JDC's destiny set as county settles matter

the Wayne County Juvenile De-tention Center now has a future.

The JDC's destiny was decided Tuesday when the Wayne County Commissioners unanimously voted by resolution to enter an interlocal agreement with the 22 governing bodies involved in the JDC's operation.

With the agreement, a new re-gional governing board will be es-tablished and Wayne County will no longer be liable for the facility.

The decision came following an hour-long public hearing, which allowed area residents to voice their concerns. Although only nine people attended the meeting, the most vocal concerns came from ESU 1 Director Rodney Garwood and Walter Meier, a Wayne County

GRABBING THE board's atten-

"Somewhere, someplace you have to have an educational advisory group to determine some of the things these kids need," he said. "Special ed kids raise a whole host of new problems. Their rights do not terminate simply because they're incarcerated. If you have special ed students in there you could incur the federal govern-ment's wrath if you don't provide them the services you need.

Garwood's comments were in response to the possibility that youth could be kept in the JDC longer than 15 days, which is the average length of stay. Under the law, some juvenile offenders could remain in custody for upwards of a

David Lynn, the consultant who did a feasibility study of the Wayne County facility, told the board that the Juvenile Justice Advisory Board the juvenile justice Advisory Board knotted-5-5 in-their vote to approve a grant for the JDC's operation. He said they wanted to see the grant cleaned up before approved.

WHILE THE purpose of the meeting was to receive public comment, Chris Connolly, the assistant Wayne County attorney, said there are some things he'd like to see in the agreement. He said there needs to be a distribution of assets clause in the contract in the event the compact dissolves, there needs to be a six month clause in the event one of the governing bodies pulls out and there needs to be more Indian tribe involve-

In spite of the concerns, Lynn said the regional agreement could be a model for the state.

Commission Chairman Gerald Pospishil appeared satisfied with the way the five-month long mat-ter has been resolved.
"Our objective all along has

"Our objective all along has been to relieve Wayne County of all liability, period," Pospishil said. "I think this does that."

The future of the Wayne County JDC was in jeopardy after the Wayne County board had voted 2-1 in November to withdraw funding and site support for the program following a rash of escapes.

Wayne gets its man Board hires superintendent

Bv LaVon Anderson Assistant Editor

The Wayne-Carroll board of education met in special session Monday night and unanimously ratified a contract agreement with Dr. Dennis Jensen to serve as the school district's new superintendent, ef-pr. Jensen was selected from over 70 applicants for the position and replaces Dr. Francis Haun, who is retiring af-ter serving as superin-tendent of the Wayne-Carroll school district

Dennis Jensen

Dr. Jensen's two-year contract calls for a sal-ary of $52,000 for the first year. He will receive the same insurance package as provided other full-time school district employees.

DR. JENSEN, 39, comes to Wayne from Elk Point, S.D. Public Schools, where he has served as superintendent since 1984: Prior to that he was superintendent at Montrose, S.D. from 1981 through 1984.

He holds a doctorate in educational administration from the University of South Dakota and a master's degree in educational administration from South Dakota State University at Brook-

While serving as superintendent of the Elk Point Public Schools, Dr. Jensen has been active in the Jaycees, Elks Club and Lions Club.

He has special talents in the areas of grant writing, industrial technology and school/ business partnerships, and has worked ex-tensively to implement school and community DR. JENSEN cited several reasons for his move to Wayne, including the fact that Wayne is home to Wayne State College. "I'm looking forward to working with the college with grant applications and in other areas."

He added that he is also looking forward to building school natherships with area

The new superintendent added that Wayne is a larger community than Elk Point, with a school population of 935 kindergarten through 12th grade students compared to 500 pre-kindergarten through 12th grade students in Elk Point.

In addition, Dr. Jensen said he has become frustrated by the support, or lack of support, of education in South Dakota.

DR. JENSEN is planning to move to Wayne with his family in the near future.
He and his wife, Monica, are the parents of one son, seven-year-old John, and five-year-old twin daughters, Rachel and Sarah.

Polling sites change

With the primary election just ound the corner (May 12), resiaround the corner (May 12), residents of Wayne County might be interested to know where to go to cast their ballots, since some sites have changed.

The biggest change for voters comes in the Deer Creek and Sherman precincts, the Brenna and Plum Creek precincts, and the Strahan Wilbur precincts, all of which have been consolidated.

