

A tribute

WSC gives top award

Kenneth M. Olds will receive the "Distinguished Service Award," Wayne State College's highest form of recognition, during commencement ceremonies on Saturday, May 9 at 2 p.m. at the Willow Bowl.

Olds, a long-time resident of the Wayne community, is a practicing attorney and principal in the Wayne law firm of Olds and Pieper. He received his bachelor's degree from the University of South Dakota in 1938 and his bachelor of laws degree from USD in 1940.

The Vermillion, S.D. native was one of four persons involved in the incorporation of the Wayne State Foundation in 1961. The Foundation was established to assist the college as an important supplement to state funds. Mr. Olds has served as the Foundation's attorney since that time. He attends Foundation executive committee meetings each month, and has been a constant college supporter.

"Mr. Olds is very deserving of this recognition," says Dr. Donald Mash, president of Wayne State. "He has volunteered a great deal of his time over the years to work for the Wayne State Foundation and support of the college." Olds, who is a member of the State National Bank board of directors in Wayne, has a distinguished record of community service. He was named "Citizen of the Year" by the Wayne Chamber of Commerce in 1988, the first president of Educational Service Unit One, co-chairman of the campaign to finance the purchase of Benthack Hospital in Wayne, and later was active in the fund raising campaign to construct Providence Medical Center in Wayne.

He served as president of Wayne Industries, Wayne Kiwanis Club, and the Wayne Hospital Foundation. In addition, Mr. Olds served as a Boy Scout leader, and was active in the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce and the Wayne Baseball Association.

Olds served in the Signal Corps in World War II and moved to Wayne in 1947 to begin practicing law. He and his wife, Inez, have three children: Dr. Kenneth Olds, Jr., Greeley, Colo.; Sandra (Olds) Lorenzen, Lincoln; and Diane (Olds) McCarty, Emporia, Kan. The couple has six grandchildren.

Friends forever

WAYNE HEAD START STUDENT Kari Glinsmann found a new friend Thursday when her class visited a farm west of Wayne. The baby goat she is feeding was only 8-days-old at the time the picture was taken. In addition to feeding goats, Head Start students got to milk goats, see cattle up close, pet lambs and other goats and see pigs up close. In all, approximately 30 children visited a number of Wayne County farms. More pictures from their visit are located on page 6 of today's Wayne Herald.

Count low at forum

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Sponsors of the school board candidates' forum Thursday night at Wayne High School were a little disappointed by the dismal turnout but they were still glad they held the event.

With 10 of 11 candidates present for the forum, each candidate had five minutes to present their background and their platforms. But the high school lecture hall was not full by any stretch of the imagination.

"It's unfortunate that the lecture hall was not full," Bill Dickey, spokesman for the Wayne Boosters, said. "I wish I had an answer. It was well advertised and well publicized. I don't know why the attendance was so low."

Wayne High School's lecture hall seats approximately 430 people, not including folding chairs.

Of those in attendance, the majority were faculty members of the Wayne-Carroll school system. Dickey said he was pleased to see the number of faculty members present who attended.

While the forum was not intended to be a debate, it provided those in attendance with some guidance for how to vote for the candidates present. Dickey said the forum was set up to be more informal.

Wayne High School principal Dr. Donald Zeiss, who was also in attendance, said, "I guess we'll just have to vote what our conscience tells us."

The forum lasted for approximately 1/2 hour.

King verdict spurs action at Wayne State

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Riots following the not guilty verdict for four Los Angeles police officers in the Rodney King case has not only caught headlines across the nation, it's also having an impact in Wayne.

On Friday, about 10 African-American Wayne State students staged a protest march down Main Street. During the march, students chanted "we want justice, justice, justice" and "equality is not the policy." The peaceful demonstration went from Godfathers parking lot to the campus.

Wayne State teachers were trying to deal with the situation as students disagreed with the verdict handed down Wednesday.

"Anytime something like this occurs, it creates horrible publicity for police—based on the presumption that this was a crime. It makes it more difficult for police to use their authority," said Paul Campbell, Wayne State professor of criminal justice.

"... I personally disagreed with the verdict. Officers have the right to use reasonable force but a guy on the ground surrounded by 20 officers is not a threat. I think excessive force was used."

The not guilty verdict has not only sparked riots in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Atlanta and Milwaukee, it has angered students. Wayne State junior Eric Lee said students are mystified by the verdict.

"I think it shows the harsh realities of racial strife in America," Lee told the Herald following the protest march. "There's a great deal of discussion about this among students. Rodney King's court case was racial. It showed the judicial system at its worst and a lot of students will hopefully look back at the situation and learn."

Lee is a member of Wayne State's African Student Association.

Wayne State political science professor Dr. Alan O'Donnell said he sees strong parallels between the riots in Los Angeles today and the ones that occurred in 1965, when the Watts riots occurred. He said, however, that the brutality shown in this week's mayhem is worse.

"It's obvious the reforms made following the Watts riots have failed," he said. "In 1965, it began with L.A. and spread across the nation. The result was new training programs for police officers. We have to ask ourselves what we should do next."

Charges pending in cases

Two Wayne individuals have had charges filed against them for delivery of a controlled substance. The filings were made Tuesday in the Wayne County Court.

Charged with delivering or possessing with intent to deliver marijuana are Kelvin M. Posvar, 39, and James C. Simeon, 38, both of Wayne.

Both individuals were arrested by the Wayne Sheriff's Department Tuesday, April 28 and later released on bond. Bond for Posvar was set at $5,000 and bond for Simeon was set at $2,500.

Posvar was allegedly observed selling an undisclosed amount of marijuana Nov. 22, 1991. Simeon was allegedly observed selling an undisclosed amount of marijuana July 13, 1991. Delivery of a controlled substance is a Class III felony.

According to the Wayne County Attorney's office, the possible sentence for the Class III felony is a minimum of one year in prison and a maximum of 20 years in prison, a $25,000 fine, or both.

