

'Amazing Congressional Kite'

Lyle George of Wayne, showed off his "Congressional Kite" during the Kite Fly sponsored by the Wayne City Recreation Department last weekend. George made his kite out of old check blanks. "It's amazing how well they fly," said George. According to his calculations, "if we made a kite out of all of the checks kited by members of Congress, we could lift an aircraft carrier."

Turnout may be sparse

By Mark Crist

With the election scheduled for Tuesday, May 12, it's hard to tell how many voters will show up at the polls. But by all accounts, the Wayne County Clerk's office isn't expecting people to be knocking over booths come Tuesday.

According to Wayne County Clerk Deb Finn, the expected turnout for Tuesday's primary is low based on the number of absentee ballot requests. She added that statewide turnout predictions are also low.

But voter turnout is hard to gauge. In the 1988 election, when Nebraska voters faced a constitutional amendment, 68 percent of the registered voters in Wayne County went to the polls. In 1990, that number dropped to 22 percent.

"There's a lot of confusion on Amendment 1 and a lot of people, rather than voting, are unsure what to do and as a result they may not turn out to vote at all," she said Friday.

ANOTHER REASON why voters seem to be hesitant to vote is so they can sign the Perot for President petition. Finn said in over the counter comments she's had from voters, people are interested in the Perot for President campaign and they don't want to cast a presidential ballot because of that.

If voter turnout is good, Finn said she thinks it will be due to village board elections, the school district 17 election and the county commissioners race. She said, however, that main issues in this election are not anticipated to be a factor.

"All the Amendment 1 issue has done is frustrate voters," she said. "When they have to rely, on advertising and the media to tell them what Amendment 1 means, they don't like to depend on that. They like to be able to understand what they're voting on."

Leadership gift

Gardner's gift to WSC worth $1.5 million

Daniel and Jeanne Gardner of Wakefield have announced they will be making a $1.5 million leadership gift to Wayne State College's $11.5 million "Building Bright Futures" national fund raising campaign.

The official announcement was made Saturday evening on campus when the Wayne State Foundation hosted a special dinner to launch its first-ever national campaign. An additional $1 million in advance commitments will also be announced at the event.

"We've had a fulfilling and long-time association with Wayne State College and Northeast Nebraska," says Mr. Gardner, chairman and chief executive officer of the M.G. Waldbaum and Co. in Wakefield. "The college is stronger than ever and is a vital part of Northeast Nebraska's future. We want to see this region continue to prosper."

MR. GARDNER says five members of his family, including his wife, Jeanne, are Wayne State alumni and thousands of students and graduates of Wayne State have worked at M.G. Waldbaum Co., one of the nation's largest egg-processing plants, since it was founded in 1950.

"The Gardners' very generous gift represents a strong vote of confidence in the college's critical role in Northeast Nebraska," says Dr. Donald J. Mash, president of Wayne State. "The Gardners have generously supported Wayne State College for many years, and they have stepped forward again to take the leadership position in this important private fund raising campaign."

The Wayne State Foundation was incorporated in 1961. Its assets reached $1 million in 1988 and $2 million this spring. By October of 1994, the foundation's goal is to raise an additional $5.5 million in cash gifts and $6 million in gifts of future interest.

FUNDS WILL be used for scholarship assistance, capital improvements, faculty development, public service for regional development, endowment growth and to supplement general college operations.

"We believe we're positioned perfectly for a structural campaign,"

Daniel and Jeanne Gardner

says Bob Reeg, president of the Wayne State Foundation, and president of First National Bank in Wayne.

"During the past three years, enrollment at Wayne State has grown nearly 30 percent, dormitories are approaching capacity, many physical campus improvements have been made or are under way, student and regional services have been strengthened considerably, and teaching remains strong.

"Friends and alumni feel confident about the positive direction Wayne State is going. I believe our campaign will enable this momentum to be maintained."

MASH SAYS private support is necessary for public colleges and universities today if they are to offer quality programs and services and meet tomorrow's needs for higher education.

"Private funds provide important safety nets for public colleges, particularly modestly funded institutions like Wayne State," Mash says. "We're viewing this national effort as a means of securing investment in Nebraska's future. A strong regional public college like Wayne State is a tremendous catalyst for development, especially in a rural region."

Mash says Wayne State has thousands of alumni living and working throughout the country who are appreciative of their beginnings and who are inclined to give something back if they can be shown that their gifts make a difference.

"Our program provides them with a compelling case and a vehicle for their investment," Mash says.

MARK AHMANN, station manager at KTCH, doesn't mind sharing his experiences in broadcasting but most important to him are the friendships he's made.

People make job fun

Friendships bind Ahmann to profession

By Mark Crist
Managing Editor

Visiting with Mark Ahmann at KTCH, you can hear the disc jockeys spin records from the heartland of the country.

The sounds of today fit Ahmann's personality and the memories he shares on his broadcasting career. During his lifetime, he has worked in TV and radio broadcasting. But more importantly, Ahmann has built friendships.

"The recognition that goes along with the job makes the profession enjoyable," Ahmann says. "The contacts you have with people has been something I've always enjoyed. It doesn't matter if its people on a news story or people at the coffee shop or people connected with sports. It's just being with people."

