groups are composed of local residents and are sponsored by cities, counties, NRDs or other governmental agencies.

In the Lower Elkhorn NRD, the two proposed RC&Ds are the Northeast Nebraska RC&D which includes Antelope, Cedar, Dixon, Knox and Pierce counties, and the Nebraska Loess Hills RC&D which includes Burt, Cumming, Dakota, Thurston and Wayne counties. Authorization for the formation of these RC&Ds is being pursued.

The next Lower Elkhorn NRD board of directors meeting will be held on April 23.

Newsweek article focuses on eggs

Magazine features Gardner

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Question: How many people from the area can you say have been featured in Newsweek magazine.

Answer: At least one, Dan Gardner of Wakefield.

Gardner, the mastermind behind the success of the M.G. Waldbaum Company in Wakefield, was included in a feature about Michael Foods' low cholesterol eggs, which ran in the magazine's March 30 edition. He said as a result of the article and picture of him tossing an egg over a conveyor belt has brought some national attention to the local company.

"It's more fun than it is P.R.," he said. "It doesn't make it any cheaper to buy a cup of coffee."

THE ARTICLE which goes over the initial success of the low cholesterol eggs and the process the M.G. Waldbaum Company takes eggs through to reduce cholesterol content, is more of an investor's type of article than it is a feature on Gardner and the Wakefield egg processing facility. Gardner called the article "about average."

"It was written more for people interested in buying stock than it was for lay people," he said. "The nice thing is that I have received letters and cards from people all around the nation. The article kind of brought people back to their roots."

While the story in Newsweek is not the first time Gardner and M.G. Waldbaums have received national attention, it is the first time they were featured in a non-trade magazine. In 1991, Gardner was featured on the cover of the "Egg Industry" trade magazine.

Candidate forums planned in April

The public will have the opportunity to meet District 19 Legislative candidates as they present political platforms and answer questions in three "Meet the Candidate" forums scheduled in April.

The Laurel City Auditorium will be the location for the first forum on Monday, April 6. The Bloomfield City Hall will be the site for the second forum on Thursday, April 23. Hartington will host the Thursday, April 30 forum at the Skylon Ballroom. Citizens from each location are helping the Nebraska League of Rural Voters host the events.

The same agenda will be followed at all locations. A State Property Tax summary by the respective county assessors will open the program. All three programs will begin at 8 p.m., with the candidates making introductory statements following the assessors. Written and oral questions from the floor will be accepted following the candidates presentations.

Susan Risinger, Farm Director for WJAG-KEXL Radio of Norfolk will act as panel facilitator at the Laurel and Bloomfield forums. Lee Wagner, Grand Island, chairman of the Nebraska League of Rural Voters will be facilitator at the Hartington forum.

Seven candidates have filed for the District 19 senatorial seat that is being vacated by Senator Eloy Hefner of Coleridge. Candidates who will be on the May primary ballot include Gary Anderson, Laurel; De Carlson, Crofton; Shirley Kraemer, Laurel; George (Gus) Pick, Hartington; Tom Olson, Allen; Donald Liedman, Carroll; Richard Hansen, Concord.

The League of Rural Voters, a non-profit, non-partisan voter education organization has organized the forums in an effort to increase citizen awareness and participation in the political process, according to Linda Kleinschmit, Hartington, board member of the League. Kleinschmit said the League has strived to keep rural citizens informed and empower them to know their voice can make a difference. "We hope the people of District 19 will take advantage of this opportunity to get to know the candidates and be an informed voter on May 12." Kleinschmit continued.

Expenses for the forums are being met by private donations and the League of Rural Voters. The public is invited to attend one or all of the events.

LEAD program holding alumni banquet

In 1981, the idea was novel. Gather 30 young Nebraskans in agriculture and agribusiness. Give them two years of intensive training in economics, government, natural resources and social change. Then send them back to their communities and lead commissioners, boards, organizations and associations.

Ten years later, the premise behind the Nebraska Agricultural Leadership Council's Nebraska Leadership Education/Action Development program is the same.

As a result of the program, a number of Wayne Herald area individuals have been recognized for their efforts.

Area individuals recognized are: Terry Borg, Allen; Larry Boswell, Allen; Keith Volker, Laurel; Jim Lipp, Laurel; Kevin Kai, Wakefield; Gerald Muller, Wakefield; Lowell Schardt, Wayne; and Doug Temme, Wayne.