Blaze destroys truck

WAYNE VOLUNTEER FIRE FIGHTERS respond to a truck fire Thursday around 8:40 a.m. a mile south of Wayne. According to Wayne fire officials, the pickup caught fire when the engine backfired. The engine's backfire caused oil residue on the transmission to catch fire. The truck was destroyed but no injuries were reported.

New look debuts in today's edition

Major changes in the look of your Wayne Herald begin today with the introduction of the new "readers choice" nameplate on Page One.

The new "flag", as it is called in newspaper jargon, was the popular choice of newspaper readers who were given the opportunity to select from seven different designs.

"We appreciate the more than 100 people who responded to the request for votes on the paper's new flag design," said publisher Les Mann.

He said the new flag represents the rolling hills surrounding the Logan Valley and incorporates the area's abundant wildlife as represented by a pheasant on the wing.

The Wayne area has been designated as one of the hot spots in the nation for pheasant hunting by a national outdoor magazine, said Mann. He said he thinks the paper's new pheasant logo represents the interest local residents have in wildlife and the environment.

Other changes have been implemented with today's paper as well.

Readers may notice a difference in type used in the paper. Studies have indicated Wayne Herald readers would appreciate larger type for better readability. The paper has changed from a 9-point type size to 10-point as well as changing to a more readable style.

In coming weeks new features will be added and pages will be reorganized to enhance readability.

"We would appreciate readers continuing to offer us advice and suggestions as we work through the redesign process," said Mann.

Several activities scheduled

Wayne Care Centre observing National Nursing Home Week

National Nursing Home Week begins on Mother's Day, May 10, and lasts through Saturday, May 16, according to Wayne Care Centre administrator Pat Lichty.

Susie Siefken, activity director, said several special happenings will be a part of the care centre's activities for the week.

Festivities will start on Saturday, May 9 with a ladies Mother's Day luncheon at 12:30 p.m. for residents and their guests.

Mother's Day, May 10, will include an interdenominational worship service presented by the First Baptist Church at 2:30 p.m.

Donna Bourn will present music from Ponca on Monday, May 11 at 2 p.m.

CARROLL DAY has been designated for Tuesday, May 12 and will honor all of the care centre residents from Carroll. Activities will begin at 10 a.m. with music in the day room by Corrine Morris of Carroll and Dave Headley of Wayne. Cyril Hansen and Jay Morris will play organ and piano music at 2 p.m., and the Carroll Woman's Club will serve refreshments at 3 p.m.

Wednesday, May 13 is Volunteer Day and will feature singing by the Jaeger brothers of Winside at 2 p.m.

A volunteer appreciation supper is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. to recognize all of the people who have donated their time to make the residents 'live better.' Entertainment during the supper will be provided by a Wayne High music group, J & C Comedy duo and a mystery speaker.

Winside Day will be observed on Thursday, May 14 to honor all of the residents from Winside. The day's schedule includes accordion music by Otto Field at 2 p.m., refreshments served by women of Winside St. Paul's Lutheran Church at 3 p.m., and organ music by Harlan Brugger at 7:30 p.m.

WAYNE DAY will be observed on Friday, May 15 and will include the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce coffee at 10 a.m. in the dining room. Area women's organizations will assist with bingo at 2 p.m., and the day will also include a visit from the Clowns-for-Christ group.

All family and friends are welcome to attend any or all of the festivities.

Achievement Academy selects Vande Velde for national honor

The United States Achievement Academy has named Tera Vande Velde of Wayne, daughter of Randy and Dianne Vande Velde, a United States National Award winner in flag corps.

Vande Velde, who attends Wayne-Carroll High School, was nominated for the national award by Brad Weber, band director at the school.

Her name will now appear in the United States Achievement Academy's official yearbook, which is published nationally.

The academy recognizes less than 10 percent of all American high school students. Award winners are selected upon the exclusive recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors or other school sponsors and upon the standards of selection set forth by the academy.

The criteria for selection are a student's academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve,

DUCK DROVERS (from left) Jerry Conway, Lyle George, Curt Wilwerding and Joe Salitros keep the ducks from taking to shore.

BILL RICHARDSON TRIES to get an unfair advantage by having a frog compete in the duck race but Jim Markham doesn't seem to mind as he was ready to let his go.

Duck race a real quacker

It wasn't the Kentucky Derby and it wasn't the Indianapolis 500 but it was just as interesting and a heck of a lot more quacky.

This was the First Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce Duck Race. "I think it was real successful for the first year," said Mark Sorensen, one of the coordinators of the event. "The committee was pleased by the response from the community. Both medias really helped pull this off."

Sorensen said there is already some discussion to continue the duck race next year. Coming from behind to win was rubber ducky number 283, sponsored by Dick Metteer and Julie Zitek. For the first place bird, the participants won $150 in chamber bucks.

But the Metteer-Zitek champion didn't go unchallenged. Finishing five lengths behind was the duck number 293, sponsored by Mert Ellis. For his second place entry Ellis received $100 in chamber bucks.

Bird number 465, sponsored by Joey Bartholomaus, placed third, finishing a half-length behind the second place winner. He won $50 in chamber bucks for his third place finisher.

While it all seemed quacky, the most flappable place of all was the losing bird, number 303, sponsored by Wayne Groner. For his (or his bird's) efforts, Groner received a frozen (real) duck from Pac 'N' Save.

The race took approximately 30 minutes to complete and it kept the duck drovers busy. Celebrity drovers included: Jerry Conway, Jim Markham, Joe Salitros and Lyle George.

The event was attended by approximately 50 onlookers and rubber duck enthusiasts.

Photography: Mark Crist

WITH THE RUBBER DUCKS back on course, drovers had to keep a watchful eye on them before they headed back to shore and out of rough waters.