IN HIS OFFICE, the wall behind his desk is covered with pictures of memories past. One is a front page clip from the Sporting News with former Nebraska player Mike Rozier dashing into the endzone; in it's background is Ahmann. Another picture is of Ahmann, Larry Rice and Don Gill broadcasting a Nebraska football game during the 1970s from Iowa State University. It was the only game Ahmann remembers well during his eight years as a color analyst for Big Red football because it was so cold that day. He says it would take him a few hours to remember one of the best games he ever watched.

The pictures on his wall are the memories of yesterday; friendships Ahmann has built over a long and distinguished career in broadcasting.

"I like to be one people can understand and whatever I say I mean," he says. "I don't really know how else to describe it. I like to think God blessed me with a pretty good voice and that's part of the reason why I'm in this business."

HE WAS ALSO blessed with a wonderful wife and family. It was thanks to his first job that Ahmann met his wife, Jane. The couple met when he was working at one of his first radio jobs in Carroll, Iowa. He says he met her the first day he was at work and they were married Aug. 27, 1957.

The first few months the Ahmanns were married, Jane, who was not a big sports fan at the time, attended about 22 semi-pro baseball games that summer to be with her new husband. Over the years, she has moved all over the Midwest with the family, and on occasion she and the family — John, Lisa and David — have been media widows.

"There were literally days when I wouldn't see my kids," he says. "The stressful part was that she had to be the mother and the father all those years. It's like any wife — you adapt to your husband's profession. I really regret not being able to spend as much time with my kids due to my schedule."

SINCE COMING to Wayne in 1986, the Ahmanns have been active members in the community. Mark takes part on a great number of speaking engagements and he is active in the Wayne Kiwanis Club, the Knights of Columbus and the local American Legion.

Ahmann says it's important to be active in the community.

"Most of us choose to be here," he says. "Whatever people can do to benefit the community is what it's all about. We're here to do a lot of things other than just our jobs."

He says there are some communities where he has lived where people still ask him to give his familiar sign-off. He says while he does it rarely here, some remain familiar with the words he has etched on the airwaves.

"Have a good day the rest of this one, a good tomorrow and take care of yourself," he says.

Escapee receives 90 day sentence

A juvenile who escaped from the Wayne County Juvenile Detention Center Nov. 9, 1991 was sentenced Wednesday in the Wayne County District Court.

Chad Irving Lucesbrink, 19, was sentenced by Judge Richard Garden to six months in jail with credit for 99 days served. He was convicted of escape April 8 in the Wayne County District Court. According to district court records, Lucesbrink escaped by scaling a fence in the exercise portion of the facility after he had barricaded a door shut and torn off a plywood barrier placed over a broken window. He was apprehended, however, the day of the escape.

Escape is a Class IV felony under Nebraska law.

Sting busts bars

On the evenings of April 18 and May 2, the Cedar County Sheriff's office and the Nebraska State Patrol liquor commissioner conducted an MIP sting operation.

According to Sheriff Elliot Arens of the Cedar County Sheriff's office in Hartington, a 19-year-old confidential informant was sent into liquor establishments to buy alcohol.

Arens said establishments which sold liquor to a confidential informant includes Larry's Mini-Mart in Laurel and in Randolph, Daddy Jack's, Sue's Place and Lucky 13 also sold to minors.

EVERY establishment holding an off-sale liquor license was targeted and out of the 29 establishments in Cedar County, 14 sold to the minor, some of the establishments even carded the informant before selling alcohol to him. This figure represents that 48 percent of the liquor establishments in Cedar County sold liquor to a minor.

The sting operation was due to complaints the Cedar County Sheriff's office had received from parents and kids that certain establishments were selling liquor to minors. Instead of targeting one or two places, Arens said his department decided that the only fair way to run this operation was to target everyone in Cedar County.

"We believe that a high percentage of liquor establishments selling to the minor justifies our action," he said.

MEMBERS OF THE WAYNE AMBASSADORS and Spartan "8" celebrate the ground breaking of the new Super 8 motel in Wayne. While construction started about two months ago, the new motel is expected to be open sometime in July. Spartan "8" is a limited partnership which owns 32 Super 8 motels in Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Arizona and Arkansas. Once the building is complete, it will contain 41 guest rooms and operate a 24 hour a day front desk service. Following the ceremony, lunch was held at the Black Knight.

Event salutes motel

Ceremonies were held Friday to acknowledge the construction of the new motel in Wayne.

After successful negotiations, it has been decided that the motel will carry the Super 8 franchise. Super 8 will be located at 610 Tomar Drive, directly adjacent to the Pizza Hut. The motel is owned by Spartan "8", A Limited Partnership, under a franchise agreement with Super 8 Motels, Inc., and will be managed by Simplex Motel Group of Norfolk.

Spartan "8" owns 32 Super 8 Motels in Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Arizona and Arkansas. These motels are all managed by Simplex Motel Group. Super 8 is the fastest growing economy lodging chain in the U.S. today, with 892 motels now open. A new motel is being added to the chain every 72 hours.