A celebration of 10 years of the LEAD program will take place in Omaha on April 4 at the Scouler Grain Company ballroom. The dinner begins at 7 p.m. and will be preceded by a reception and attended by LEAD alumni, agricultural leaders and other invited guests. Reservations and cost can be obtained by calling the Nebraska LEAD Program at 472-6810.

Tera Vande Velde

Wayne High cheerleader in academy

The United States Achievement Academy announced recently that Tera Vande Velde has been named a United States National Award winner in cheerleading.

This award is given to very few students. In fact, the academy recognizes less than 10 percent of all American high school students.

Vande Velde, who attends Wayne High School, was nominated for this award by Eunice Wacker, a cheerleading coach at the school.

Vande Velde will appear in the Achievement Academy Official yearbook, published nationally.

She is the daughter of Randy and Dianne Vande Velde. Her grandparents are Pete and La Vonne Vande Velde of Rock Valley, Iowa.

Tough times make us dream things were better.
If only I had... if only I could. If if if.
Close your mouth and open your ears!
God can make your dreams come true. It's happened before. Scripture records it many times.
Read your Bible... and don't stop dreaming.

Sixth annual fast for peace and justice underway at WSC

The sixth annual Fast for Peace and Justice, sponsored by the Cooperative Campus Ministry Council of Wayne State College, is being held April 1-2.

This year's theme, "X Marks the Spot: Indifference, Injustice and Our Right to Vote," focuses on public participation in the electoral process.

Featured speakers will be Allen O'Donnell, WSC political science professor, and Jim Bowman, director of the Lutheran Office for Public Policy in Lincoln.

THE FAST was scheduled to get underway at 9 p.m. Wednesday, April 1 with a campus wide prayer service in Connell Chapel, located in Connell Hall.

Fasting is a traditional form of prayer which expresses repentance and the need for God's help. Participants also are asked to focus on the injustices present in the world, to recognize their role in perpetuating them, and to embrace their responsibility to do something about them.

A fast can take many forms — from deleting a favorite food to total abstinence from eating — with participants choosing their own form.

THE FAST will conclude at 5:30 p.m. on April 2 with a simple meal of bread and soup served at the WelCoMe House, located at 14th and Schreiner.

Following the meal, at approximately 6 p.m., there will be a program featuring Professor O'Donnell and Bowman. O'Donnell will discuss the importance of participation in the electoral process. Bowman will discuss participation from a Christian perspective.

There will be time for both questions and dialogue with the speakers.

Students, faculty, staff and members of the community are invited to participate in the program. Persons wishing additional information are asked to contact the WelCoMe House, 375-1234.

Videoconference addresses disabilities

Northeast Community College will conclude its series of videoconferences concerning the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) with the final videoconference scheduled for Tuesday, April 21.

Beginning in January, new civil rights legislation had a profound effect on businesses and professions. Designs for open spaces and the interiors and exteriors of more than five million buildings were regulated in ways that called for in-depth knowledge of the ADA law and the enforcement codes, and creative design solutions.

The goal of this comprehensive civil rights legislation is to "open the doors" to people with disabilities.

This final program, being held in Northeast's Activities Center Theatre from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., is entitled "Enforcing the ADA at State and Local Levels." It explores the implications of the ADA and its integration with local code enforcement programs.

For information concerning registration and participation fees, contact Joe Ferguson, (402) 644-0587.

Area students to receive scholarships from UNL

The Office of Scholarships and Financial Aid at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln has announced the Regents and David Scholars for 1992-93. Some of the students named are from the Wayne Herald area.

Students named to the list include: Marcus D. Tappe, Wakefield, a regents freshman four year recipient; Katy Lynn Anderson, Wayne, a regents freshman four year recipient; and Todd Fuelberth, Wayne, a freshman David Scholar recipient.

Regents Scholarships are renewable annually if the student maintains a 3.5 cumulative grade point average by the end of each spring semester. They are awarded on the basis of high school rank as well as ACT scores. Consideration is also given to extracurricular activities and leadership in selecting among students with similar high school records and test scores. All Regents Scholarships provide resident tuition.