Rhetoric creates confusion

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska
Press Association

LINCOLN - It's really tough if you go to the polls May 12 and try to decide how to vote on Amendment 1 based on all the rhetoric being thrown around, which is full of distortions on both sides.

For the next two weeks we'll try to cut through some of those. This week we'll kind of look at it from the perspective of a homeowner. Next week we'll focus on the farmer's perspective.

Amendment 1 deals with personal property, but you don't have to own a pipeline or a railroad for it to impact you. How we vote on that could potentially affect everyone in the state.

Amendment 1 would give the Legislature the power to grant personal property exemptions. It's a power we all thought the Legislature has had for 20 years until some recent Supreme Court decisions have suggested that's not the case.

The amendment would also put in place a new method of taxing personal property based on its depreciated value, and return farm machinery and breeding livestock that are being depreciated to local property tax rolls.

Some opponents are suggesting people are going to be taxed out of their homes if this thing passes, which is just a ridiculous scare tactic.

First of all, personal property as it is makes up only 7 percent of the property tax base in the state. Even if the Legislature used its fullest powers under the Amendment, took all personal property off the tax rolls (which, ironically, is what many Amendment 1 opponents actually want in the first place) and let all the burden fall on real estate, the most real estate taxes could go up would be 7 percent. That's $70 a year if you're paying $1,000 in home property taxes, enough to make you pretty darn mad, but probably not enough to put you out on the street.

To the contrary though, the tax plan that Amendment 1 would put in effect right now is projected overall to cut homeowner taxes, especially in rural areas, where farm machinery will now be taking up part of the property tax burden. Don't be expecting any big property tax relief. The drop is estimated to be only about 2 percent statewide. But then again, it's not a tax increase, either.

In fact, if you're looking for property tax relief, you'd probably want to vote no. If Amendment 1 fails, and there is no further action by the Legislature this year, all personal property, including all inventories and all livestock, would go on the tax rolls. That would reduce real estate taxes by 15 percent. Now we're talking real money.

But the impact of such a move probably would not stop there. A tax like that would also have some impact on the economy, as many cattle and businesses may cross the state line to avoid the tax. That could translate into lost jobs, and it's pretty hard to pay your taxes if you don't have a job, no matter how low they are.

Backers of the amendment suggest its failure would turn Nebraska into another Appalachia. I doubt it would be quite that bad.

But it does show one thing: If you think Amendment 1 doesn't affect you, think again. Study up.

The views expressed in Capitol News are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Nebraska Press Association.

Fund helps state

A $400,000 grant will help the Nebraska Department of Economic Development (DED) fund programs that address the need for affordable housing in the state. The grant, from the Nebraska Investment Finance Authority (NIFA), will provide funds over a two-year period to help meet many of the housing needs and goals outlined in the 1992 Comprehensive Affordable Housing Strategy (CHAS).

About 30 percent of the funds will be used to support a DED Housing Coordinator's Office that will focus on attaining the goals outlined by a statewide advisory council of 100 citizens. These working groups were convened in 1991 by Gov. Nelson and DED to develop the CHAS.

About $200,000 of the grant will be used to develop community-based nonprofit organizations in selected areas of the state. These programs are designed to teach communities how to organize their people and resources so that they can begin to identify housing needs. Communities will also learn to access the appropriate financial resource and to package financing that will permit affordable housing to be built. DED is working with the Lincoln-based Indian Center and the Center for Community Change in St. Louis on this program.

The program's long-term goal is establishing a network of Community Development Corporations (CDCs) in the state. Several existing Nebraska-based CDCs have successfully provided affordable housing and other services benefiting lower income people. The grant funds will be used to support a two-year effort by some of these successful CDCs, and to assist with the start-up and training for new CDCs.

Once communities become organized and identify affordable housing needs, the programs will focus on ways to organize and promote business development and establishment of business incubators in the community.

Pesky birds are a nuisance on farms

They aren't as menacing as birds in an Alfred Hitchcock film, but pigeons and house sparrows can cause big headaches for both farmers and homeowners, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln wildlife specialist said.

Unlike most birds, house sparrows and pigeons depend on people for nearly all their food and shelter, according to Ron Johnson. As a result, a building's holes and ledges are popular nesting and perching spots for these species.

Homeowners must contend with the birds' messy droppings and house sparrows frequently find their way into buildings such as garages, Johnson said. On the farm, both species eat livestock feed and can transmit diseases to livestock by contaminating food and water with droppings.

They key to permanently ridding birds from buildings is to deny them access and to use other techniques to remove available nesting sites and food, he said.

Johnson offers the tips listed below to fend off these feathered pests.

- Close holes and other access points around buildings and replace broken windows.

- Close gaps in doors, especially sliding doors.

- Place bird exclusion netting or mesh wire under eaves or beams.

- Place small boards or metal caps at 45-degree angles on ledges along walls.

- Install vertical plastic or rubber strips in doorways that will let livestock and people in and out but keep birds from flying through.

- Limit access to food by covering livestock feed and removing spilled feed.

- Tear down nests at two-week intervals. Rebuilding nests interferes with birds' reproductive process, wears them out and makes them more susceptible to predators.

WSC defeats Mt. Marty, 2-1

By Corey Jacobs
Wayne Herald intern

The Wayne State College baseball team rebounded from an 8-7 loss to the University of Nebraska-Kearney on Wednesday at Hank Overin Field to defeat Mount Marty College 2-1 Thursday in Yankton, SD.

Lenny Klaver's Wildcats scored jumped out to an early lead against LINK after Troy Test's lead-off double. Shane Kober singled to score Test and Brent Cameron also singled in a run to give the 'Cats a 2-0 lead after one inning.

The Wildcats extended their lead to 4-0 in the second inning when Jeff Bjerke scored on a bases loaded walk and Test scored his second run on a Loper error.