The Wayne Super 8 will contain 41 guest rooms and operate a 24-hour front desk. Other amenities include king beds and recliners in all single rooms, color TVs with remote control and cable service, a complimentary coffee and toast bar in the lobby and access to Super 8's popular VIP Club. The VIP Club allows the guest a 10 percent discount in all Super 8's, check cashing privileges, express check in and the ability to guarantee rooms without a credit card.

Bill Roe, vice-president of development for Simplex, said that the reason Super 8 came to Wayne was because of the vibrant attitude of the community. Roe said that the steady growth of the college is just one example of how the business community is looking to the future. He also mentioned the persistence of the Wayne business community in bringing a new motel to the area.

Roe added that Super 8 is committed to clean rooms and friendly service and is looking forward to a long and enjoyable relationship with the Wayne community.

A luncheon, hosted by Roe was held at the Black Knight Restaurant after the ceremonies. Several local dignitaries were on hand, including Mayor Bob Carhart, City Administrator Joe Salitros, President of Wayne Industries Duane Schroeder, President of the Chamber of Commerce Jim Markham, Executive Director of the Chamber of Commerce Curt Wilwerding and several Wayne Ambassadors.

Officials nab three for drugs

As a result of a traffic stop, Nebraska State Trooper Richard Lutter arrested Troy C. Coberly, 23, of Belden and Michael D. Clemon, 40, of Decatur, on May 3 for drug charges.

This arrest led to the execution of a search warrant on Coberly residence and on May 4 by the Nebraska State Patrol and the Cedar County Sheriff's office. As a result of the warrant, Loren C. Coberly, 28, of Belden, was also arrested.

Found at the residence were over 5 lbs. of marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

All three individuals are being incarcerated at the Cedar County Jail in Hartington.

Seized at the residence was a 1979 Chevrolet Luv pickup.

Charges filed against Troy Coberly are aiding and abetting.

Clemon faces charges on possession of marijuana with intent to manufacture and possession of marijuana without payment of the marijugga tax.

Loren Coberly is charged with possession of a controlled substance and possession of marijuana over one pound. He was also charged with possession of methamphetamine.

According to information from the Cedar County Sheriff's office, the Nebraska State Patrol is continuing its investigation.

Technology reaches area

Cellular telephone technology is coming to Randolph.

The new Nebraska Cellular cell site in Randolph is scheduled to go on the air May 15, enabling residents of the area to enjoy the many benefits of cellular telephone technology across the state and nation.

Nebraska Cellular is the Nebraska-owned company that has built the cellular telephone system in rural Nebraska. The Randolph cell site is the 25th that Nebraska Cellular has constructed since it began operation in July 1990.

Nebraska Cellular service extends from Lincoln to the Colorado border—providing virtually seamless service along Interstate 80 and in many other areas across the state. The Nebraska Cellular system covers more than 40 percent of the state, making it the largest cellular service provider in Nebraska. Nebraska Cellular is also linked with cellular networks in Lincoln and Omaha to provide statewide access.

Cellular telephone technology uses radio frequencies transmitted from a cell site, such as the new one in Randolph. Each cell site is linked to a computerized switch which is connected to the public telephone network.

Nebraska Cellular is the only statewide cellular network. The company owns and operates all of its own cell sites and switches to ensure the broadest coverage and clearest signal possible.

Nebraska Cellular customers can call anywhere in Nebraska from the Nebraska Cellular service area without paying long distance charges.

Customers in Randolph will be assigned a local number for their cellular phone. Nebraska Cellular's statewide systems allows someone to dial your cellular phone number and reach you anywhere in the Nebraska Cellular network or in Lincoln and Omaha. There is no need for access codes. A person in Randolph who wants to reach you will simply dial your local Randolph cellular telephone number—and they won't pay any long distance charges.

Nebraska Cellular offers a number of rate plans for business and personal use. People in rural Nebraska have found that Nebraska Cellular helps them keep in touch with their employees, their offices, and their families. Nebraska Cellular customers have many reasons for getting cellular phones—from having the ability to conduct business from the car or out on the farm, to feeling safer when they're traveling alone or with their children.

The Nebraska Cellular representative for the Randolph area is Dale Phipps. For more information on Nebraska Cellular service, call toll-free 1-800-633-3815.

4-H'ers take part in contest

Area girls take on districts

Latisha Schaller, Wayne and Laurel DuBois, Winside, both from Wayne County, were among 18 4-H members from 11 counties in Northeast Nebraska who competed in the 1992 District Public Speaking Contest, held May 2, at Northeast Community College. They are among over 3,000 4-H'ers throughout Nebraska who have taken part in 4-H Public Speaking Contests this year.

The 4-H Public Speaking Program is designed to give young people the opportunity to speak before groups and tell the 4-H story. In the process, 4-H'ers improve their speaking skills, and their gestures, posture and movements become natural. This experience allows members to learn about speech development and the components involved in the art of public speaking.

Contestants are judged on the basis of subject matter, organization, physical behavior, gestures, voice, effect and how well the subject is related to 4-H.

The top two winners at the 1992 contest were Stephanie Weiland from Madison County and Latisha Schaller from Wayne County. Alternates were Alisha McManigal from Knox County and Vanessa Weiland from Madison County. Stephanie and Latisha will represent the Northeast District at the State Contest which will be held during State Fair. The contest is sponsored by KRVN Radio in Lexington.