Residents in the Brenna and Plum Creek precincts will vote at the District 57 school, located four miles south of Wayne along Highway 15. Residents in the Deer Creek and Sherman precincts are scheduled to vote at the Carroll scheduled to vote at the Carroll Auditorium. Voters in the Strahar and Wilbur precincts are to vote at the District 51 school.

the District 31 school.

The consolidation of the precincts is due to changes in federal law, which require that all voting sites be handicapped voting si accessible.

OTHERWISE, MOST voting sites are the same as they were in the 1990 election. Residents in Wayne's first ward are scheduled to vote at the Poor funding

Report: Wayne State needs more money

By Mark Crist Managing Editor

If the Nebraska State Colleges are to remain healthy and competitive, they're going to have to receive more funding.

A recent report underlines the need for additional funding in Ne-braska colleges, reinforcing an earlier study which showed that the state's colleges rank at or near the bottom of their peers.

Such is the case for Wayne State College, says Dr. Donald Mash, president of Wayne State.

ACCORDING TO a study, which used 1990 data, Wayne State ranked dead last in its peer group of 12. Peer groups were independently determined by public colleges of similar size, role and mission, academic program mix and rural setting.

"The fact that we now have information and we know its credible

"The fact that we now have information and we know its credible is a good beginning to plead our case," Mash says. "We have to make a strong case to the Coordinating Commission, the governor and the legislature. We have to show them that one, we're not adequately funded and two that higher education's important. higher education's important. There's more we need to do for administration and finance at administration and finance at Wayne State, says the updated results show that, on a per student basis, Wayne State College's peer institutions were spending 36.5 percent more on average. For the number of students currently enrolled at Wayne State, funding would have to increase by $4.6 million to equal the average by peer institutions.

That's a lot of money since Wayne State's budget currently runs around $13 million, the high-est figure of Nebraska's state colleges.

Herald wins awards at convention

The Wayne Herald was the winner of three awards at the Nebraska Press Association convention, held

A second place award was given to the Herald for its Lifestyle section. The newspaper also won third place awards in the spot news story and editorial categories, respectively.

In the Lifestyle Section category, the Herald submitted "Speaking of People" pages from the May 23, June 30 and Dec. 5, 1991 editions. This is the second year in a row that Assistant Editor LaVon Anderson has received the second place award in the Lifestyle section category of the Better-Newspaper Contest. In the five years, the category has existed, the Herald's "Speaking of People" pages has placed four times.

THE AWARD in the editorial category was given to the Herald on an editorial in the Oct. 10, 1991 edition expressing concerns over vandalism at the Concord cemetery. The piece, written by Anderson, was entitled "Shame on You."

Judges' review comments about the entry, sald, "Some editorials are written from the heart." Grave desecration is not unique to all communities but this perhaps sentimental, approach may arouse some action: In the spot news entry, the Herald was recognized for its coverage of the Geno's Steakhouse fire Sept. 6. The article, written by Managing Editor Mark Crist, appeared in the Sept. 9, 1991 edition.

Judges comments over the Geno's fire coverage praised the Herald for "great writing and photo work."
They said the Herald should be applauded for devoting all the space it did to photos.

Visionary leaders

The Wayne community has the benefit of leadership with a

Members of the Wayne City Council recently approved a list of goals for the community which look to the future and project advancements that would make the community a much better

We believe it is rare in the work-a-day world for community leaders, fraught with the immediate myriad problems of maintaining city government operations, to look ahead and decide what the city should look like and be like five or ten years down the road.

The goals established last week are ambitious, but certainly attainable. They call mainly for lifestyle enhancement efforts, which is a tribute to the city leaders of the past, who were forced to deal mainly with health and safety issues.

With those needs already being met, it is nice to be able to look to a future which might include additional park land and recreational facilities, a new multi-use civic center, beautification efforts, tree planting and new housing development.

Many cities in the Midwest are still trying to figure out how to get all their streets paved.

People is Wayne can take pride in the efforts of the past to develop excellent municipal services and streets. Those efforts now enable city leaders to look at refinements for the future.

We encourage the effort to develop a community vision for the future of Wayne. We congratulate the city for taking steps to plan for that future. We encourage the community to participate in that plan by offering additional ideas and assistance with efforts It's a laudable goal...a better place for all of us to live.

Solution needed

in May which is designed to solve the personal property tax mess. To reject the amendment will return the state to the days when tax assessing gestapo corps was needed to check into everyone's closet to see what personal property items they were hiding and not claiming.