The Lopers battled back with the help of a three-run homer to tie the score at 4-4 after five innings and took the lead at 7-4 with a three run sixth inning.

Rick Robert's RBI single in the sixth scored Russ Hamer and pulled the 'Cats to within two at 7-5.

The Wildcats tied the score at 7-7 in the bottom of the seventh when pinch hitter Travis Nedved belted a two-run homer with two outs in the inning. WSC managed to load the bases back up, but failed to get another run across the plate.

The Lopers scored the final run of the game in the eighth inning to hand the 'Cats the 8-7 defeat.

Jeff Gohr started on the mound for the 'Cats and gave up four runs on seven hits in five innings before giving way to reliever Jeff Lutt. Lutt pitched the final four innings of the game and also gave up four runs on six hits to record the loss and drop his record to 6-5.

Test led the offensive attack with a 3 for 4 performance with two singles and a double and Cameron collected two singles in the game. Kober, Roberts, and Nedved rounded out the offense with one hit apiece.

On Thursday the Wildcats traveled to Mount Marty College and got back into the winning column with a 2-1 decision.

Larry Ballinger went the distance for WSC recording six strikeouts and allowing one run on seven hits to pick up his first win of the season in the nine inning affair.

The 'Cats took the lead in the second inning when Cameron singled and advanced to second on a walk to Hamer. Cameron stole third and scored when Dave Shields singled to give the 'Cats the 1-0 lead.

Nedved hit the game-winning RBI in the seventh to score Test and give WSC the 2-1 victory.

Jeff Schneider, Cameron, Shields, Reeder, and Kober each collected hits in the game for the 23-21 'Cats.

Wildcats sign recruits for men's basketball

Wayne State College men's basketball coach Mike Brewen recently announced the signings of three recruits.

Terry Mailloux (6-8, 200, C, Glenwood, IL), Greg Ryan (6-7, 195, F, Omaha), and Kyle White (5-9, 165, G, Chicago, IL) will continue their academic and athletic careers at Wayne State.

Mailloux was selected to play in the Chicago City Suburban All-Star game, and also played on the Bloom Township High School squad that made the "Elite Eight" of the Illinois state tournament as a sophomore. He was a three-time basketball letterwinner, and also lettered twice in baseball at Bloom.

"We saw Terry play last summer at the B.C. All-Stars camp in Indiana," third-year WSC coach Mike Brewen said. "He's a tall, rangy left-hander who plays hard."

Ryan led Omaha Gross High School to a 15-5 record and a top 10 final ranking in the Omaha World-Herald. Omaha Gross upset state champion Omaha Benson during the regular season.

Ryan averaged 14.5 points and seven rebounds per game, and was selected to play in the Omaha Metro Coaches Association and Nebraska Coaches Association All-Star games.

"Greg is a great kid who is just starting to understand his ability," Omaha Gross head coach Jock Ilcisin said. "He has the potential to be a really good player."

"It was important for us to sign some freshman inside players, since the only returning inside players are seniors," Brewen said. "Greg has the ability to be a fine player for us. It's great for us to get Nebraska players—that's a top priority."

White led Marist High School to a 22-5 record last season and a ranking in the Chicago Super 25 pool. He was an honorable mention all-area selection and also participated in the Catholic League All-Star game, where he placed second in the slam dunk contest.

"Kyle is an athletic point guard from an excellent program," Brewen said. "He shot 59 percent from the field, 43 percent from three-point range and hand out 90 assists."

Wayne State expects to return eight players from last season's 11-17 squad, including NCAA-II rebound leader David Allen.

Sports Briefs

Teresa Ellis signs with Mt. Marty

WAYNE-Patricia Mickow, Mount Marty College Volleyball coach and Chuck Iverson, women's basketball coach have announced the signing of Teresa Ellis, a junior college transfer from Northeast Community College in Norfolk, Ne.

Ellis, who prepped at Wayne High School, averaged 15.3 points per game at Northeast, averaged 5.1 assists per game and 2.2 steals per outing during the 1991-92 campaign.

She had two triple doubles this past year, and was selected first team All-Conference and All-Region. Teresa was also voted MVP and Most Inspirational by her teammates.

Coach Iverson stated, "We are excited about Teresa coming to the Mount. We obviously needed to find some quality perimeter players, and Teresa certainly fits that mold. She is an extremely versatile athlete and also a quality student and person," Iverson said.

Ellis also had a great volleyball career at Northeast Community College. She was the leading setter, and will definitely make a difference in Mt. Marty's attack with her setting capabilities.

Ellis had a setting percentage of .371 (like batting average) and served a strong 96 percent. "Teresa will definitely be an asset to the team with her versatility to do many things on the volleyball court," Mickow said.

A place to grow

HEAD START YOUNGSTER Jesse Thies finds out that you have to hold the bottle with the nipple down in order for the goat to take the milk. For the little goat, standing up wasn't all that easy at this point in its life, since the baby was only a few days old. Nevertheless, Jesse didn't seem to mind feeding the baby.

CALVIN PAULSEN finds out that being kissed by a goat is a rather dampening experience. Actually, he didn't seem to mind. He later turned to the camera with a smile and said, "the goat kissed me."

NOT ALL FARM ANIMALS WERE unfamiliar to the Head Start youngsters. Student Kaylyn Longe found this out when one of the farm's cats came out to be petted.

CHRISTOPHER THIES FINDS that squeezing the milk out of a goat's udder is hard work, especially when the nanny goat won't stand still.

JUSTIN SUING finds out how soft the chickens can be to touch. The youngster was brave enough to put his hand gently into the cage and pet the birds.

Several options available

'Can do, can't do' rules outlined for ACR

Each year questions arise on the "can do — can't do" rules on ACR, according to the Wayne County ASCS office.