Students get funds for AHA

Ten students at Wayne County District 15 jumped rope for three hours in April to promote cardiovascular fitness and to raise money for the American Heart Association.

The event, called Jump Rope for Heart, was sponsored by the American Alliance of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance and its aim was to show the benefits of regular exercise and to raise money for AHA's research and public education programs. Students joined teams of six and jumped in relays to raise money from sponsors for every minute they jumped.

Jump Rope for Heart coordinator Melissa Haisch said the event was a great success. "The students gave it everything they had. It's super when you see teachers and students working together toward a goal they can feed good about. And helping the American Heart Association really counts. Since heart and blood vessel diseases kill more Americans than all other causes of death combined, it makes sense to give heart and blood vessel research number one priority."

Jump Rope for Heart is held annually in this area to encourage children and teachers to promote heart health in the community.

Spring Music Concert 1992

YOUNGSTERS IN WAYNE ELEMENTARY'S fourth grade choir perform the song "Shades" during the recently held elementary all-school concert at Wayne High School. In some instances, the youngsters found that they were too hip or too cool to take their shades off (photo left) and on other occasions they were even too great to want people to take their pictures (above).

SECOND GRADER Jamie Hessig leads her classmates in a tap dance during the song "Mister Sun." Other dancers included: Jamie Sharer, Amanda Young, Heather Headley, Natalie Rauss, Chantel Coulter, Alissa Ellingson and Shannon Dohmen.

WAYNE ELEMENTARY first grader Kelly Mitchell sings a solo during a portion of the elementary schools all-school performance last Monday night. The young soloists' voice is found to be pleasing by some of her classmates.

KEEPING THE STARS shining during the second graders rendition of "Bye N' Bye" is Luke Christensen. Other wind chime players were Nicholas Lipp and Brett Parker.

FOURTH GRADER Pam Costilow dances to the song "Another One Bites the Dust." The song was part of the student's program learning experience.

GUITARISTS (FROM LEFT) Dave Headley, Doug Temme and Rob Stuberg play along with the second grade choir Monday night during the song "Batteries Not Included." The song was one of the students favorites since they had the chance to have their fathers play along as they sang, according to music director Cheryl Kopperud. The Spring Music Program was held Monday night in the Wayne High School gym.

Planning time for feed plots

Summer is coming and now's the time to think about planting something for wildlife to feed on next winter.

Planting a wildlife food plot near shelter is a good way to help. A food plot cover can help wildlife survive winter periods when other foods may be in short supply.

Considerations when planning a food plot include:

- Plant in a long, narrow shape, 10 to 30 feet in length, along the edge of a field.
- About 1/8 to 1/4 acre is a good size.

- Ideal planting would be at least one acre per 40 acres of crop land.
- Several food patches distributed over an area are better than one large patch.

- Plants that stand up well should be included so there will be food above the snow.
- Plots should be planted near cover. The plot will receive more use if cover for shelter from weather and escape from predators is nearby.

A plot in the middle of a large, bare field would be used very little. A shelterbelt is a good planting site, particularly if it has good cover near the ground. Another good site is along a fence row, ravine, stream or odd area—especially those with grass and shrub cover to provide protection.

A mix of food varieties will dependably serve more wildlife needs. Grains to consider are millet, milo and a cultivated variety of sunflower. Millet is excellent for quail, pheasants, mourning doves and many kinds of songbirds. Milo is also used by quail, pheasants, songbirds and wild turkeys. Sunflowers are especially attractive to songbirds and a cultivated variety won't spread and take over the farm.

Seeds for wildlife food plantings will be available free of charge this spring from the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission. The seeds will be distributed through the SCS in Dixon and Wayne counties.

Spring marking a time of change for everyone

When a winter begins with a storm before Halloween and ends with one after Easter, in the middle of April, it's been a strange one. Especially when much of November, December, January, and February was mild.

We went from record low temps to record highs in just eight days. Finally, this past weekend, the weather moderated and settled into May. Corn planters are going full blast, radishes are up, and trees are putting out leaves in spite of the mixed messages they've been getting.

I hope it's safe to pack the sweaters away and take off the storm windows. There are track meets and proms, confirmations and graduations; with mother-daughter banquets thrown in for good measure.

I was walking in the mornings, but switched to afternoons when we went to daylight savings time. It isn't really dark until 8:30.

It was about that time when I got to North Bend last Friday night. The wind had come up, as it sometimes does in Nebraska, and dust was blowing. There was a fair amount of traffic. I pulled up on my dimmer switch, and it did not stay up. So I kept my hand on it when I met a car. Soon, I had no lights on bright, so I drove on dim. Then they began to blink.

It was 9:00 by the time I got to Snyder and there were no moon or stars visible. I did what any wife would do, I called hubby. Ann's car had a flat, so she had taken his. That left him with Old Red, the pickup. I elected to keep driving.

Foreign ownership rises

Foreign investors have reported owning 76,251 acres of Nebraska farmland, according to a recent report from the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Wayne County has no known foreign investors at this time. The figure is based on reports filed by foreign groups as of Dec. 31.