The David Scholarships provide a $1,000 stipend per year toward the cost of tuition at UNL and are renewable for up to four consecutive years. The David Scholarships are funded from the John C. and Nettie V. David Memorial Trust, established in 1973 by the late Adrian H. David in memory of his parents.

"It's the greatest gift I ever had anyone give me."

C.V. Agler had cataracts.

He had "No-Stitch" Cataract Surgery.

"I used to shoot a lot, but I got so I couldn't do that any more. My optometrist told me I had cataracts so I called Feidler Eye Clinic. My vision was getting kind of foggy.

After having gone through cataract surgery I would say to anybody who has a cataract that they can't go wrong if they go to Dr. Feidler.

When they took the patch off my eye I said 'Gosh I can see'. And I can see as good now as I did twenty-five years ago. It's the greatest gift I ever had anyone give me.

I think the staff at Feidler Eye Clinic is great."

Magnusons tour Australia, New Zealand

Wallace and Evonne Magnuson of Laurel returned recently from a month's trip to Australia and New Zealand.

The trip was prompted by a desire of Wallace's to return to the South Pacific and Australia in peace time.

He was first there during World War II and after two and a half years in the army amphibian engineers on several islands, had a two-week leave to Sydney, Australia.

THE MAGNUSONS were part of a 10-day tour in Australia, visiting the cities of Sydney, Canberra, Albany, Melbourne and surrounding areas.

In Canberra, the nation's capitol, the couple visited the War Memorial, the Parliament House, the Royal Australian Mint and a sheep station (ranch) which included a sheep shearing demonstration and working sheep dogs.

Another day they traveled to the Snowy Mountains to the ski area on board the fastest 8 km rack-rail train in the world into the longest tunnel through solid rock in the Southern Hemisphere.

Other visits included the Blue Mountains and a wildlife park, the agricultural Yarra Valley, and Phillip Island where thousands gather each evening to watch the fairy penguins parade from feeding in the sea to their nests in the sand dunes.

Magnusons noted that Sydney, Australia was much larger (350,000 population) than 49 years ago and more commercialized, catering to the tourist trade.

THE MAGNUSONS flew from Melbourne to Auckland, New Zealand where they were met by friends and spent five days with them.

Their hosts were the family of a foreign exchange student who had lived with Evonne's brother and family a few years ago. She and her husband had visited the Magnusons in 1989.

They were escorted around the area of Morrinsville on the North Island; a lush green area which receives 50 to 55 inches of rain a year and houses many dairy herds, with as many as 2,000 cows within a one square mile area.

Another day was spent in Rotorua which is the home of the Agrodome and its sheep show.

From there they were driven by car further south to another family member's sheep and cattle station which totaled 1,400 acres with nearly 5,000 sheep and 450 cattle.

MAGNUSONS traveled by train to Wellington and crossed Cook Strait by ferry to the South Island. There they toured the Pacific Ocean, Wanaka, Lindis Pass, Queenstown, Milford Sound on the west coast and back to Christchurch.

They cruised the sound and also toured the hills and harbor of Christchurch before returning home.

Wakefield gets grant for park

The Wakefield Tree Board received word recently that the Nebraska Forest Service and the Nebraska Community Forestry Council have approved the community's request for funding under the America the Beautiful program for a mini park.

The mini park will be located on the east side of the Wakefield Community School grounds and will utilize playground equipment already there.

The matching fund grant of $1,800 will be matched locally with monies the tree board received from the Gardner Foundation. Earlier, it was announced that the Gardner Foundation had given the tree board $6,000 for beautification projects in Wakefield.

Work on the new mini park is scheduled to begin this spring with the planting of trees and other landscaping.

Another beautification project of the tree board will be the cul-de-sac in the new Lund's Addition on the south edge of Wakefield.

THE TREE board was also notified that Wakefield has been selected a Tree City USA for 1991. The community also received the designation in 1990 for its efforts in promoting trees in the area.

Governor Ben Nelson was scheduled to present the Tree City Award to a community representative during ceremonies on April 1 at 2 p.m. in the East Senate Chamber of the State Capitol in Lincoln.

The treasurer's report showed a balance of $6,600.04.

Johnson reported Wakefield has been approved for an American the Beautiful grant to help with the new mini-park planned at the school grounds. The community matches the funds and will not receive payment from ATB until the project is completed, inspected and approved. Brent Pederson of Bluebird Nurseries in Clarkson provided plans for both the mini-park and the Cul-de-sac plantings.