Some facts are very clear cut such as, to participate in the farm program you must set aside five percent of your base acres for all crops excluding oats, which require no set aside. The set aside ground must have been planted (or approved as being prevented from planted) to a small grain, row crop, other crops planted annually, or have been designated as ACR or (C)onserving (U)se acres for Pay in one of the last five years.

It is also a fact that there is a minimum of one field under five acres or one chain wide, otherwise the size and width requirement are five or more acres and a minimum of one chain wide.

"ACR acres tend to not always get the serious attention that they should," says ASCS director Teresa Post. "Planting of the crops, of course, get to be a priority, however, the big qualifying factor in program participation is your ACR."

If there is not sufficient residue, a cover crop must be planted to maintain eligibility of the ground. This cover needs to be established by June 1.

"There is not an exception to this rule even due to the weather, since oats can be planted as early as March on designated ACR acreages," Post says. "We realize that many times producers are unsure which acreages will be used for ACR until plantings begins, this is fine if all of the prospective acreages have adequate residue. If you are not sure, you may need to do some extra advance planning to prevent an unpleasant situation come June 1."

The Nebraska State ASC Committee has set the non-haying/non-grazing dates as April 1 through Aug. 31 as it has been in the past. Therefore, any grazing or haying of the cover crops on ACR during the designated time span would constitute a violation of your ACR.

The repercussions of such a violation can be a standard payment reduction from benefits earned by the farm to termination of the contract to participate in the program, causing refund of payments made with interest and liquidated damages as well as loss of all program benefits.

Eligible covers for ACR include existing cover, nationally approved covers of annual, biennial or perennial grasses and legumes (excluding lentils, peas and soybeans). Included as acceptable annual grasses are millet, sudan, sorghum/sudan crosses, sweet sorghum and forage sorghum. Excluded are any dual purpose varieties which would be classified as grain sorghum and count against your feed grain base. If you are in doubt about the grass or sorghum you intend to plant, the ASCS office has a listing of the acceptable covers at the office.

There are also special practices that the county committee requested for Wayne County. These include rape seed, turnips, mangel beets, austrian peas and popcorn. These special practices involve additional regulations in some cases, therefore, if you are interested in one of them, you need to contact the office in advance of planting to inquire about the rules and also to pay a $6 inspection fee if you opt to use the special practices or if you intend to leave any small grains standing for cover.

Small grains such as oats, wheat or barley, can be used as a cover crop on ACR and left standing past the disposition date (June 1) only if a "go down request" has been made and the inspection fee has been paid, Post says. If you leave small grains for "go down," the crop must be mechanically destroyed or by natural deterioration by Aug. 31, so that no benefit can be derived from the grain.

Small grain go down cannot be hayed or grazed, even if haying and grazing is approved for other crops. However, the regrowth from small grains would be eligible to be hayed or grazed after Aug. 31.

Wildlife Habitat and Wildlife Food Plots are also eligible on ACR acreages. Special seeding and size requirements pertain to these practices, so you need to check with the ASC office prior to planting of these practices. These practices are a real asset in the protection and preservation of our wildlife as well as making favorable areas for fall hunting since they have to remain in place throughout the winter. Grazing livestock is not permitted until the spring of the next year to give the wildlife full benefit of the crop planted.

Probably the most controversial issue when it comes to ACR is the existence of weeds. Weeds must be controlled on ACR acres. It is a fact that weeds can cause a payment reduction for a maintenance default, Post says. It is fiction that "they make the best cover for ACR." It is a fact that weeds love to grow on ACR and also that they must be controlled.

Controlled weeds will not cause a payment reduction, however, the rule of thumb is — if you didn't have the controlled weeds on the ACR, would there be enough residue to qualify for cover?

If the answer is no or doubtful, you need to have a cover crop planted. Chemical control or mowing are the most highly recommended control measures for ACR. Remember, a minimum of 50 percent residue or cover must be maintained through Dec. 31.

If you have any questions or doubts that you have the 50 percent minimum, the SCS personnel have offered their assistance in residue measurement.

Many producers like to utilize their ACR acres by planting new legumes (alfalfa) and grasses for future years use. This is encouraged as it is a good conservation practice for our area used in rotation with other crops.

If you are considering doing this, you will want to be aware that, by special request, you may control weed growth by clipping. However, the clipping must be destroyed either by being baled and burned or windrowed and blown back on the field with a chopper. If you opt to burn the residue, you are responsible to obtain a burning permit and also pay an inspection fee prior to any action being taken. If you have grasses and legumes on ACR acres consider one of the above options rather than chance a payment reduction for weeds or lack of control.

As a matter of note, all of the above facts also apply to CU for payment when participating in the 1992 farm program.

Mozzarella cheese, other products brighten Nebraska dairy industry

When Nebraskans sink their teeth into a juicy hamburger, they know the meat could have come from a Nebraska-raised cow. Few probably realize, however, that the melted mozzarella cheese topping the burger also might be a Nebraska product.

Mozzarella cheese production is part of Nebraska's expanding dairy industry that earned $177 million for dairy producers in 1990, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln dairy specialist reported.

Jeff Keown said Nebraska dairy farmers and processors produced 37 million pounds of cheese in 1990, most of which was mozzarella. This figure makes Nebraska the fourth or fifth largest mozzarella cheese-producing state in the country.

Besides millions of gallons of Grade A milk, Nebraska's dairy industry also produced 2.7 million pounds of cottage cheese and 2 million gallons of ice milk mix in 1990, Keown said.

In 1990, Nebraska's 104,000 cows (Cedar County had the most) produced more than 1.3 billion pounds of milk for an average of 13,000 pounds per cow. Farmers belonging to the Dairy Herd Improvement Association produced an average of 17,000 pounds per cow, he said.

Because of government policies and reduced numbers of dairy cows and production nationwide, dairy prices should stabilize and even increase in the future, said the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialist.

"I think the dairy future is significantly brighter for Nebraska than for some of the other states," he said. "This is because we have good availability to feed, our alfalfa quality is second-to-none in the country, and we have viable cheese plants and a good transportation industry."