Under the Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act, all individuals or foreign government entity, who are not a citizen or national of the United States or its territories, must report any interest in agricultural land. If any foreign individual or entity acquires, transfers or holds interest in or changes the land ownership status, it is a requirement to report these transactions within 90 days of the change in status.

The report shows foreign agricultural land holding in all states except Rhode Island and Alaska. Maine reported the largest number of acres owned by foreign persons — 2.8 million acres. Other than Maine, the heaviest concentration was found to be in the south and in the west. Foreign ownership over all U.S. agricultural land consists of 14.8 million acres.

If you are a foreign investor in Wayne County, or you know of any foreign investors, including any shares in corporate ownership, you must contact the Wayne County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) within 90 days of the transaction.

Owners change at Winside store

George and Howard Voss, dba Winside Grain & Feed, has changed ownership and is now known as Winside Feed & Grain, Inc.

Because of this change, we are required to notify producers that George and Howard Voss, dba Winside Grain & Feed, will not be eligible for price-support loans due to the fact that this facility is terminated from the list of warehouses approved by the Commodity Credit Corporation, Wayne County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service Office said.

Termination action was taken by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service Commodity Office at Kansas City, Mo., because the warehouse has changed ownership of the Uniform Grain Storage Agreement which controls the storage of government-owned grains.

Business may now be handled under the new name of Winside Grain & Feed, Inc.

Fungicide out

A popular fungicide used for turfgrass disease control is being removed from the market at the manufacturers request, said Dave Wysong, plant pathologist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Wysong said Miles Inc., formerly Mobay Corp., asked the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency for voluntary cancellation of its line of Dyrene fungicide products containing the active ingredient azoxystrobin. The company cited the cost of reregistration as the reason.

The affected products include a number of Dyrene formulations and several others sold under different labels, Wysong said. The company has asked for one year to sell existing product stocks.

He said several other products are effective for turfgrass disease control in place of the Dyrene products. A list of these is given in the NebGuide "Lawn Disease Control Guide" (G74-104), which is available at local Cooperative Extension offices.

ASCS compliance in 1992 programs

Compliance with program regulations is always important but seems to carry much more weight this year. As all other aspects of participation have become more restrictive, so has the compliance area. In the past producers were requested to report all cropland on participating farms and required to report the crops on nonparticipating farms that they wished to get planted credit for.

For 1992, producers are required to report all cropland acreages, including zero reports of bases, when a farm is participating in the Wheat and Feed Grain Program or will be requesting Price Support Loans. This is to assure that any acreages affecting participating crop are not omitted, the farm is complying with the HELC (highly erodible land) and WC (wetland) provisions, and that their planting history is maintained for program crop bases.

On nonparticipating farms, the producer is required to report all cropland if a zero acreage credit to save a crop base is requested. Partial certifications will be accepted on nonparticipating farms only under limited circumstances, however, the producers must be aware that a partial certification can affect crop base history.

When reporting the crops planted, it is very important to be accurate as to field size. The time is past when you could report your program crops and ACR (set aside or idle acres) accurately and guesstimate the rest of the acres. You must report all acres accurately, including soybeans and conserving use acres (grass, hay, sorghum silage, etc.), or you will be assessed a payment reduction in your program benefits for the farm. The payment reduction is no longer "crop specific," it is now "farm specific," meaning the reduction can be deducted from any crops on the farm not to exceed the total payment earned on that farm.

In a nutshell, accurate and timely reporting can prevent loss of program benefits for the regular farm program as well as CRP (Conservation Reserve Program), reduction or loss of future year's crop bases, and loss of price support loans.

When violations occur for 1992

Terri's Tidbits

By Terri Post

and future years, producers need to prove that a good faith effort (the violation was not intentional) was made or the County Committee must make a "lack of good faith" determination. In the past, if a producer did not request a "good faith" determination, only the crop in violation was ineligible for program benefits.

For 1992 and future years, if a violation occurs, a "lack of good faith" determination will cause all crops to be ineligible for any benefits, advance payments would have to be refunded with liquidated damages applied to all participating crops, all crops would be ineligible for price support loans, and all crops would be ineligible for disaster benefits (if available).

The information you have just read may paint a slightly grim picture, however, it only portrays the black side of violations. To be perfectly honest it generally only affects a very small percentage of the producers in Wayne County. All in all, Wayne County producers are very conscientious and report their acres very accurately, and are deserving a pat on the back for a job well done.

It is however, a possibility that sometime you may be in the position described above and it is very important that you realize the repercussions of inaccurate or untimely reporting.

Accuracy deals with the acreage size, timely deals with meeting the certification deadline of June 15 for small grains or small grain residue (including that for ACR cover) or July 15 for all other grains or cover.

If you have any questions on this information, feel free to call the Wayne County ASCS Office at 375-2453.

Now, I had no dims, and they were blinking every few seconds. I could also smell something electrical. I drove through Dodge in search of a pay phone and found the Snack Shop just opposite the Coop. They let me use the payphone, and announced they had a lot of cleaning to do, so I could wait there for the Big Farmer.

They gave me free coffee in honor of their third anniversary and I learned the facts of life with regard to this business. For instance, did you know that a four-slice toaster costs $4.00? And that a soft-serve ice cream machine can run $25,000?

The owners are farmers who apparently needed a hobby. Anyway, be sure to check this place out whenever you are in Dodge.