The measure brings fairness to the system by taxing across the board and makes allowances for the beleaguer ag industry by permitting sales tax rebates on the sizeable equipment investments required in farming.

The measure is not perfect. The fertilizer tax which was amended in at the last minute, must be thrown out in the next legislative session.

But the measure needs to be considered as an overall solution that can be refined as need be in the future.

Alleviating confusion when it's time to vote

I know how confusing it can be when people start campaigning for public office and when the Legislature's in session. There's a lot of coin words which get thrown around and very few are able to keep abreast of the new coin word

That's why I've decided to focus the column this week on those top 10 coin words. While many of my definitions may not be "politically correct" (that's a coin phrase, which I'll discuss, too), they should be somewhere near as accurate as the excuse we receive from Con-gressmen and Legislators about their voting record at campaign

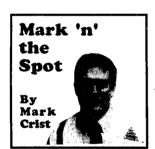

1. Political correctness is the coin phrase one uses when describing things the way the gov-ernment wants them described, similarly to the way George Orwell said it would be in "1984." For instance, in today's society you no longer refer to a dump as a dump, it's a scenic, licensed solid waste facility for the purpose of appro-priately disposing materials unfit for human use or consumption.

MEDIA BASHING. While politicians might argue that this is what the media does to them, this point is arguable. Actually, the media doesn't bash candidates and elected officials, except in rare cir-cumstances. Candidates do a good enough job of getting into trouble themselves and then having it re-ported. Media bashing is actually what candidates do when they want to dance around the issue similar to the way you dance around your wife when you've used the credit card one too many times or the checkbook when you have a zero balance (unless you're in Congress).

3. Legislative bill. This is a good one. The legislative bill is any thing that the Legislature passes which imposes more taxes or more loopholes which cost more money for taxpayers.

4. Primary. This is what happens when voters have no good choices for president and it's our primary purpose to vote for the most electable candidate despite the fact that the individual is not running.

5. Electoral college. This is where politicos go for an education although they seldom learn anything.

6. SUPERDELEGATES. Superdelegates are something neither the Republican nor the Democratic party have but when available they can jump ant hills in a single bound with or without a cape.

7. Exit polls. These are the poles which are imbedded in the poles which are imbedded in the cement right outside the door where people vote. These poles give election officials a good smile every time they see a voter walk blindly into one. No one is certain why the spelling is different, how-ever.

8. Draft. This is what happens to voters every time they enter the ballot booth to cast their vote. When they pull those curtains closed, it gets real drafty; especially after they look at the choices on the ballot.

9. Issues. No one really knows what this word means. It's one of those coin words that politicians are trying to eliminate. 10. Rally. This is what happens when candidates attend things like "Star Trek" conventions to gain votes. Many people have been known to rally around candidates when they kiss hands and shake

I hope this helps. It's always better to have informed voters when they go to the polls but make sure you don't bump your head because that can hurt,

Response surprising

I was a bit surprised about the non-reaction to my editorial about workplace smoking. Mark Crist got letters upon letters about his opinion of Country Western music.

Since I wrote the editorial I took the issue of my firing to small claims court, asking for lost wages. The case was dismissed for this reason: "Insufficient evidence to show plaintiff was not an 'at will' employee or that release from job was the result of unfair employment practice as defined by Nebraska law."

I called the EEOC and it seems that in Nebraska there isn't any law against smoking in the workplace. Nebraska is a "right to work" state so an employer doesn't need a "reason" to fire an employee. We've progressed to the point of pretty good regulations against sexual harassment but you take sexual harassment but you take out the "sexual" and you have

A telephone poll taken by ICR Survey Research Group of Medica PA says that 67 percent of the respondents who had never smoked said they worried about the health effects of passive smoke. Support for a ban on smoking in public places came from 70 percent of people who had never smoked and 59 percent of former smoked.

Health advocates have pushed Health advocates have pushed for laws to restrict workplace smoking and have succeeded in many cities and towns. The poll indicated that 36 percent favored the laws while 63 percent said they believed that workers and their employers ought to decide whether to allow smoking. whether to allow smoking.

Among non-smokers 47 percent favored laws guaranteeing a smoke-free workplace and 51 percent said workers and their employers should decide. Of the smokers, 81 percent said workers and their employers should decide.