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has helped dairy producers by suspending the resale of government supplies of nonfat dried milk to the commercial market, Keown said. The department also has made advanced purchases of cheese for school lunch and domestic food programs and strengthened dairy incentive programs for foreign sales, he said.

The United States has increased shipments of dairy products to Mexico and Egypt in recent months and is looking to make larger shipments of nonfat dried milk and butter to the Commonwealth of Independent States and former Eastern Bloc countries, Keown said.

Treatment urged now for thistles

Although must and plumeless thistles may have been introduced into Nebraska as ornamental plants, both have since made the state's noxious weed list and control measures should be applied now, said Alex Martin, University of Nebraska-Lincoln weed specialist.

These thistles are now in the rosette stage when they are most susceptible to herbicides, Martin said. Control declines rapidly after flower stalks begin to elongate. Although damage may be visible, plants still will produce seed, he said.

Treatment should be made by late April in eastern and southern Nebraska, and 10 to 14 days later in northern and western regions. Effective treatments for pasture, range and CRP (Conservation Reserve Program) acres include these herbicides and per-acre rates: 2/10 to 3/10 ounce Ally plus surfactant, 1 1/2 quarts 2,4-D, 1 quart 2,4-D plus 1/2 pint Banvel or 6 to 8 ounces Tordon 22K plus 1 quart, 2,4-D. All 2,4-D rates are based on 4-pound formulations. Another herbicide, Curtail, at the rate of 2 to 4 pints per acre, also is effective and can be used on CRP acres and small grains, Martin added. Grazing restrictions after spraying vary with the herbicide and type of livestock. Ally has no grazing restrictions. Lactating dairy animals should not be grazed for seven days after 2,4-D treatment. Some manufacturers and formulations may have more restrictive guidelines. Check the product label to be sure, he cautioned.

If pastures are grazed after Tordon use, livestock should spend seven days on untreated pastures before being moved to broadleaf crop areas, the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialist said.

Meat animals should be removed from areas treated with Banvel 30 days before slaughter. The restrictions for dairy animals are seven days delay for a 1 pint application and 21 days for a 1 quart application. Don't harvest hay for dairy animals within 37 days of a 1 pint application or 51 days of a one quart application. There is no restriction on hay fed to meat animals. When Banvel is used with 2,4-D, the Banvel restrictions apply, Martin concluded.

Report says cultural practices can cut rootworm control costs, insecticide use

A recent U.S. Department of Agriculture report notes that Nebraska is a leading user of corn insecticides. While reasons for this vary, it does indicate a potential in some cases for cutting insecticide use and production costs while maintaining yields, said an entomologist at the University of Nebraska South Central Research and Extension Center in Clay Center.

Bob Wright said that cultural practices such as crop rotation can eliminate the need for insecticide treatment because rootworm larvae arise from eggs laid on corn the previous year. If the field was planted to other crops last year, treatment should be unnecessary, unless there was a large volunteer corn or weed population, Wright said.

In addition, not all fields in continuous corn need treatment every year, he said. Scouting fields during peak egg laying in late July and August can reveal whether a problem will develop the following year, Wright explained. The usual economic threshold is 18,000 beetles per acre, or 0.75 beetles per plant in a corn stand of 24,000 plants per acre. Options then include crop rotation or insecticide treatment, he said.

Wright also noted that recent research indicates that soil insecticide rates can be reduced to 75 percent of label recommendations without sacrificing effectiveness.

However, he noted that if reduced rates are used, no less than 75 per-

Applications being taken for LEAD

A program designed to enhance the leadership skills of Nebraskans involved in production agriculture or agribusiness will accept applications for new participants until June 1, the program's associate director reported.

The Nebraska Leadership Education/Action Development (LEAD) Program will select up to 30 men and women between the ages of 25 and 45 for the two-year program scheduled to begin in September, said Gary Bergman.

The Nebraska LEAD Program, sponsored by the Nebraska Agricultural Leadership Council, is designed to improve agriculture and rural life in Nebraska by developing the skills of those who make decisions, salespeople and leaders, Bergman said.

"LEAD provides an enormous learning experience and opportunity for personal growth," he said.

During the two-year period, aplicants accepted into the 12th edition of the LEAD Program will participate in 13 in-state seminars, a 10-day national study and travel seminar and an international study and travel seminar.

For more information or application forms, contact Bergman at the Nebraska LEAD Program, 302 Agricultural Hall, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Lincoln, NE 68583-7010 or phone (402) 472-6810.

Farm visit

WAYNE HEAD START youngsters get to pet a goat on the Jon Rethwisch farm Thursday. The youngsters found that the goats on the farm will eat just about anything as this particular nanny goat was found harvesting the family's yard.

Dairy Council of Central States names Temme vice president

Fred Temme, Wayne, has been elected vice president of the Board of Directors of the Dairy Council of Central States, a non-profit nutrition education organization based in Raiston.

Temme has been a dairy producer for 34 years and a member of the Dairy Council Board since 1983, said JoAnn Werblow, Dairy Council executive director. He served as secretary of the Board from 1990 to 1992 and is chairman of the organization's personnel committee, she said.

Temme manages a Holstein herd and raises feed cattle, corn, soybeans and alfalfa with his son, Doug. He is district director of Associated Milk Producers, Inc., vice-chairman of Federal Order 65 Advertising and Promotion Agency and serves on the Stewardship Board of Grace Lutheran Church.

Dairy Council of Central States provides nutrition education programs and materials to teachers, students, school food service managers, health professionals and consumers throughout Nebraska, western Iowa and northern Kansas. The non-profit organization is supported by local dairy producers through a federal dairy check-off program.

Herald goes to soy ink

Wayne Herald readers may notice a difference in their paper this week, according to press foreman Al Pippitt.