Mike arrived at 11:30, and I followed him home, lights blinking all the way. My car is currently at Winside Motor with its steering column open. Just when I think I've had everything happen to a vehicle that can, something else develops; just to keep me on my toes.

MAY IS ELECTRIC SAFETY MONTH

THINK ELECTRIC SAFETY

DON'T TOUCH ELECTRIC POWER LINES!

Some people believe that overhead electric power lines are insulated. They're NOT! Therefore, they can hurt you if you come into contact with them. In fact, you can be killed. That's one of the reasons why they are placed high above the ground or even buried — so that they are out of the way.

But if for some reason you come across an electric power line that is within reach, DON'T reach for it. Instead, reach for your phone and notify your electric utility company. They will come out and handle the situation safely.

And that's what this message is all about...safety around electricity.

Don't touch electric power lines! It can help you avoid the shock of your life!

In May, 1990, Whittle Communications provided The University of Michigan with a grant to independently assess the impact of Channel One.

Following are the highlights from the study conducted by Dr. Jerome Johnston, of the Institute for Social Research at the University of Michigan, and Dr. Evelyn Brzezinski, of Interwest Applied Research in Beaverton, Ore.

Program Content: A daily content analysis reveals that the show covers a range of topics unavailable in the typical school curriculum. The story emphasis often differs slightly from the national media in that a teen perspective is provided.

Teacher Recommendations: Sixty percent of teachers said they would recommend Channel One "strongly" or "very strongly" to other schools and teachers.

Overall Grades: Teachers gave Channel One grades ranging from A- to B+ on student interest, its accessibility, its coverage of national and international news, the appropriateness of the general interest stories and the balance of hard news and general interest stories. The only low mark, C, was given to the usefulness of the program for other courses in the school.

Student Opinions: Almost half of the Channel-One students felt they learned something important "always" or "most of the time" when they viewed. Sixty-eight percent of the students said the information they received from Channel One was equal or greater in value to other information they received in school.

Teaching Tool: On average, Channel One viewers knew more about current events than non-viewers, but the advantage was very small. However, greater gains by a few schools suggest that a larger advantage may be possible—especially if more teachers decide to integrate current events into their teaching. In general, it can be said that viewing Channel One results in the greatest effects for questions that have not achieved saturation coverage in other national media.

In its first year Channel One was largely, but not unanimously, endorsed by teachers and students alike. The supporter felt it filled a need to educate teens about world affairs and teen living issues. Its acceptance is evidenced by the responses of the several thousand student and teacher in this study and by the fact that over 10,000 schools across the nation have contracted to broadcast Channel One daily for three years.

Most students felt they were learning important things from viewing—both about life and about national and world news. But its effect on the measured current events knowledge of the average viewer was quite small. Its influence in some schools, and for certain students, was relatively strong. But the groups that may be most in need of a broader world outlook may need more help than the broadcast by itself can provide. Channel One may have larger effects for all viewers at times when teens in non-Channel One schools are not riveted to their TVs by events as dramatic as the Gulf War.

The greater gains in a few of the schools suggest a larger advantage may be possible. Channel One may increase its impact if more teachers decide to discuss news from the shows in the courses they teach. The design of the broadcast itself could also affect what students learn. At the end of the first year format changes were observed that suggest that Whittle is experimenting with the design. Next year's study will follow the changes and assess their impact.

Vote for amendment

Amendment 1 facing voters in the primary election on Tuesday is about as easy to decipher as Logan Creek pollywog.

Designed to try to solve the Nebraska personal property tax crisis created by court rulings that said railroads were unfairly taxed under the state's constitution, the measure takes several stabs at creating equity and maintaining a system that can reasonably fund local government financing needs into the next century.

Amendment 1 does not provide a perfect plan, but it is better than no plan at all, which many opponents of the amendment seem to be encouraging. Their theory is, if voters turn this proposal down, the legislature will be forced into a special session to come up with a better plan.

Let's not forget that our lawmakers have wrestled with this issue for over a year and Amendment 1 is the closest thing we have to consensus. It is clear there are no other alternatives and a rejection by the voters could only be interpreted by lawmakers as a call for a return to the "liars tax" whereby all personal property, including business inventory, farm equipment, livestock and grain, your kid's Nintendo and the larder in the pantry would be taxed.

We don't see it as a good time to try to "call the legislature's bluff". Some Amendment opponents are trying to win votes to their side by telling voters the legislature will be forced into special session to find a better solution if the amendment is rejected. We see no better alternatives. The economic impact of a rejection of Amendment 1 would be permanent and far-reaching.

We could expect to see livestock feeders moving their feedlots to neighboring states. Grocery prices would rise as retailers fought to cover the costs of the new inventory tax. Job layoffs would result as business owners worked to reduce inventories during the taxing period.

The amendment addresses the concerns of all sectors of the Nebraska economy in an equitable compromise. Under the amendment corporations, businesses, individuals and farmers will pay their fair share.

We believe voters should support Amendment One as the best alternative for a truly equitable tax structure for Nebraska.

A non-ballot issue

One of the non-ballot issues facing many voters who go to the polls in Nebraska on Tuesday will be term limits.