Other discussion centered on plans to again sponsor the community tree planting, purchase of wood chips from the city, the Arbor Day program to be presented at school, and the placing of informative articles in the newspaper.

On March 28, Marvin Bichel is being presented the Johnny Apples Award.

ELCA MEETS

The Women of ELCA of Salem Lutheran Church met March 26 in the church basement.

The program was presented by Janice Newton. It began with a litany to celebrate the fifth anniversary of the organization of Women of ELCA. The birthdays of Pastor Tyler and Sheri Tyler were observed through poetry, song and a gift from the group.

The business meeting followed with president Mae Greve presiding.

Registration was taken for the Spring Gathering at United Lutheran Church in Laurel on April 9. The tangible gifts for Lutheran Family Service of baby supplies may be left at the church. A monetary offering will also be taken from the unit.

It was noted that the American Association of Lutherans has provided the Nebraska Women of ELCA an environmental grant. They have used this to provide each unit with a potted evergreen tree which they will plant and nurture whenever they wish. These will be distributed at the Spring Gathering. Margaret Fischer will be Salem Lutheran's nominee for the planning Committee for the 1993 Spring Gathering.

There will be an evening quilting time on April 7 beginning at 6:30 p.m. as well as the regular quilt day on Wednesday, April 8. Everyone that can help is needed for a special quilt project.

Hoskins man arrested after chase in Norfolk

Norfolk police arrested a Hoskins man Tuesday after he allegedly rammed his girlfriends car and led law enforcement officials on a chase through Norfolk.

Arrested was Floyd Williams, 41, of Hoskins. He was arrested for second degree assault, flight to avoid arrest and resisting arrest, all Class IV felonies.

The incident allegedly started as an argument between Williams and Nancy J. Siebels, 33, of Hoskins. After Williams allegedly ran his 1977 Monte Carlo into a 1976 Datsun, driven by Siebels, he left the scene and entered the Norfolk Police Division and said he would not be taken alive, and then fled, according to published reports.

Norfolk Police and the Nebraska State Patrol eventually arrested Williams near First Street and Eisenhower Avenue later that morning.

Siebels was taken to Lutheran Community Hospital in Norfolk, treated for injuries and released.

MEASLES ARE MAKING A COMEBACK

An article in the U.S. NEWS AND WORLD REPORT says that measles are making a comeback. The hardest hit are children under 5 and adults aged 19 to 35 who have never had the disease. Many of the children have not been vaccinated, and the vaccination may not have been effective in some adults. According to the article, some public health officials now recommend that all children receive two vaccinations and adults under the age of 33 who have been vaccinated receive a second dose. Adults who have no record of childhood vaccinations should receive two doses. Check with your family physician.

The GOLDEN YEARS by Pat O'Leary

Leroy Grannis and Lorrin Harrison were teenagers when they became surfers. That was in 1931, and they were among the first in Southern California to try the water sport that originated in Hawaii. Grannis, at age 74, and Harrison at 78, are still at it. Grannis, a retired telephone maintenance supervisor, surfs daily. Harrison, who has 12 great-grandchildren, surfs twice aweek and canoes daily. The place that they and other old-timers take their surfboards is known as Old Man's Beach, a segment of San Onofre State Beach about 60 miles south of Los Angeles.

Rena Priest is picking up where she left off in 1941. That's when she closed the beauty salon she had run for 10 years in Elkhart, Indiana. Returning there after 50 years spent in Ohio she was eager to resume her career. So at age 93 she enrolled in courses in order to renew her beauty operator's license and open a full-service salon. "I do the best manicures in the state of Indiana," she told an interviewer.

WHO IS GOING TO PROTECT YOUR CROP INVESTMENT AFTER APRIL 15?

This year's crop insurance policies are definitely worth looking into. They offer yield guarantees based on your own production history and premium rates that reflect your own production record plus a wide range of options that let you choose the level of protection that best meets your needs and budget. But there's only one way you can be certain it's protected: by carrying crop insurance. And there's only one time to do it: SOON. Because after APRIL 15, it will be too late to apply for insurance. If you would like further information on crop insurance for 1992 stop and see the agents at Farmers State Insurance Agency. To guarantee a return of your crop production costs, call Farmers state Insurance Agency today.