Beginning with the editions this week, the paper is being printed with new soy-based ink. The new ink utilizes soy oil in place of petroleum products. Besides utilizing a locally-grown, renewable resource, the benefits to readers will also be less ink on their hands when they get through reading the paper, said Pippitt. Soy inks also are more environmentally friendly and make paper easier to recycle, said Pippitt. The Wayne Herald received its first tank load of soy ink recently and began using the product this week as the last of the old supplies were depleted.

The American Soybean Association estimates over 75 million pounds of soy oil were used in ink production in 1991. That represents the oil extracted from more than seven million bushels of soybeans.

When the use of soy oil in inks reaches its full potential it will represent about 91 million bushels of beans a year, according to the association.

Ink used by the Wayne Herald comes from Northern Ink Co. based in Omaha. The soy content in that ink comes from Archer Daniels Midland in Lincoln, according to an ink company spokesman.

Parties being sought

Statistics indicate that alcohol abuse is the number one drug problem in America today. Alcohol use contributes to a significant number of deaths and injuries among area youth each year.

The Norfolk Area Crime Stoppers, toward a drug free Nebraska, and the Norfolk Police Division have joined forces in a combined effort to reduce the risk of injury or death caused by the illegal use of alcohol by our youth.

If you have information about a party being planned where alcohol will be available to persons under 21 years of age, call Crime Stoppers at 371-7300. The person answering the phone will need to know when and where the party is going to be held. You will also be asked who is hosting the party. If the information can be confirmed, you may be eligible for a reward. You also will have the satisfaction of knowing that you may have prevented the injury or death of an innocent person. A person who could very possibly be your best friend or a member of your family.

PE PROGRAM

The Carroll Elementary School presented their annual physical education program last Monday. Don Koenig was in charge of the group.

Kindergarten students demonstrated their tumbling and rope jumping abilities. Students in grade one through four demonstrated a few dance steps, rope jumping, relays and vaulting.

The entire group performed with tricks with a parachute and a tug of war. The grand finale again this year was a tug of war by the parents.

This year's winner, at the tug was parents of the kindergarten, first and second grade.

Refreshments were served by the Carroll Boosters.

WAY OUT HERE CLUB

The Way Out Here Club met in the home of Betty Rohlf on Tuesday. There were six members present. Roll call was something that made me laugh.

The group discussed a tour in Wayne, which they will take at their May meeting. Cards furnished entertainment for the afternoon with prizes going to Norma Loberg, Loretta Baier and Norma Hansen.

POPPY DAY

The Carroll Legion Auxiliary will hold their annual Poppy Day on Saturday, May 9. This year, poppies will only be distributed in the downtown area with no door to door canvassing as in past years, so stop downtown and give your support.

EOT CARD PARTY

The EOT Card Party was held April 26 at the Kelly Hansen home. Four tables of cards were played, with prizes going to Mr. and Mrs. Dale Claussen, Ann Hofeldt, Randy

Forum: The candidates and their positions

Marion Arneson

Education: Graduate of Class C school. College graduate.
Family: Married, two children.
Platform: (1) Improve facilities and assist faculty in endeavors; (2) continue excellence of education in Wayne schools; (3) Be on board to be involved in children's education.

John Corollo

Education: Graduate of Class A school. College graduate.
Family: Married, two children.
Platform: (1) Involvement in schools for benefit of students; (2) Support teachers and students to reach a balance between tax dollars and high quality of education; (3) Involvement in own children's education.

Bob Dyer

Education: Graduate of Class D school. College graduate.
Family: Married, four children.
Platform: (1) Increase parental involvement in the schools; (2) Work with enhanced education and extra-curricular activities; (3) Be progressive and open-minded.

Leslie Hausmann

Education: Graduate of Class A school. College graduate.
Family: Married, two children.
Platform: (1) Encourage system to develop the leaders of the future; (2) Build on already outstanding educational structure within the system.

Dr. Sid Hillier

Education: Graduate of Class B school. College graduate.
Family: Married, four children.
Platform: (1) Lone incumbent candidate with 7 1/2 years experience; (2) Continue to poise district for the 21st century; (3) Prepare students for worldwide market.

Karma Magnuson

Education: High school graduate. Graduated college.
Family: Married, two children.
Platform: (1) Wants Carroll and rural area to be better represented; (2) Insure quality education in system; (3) No agenda but get most for tax dollars.

Glenda Schluns

Education: Graduate of Class D school.
Family: Married, three children.
Platform: (1) Ensure quality education in district; (2) Share opinions with the board; (3) Improve situations for faculty, students and public; (4) Increase communication with the public.

Sheri Schmale

Education: Graduate of Class A school. Attended college.
Family: Married, three children.
Platform: (1) Involvement in children's education; (2) Wants to be a voice for Carroll; (3) Encourage all-day kindergarten; (4) all-day bus service.

Phyllis Spethman

Education: Graduate of Class A school. College graduate.
Family: Married, two children.
Platform: (1) Maintain standard of high quality education; (2) Create stronger partnership between school, parents and community; (3) Use Wayne's growth and energy for benefit of the system.

Mary Temme

Education: Graduate of Class D school. College graduate.
Family: Married, three children.
Platform: (1) Wants stronger voice in children's education; (2) District patron's input for district; (3) Maintain excellence in education; (4) Look at variety of factors and be strong in negotiations.

Unable to attend the meeting was school board candidate Terry Meyer. Of the 11 candidates seeking seats on the Wayne-Carroll school board 10 were present at the forum held Thursday night at Wayne High School.

Laurel student wins first place

Superconductor a success

Jonathan Ebmeier, Laurel, a student at Nebraska Wesleyan University, won first place in the student paper competition at the zone meeting of the Society of Physics Students, held March 27-28 at South Dakota State University, Brookings, S.D. Ebmeier's winning paper described the research in superconductivity that the first-year student accomplished as a student at Laurel-Concord High School.