On their way to the polls, many voters will be approached by petition circulators seeking signatures in support of term limits for elected officials in Nebraska. Those campaigning for term limits have said they will concentrate on election day to generate the 59,000 valid signatures they need to get the issue on the ballot in November.

The petitions will ask for a constitutional amendment election to limit the terms of federal representatives, state office holders and local elected officials.

We believe the idea of term limits should be decided by the voters and we support the petition drive to have the issue placed on the ballot.

Capitol News--

Amendment issue splits farmers

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska
Press Association

LINCOLN - Most Nebraska farmers probably would look forward to a property tax on machinery about as much as they'd look forward to a hail storm in July.

But there are still some who will, in effect, be voting themselves such a tax when they go to the polls on Amendment 1.

Such is the state we find ourselves in, in Nebraska with our personal property tax problems. Even a machinery tax can look appealing compared to some of the results we could end up with. Hanging over the heads of farmers if the measure fails is the possibility all personal property, including every little cow and piggy and bushel of grain, will be taxed this year.

It's an issue that has divided the ag community like no other in recent years. Most of the farm groups are supporting Amendment 1, but a lot of their members sure as heck aren't. Some of them are downright livid about it.

All passions aside, here are some of the things we know about Amendment 1 relating to farmers.

The tax plan that would take effect if Amendment 1 is passed by voters May 12 is estimated to increase taxes for the state's 55,000 farmers by $8.5 million, according to the state revenue folks. Compared to the total sales income and property taxes farmers pay, that's about a 1.9 percent increase.

It's hard to assess how it would affect any individual farmer, however, because the new tax plan contains several changes:

1. The dreaded property tax on machinery at its net book value, raising taxes about $15 million or so. 2. Elimination of the sales tax on machinery purchases, reducing taxes by $15 million or so. 3. A $4 a ton fee on fertilizer, raising taxes $8 million.

Impact of the machinery property tax on individual farmers will vary depending on how much machinery they've got and where it's at.

If a farmer lives in a school district made up of almost nothing but farm property, the tax change would merely shift tax burden from his real estate to his machinery. Unfortunately, the reverse is also true for a farmer living in a district that has lots of residential property. He could get socked pretty good.

Groups supporting the measure say the whole package ain't all that bad. The property tax paid on machinery while it is being depreciated is pretty much a wash compared to the 5 percent sales tax that's currently paid up front. And the depreciation tax certainly makes a lot more sense than the liar's tax.

Most importantly, they say, it's certainly better than the tax everything threat that will become reality if Amendment 1 is rejected.

Opponents say farmers don't have to take that. If the measure is rejected, it's likely Gov. Nelson could be convinced to call the Legislature back into session and avoid the everything tax, despite his claims to the contrary. Then maybe the Legislature can come up with something better this time.

It might be a risk worth taking, they say, to avoid going back to an archaic machinery tax.

Both sides make good arguments, so it's really hard to know what to do.

One argument I don't have much patience for is the one about how bad it is to be getting rid of the uniformity clause.

The fact of the matter is, we haven't had uniformity in property taxes for over 20 years, since the first constitutional amendment allowing personal property to be taxed differently was passed.

In fact, if we had true uniformity, farmers right now wouldn't be getting their land taxed at 80 percent of its value while other real estate is at full value. That kind of throws the whole uniformity argument out the window, it seems to me. Either we have uniformity or we don't.

Regardless of what happens at the polls, I don't think this is an issue that is going to simply go away any time soon.

Not just another 'Ho-Hum' election

Guess what folks, Tuesday, May 12 is primary election day.

While I'll be the first to admit that the proposed personal property tax amendment is confusing and the candidates seeking the presidency are weak, at best, it's no reason not to show up at the ballot box.

There are a number of county issues which need to be dealt with and the candidates seeking posts on various boards deserve our vote. I could address all the campaigns but I'm only going to focus on a few. I could also give my endorsement for candidates but that would be futile and unfair to those seeking election (at this point).

PROBABLY leading the list of important elections is for those individuals seeking seats on the Wayne-Carroll School Board. I base this assumption simply on the number of candidates seeking posts.

In this election, there are 12 candidates with the top six vote getters continuing on to the general election in November. If voter turnout is low, we may not end up with the best six candidates on the November ballot. If voter turnout is good, the six finalists will most likely be the best individuals to lead the local school board over the next four years and that will make us decide who the best three are in November.

The Wayne-Carroll School Board election will be especially important to Carroll residents. People in the Carroll area need to turn out to make sure that, at least, one of their two candidates get into the general election. I tend to agree that Carroll needs to have a voice on the board of education.

ANOTHER important election is in Legislative District 19. In this election we have six candidates with the top two vote-getters rounding the field. Unless voters turn out for this election, again, the final two candidates may not be the best two. Low turnouts favor underdogs. High turnouts favor the better candidates. Now for Amendment 1, the legislature's resolve to the state's personal property tax crisis. Some say this is the best solution to the personal property tax crisis. Some say it isn't.

This constitutional amendment changes the state's constitution to allow the legislature to tax tangible personal property and real property differently. Without it, all tangible personal property will be subject to taxation retroactive to Jan. 1, 1992.