So it seems that when push comes to shove, Mr. Bell was within his rights to fire me. He did not break any laws or regulations. I also want to say that Mr. Bell — in my observation and opinion — is a observation and opinion — is a good person. He does a good job at PFM. Being a smoker doesn't make you a "bad" person and I really do like Mr. Bell as I do many of my "smoker" friends. Remember my son who told me "Mommie, you're going to die?" Well, my dear, sweet, loving boy is today a chain smoker. I'm not allowed in his chain smoker. I'm not allowed in his home to see my grandchildren because I complained about his drug and alcohol use with my grandchildren. It seems I don't have any rights in the situation either and I've been "fired" as his

I do understand that there isn't any change without pain. Twelve years ago there was so much pain and conflict in the process of organizing and implementing Haven House. I was told then that domestic violence "didn't happen" in Wayne, America, Today, I can say that it was worth the pain to implement change. This issue is no less important.

Smoking kills more people than domestic violence. Smoking is domestic violence and it is child abuse when you smoke presence of a minor. What else can

Police probe vandalism at cemetery in Wayne

According to Wayne Police Chief Vern Fairchild, there are currently no suspects in the incident Police reports said approximately 10 grave markers were overturned sometime late Friday or early Saturday morning.

While many of the markers the majority overturned were placed in the cemetery in the late 1800s. Many of the vandalized stones were those of children and SIEVERS SAID the reason she and other cemetery officials think young kids vandalized the cemetery is because there were several seen playing in the area earlier in the week. When approached, the youngsters scattered, she said.

Despite the vandalism, Sievers said the cemetery association will see to it that stones are repaired and remounted. She said, how-ever, that it's something that's difficult to do since the association

Lawmakers' poison pens encourage term limits

By Melvin Paul Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN - There are a lot of people in Nebraska that seem hot for term limits, and the Legislature appears to be doing what it can to cool things off.

If you ask senators publicly, they generally say they don't like limits but aren't too concerned about the petition drive that seeks to establish term limits for officeholders in the state.

But their actions during the current session say otherwise. Consider a couple of bills they've dealt with this year.

Senators are moving to approve a "campaign finance reform" bill, which would establish limits on the amount that could be spent in statewide election races. The limits would be voluntary, but they would be enforced by a unique system that gives a candidate's opponent dollar-for-dollar in public funds for every dollar a candidate spends

The bill appears to be a direct response to the public perception that all the money that is spent in election, handed out freely by lobbyists and other public interests, makes office-holders bought and paid for.

The bill is designed to help level the playing field and make it more possible for challengers to take on incumbent senators. Whether it will have any effect remains to be seen, but it at least looks good publicly, and that's the idea.

The other step senators took came with a lot less fanfare. In fact, some would argue it was downright sneaky.

They passed an election reform bill, and with little debate included in it a provision that makes it a crime to circulate petitions outside your home county-no more multicounty circulation.

Ed Jaksha and other leaders of the term limits drive immediately charged foul, saying it was a direct effort to make the term limit signatures harder to collect.

Sponsors of the measure denied that was the intent. Now that the Nebraska Supreme Court has said you can't bar people from being paid to circulate petitions—something many Nebraskans find distasteful—why not require circulators to come from their home county to keep a special interest from hiring a bunch of carpetbag-ger circulators to put issues on the

It makes some sense, but it would appear the timing of sena-tors was bad for such a change— bad timing unless you're opposed to term limits. Then the timing was

Attorney General Don Stenberg almost immediately challenged the constitutionality of the new law, and it is all up to the Nebraska Supreme Court now to sort out the issue.

Term limits come out of a natural frustration with government, a lot of it justified. But I still get back to the thought that we already have before us the best way to change government—we can vote. With six Nebraska senators already deciding to retire this year, and two others forced to retire because of redistricting, turnover in the Legislature is already really high. That's at least eight new senators out of 25 seats that are up for election this year, and it's highly likely some of the incumbents runnings will get knocked out yet, too.

It would be a shame if the senators' actions on the petition issue makes some people more likely to support term limits. But it just might happen.

Candidates seeking the District Candidates seeking the District.

Individuals seeking election are City Rick Tom Oleon Don Liedman.

Gus Pick, Tom Olson, Don Liedman, Shirley Kraemer, Garry Anderson, De Carlson and Richard Hanson.

Posed with questions from the 60-plus member audience, the candidates dealt with issues ranging from how to improve the public schools to abortion and the state's death penalty.

Predominant in many of the candidates platforms were plans to return controls to local governments and each responded to a question of how they would deal

"We the people are the gov-

OLSON, WHO'S viewpoint echoed others, said he thinks people need to be treated more equally. He said the laws need to be designed so that white collar crime isn't treated differently than blue collar crime.