Ebmeier became interested in superconductivity, the ability of a material to exhibit no electrical resistance, when he was a freshman in Laurel. "I was reading an article in Omni about superconductivity and how it was created. But at the time I could not obtain the chemicals and materials needed to produce a superconductor, so I put the project on the back burner for two years until my junior year."

When Ebmeier finally did begin his project he had a few obstacles to overcome. A professor at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln gave him the required chemicals (yttrium oxide, copper oxide and barium carbonate), but then he had to fix the door on a muffle furnace he borrowed from Wayne State College.

"It's quite an event having something that goes past 1,000 degrees Celsius in the basement of your home," he says. "Each firing took at least 24 hours. Three hours up, 18 hours at temperature, and then three hours to let it cool down a little bit. You then grind it, repress it and throw it back in there again and watch it. It took four weeks to complete the superconductor."

But the road to supercooled success wasn't without a few mishaps. "I didn't watch the temperature close enough," he said. "A superconductor will melt at about 1,030 degrees and when I woke up one morning it was 1,100 degrees. The entire thing melted. I had to start all over." The obstacles didn't stop there. During his sixth intermediate firing the heating element in his furnace burned out, forcing him to restructure the procedure to include only nine hours at optimum temperature. Despite the setbacks, his superconductor passed resistivity and X-ray diffractometer tests conducted at UNL that April.

Ebmeier took his project on the road during his senior year and successfully competed at three regional science fairs. "When you give a presentation you have to have the feeling that you know more about this subject than anybody." He also participated in two national events, in Chicago and Fort Monroe, Va. "It was the Wednesday before my graduation," he says of his trip to Virginia. "I was 10 minutes late getting back for my graduation."

Ebmeier's love of science encouraged him to complete several hours of college credit during his last semester in a high school with 30 students in its senior class. He even tested out of general chemistry. His hard work paid off. He entered Dunklau, Cyril Hansen and Doris Hefti. Next club meeting will be Thursday, May 7 with a tour. Everyone is to meet in Carroll at 9 a.m. Coffee will be at the Heidi Bonsell home afterwards.

Warren Cook of San Antonio, Texas was an April 17-26 guest in the Rod Cook and Arthur Cook homes. On April 26, Warren Cook, Rod Cook and Mrs. Arthur Cook were among guests in the Gordon Jorgensen home in Milford, Iowa, to honor Michael on his confirmation at First Lutheran Church in Milford.

his second semester at Wesleyan with a sophomore standing.

"I've always been interested in science," he says, adding that his interests took shape while earning his eagle badge in Boy Scouts. "By that time you're already involved with nature, and nature is basically the essence of science. So I kept reading science magazines."

With a wealth of scientific understanding at his disposal, Ebmeier could have been successful at any university in the country. In fact, he was planning to attend Iowa State University of Science and Technology. But that was before he experienced Nebraska Wesleyan's SENTRY program (Science Enrichment for Nebraska Talented Rural Youth). SENTRY provides sophomore and junior high school students an opportunity to participate in a three-week program of study that provides laboratory instruction and enrichment in biology, chemistry, computer science and physics.

Bereuter takes role of student

Representative Doug Bereuter traded places with University of Nebraska-Lincoln student Perre Neilan on Friday, May 1.

Bereuter met Neilan at 8:45 a.m. for breakfast at the UNL Student Union, then accompanied Neilan to his political science 230 course, "Political Parties."

"It's been a while since I was on the University campus as a student," said Bereuter. "I'm looking forward to the opportunity to attend a class and to meet with the students."

Bereuter received his Bachelor of Arts in geography from UNL in 1961. He served as an associate professor of planning in UNL's College of Architecture from 1971-73.

During breakfast, Bereuter also met with Student Regent Andrew Sigerson and representatives from the UNL College Republicans.

A sophomore political science major from Wakefield, Neilan was the 1st Congressional District winner of a "Trading Places" fundraiser held by the Nebraska College Republicans. He is a Regents scholar and plans to attend law school following graduation. In his portion of the "trading places," Neil met with Representative Bereuter while in Washington D.C. in April.

Obituaries

Floyd Burt

Floyd Burt, 82, of Norfolk, died Tuesday, April 28, 1992 at the Lutheran Community Hospital in Norfolk.

Services were held Friday, May 1 at the United Methodist Church in Osmond. The Rev. Nita Gelling Cloran officiated.

Floyd C. Burt, the son of George and Freda Dow Burt, was born July 23, 1909 at Creighton. He attended Knox County rural schools and Creighton High School. He married Anita Rathjen on Oct. 12, 1931 at Yankton, S.D. After his marriage, he worked in Vancouver, Wash. during the war in the Vancouver Shipyards. After the war, he worked for Theisen-Brother's Construction of Osmond for 12 years. In 1953 he began farming in Pierce and Wayne Counties, until retiring in 1969. He served as Wayne County Commissioner for eight years from the late 60s to early 70s. The family moved to the Winside area until 1987 when they moved to Norfolk. He was a member of the United Methodist Church at Winside.

Survivors include his wife, Anita Burt of Norfolk; one daughter, Mrs. William (Glenda) Aschoff of Reno, Nev.; two sons, Gary Burt of Colorado Springs, Colo. and Rick Burt of Regina, Saskatchewan, Canada; 16 grandchildren; 14 great grandchildren; one brother, Charles Burt of Fullerton, Calif.; and one sister, Mrs. Wilma Schneider of Mountain Home, Ark.

He was preceded in death by his parents; one daughter, Barbara Lea; two brothers, George Jr. and infant; and one sister, Helen McCrady.

Pallbearers were John, Joe, James and Jerry Schoff and Pat, Marc, Brent, Mike and Adam Burt.

Burial was in the Osmond City Cemetery with Johnson-Stonacek Funeral Chapel in charge of arrangements.