ACCORDING TO the Nebraska Department of Revenue's Revenue Update, "since Jan. 1 of this year, all tangible personal property has been subject to taxation as a result of recent Supreme Court rulings, in which the system of exemptions for various classes of personal property developed over the last 20 years was found unconstitutional. These decisions are from lawsuits filed by railroads and public service companies seeking exemptions for their personal property that had been granted for other personal property, such as agricultural machinery and inventory.

"If voters approve the constitutional amendment, provisions of LB 1063, also passed March 12, the day the legislature opted to have the voters decide on the amendment, will be ratified and made retroactive to Jan. 1, 1992.

I hope that helps. LB 1063 and Amendment 1, without a doubt, are confusing. If I were to share one opinion on the Amendment 1 issue, it's that the vote will be close and may require a recount. If it is that close, we need to ask ourselves if proponents of Amendment 1, who are outstanding opponents 10-to-1, are right or wrong.

Letters to the Editor

Vote 'no'

Hey voters across the state, let's vote no on Amendment 1 and keep our precious state constitution intact. Destroying the uniformity clause (a part of the Constitution) will eventually destroy us. Nebraskans need to set a tough example and say "keep your hands off our constitution. Don't mess with it ... don't even think of it."

Our forefathers left us our Constitution to protect us, and now we have people wanting to trash-can it like the contents of a dirty ashtray. What is the quotation engraved in stone on the front of the Capitol in Lincoln? "The salvation of the state rests on the watchfulness of its people." Come on fellow Nebraskans, let's be watchers ... not ho-hummers.

When this nation was founded, Thomas Jefferson made this quote, "In matters of power, then, let no more be heard of confidence in man, but bind him down from mischief by the chains of the Constitution." This still applies today ... we need it. Don't let any part be destroyed.

Vote no on Amendment 1.

Marilyn Stewart
Newport, Neb.

Lesser of evils

During the past legislative session I voted to place Amendment

1 on the May 12 primary election ballot.

Throughout legislative debate on this proposal I worked to keep all personal property off the tax rolls. I preferred raising the income and sales taxes to replace the loss to local governments with the exemption of personal property. This position was directly in line with my constituents' best interests and their full support. But after three weeks of intense debate the 3-R plan prevailed to establish a method of taxing personal property on a depreciated basis.

There are winners and losers in every plan. I prefer Amendment 1 over the alternative now left. If it is not adopted, all business and agricultural equipment, machinery and inventory will go back on the tax rolls at the same levy as real property. This could be devastating to our state's economy and could increase every citizen's cost of living. If Amendment 1 is adopted, the Legislature will still have the opportunity to more fairly readjust tax burdens in future years. But without Amendment 1 there is no choice, personal property goes back on the rolls at actual value.

Approval of Amendment 1 will be the lesser of two evils.

Ch-Ch-Ch-Changes

They take some getting used to

The Wayne Herald staff has been receiving some interesting comments from far and wide about the new design of the paper. We welcome all such comments, even negative ones.

I must admit, the final choice of new nameplates, as selected by you readers, was not my first choice. I was partial to the weathervane design prepared by the staff's own Teri Robbins. Did anyone notice the N-E-W-S hint in the weathervane? Plus, that design heralded something that Wayne is becoming famous for — chickens.

Mayor Carhart said he liked the chicken weathervane design too. Another famous fan was national newspaper design critic and journalism teacher, Edmund Arnold, who writes a weekly column in the National Newspaper Association newspaper. The windmill design was also favored by Professor Arnold.

But our votes didn't carry the day. I am saving those designs for future consideration, however.

The flag design with the Wayne America water tower in it only received two votes. Lyle George was sorely disappointed.

I hope everyone has noticed some of the new pages added to the paper. They include a page called "record" which features court and police information along with obituaries.

Readers can always find these items on page 2 from now on. Page 3 will be for news that does not make it onto the front page. Page 4 used to be reserved for letters and editorials but will now contain another new feature, "lifestyle" which was previously called "Speaking of People."

Editorial fans and letter writers can always find their material on the back page of the main section. Inidentally, I love letters to the editor. Even unfavorable ones. If you don't tell us what you are thinking, how do you expect us to give you what you want.

The front page of the second section each week will be feature oriented and focus on local people.

The classified section will always be just inside the back page. It's new name is "marketplace."

We debated for some time about the new dictionary definition styles for page and section headings. They are certainly something you don't see in other newspapers. We hope they will be well-received when everyone gets used to them.

Besides these changes we have changed the type to make it bigger and more readable.

I've never been one to think that all changes are good, but never changing isn't good either.

I know there are people who just don't like change. There are some things associated with it that I'm not real thrilled about myself. I had a boss once who repeatedly and irritatingly said, "all change is good."

To this a co-worker once retorted, "Exploding an atom bomb creates change. And it ain't good."

Anyway, those of us who have an aversion to change, whether it be in the newspaper we read or the job we do or the house we live in, need to remember:

"It's impossible to live a year without change. After the first six months you are a different person anyway."

And if you don't like the change we've made in the newspaper look on it like you do the Nebraska weather. If you don't like the way it is now, wait five minutes.

I'll leave you with Peter Marshall's favorite prayer: "Lord, when we are wrong, make us willing to change. When we are right, make us easy to live with."