While there was some disparity on the issues, all of the candidates said they were supportive of Initia tive 300 and each favored having laws written in simpler language. Each candidate also said they were opposed to abortion.

Liedman, of Carroll, said he favors abortion only in rare instances, such as rape and incest and Krae-mer said she favors stronger legislation against it. Pick said he's not funding for it. The only view expressed which varied slightly from the others was Anderson's.

"I'm opposed to abortion but I'm also against making it illegal because it would get pushed back into alleys," he said.

VARYING VIEWS were expressed in how to deal with the state's personal property tax. Each of the candidates said they fa-vored eliminating personal prop-

DRUG ABUSES IN NURSING HOMES: A few years ago, some investigators discovered that many elderly people living in board and care homes were being overmedicated. In some cases, it was an attempt to treat certain symptoms which, as it turned out, were caused by previous overmedication. In other cases, unfortunately, the over-medication with tranquilizing drugs was deliberate: to keep the patients passive. Several administrators reportedly rationalized the drugging by stating that they were working with reduced staffs, reduced budgets, and increased work loads. Having hyperactive or "demanding" patients put a strain on the facilities.

These reports did lead to some action being taken that erved to reduce the abuses in many nursing facilities. But apparently, the abuses have continued in some board and care homes. Last month, Congressman Edward R. Roybal, the Chairman of the House Select Committee on Aging, and its subcommittee on Health and Long Term conducted a hearing on the abuses in medication of elderly Representative Roybal indicated that prior to scheduling Representative Royal militare staff visited board and care the hearing, "Aging Committee staff visited board and care homes in Ohio, Texas, California, and the District of Columbia between 1989 and 1992. Their findings are documented in a report ... Residents of these facilities were excessively medicated — over 85 percent of them were on three prescribed drugs a day, two of which were psychoacter and the state of the s tive, despite the fact that not one home maintain mental health-records to justify the residents' drug use Clearly," said the Congressman, "what we have is a system

Norfolk lineman commits to WSC

Wildcats ink six more recruits

Former Norfolk High School football standout Ryan Christensen and five California junior college student-athletes recently signed letters to continue their athletic ind academic careers at Wayne

Christensen, a 6-2, 270-pound lineman, earned all-conference and honorable mention all-state honors at Norfolk High in 1991. He was also a third-place finisher in the state wrestling tournament.

Paul Giacalone (DB, 6-0, 180),

Larry Holliman (DL, 6-1, 260), and Dennis Sanchez (OL, 6-4, 265) join WSC from Gavilan Junior College in Gilroy, California.

Giacalone is expected to replace Terry Beair as the starting Wildcat strong safety in the fall. Giacalone earned all-conference honors at Gavilan and is described by WSC head coach Dennis Wag-ner as "a very intelligent player."

Holliman earned all-conference honors after leading Gavilan with 15 sacks last season. His quickness reminds many of the WSC staffers of former Wildcat all-America defensive lineman Randy Rouse.

Sanchez is expected to earn a starting offensive line spot in the fall for the 'Cats. He possesses excellent quickness and is a great pass blocker, according to Wagner. Bernie Muller (DB, 6-1, 180) will battle for a starting defensive back spot immediately, according to WSC coaches. Muller led Palomar Junior College in San Marcos, Cali-fornia to a junior college national championship in 1991 with eight interceptions while earning all-conference honors.

Trotsky Johnson (DB, 5-11, 210) matriculates to WSC from Taft Junior College in Taft, California. Wagner describes Johnson as a "very objectal player who can cover very physical player who can cover receivers from the strong safety position."

Wayne State is currently involved in spring camp, which runs through April 16. You'll laugh, You'll cry. You'll hurl.

Goldenrod Hills gets grant for 'Drug Free Head Start'

A "Drug Free Head Start" is the mission of a new Federally Funded project that has been received by Goldenrod Hills Community Ser-vices in Wisner. These funds will provide special training to all ten Goldenrod Hills Head Start Program staff people. Staff from Head Start programs in Norfolk, South Sioux City, Neligh, Wayne, Stanton, Crofton, Walthill, Tekamah, Hartington and Wisner will have a week long training before the school year begins in August. This Head Start staff will then be able to provide more services to families with alcohol and other drug concerns. This could range from an addiction problem in the family to talking with their pre-schoolers about the effects of alcohol and other drugs.

All of the centers have been trained in a parenting course which provides the latest research information on how to raise drug free children. Support groups will be available to parents who want to discuss some of the concerns they have with the drug use issue. All of the Head Start teachers will be looking into new ways to educate their students about alcohol and other drugs.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Trish Frevert at Goldenrod Hills in Wisner, 529-3513.

LADIES AID AND LWML

Twenty members of St. John's Lutheran Ladies Aid and LWML attended the meeting Friday after-noon, Wilma Bartels and Yvonne Lemke were hostesses.

Devotions were led by Lois Schlines with a reading entitled "Utensils for a Christian Life". All joined in the singing hymns during the reading with Imogene Samuel-son as accompanist. The Christian Growth feature was a skit entitled "Ticket to Heaven". Members presenting the skit were Lillian Fredrickson, Elaine Holm, Edna Hansen, Harriet Stolle and Arlene Benson. Lila Barner closed the pro-gram with a solo, "I Love to Tell the Story".

Harriet Stolle, president, opened the business meeting with an Easter devotion. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved and the treasurers report was given. The friendship committee sent-get well cards to Helen Domsch and Abbie Paulson and visited Helen Domsch, Fred Paulson and Clara Mahoney. The ard committee announced they have Easter cards and napkins available. Lutheran World Relief sewing met March 20 with 12 members present. They tied six quilts and hemmed nine.

The Lutheran Family and Social Services will meet at St. John's Lutheran Church in Norfolk on April 7 with meeting beginning at 9:30 a.m. Lois and Clarence Schlines and Edna Hansen went to the Wakefield Care Center Thursday morning, and showed a film and led a sing-a-long.

The Wayne Zone LWML work-shop will be held April 21 at 9:30 a.m. at Immanuel Lutheran Church in Laurel. The LWML district convention will be held in Norfolk June 19 and 20. Delegate registrations are to be in by May 20 and guest registrations by May 31.

The birthday song honored Irene Walter and Meta Bartling. The meeting closed with LWML pledge, the Lord's Prayer and table prayer.

The next meeting is May 1 with Gladys Brudigam and Alice Brown as hostesses.

AAL MEETING

The Aid Association for Luther-ans met Saturday night at St. John's Lutheran Church in Wakefield with 23 members attending. Mary Baker presided at the business meeting. A video of the Health Fair held at Salem Lutheran Church was shown. Quilt blocks were distributed to members for each to embroider their name on a block.

Bingo was entertainment and a carry-in lunch was served. Planned for the next meeting on May 3 is a pizza supper at the Wakefield Park at 6 p.m. and this year's confer-ments will be recognized.

Keep in mind that Grandpa only farmed 160 acres. So there wasn't a whole lot of equipment. There was an awful lot of other "stuff" though; that had accumulated over forty-five years. He seldom missed an auction, and usually found something that was "such a bargain", he couldn't pass it up.

north of the farmstead that became a handy place to park old cars, threshing machines, rolls of wire, rabbit hutches, posts, and eventually, tractors.

For the past ten years, we have been trying to clear out this clutter. Plus, we've already had one sale, six years ago.

But now we are preparing for The Sale. And it seems there is still a lot of stuff around. It's time to make sure the welder still works, and to patch up the feed bunks

We called Orville Lage to set the date: not too early, not too late, better avoid Easter weekend. Mike made his list, and it was printed in the paper.

The big tractor we were so proud of acquiring is no longer so big, compared to today's models. Might as well sell the 4-H show box, and the calf halters. cause a lump to form in my throat. Even the three-wheeler will go on

I'm sure that's the way it will be this Saturday. The way the weather's been, there will probably be a snowstorm.

Mom's been baking pies, and I'm-going to use all that ham-burger in the freezer for sloppy Joes. Things are being lined up in the pasture east of the house. The cow-calf pairs have been picked, and the bulls won't be pawing the ground by our barn anymore. As Cliff Rohde told us before church this morning, "You're never completely ready. It just happens." And I think that's "ready—physi-cally, mentally and emotionally." I've cussed and discussed farming, read all the articles about its ing, read all the articles about its being a way of life, experienced its highs and lows, called it my hus-band's hobby, told all the jokes about it, and made many plans to

Only those who've experienced it know what I'm feeling these days: relief, anticipation, dread, nostalgia, disbellef, and pain. So I'd better get busy and get started on that upstairs bedroom. There's lots of "stuff" waiting for me, too.
